Scripture, both of the olde and newe Testament.

Deut.32. 1.Cron.6. Genesis.1.&2 Psal.32. Genesis.1.&2 Psal.148. Jeremy.23 Esaie.42. Esay.44. Jeremy.5

Vpo the holy vnitye of the Bible maye be, that there is but one God, almyghty, that hathe
euerlastyng wyse ordeyned,
and by his worde created all thyng
vpo earth: of whome all thyngs
are, and whiche hathe dominion ouer
all thynges: subiecte to righteous and mercyfull
iudgyng: whose prouidence is ouer all his workes
and whiche he worketh all thynges in all after hys wyll and pleasure. Whose nature and substauntiall wyll is vnchaungeable and euerlastyng.

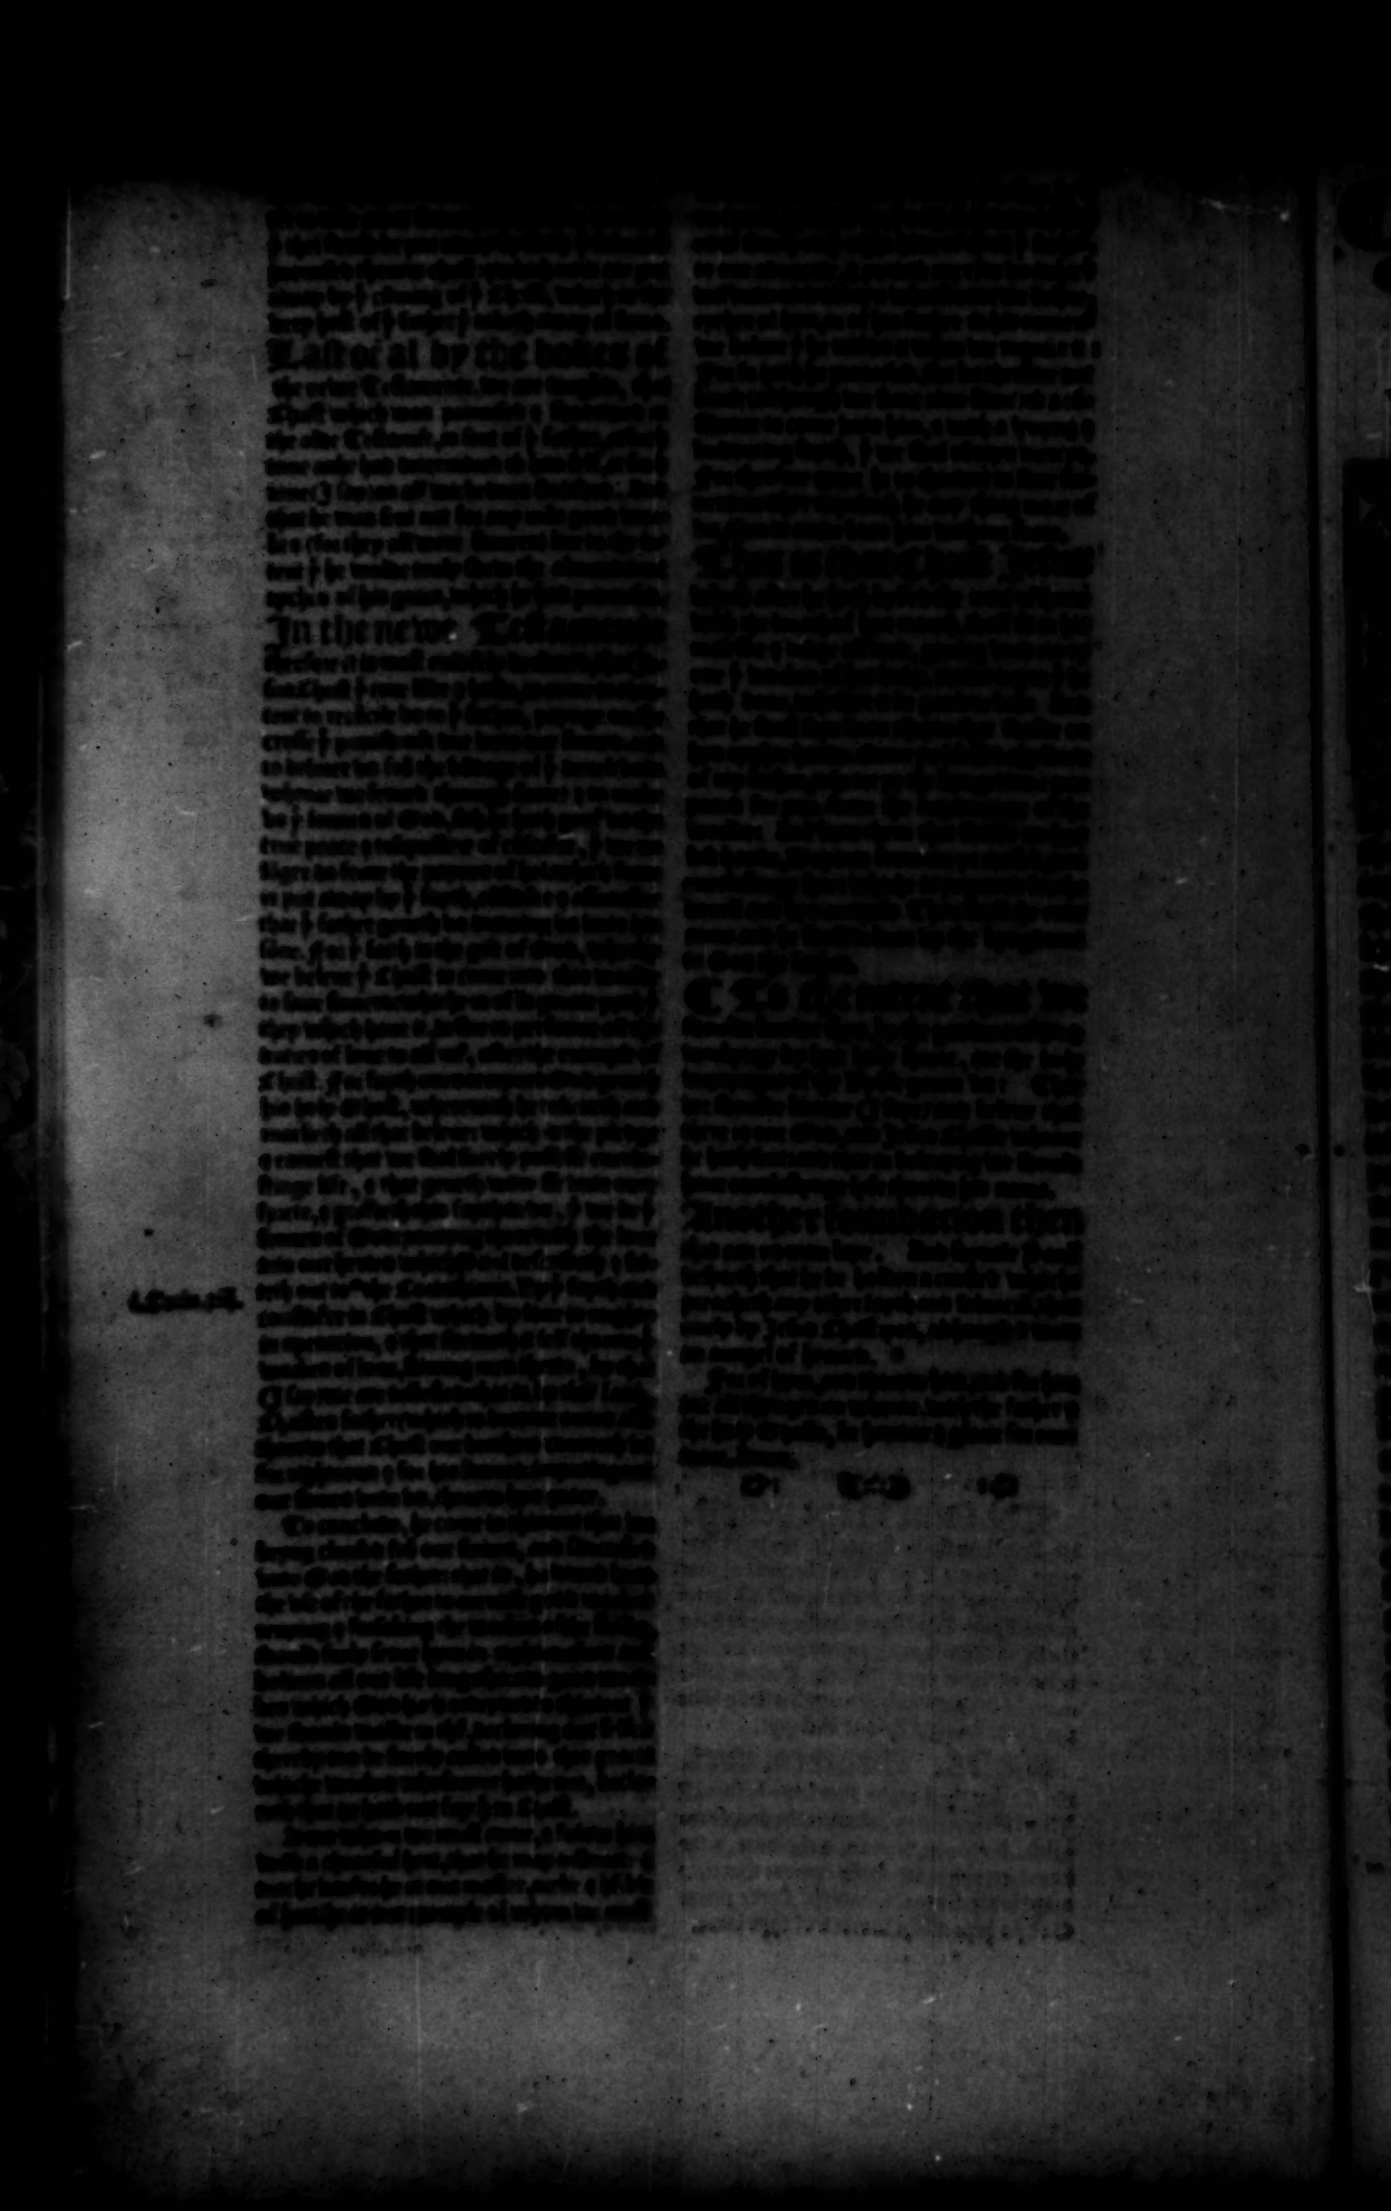
Genesis.1 &2 Sapien.8. Romans.5



Then that this very God
hath created Adam the fyrste man after hys
owne Image and similitude, to bee ouerpartener of hys Kyngdome, & to be ouerpartener of all the creatures in the earth. Which Adam by the enuy of the de-uell, breakynge the commaundement of hys maker, and hym self fell ouer, & brought ouer into hys wofulnes, such and so great, that we which be sprong of hym after the fleshe, are subiected vnto synne, death, and damnacion,
brought vnder the power & tyranny of the deuell.

Ephe.2.

And further that Chryste Jesus hys sonne was promysed of God the father, to be a sauioure to this Adam, Abrahã, Isaac, Jacob, Dauid and the other fathers: Genes.16.18. 17.22.26.28. Hebre.11.
which should deliuer them from their synnes
and tyranny of the deuell, that with a quicke & liuyng fayth would beleue this promes, & trust to this Jesus Christe, hopynge to haue
this deliuerance of and by hym. And truly this promes, is kept oft rehearsed in the bokes of the Olde testament in this processe:
as it is called the Storye, whiche teacheth that this promes is fulfilled.

And that in the meane

season whyle the fathers toke for saluacyon
and deliuerance yourselfe, because nature nature is suche that he not onely can not,
but also will not confesse him selfe to be a fine
ner, and specially suche a synner that hathe
serue of the Lawyng lykely promyses, the lawe must geue vs where thynges were wrought lacke stone, and that they are sinners: where they & that they be some of the thynges that the lawe commaundeth, vnder payne & punishment a curse or death ensuynge: but re-quyre no power nor ayde to fulfyll it, but that we should be sore afrayde, and to the ende that we beynge

thy mouth, but study therein day and night, that thou mayst perfourme and kepe all that is written therein. For then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalte haue vnderstandinge. Beholde, I haue sayd vnto the be strong and bolde, neither feare nor dreade, for thy Lord thy God is with the, whyther so euer thou goest. Here are comfortable woordes in Gods commission, by force wherof, a kyng is commaunded diligently to study Gods boke, to practise the same in his outward conuersation and liuing, that the nobilitie and commons of hys realme, moued and incouraged hereby, may imytate and folow hys vertuous example. That he may gouerne and rule after the canones and rules of this boke, and haue fortunate successe and prosperous expediciō in all his princely affayres. It lyeth not now in a kynges choyse to study or not study in Goddes boke. He muste not let the boke of this law departe out of hys mouth, but studie in it daye and nighte. Then hys wysdome and hyghnes must not suffer it to lye vnoccupyed and be throwen about in corners, that a man may wryte vpon it with hys fynger. Scire nunc in pulvere domino. But he must reade it. And to what ende? That hys wayes may be prosperous. So it semeth that the kynges prosperitie dependeth vpon the often and the reuerent readyng of Gods boke, practisyng the same in hys outwarde conuersation and lyuynge, and hys infelicitie, maye be imputed to the neglectinge and omitting of the same. Iosua toke it to be parcel of hys function charge and office, to conduct safely Goddes people into the lande of promisse, and to go before them in godly conuersation and lyuyng, to be a patrone and an example for the people to imytate and folowe, too vse all diligence in procurynge Goddes law and hys woorde promulgated and playnly preached to hys people, that they myghte the better therby learne theyr allegeance toward hym, theyr loodes man and gouernour, and to do theyr vocation accordingly. And that a kyng, a gouernour, and a ruler, may the better accomplyshe and execute theyr hygh function and office, it standeth them in hande to do good will, and to employ theyr industrye and diligent endeuour, that not onely they them selfs, but also all other officers of what degre, condicion, state or dignitie so euer they be (euen from the honorable lord Chancelar, to the honest Constable) be not in any wyse vnskilfull and ignorant in Gods boke & his lawe eternall. How so euer the lawes of the realme be studyed, thys lesson must not be vnlearned. And now ye kinges, get you vnderstanding, be you learned that be iudges of the earth. Experiēce teacheth vs, that the base and rude multitude of men, are by no other thynge so greatly induced, so behemently perswaded or dissuaded, from vyce to vertue, or contrarywyse, as by the onely exāple of kynges, rulers and men constitute in authoritie, by whome they stand or fall, they growe to knowlege, or cōtinue in ignoraunce. For as the kyng is, suche are the people. Oh moost florishynge and fortunate state of the common wealth of England, happy are they that shall lyue the fruition of that golden worlde, when all youre graces officers (too whome your hyghnes and successours shall from tyme to tyme worthely commit the ministratiō of iustice, or place in the seate of iudgemēt) wil reuerently embrace thys boke, an be as earnestly affected toward it, as some of the be to learn the lawes of your realme although necessary and requysite for the politique gouernment therof, yet notwithstanding, beyng neuer so excellent, so exact and perfect, if they shalbe fonde voyde of the knowledge of thys boke, & swarue, or ge, one iote from the same, or lacke the lighte of this lāpe, they differ not muche frō the lawes of Lycurgus, Solon and Iustiniane, cumpyged Ciuilions then Christians. Dauid disdayned not to say. Thy woorde (O Lord) is a lanterne to my fete. He that walketh without this lāterne in hys hande, though he haue as many eyes as Argus had, that is to saye, be he neuer so oculate, so circūspect and worldy wyse, yet he is but as blynd as he that walkes in the darke. Esay complayned (but not without an vrgent cause) vpon the wicked law makers, sayinge woo be vnto you that make vnrighteous lawes, and deuise thynges, which be to harde for to kepe, where throw the poore are oppressed on euery syde, and the innocentes of my people are therwith robbed of iudgemēt, that widowes may be your pray, and that ye may robbe the fatherles. We therfore that professe Christ, in stablishyng and deuising of our lawes, must not counsayll onely with worldly wisedome and policy (for they are to fearful & cast to many perils) but we must rather cleaue fast to the counsayll of Goddes boke, and ground our lawes therupon, and then (no doubte) they will endure and continew. It is a common saying in the vulgar tonge of your Walesshes realme. That ouer lyfe children be not many tymes long lyued, and likewyse the late experience hath learned vs, that ouer lordly lyfe lawes be not long lastyng. Muche semblable lawes were made by the bysshoppes of Rome, without the counsayl of thys boke, and violently obtruded to vs your louyng subiectes, but thankes be to God, your hyghnes by the aduyse of youre dere beloued vncle my lorde Protectors grace, and your honorable counsayl, hath dissolued and vtterly abrogated and discharged the same because that shulde not somewhat fro the profytable lessons of this boke withdrawe the myndes of studyous out of the. Wherfore my humble suyte vnto your highnes is, that it may please the same to take this boke. Let this boke therefore be a perpetuall patrone, & a playne lesse all lessons & lessoners, & treasure of lyfe for all that by your graces commission are constitute & placed in office or auctoryte. Then shall they of good will, & not for loue of lucres & great fees, execute their rowmes, minister Justice, helpe the soule as well as the great, the cause of the orphane, the wydow & the poore, shulde come before them. Then should the ouer lóg, & great tranayl, the immoderate expenses & costes, which the poore nil haply sustayneth in his endles suytes, pearse & moue their stony hertes, with pitye & copassion. Then should neyther Goddes cause nor poore mas matters, haue so many putters, so many put bpes & delayes. Then if theyr were any bribing, bearing or bolstering vp of naughty matters, it should sharply increase. Then your graces Chancelers, Judges, Justices, & such as intermedle with the lawfull lawe, wolde dispatche no matters in one terme tyme, then they haue done perchaunce in a whole yere. But then should they not purchase such lordshe houses, nor make them selfe so ryche, as who shoulde saye the scope of theyr study ended only to ꝑ cómodities & pleasure of this mortal body & transytory life without respect or regard of the soul, as though god had geuen the a body without a soule, or that there were no hope of Resurrectió after this lyfe. But then they should learne one lesson, amongest many other, though it be hard & painful to learne, yet it were profitable for your grace that it were sharply taught the, the lesson is this. Geue to Cesar that is Cesars, & to God that is Gods. Then should your grace be sincerely & truly serued. Then should vyce be abhorred, & vertue vsed. Then honour & promotion (the dew reward of vertue) should be rendred & freely geuen to the vertues & well doers, without ambitió or Symony (otherwise called Symony) & due punishmt should be (according to theyr demerites & deserues) inflicted to the obstinate peruerse & wicked offenders. Not these onely, but a thousand such cómodities & vertues (moost noble Prince) should ensue vpon the embracyng & louing of this boke, which teacheth playnly all thinges necessary to be learned, afterre & trasporte vs quyte vpsidedown. But though the studyenge of this boke, bringe not with it so muche worldly profit & dignitie, as the knowlege of the lawes of your graces realme: both, yet I dar boldely affirme that it teacheth vs, who are worthy of promotion & offices, & who be vsurpers of other mes rowmes. It bringeth with it the quyetnes & ioyful consolation of conscience, an vnestimable iewel & such a treasure as not vnworthely is preferred before all worldly dignities, promotions, offices or rules. If all magistrates & the nobilite, wolde wel weye with them selfe the inestimable dignite & incóparable goodnes of Gods boke, in such sort (as we your graces moost bonde & obedient subiectes pere & perceyue greatly to our cómfort, that your highnes, with your derest beloued vncle my lorde protectr tors grace & the rest of your honorable counsail, enlampies them to do) and wolde also as willingly vouchsafe to fulfurate & spare an houre or .ii. in a day, fro theyr worldly busines, employng it about the reading of this boke, as they haue bene vsed to do in Cronicles & Canterbury tales, then shoulde they also abandone & bannyshe fro theyr priuate houses & familyes, al blasphemyes, swearing, cursing, lying (the very abusyues & mortal enemies to all vertue) fonde gasing & tratyng of scripture & learned talke) & put away al pryde, prodigalite, ryot, licencious & dissolute lyuyng, & al other enormities & vyce, wherby God is offended & prouoked to powre fourth his indignation & anger vpon vs. Oh what a flourishyng cómune wealth should your grace bring & bestow? What louyng & obedient subiectes wolde the be? if they wolde thankfully & in good parte take the inestimable treasure & paynes sustayned & taken by your highnes my lord protectors grace, the reste of your honorable counsail, with thassistace of the reuerend father the Archebishop of Canterbury & the hole clergy, as well, for and in the abrogation of the late abused Masse, and false lawes, vses and ordinaces, as greatly noyed and hyndred the successe and furtherance of the Kingdo of God, as for and in the restorying of religion, to the pristyne maner and fourme vsage of the primityue Church, as appeareth by your Godly procedinges, tendyng to fynysh the frame that your graces father of famous memory, kyng Henry the eyght (who with all hertes I wisse) bad prosperously begon, but preuented by death, left the furniture & finishing therof, to your grace, as vnto one to whom, by the ordy prouidéce of God, who graūt that, as your grace successfully in peace, is be beautified with his holy spirite, not only to augment your highnes, with the knowlege of his worde & will to accomplish the same, but also geue you honorable & triumphant victory ouer all your enemies Christ and hys, & in all other your princely affayres, be your guyde, protection and assistence.

Your graces humble & bounden subiect Thomas Lupset.

¶ To the Chri sten Readers.

¶ The grace and peace of God be geuen vnto you by Jesus Christ.

AS the bees diligētly do gather together swete flowres, to make by naturall crafte the swete hony: so haue I done the principall sentences contayned in the Byble. The which are ordened after the maner of a table, for the consolacion of those whiche are not yet exercysed & instructed in the holy scripture. In the whiche are many harde places, as well of the olde as of the new Testament expounded, gathered together, concorded, and compared one with a nother: to thintent that the prudent Reader (by the spirite of God) may beare away pure and cleare vnderstandinge. Wherby euery man (as he is bounde) may be made ready, strong and garnished to answeare to all the that aske hym a reason of hys faith. This is also profitable for the particular and general exhortacions which we make to certain personages, or comm̄o people: & for to answeare truly to Heretikes, and to confounde the aduersaries of the worde of God. In the which also we may fynde (& which helpeth greatly the study of the Readers) the opening of certayn Hebrew tropes, translacions, similitudes, and maners of speakinges (whiche we call Phrases) contayned in the Byble. And for the more easely to finde the matters desired (because that disorder engendreth confusion) I haue proceded after the order of an Alphabete: to the intent that none be depryued of so precious a treasure: the whiche ye shall vse to the honour and glorie of God, and to the edifynge of hys Churche.

How be it (good Reader) yf thou fynde not the thynges in the table expressed in the same letters of the Chapters wherein they are sygned: bouche saue to loke in the letter going next before or in the letter next folowynge.

¶ A Table of the principall matters contayned in the Bible, in which the readers may fynde and practise many commune places.

The following Prologue was written by Tyndale before 1530

¶ A Prologe

thertynge the bse of the Scripture.

To vnderstonde the scripture, it is moche necessarye to marke, to whom the thinge is spoke, that is spoke, and to consydre the circumstaunces goynge before and folowynge after. Ffor the scripture is full of ambiguites and darke sentences, and wolde be harde ynough for vs to vnderstonde, yee and full of errours, were it not that the holy goost hath ordeyned certayne rules, wherebpon to ground oure fayth, and to stonde vpright in the middes of all temptacions. Whych rules yf we marke diligently, and vse them as we ought, we shall not erre, nether shall any thinge be able to hurte vs. Ffor they are so easye, that a chylde may learne them, and so true, that they shall neuer fayle any man. Ffor they are the very worde of God, and the scripture of the holy goost, which cannot lye, nether can be false. Ffor he is truthe, and the fountayne of truthe, and the iudge of truthe, and truthe it selfe. Ffor he is so true, that he is not onely true him selfe, but also maketh all other true, that put their confydence in him, and that submytte their wyttes vnto his worde, and captyuate their vnderstondynge vnder the obedience of his holy spyrite, and become fooles in the eyes of the worlde, that they may be wyse in him. Ffor he is so true, that he is not onely true him selfe, but also maketh all other true, that put their confydence in him, and that submytte their wyttes vnto his worde, and captyuate their vnderstondynge vnder the obedience of his holy spyrite, and become fooles in the eyes of the worlde, that they may be wyse in him. Ffor he is so true, that he is not onely true him selfe, but also maketh all other true, that put their confydence in him, and that submytte their wyttes vnto his worde, and captyuate their vnderstondynge vnder the obedience of his holy spyrite, and become fooles in the eyes of the worlde, that they may be wyse in him.

theyr. But for the electes sake, God sendeth the preachers. Moreouer as they harden theyr hartes agaynst the truthe, and God destroyeth the heretyke, and begynneth the worlde a newe.

These comforte thatte thou ouermoze findest in the playnte texte literall sense. Nether is there anye storre to homely, so rude, yea, or so vyle as at lenoth outwarde whereon is not ensuynge greate comforte. And when some (whiche seme to them selues greate clarkes) saye they wote not what moze profyte is in many textes of the Scripture, yf they be reade without an allegorye, then in a tale of Robynhode, say thou: that eye, then in a tale of Robynhode, say thou: that eye, then in a tale of Robynhode, say thou: that they were in prison for oure consolacyon, and ensample, that we despayre not, yf such like happen vnto vs. We be not better then Noe, though he were once dronche. Nether better beloued then Jacob, though hys owne sonne defiled his bed. We be not holyer then Lot, though his daughters thorowe ignorauncy destroyed him, nor puer then Dauid, though he slewe Vrie and committed abhominable murther. All thoste men have wrytten of the Scripture that they pleased God, were good men both before that thoste thynges chaunced them and also after. Nor vnwyttyngly sorte thynges happened them for pure exemples: not that we thoulde commaunde them vntyll, but yf whyle we fyghte with our fleshe ensuynge to walke in the lawe of God (as they dyd) we yet fall like wyse, that we despayre not, but come agayne to the lawes of God, and take better holde.

We read hence the tyme of Christes deathe, of bygone that have ben brought vnto the ro-mysh fayth, and there defyled, & of martyrs that have ben bounde, and hoten have abused theyr bodyes. Where the iudgementes of God are horrible, straunge thynges chaunsed parteyly for exemples, parteyly God thoroowe lenne had his tyme. Pryde can nether be healed, nor yet appeare but thoroowe such horrible ordes. Nor aduenture they were of the Popes sorte, and reuayled swiftly, thynkynge that heauen came by deedes, and not by Christe, and that the outwarde deed iustyfyed them, & made them holye, and not the inwarde. Egypte recouered by fayth and the confent of the harte vnto the lawes of God.

Be thou readeth therfore thincke that euery lyttake pertayneth to thyne owne self, and fashion the pyths of the Scripture, and arme thy self agaynst all aduerse. Fynde note wyth stronge fayth the power of GOD in recouerynge all of nought. Then marke the greuous fal of Adam and of vs all in him, thoroow the hyght regarding of the commaundement of God. In the fourth Chapter of Genesis, God rejecteth hym vnto Abel, and then to hys offeryng, but not to Cain & hys offeryng. Where thou fyrst that thoughe the burden of the curse appeare outwardsre as plentyous on the braders of the goode yet in the fyght of God whiche lyeth on the harte, the harte is good because of the man, and not the man good because of hys deede. In the.vi. God sendeth Noe to preache to the wicked a seuenth yeare to repent, they wolde not beleeue, God bryngeth them to nought. Yet yet seuenth Noe saued by the same water by whiche he destroyed them. Marke also what followeth the pryde of the buyldynge of the tower of Babel.

Genesis xi.

Conforme hereto God sendeth forth Abraham out of hys owne countrey into a straunge lande full of wycked people, and gaue him but a barre possession, neuer thynge that he myght dwelle there, & promyseth hym that he myght dwelle there, & promyseth hym that he myght dwelle there, & promyseth hym

The creation of the worlde.

The fyrst boke of Moses called Genesis.

¶ How heaven and erth, the lyght, the firmament, the sunne, the moone, the starres, and all beastes, foules and fyshes in the sea were made by the worde of GOD. And howe man also was create.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

IN THE begynnynge* GOD created heaven and erth. The erth was voyde and emptye, and darcknesse was upon the depe, and the spirite of God ‡ moued upon the watre.

‡ or brethed upon.

Then God sayde: let there be lighte: & there was lyght. And God sawe the lyght that it was good: & devyded the lyght frō the darcknesse, & called the lyght the daye, & the darcknesse the nyght: and so of the euenynge & mornynge was made the fyrst daye.

‡ or heaven. Psal. cxxxvi. a. 9. x. b. It is an Hebrew word and signifieth trusting fourth or spredynge abrode.

And God sayde: let there be a firmamēt betwene the waters, & let it devyde the waters a sonder. Then God made the firmament, and parted the waters whyche were vnder the firmamente, from the waters that were above the firmamente: And it was so. And God called the firmamēt heaven. And so of the euenynge and mornynge was made the seconde daye.

And God sayde: * let the waters that are vnder heaven gather them selves vnto one place, that the drye lande may appere. And it came so to passe. And GOD called the drye lande the erth, and the gatherynge together of waters called he the sea. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let the erth bringe forth herbe and gralle that sowe seed, and fruteful trees, that bere fruite every one in his kynde, havynge their seed in them selves vpō the erth. And it came so to passe. And the erth brought forth herbe and gralle sowynge seed every one in his kynde, and trees bearynge fruite, and havynge their seed in them selves, every one in his kynde. And God sawe that it was good, and then of the euenynge and mornynge was made the thyrde daye.

Then sayde God: * let there be lightes in the firmament of heaven, to devyde the daye from the nyght, & they may be vnto sygnes, seasons, dayes and yeares. And * let them be lyghtes in the firmament of heaven, to shyne vpon the erth. And it was so. And God made * two greate lyghtes: a greater light to rule the daye, and a lesse light to rule the nyght, and he made starres also. And God put them in the firmament of heaven to shyne vpon the erth, and to rule the daye and the nyght and to devyde the lyght frō darcknesse. And God sawe that it was good: & so of the euenynge & mornynge was made the fourth daye.

* Psa. civ. b. Ecclesi. xviii. a. Jeremy. x. b. Hebr. i. c. xi. a. Psalm. ci. b. & cxxxvi. a. Esay. xliii. b. ‡ brethed on the face.

* Psalm. civ. b. Ecclesi. xxxiii. c. Jeremy. xxxi. c.

And God sayde: * let the waters bringe forth creatures that moue and have lyfe, & foules for to flye ouer the erth vnder the firmament of heaven. And God created great whales & al maner of creatures that have & moue, wherwith the waters brought forth plentuously in their kyndes, & all maner of fetherd foules in their kyndes. And God sawe that it was good: & God blessed them sayinge: Be ye mery and multiplye and fyll the waters of the sea: and let the foules multyplye vpō the erth. And so of the euenynge & mornynge was made the fyfth daye.

* Deut. xvii. b.

And God sayde: let the erth bringe forth by sprynge creatures in their kyndes: catell and wormes & beastes of the erth in their kyndes, & so it came to passe. And God made the beastes of the erth in their kyndes, and catell in their kyndes, & al maner wormes of the erth in their kyndes: & God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let vs make man in our fassyō & after our lykenesse: that he may have rule ouer the fyshe of the sea, and ouer the foules of the ayre, & ouer catell, and ouer all the erth, and ouer all wormes that crepe vpō the erth. And God created man after his owne lykenesse, after the lykenesse of god created he them: male & female created he them.

And God blessed them, & God sayde vnto them: Be ye mery and multiplye & fyll the erth, & subdue it, & have dominion ouer the fyshes of the sea, and ouer the foules of the ayre, and ouer al the beastes that moue on the erth.

And God sayde: Lo, I have geven you al herbes that sowe seed, wherso ever they be on all the erth, & all maner trees that have fruite in them and sowe seed: to be meate for you and for al beastes of the erth, and vnto all foules of the ayre, and vnto all that crepeth on the erth, wherin is lyfe, that they myght have all maner herbes and gralle for to eate, and so it was. And * God behelde all that he had made, and lo, they were exceadynge goode: & so of the euenynge and mornynge was made the syxte daye.

Blessynge.

b Then is made after the fassyon of God, perfect in suche a double consyderacyon, wherof the one is the soule, whych is immortall, endowed with diuerse myghtes and other notable qualities, not vnlyke vnto God: the other is the body, made of the moste pure and fyne matter that was in the erth, and therfore apte to receyve the soule. Of whych double consyderacyon ensueth that the soule after it departeth from the body, is immortall, and the body after it ryseth again shall be immortall. Also in the soule appeareth three myghtes, wherby it is lyke vnto the blessed Trynyte, the memorye resembling the Father, the vnderstandynge the Sonne, and the wyll the Holy Ghost. Also in the soule is the ymage of God perfectly fynished, but in the body not so. For in the soule is the ymage of God, wherby he knoweth God, loveth him, and lyveth in him, and he in him.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

¶ The Chapter that wil before is here repeted again: the bolowyng of the .vi. abouth dayes four Boukes of paradyse. The setting on of man in paradyse the tree of knowledge: to fore bydde him: how Adam named all creatures: the creacion of Eua. the institucion of mariage.

THus was heauen and erth fynyshed with all their apparel, and in the seuenth day God ended his worke whiche he had made, & rested in the seuenth day from all his workes which he had made. And God blessed the seuenth daye, & sanctified it, for in it he rested frō all his workes which he had created and made.

These are the generacions of heauen and erth when they were created, in ye tyme whē the Lord God created heauen & erth and all the shrubbes of the felde before they were in the erth. And all the herbes of the felde before they spraunge, for the Lord God had yet sent no rayne vpon the erth, neither was there yet any man to tyll the erth. But there arose a mysle out of the ground, & watered all the face of the erth: Then the Lord God* shope man, euen of the mould of the erth, & breathed into his face the breth of lyfe. So* man was made a lyuyng soule.

The Lorde God also planted a garden in Eden from the beginning, and there he sette man whō he had formed. And the Lord god made to spraunge out of the erth, all maner trees beautyfull to the syght and pleasant to eate, and the* tree of lyfe in the middes of the garden: and also the tree of knowledge of good and euell.

And there spraunge a ryuer out of Eden to water the garden, & thence deuyded it self, & grewe in to foure partes. The name of the one is* Phison, he it is that compasseth all the lande of Heuyla, where golde groweth. And the golde of that coūtre is pure, ther is found Bedellyon, and a stone called Onix. The name of the second ryuer is Gihon, whych compasseth al the lande of Iude. And the name of the thyrde ryuer is Hydechel, whyche runneth on the east syde of the Assyrians. And the fourth ryuer is Euphrates.

And the Lord God tooke Adam, & put him in the garde of Eden, to dresse it & to kepe it. And the Lord God commaunded Adā saying: Of all the trees of the garden se thou eate: But of the tree of knowledge of good & bad se that thou eate not: For euen the same daye thou eatest of it thou shalt dye the dethe.

And the Lorde God sayde: It is not good that man should be alone, I wyll make hym an helper to beare hym company. And after that the Lorde God had made of the erth all maner beastes of the felde, and all maner foules of the ayre, he brought them vnto Adā to se what he would call them. And as Adam called al maner lyuyng beastes, euen so are their names. And Adam gaue names vnto al maner catell, and vnto the foules of the ayre and vnto all maner beastes of the felde. But ther was no helpe founde vnto Adā to beare hym company.

Then ye Lord god cast a slomber on Adā, and he slepte. And then he toke out one of his ribbes, & in stede ther of he filled vp the place wt flesh. And the lord God made of the ribbe whych he toke out of Adam* a woman: and brought her vnto Adam. Then sayde Adam: This is once bone of my bones, & flesh of my flesh. This shal be called woma: because she was take of the man. *For this cause shal a man leue father & mother, & cleue vnto his wyfe, & they shal be one flesh. And they were either of the naked, both Adam & his wyfe, and were not ashamed.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

¶ The serpēt beguyleth the woman. The sinne, the woman, and the man are cursed, and hereon out of Paradyse. Christ cum foreseene & promysed.

But

BVt the serpent was subtyller than all the beastes of ye felde, whych the Lorde God had made: sayd vnto the woman: yea hath God sayd in dede, ye shall not eate of all maner trees in the garden? And ye woman sayd vnto the serpent, of the fruite of the trees in the garden we may eate, but of the fruite of the tree that is in the myddes of the garden sayd God: ye eate not, neyther ye touche it not, lest ye dye. Then sayd the serpent vnto the woman: nay ye shal not dye: for God doth know that when so euer ye should eate of it, your eyes should be opened, and ye should be as god, knowe both good and euell. And ye woman sawe ye it was a good tree to eate of, and lusty vnto ye eien, and a pleasant tree vnto ye vnderstandynge. And toke of the fruite of it and ate, and gaue vnto her husband also with her, and he ate. And the eyes of bothe them were opened, and they vnderstode howe that they were naked. Thē they sowed figge leues together and made them aprons.

And they herd the voyce of the Lorde God as he walked in the garden in the coole of ye daye. And Adam hyd hym self and his wyfe also from the face of the Lorde God, amōg the trees of the garden. And the Lorde God called Adam, and sayd vnto hym: where art thou? And he answered: Thy voyce I herde in the garden, but I was afrayed, because I was naked, and therfore hyd my self. And he sayde: Who tolde the that thou wast naked: hast thou eaten of the tree, of whyche I bade the that thou shuldest not eate? And Adam answered: The woman whych thou gauest to bere me company she toke me of the tree, and I ate. And the Lorde God sayd vnto the woman: Wherfore dydest thou so? And the woman answered: The serpent deceyued me and I ate.

And the Lord God sayd vnto the serpent: because thou hast so done, accursed be thou of all catell and of all beastes of ye felde: vpon thy belly shalt thou go: and erth shalt thou eate all dayes of thy life. Moreouer, I wyll put hatred betwene the & the woman, & betwene thy seed and her seed. And that seed shall tread the on thy head, and thou shalt treade it on the hele.

And vnto the woman he sayde: I wyll sore encrease thy trauell, and make the all vnready, & with payne shalt thou be deliuered: And thy lust shall pertayne vnto thy husband, and he shal rule the.

And vnto Adam he sayde: For as much as thou hast obeyed the voyce of thy wyfe, and hast eaten of the tree of which I commaunded the, sayinge: Se thou eate not therof: accursed be the erth for thy sake. In sorow shalt thou eate therof all dayes of thy life: And it shall beare thornes & thystles vnto the. And thou shalt eate the herbes of the felde. In the swete of thy face shalt thou eate bread, tyll thou returne vnto the erth whence ye wast taken: for erth thou art, & vnto erth shalt ye returne.

And Adam called his wyfes name Heua, because she was the mother of all that liueth. And the Lord God made Adā & his wyfe garmentes of sheapes, and put them on them. And the Lorde God sayde: Lo, Adam is become as it were one of vs, in knowledge of good and euell. But now lest he stretch forth his hande and take also of the tree of life, & eate & liue euer. And the Lord God cast hym out of the garden of Eden, to tylle the erth wherout he was taken. And he cast Adam out, & sette at the entrynge of the garden Eden, Cherubins with a naked swerde mouynge in and out, to kepe the way to the tree of life.

a. Thys openynge of eyen, is the entrynge of pleasure to perceyue good from euell, which man coulde neuer haue knowe, yf he had not transgressed goddes commaundement. For that was the cause of all the euelles that happened vnto man, so that yf he had neuer transgressed, there had neuer euell happened vnto him. And so consequently he had neuer knowne euell. For suche as neuer fele euell, can saye de not to knowe what euell meaneth. And he that knoweth not euell, knoweth not good, for ther is no knowe but by the comparysynge of it to the contrarie which is euell. So Adam when he had transgressed, knewe both good and euell, that is to saye he felte the swetenesse of the fruite whyche were geuen for the transgression, and by that he felt them to be euell, he perceyued the pleasures that he was in before to be good. Thus knewe he good and euell.

Open eyed.

b. In thys place the face of the Lord is taken as it is in the .cxxx. Psalme, that is to saye for his presence. For as he is alwayes present in all places: so he is present in the glorie of the transgressours of his lawes, a terrible thinge & fulle wrongar.

The face of God.

c. The brute of the serpent, signifieth the power and tyrannye of ye deuel, which shall be the brute of the woman ouercome. And so shall he (vnto the tyme) be serpentes head. The hele, is Christes manhode, whych ye deuel attempted to ouerthrowe by all meanes possible, in temptynge him to the breache of godlye commaundements.

The brute of the serpent.

d. In thys place, loue, is taken for a moche, & signifieth suche as that we are bounde to shewe in oure dedes: yelde vnto vs habite to worke our thinges well in vpon whose conceyte, Christ saye we, this man hath put himself in the possession of vs all.

Then sayde Lamech vnto his wyues Ada & Zilla: heare my voice ye wiues of Lamech & herke vnto my wordes, for I haue slayne a man & wounded my self, & haue slayn a yōg man, & gotte my self strypes: for Cayn shall be auēged seuenfolde, but Lamech seuentye tymes seuenfolde. Adam also laye with his wyfe yet agayne, & she bare a sonne & called his name Seth. For God (sayd she) hath geuen me another sonne for Abel whom Cayn slewe. And Seth begat a sonne, & called hys name Enos. And in that tyme began men to call on the name of the Lord.

a. The lord loked vnto Abel & his offeryngs that is, he was pleased with them. But with Cayn nor hys offeryng was he not pleased, wherfore it is sayd, ỹ he loked not therunto. The same vse of speaking is also in ỹ .ii. boke of the kynges xvi. chapt. c. & Psal. xxx. b. — Abel and hys offeryngs.

¶ The genealogye of Adam vnto Noe.

This is the boke of the generacōn of man. In the daye when God created man & made hym after the similitude of God. And when Adam was an hundred & thyrty yere olde, he begat a sonne after hys lycknesse and similitude: & called his name *Seth. And the dayes of Adā after he begat Seth, were eyght hundred yere, and begat sonnes & daughters. And al the dayes of Adā which he lyued, were .ix. hundred & xxx. yere, and then he dyed. — *i. Sonnes of God. a. The sonnes of seth are called the sonnes of god, because they: father had instructed and noury shed the godlye, & trayned them vp in the feare of God. Contrarie wise, the sonnes of Cayn are called the sonnes of men, because they were trayned and brought vp after the wickednes of the flesh.

God repent. b. This is not to be taken so that we shoulde herby holde opinion, that god may do any thyng rashly, wherof he may afterwarde repent himself: God is liable in al his workes & repenteth not of ought that he doeth, but it is to be gathered of them, that the sonnes of mā kynde were then so greate, that yt had ben possible for God to haue repented his workes, he had then cause sufficient.

And when the doue could finde no restyng place for hyr fote, she returned to him agayne into the arcke, for the waters were vpon the face of al the earth. And he put out hys hande, and toke hyr, and pulled hyr to hym into the Arcke.

And he abode yet seuen dayes more, & sent out the doue agayne out of the arcke, & the doue came to him agayne about euentyde, & beholde, there was in hyr mouth a lefe of an olyue tre whyche she had plucked: wherby Noe perceiued that the waters were abated vpon the earth. And he taried yet seuen other dayes, and sent forth the doue, whyche from thence forth came no more agayne to hym.

And it came to passe, the .vi. hundred and one yere & the fyrst day of the fyrste moneth, that the waters were dried vp vpon & earth. And Noe toke of the hatches of the arcke, & loked: and beholde, the face of the earth was dry. So by the .xxvii. day of the second moneth the earth was dry.

And God spake vnto Noe, saying. Come out of the arcke, both thou & thy wyfe & thy sons & thy sonnes * wyues with the. And al the beastes that are by the wharsoeuer flesshe it be, both foule & catel, & all maner wormes that crepe on the earth, bringe out with the & let them moue, *grow & multiply vpō the erth. And Noe came out, & hys sonnes, & hys wyfe, and hys sonnes wines with him. And all the beastes, and all the wormes, and all the foules and all that moued vpon the erth, came also out of the arcke, all of one kynde together.

And Noe made an aulter vnto the Lord, & toke of all maner of *clene beastes, & all maner of clene foules, & offred sacrifice vpō the aultare. And the Lorde smelled a swete sauour, & sayd in his hert: I wyll henceforth no more curse the earthe for mans sake, for the imaginatiō of mans herte is euyll, euen frō the very youth of him. Moreouer I wyll not destroy from henceforthe all that lyueth as I haue done. Neyther shal forgoynge time and hervest, cold and hete, sommer, and wynter, daye and nyghte ceasse, as longe as the earth endureth.

Gods remembred Noe. a. Thys is spoke after the maner of men. For God neuer forgetteth thynges, that he maye call it to remembraunce agayne.

The Lorde smelled. b. The Lordes smellinge of sacrifice is alowaunce of the workes of the faythfull, as in Exod. xxix. Deut. i. ii. iii.

¶ The .ix. Chapter.

¶ God blesseth Noe and his sonnes. He forbiddeth to eate the blode of Beastes, and forbiddeth the shedynge of mannes blode. The bowe of the swerde. He maketh a couenaunte that he wyll destroy the worlde no more by water, and geueth the rayneborowe as a token and confirmation of the same. Noe is dronken, & hym vncouereth hym, and curseth his sonne.

AND God * blessed Noe & hys sonnes, and sayd vnto the: Encrease & multiply and fyll the earth. The feare also & dreade of you be vpon all beastes of the earthe, and vppon all foules of the ayre, & vpon al that crepeth on the earth, and vpō all fyshes of the sea, whych are geuen vnto your handes. And all that moueth vpon the earth hauynge lyfe, shall be your meate: euē as the grene herbes so geue I you al thynge. Only ye * eate not flesh with his lyfe whych is his blonde se that you eate not.

* For surely the .x. blonde of you wherin your lyues are wyll I requyre: euen of the hande of all beastes wyll I requyre it, and of the hande of man and of the hand of euerye mannes brother wyll I requyre the lyfe of man: so that he whych sheadeth mans blond shal haue his blond shed by man agayne: for God * made man after hys owne ymage. Be ye encreasse, and waxe, and be occupied vpon the earth, & multiply therin.

Furthermore God spake vnto Noe & to hys sonnes with him, sayenge: Lo, I make * my bond with you & your seed after you, & with all lyuynge thynge that is with you: both foule & catel, & al maner beastes of the earth that is with you, of al that cōmeth out of the arcke, whatsoeuer beast of the earth it be. I make my bonde with you, that hence forth all flesshe shal not be destroyed with the waters of any flood, & that hēce * forth there shall not be aflood to destroy the earth.

And God sayd: This is the token of my bond which I make betweene me and you, & betweene all lyuyng thyng that is with you for euer: I wyll set my bowe in the cloudes, & it shall be a sygne of the appointment made betweene me & the earth: so that whē I bring in cloudes vpon the earth, the bowe shal appeare in the cloudes. And then wyll I thinke vpon my testament whych I haue made betweene me and you, and all that lyueth what soeuer flesshe it be. So that henceforth * there shall be no more waters to make a flaude to destroy all flesshe.

The bowe shal be in the cloudes, & I wil loke vpon it, to remember the euerlastynge testament betweene God & all that lyueth vpō the earth, whatsoeuer flesshe it be. And God sayed vnto Noe: This is the sygne of the testament which I haue made betweene me and all flesshe that is on the earth.

The sonnes of Noe that came out of the arcke were: Sem, Ham and Japheth. And Ham he is the father of Canaan. These are the three sonnes of Noe, and of these was all the world ouerspred.

And Noe beganne an husbande man, and set forth & planted a vineyarde, & dranke of the wyne

wyne, & was dronche, and lay vncouered in the middest of hys tent. And Ham the father of Canaan sawe hys fathers priuities, and told hys .ii. brethren that were without. And Sem and Japheth toke a mātyll, & put it on both their shoulders and went backward, & couered their fathers secretes, but their faces were backewarde, so that they sawe not their fathers nakednes.

D As sone as Noe was awaked from hys wyne, & wyste what hys yongest sonne had done vnto him, he said: Cursed be Canaan, a seruāt of al seruātes be he to hys brethren. And he saied: Blessed be the Lorde God of Sem, & Canaā be his seruāt. God encrease Japheth, that he maye dwel in the tentes of Sem. And Canaan be their seruant.

And Noe lyued after the flood thre hūdred and fifty yere: so that all the dayes of Noe were .ix. hundred & fifty yere & then he died.

¶ The notes.

Blonde. a. Here is al cruelnes forbidden man, in that the blonde of all beastes is forbydden him. For the life of euery thynge is in the blonde which God hath therefore ded to auenge in al beastes, muche more in men.

To encrease. b. In this place, encrease is taken for trioyse & to be in peace and of good comforte, as it is Gene. xxvi. e. and. Psalm. xxxv. a.

He was a myghty hunter in the syghte of the Lorde: Wherof came the prouerbe: he is as Nemrod that myghty hūter in the syght of the Lord. And the beginning of hys kyngdome was * Babell, Erech, Achad, & Chalne in the lāde of Synear. Oute of that land came Assur, & builded Ninive, & the cite Rehoboth, & Calah, and Resen betwene * Ninive & Calah. That is a greate cite. And Mizrim begat Ludim, Enamim, Lehabim, Naphtuhim, Pathusim, & Casluhim: from whence came the Philistyns, and the Capthorynes. C

AND all the worlde was of one tonge and one language. And as they came from the East, they found a playne in the lāde of Synear, and ther they dwelled. And they saied one to an other: come on, let vs make bryche and burne it with fyre. So bryche was their stone, and slyme was their mortar. And they saied come on, let vs builde a cite & a tower, that the toppe may reach vnto hyue. And let vs make vs a name for peraduenture we shall be scattered abrod ouer al the erth. And the Lord came * downe to se the cite and the tower which the children of Adam had builded. And the Lorde saied: See, the people is one, and haue one tonge amonge them all. And thys haue they begon to do, and wyll not leaue of from all that they haue purposed to do. Come on, let vs

to destroye, and mingle their tonge euen there, that one vnderstande not what another speeth. Thus the Lorde shattered them from thence vpon all the earth. And they left of to builde the city. Wherefore the name of it is called Babell, because that the Lorde there confounded the tonge of al the world. And because that the Lorde from thence scattered them abroade vpon all the earth.

These are the generations of Sem: Sem was an hundred yere old, & begat Arphachsad. ii. yere after the flode. And Sem lyued after he hadde begat Arphachsad. v. hundred yere and begat sonnes and doughters.

And Arphachsad lyued. xxxv. yere & begat Sala, & lyued after he hadde begat Sala iii. hundred yere & iii. & begat sonnes & doughters. And Abram and Nahor toke them wyues. Abrams wyfe was called Sarai. And Nahors wyfe Melca, the doughter of Haran whyche was father of Melca, & of Iesca. But* Sarai was barren, and had no childe.

Then toke Terah Abram hys* sonne, & Lot hys sonne, Harans sonne, & Sarai hys daughter in lawe, hys sonne Abrams wyfe. And they went wyth him from Ur in Chaldea, to goo into the Lande of Canaan. And they came to Haran and dwelled there. And when Terah was two hundred yere olde and fyue, he dyed in Haran.

Note. c. I would not that couetous harders should defend their abhominable lucre by this dede of Abraham, and say, that scripture leaueth it as an example of a thyng lawfull to be followed, because it doth not reprehende his doinge therin: but that they know it to be an history and that the nature of an history, is not to praise or reprehende, but onely to report the truth of the thinge done. And though Abraham myghte be excused by that he did it for loue & affearde of his wyfe: yet shall not they be excused that do it for lucre.

a. The scripture vseth to call the synne of a thynge, by the name of the thyng it self. Only to kepe the thynge signified the better in memorie. As here he calleth circumcision his bonde, whych is but a token therof. And as in Exod. xij. b. the Paschal lambe is called the Lordes passeouer, and also as the breade in the Lordes supper is called his bodye. Math. xxvi. &c. The synne & thynge.

But he sayde: yee thou laughest. Than the men stode vp from thence and loked toward Sodome. And Abraham went with them to bringe them on the way. And the Lord sayde: Can I hyde from Abraham that thyng whyche I am about to do, seynge that Abraham shal be a* great & a myghtie people, & all the nacions of the erth shalbe blessed in him? For I know him that he wyl cõmaunde his children & his household after him, that they kepe the way of the Lord, to do after ryght & conscience that the Lord may bringe vpõ Abraham that he hath promysed hym.

I wyll go downe and se whether they haue done all to gether accordynge to that crye which is come vnto me or not, that I may knowe. And the men departed thẽce & went to Sodome ward. But Abrahã stode yet before the Lorde, & drewe nere and sayde. Wylt thou destroy the righteous wt̃ the wycked? If there be.l. righteous wyth in the cyte, wylt thou destroy it & not spare the place for the sake of.l. righteous that are therin? That be farre from the, that thou shuldest do after this maner, to slee the righteous wt̃ the wicked, & that the righteous shuld be as the wicked: that be farre from the. Shulde not the iudge of all the worlde do accordynge to ryght? And the Lorde sayde: If I fynde in Sodome.l. righteous wythin the cyte, I wyll spare all the place for their sakes.

And Abraham answered & sayde: behold I haue taken vpõ me to speake vnto the Lord, & yet am but* dust and asshes. What though there lacke .v. of .l. righteous, wylt thou destroy al the cyte for lacke of .v.? And he sayde: If I fynde there .xl. and .v. I wil not destroy them. And he spake vnto hym yet agayn and sayde: what yf there be .xl. founde there. And he sayde: I wyll not do it for fourtyes sake. And he sayde: O let not my Lorde be angry, that I speake. Haste the, and saue thy selfe there, for I can do nothyng tyl thou be come in thyther. And therfore the name of the cyte is called Zoar. And the sunne was vpō the erth when Lot was entred in to Zoar.

Than the Lorde rayned vpon * Sodome and Gomorra, brymstone and fyre from the Lord out of heauen, & ouerthrewe those cites and al the region, and all that dwelled in the cytes, and that that grewe vpō the erth. And Lot departed out of Zoar & dwelled in the mountayns & his .ii. doughters wt hym for he feared to tary in Zoar: he dwelled therfore in a caue, bothe he & his two doughters also. And Abimelech sayd vnto Abraham: what meane these vii. lambes which thou hast set by the selues. And he answered vii. lambes shalt thou take of my hād, that it maye be a witnesse vnto me, that I haue digged this well. Wherfore the place is called Berseba, because they sware both of the. Thus made they a bonde together at Berseba. Than Abimelech & Phicol his chefe Captayne rose vp & turned agayne vnto the lande of the Philistines. And Abraham plāted a wood in Berseba, and called there on the name of the Lorde, the euerlastyng god: and dwelt in ỹ Philistins land a long season.

SAra was an hundred and .xxvij.
yere old (for so long lyued she) A
and than dyed in a beade cyte called Hebron in the lande of Canaan. Than Abraham cam to mourne Sara, and to wepe for her. And Abraham stode vp from the corse, and talked vnto the sonnes of Heth sayeng: I am a straunger and a sojorner among you, geue me a possession to burye in with you, that I may bury my dead out of my syght. And the chyldren of Heth answered Abraham sayenge vnto
him: Heare vs lorde, thou art a prince of god
amonge vs. In the chefest of our sepulchres bury thy dead: None of vs shall forbyd thee his sepulchre, that thou shouldest not burye B thy dead therin. Abraham stode vp, & bowed him selfe before the people of the lande the children of Heth. And he communed with them sayenge: If it be your mynde that I shall bury my dead out of my syght, heare me and speke for me to Ephron the sonne of Zoar: & let him geue me the dubbyll cave which he hath in the ende of his fylde, for as much money as it is worth, let him geue it me in the presence of you, for a possession to burye
in. For Ephron dwelled among the children of Heth.

Than Ephō the Hethite answered Abraham in the audience of the children of Heth &
of all that went in at the gates of his cyte, sayeng: Nay so my Lorde, but heare me: The fylde geue I the, & the cave that therin is geue
I the also: & euē in the presence of the sonnes of my people geue I it the to bury thy dede C
in. Than Abraham bowed him selfe before the people of the lande, & spake vnto Ephron in the audience of the people of the contre saying: I praye the heare me, I wyll geue the siluer for the felde, take it of me, & so wyl I burye my dead there. Ephron answered Abrahã saynge vnto hym: My Lorde, harken vnto me. The lande is worth.iiii. hundred sycles of siluer: but what is that betwyxte the and me? bury thy dead. And Abraham harkened vnto Ephron & wayde hym the siluer which he had sayde in the audience of the sonnes of Heth. Euen.iiii. hundred siluer sycles of curraut money amõg marchauntes. Thus was the felde of Ephron where in the dubbyl caue is before Mamre: euen the felde and the caue that is therin and all the trees of the feld which growe in al the borders rounde about, made sure vnto Abraham for a possessyon, in the syght of the chyldren of Heth, and of all that went in at the gates of the cite. And then Abraham buryed Sara hys wyfe in the double caue of the felde that lyeth before Mamre, otherwyse called Hebron in the land of Canaan. And so both the felde and the caue that is therin, was made vnto Abraham a sure possessyon to bury in, of the sonnes of Heth.

¶ The.xxiiii. Chapter.

¶ Abraham maketh his seruaunt to swere, and sendeth him to take a wyfe for Isaac his sonne. The seruant was faythfull and brought Rebecca, whych Isaac toke to his wyfe.

ABraham was old and stryken in dayes, & the Lorde had blessed him in all thynges. And he sayd vnto his eldest seruaunte of hys house whyche had the rule ouer al that he had. Put thy hand vnder my thye that I may make the swere by the Lord that is God of heauen & God of the erth, that thou shalt not take a wyfe vnto my sonne, of the daughters of the Canaanytes, among whych I dwel. But shalt go vnto my contre and to my kynred, and there take a wyfe vnto my sonne Isaac.

Than sayd the seruaunte vnto him: what & yf the woman wyl not agree to come with me vnto thys lande, shal I bringe thy sonne again vnto the lande which thou camest out of? And Abraham sayde vnto him: beware of that, that thou bryng not my sonne thyther. The Lorde God of heauen whyche toke me from my fathers house and from the lande where I was borne, & whych spake vnto me and sware vnto me saynge: vnto thy seed wyl I geue thys lande, he shal sende hys angell before the that thou mayste take a wyfe vnto my sonne from thence. Neuertheles yf the woman wyl not agree to come with the than shalt thou be without daunger of thys oth. But alone all thinge bringe not my sonne thyther again. And the seruaunt put his hand vnder the thye of Abraham & sware to hym as concernyng that matter. And the seruaunt toke.x. camels of the camels of his master & departed, & had of all maner goodes of his master with him, & stode vp & went to Mesopotamia, vnto the cytie of Nahor. And made his camels to lye doune without the cytie by a wels syde of water, at euen: about the tyme that women come out to drawe water, and he sayde.

Lord God of my master Abraham, sende me good spede thys daye, and shewe mercye vnto my master Abraham. Lo I stonde here by the well of water and the doughters of the men of thys cytie wyll come out to drawe water: Nowe the damsell to whome I saye, stoupe doune thy pytcher, and let me drinck. If she saye: Drincke, and I wyll geue thy camels drynche also, the same is she that thou hast ordened for thy seruaute Isaac: yea and therby shall I knowe that thou hast shewed mercy on my master. And it came to passe yet he had left speakynge, that Rebecca cam out, the daughter of Bethuell, sonne to Milca the wyfe of Nahor Abrahams brother, and her pytcher vpon her shoulder: The damsel was very fayre to loke vpon, and yet a mayd and vnknowen of man. And she went doune to the well and fylled her pytcher and came vp agayne. Then the seruaunte ranne vnto her and sayde: let me suppe a lytle water of thy pytcher. And she sayd: drynche my Lorde.

And she hasted and lete doune her pytcher vpõ her arme & gaue him drinche. And when she had geuen him drinche, she sayde: I wyll drawe water for thy camels also, tyll they haue dronck ynough. And she poured out her pitcher in to the trough hastely, & ranne agayn vnto the well, to fet water: and drewe for all hys camels. And the felowe wondred at her. But helde his peace, to wete whether the Lorde had made his iourney prosperous or not. And as the camels had left drinckyng, he toke a.½. golde earing of half a sicle weyght, & two bracelettes for her handes, of.x. sycles weyght of gold, and sayde vnto her: Whose doughter art thou? tell me: is there rowme in thy fathers house for vs to lodge in? And she sayd vnto him: I am the doughter of Bathuel the sonne of Milcha whyche she bare vnto Nahor: and sayde moreouer vnto hym: we haue litter and prouender ynough, and also rowme to lodge in.

And the man bowed him self, & worshipped the Lord, & sayd: blessed be the lorde God of my master Abraham whych ceaseth not to deale mercyfully & truly with my master, & hath brought me the waye to my masters brothers house. And the damsel ranne & told them of her mothers house these thynges. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And Laban ranne out vnto the man, to the welle: as soone as he had sene the earinges and the bracelettes vpon hys systers handes, and hearde the wordes of Rebecca hys syster saynge thus sayde the man vnto me,

then he wente out vnto the man. And loo, he stode yet with the camels by the wel side. And Laban sayd come in thou blessed of the Lord. Wherefore standest thou without? I haue dressed the house, & made rowme for the camels. And the the man came into the house: & he vnbaudeled the camels: & brought litter & prauender for the camels, & water to wasshe his fete & their fete that were vnto him, & there was meate sette before him to eate. But he sayed: I wyll not eate, vntyll I haue sayed myne erande. And he sayd: saye on. And he sayed: I am Abrahās seruant, and the Lorde hath blessed my master out of measure, & he is become greate, & hath geue him shepe oxen, siluer & golde, men seruantes mayde seruantes, camels and asses. And Sara my masters wife bare him a sonne, whē she was olde: & vnto him hath he geue al y he hath. And my master made me sweare sayeng: thou shalt not take a wife to my sonne amōge the doughters of the Canaanites in whose lande I dwell. But thou shalt go vnto my fathers house: & to my kynred, and there take a wyfe vnto my sonne. And I said vnto my master: what if the wyfe wyll not folow me? And he sayed vnto me: The Lorde before whome I walke wyll send his angell with the, and prosperre thy iorney that thou shalte take a wife for my sonne, of my kynred, & of my fathers house. But & if (whē thou cōmest vnto my kynred) they wyl not giue the one, the shalt thou bear no perysll of myne oth.

And I came this day vnto the wel & said: O Lorde, the God of my master Abrahā, if it be so that thou makest my iorney which I go, prosperous: beholde I stand by this wel of water, and when a virgin cōmeth forth to drawe water, & I say to her: geue me a litle water of thy pytcher to drincke, and she say again to me: drynke thou, and I wyll also draw water for thy camels: that same is the wyfe whom the Lord hath purpased for my masters sonne.

And before I had made an ende of speakinge in myne herte: beholde Rebecca came forth, & her pytcher on her shoulder, & she wēt downe vnto the wel & drew. And I sayd vnto her: geue me drincke. And she made hast, & tooke downe her pytcher from of her & sayed: drincke, & I wyll geue thy camels drinke also. So. And I dranke, & she gaue y camels drynke also. And I asked her & sayd: whose daughter art thou? And she answered: I am doughter of Bethuel Nahors sonne, whom Milca bare vnto him. And I put y earing vpō her face & the braceletes vpō her handes. And I bowed my selfe & worshypped the Lorde, & blessed the Lorde God of my master Abrahā which had brought me the ryght waye, to take my masters brothers doughter vnto his sonne. Now therfore if ye wyll deale mercifully and truly with my master, tell me, and if not tell me also: that I maye turne me to the ryght hand or to the lyft.

Then answered Laban & Bethuel sayeng: The thyng is proceaded out of the Lord, we can not therfore say vnto the, either good or bad: beholde Rebecca before thy face, take her & go, and let her be thy masters sonnes wyfe, euē as the Lord hath sayed. And when Abrahams seruaūt hearde their wordes, he bowed him selfe vnto the Lorde, flatte vpon the earth. And the seruaūt toke forthe iewels of siluer, & iewels of golde, & rayment, & gaue the to Rebecca: but vnto her brother, & to her mother he gaue sygnes. And the they ate and dranke both he & the mē that were wt him, and taried al vyght and rose vp in the morninge.

And he sayed: let me departe vnto my master. But her brother and her mother sayed: let the damsel abyde with vs a whyle, & it be but euen ten dayes, and then go the wayes. And he sayed vnto the: hinder me not for the Lord hath prosperred my iorney. Sende me awaye that I may go vnto my master. And they sayd: let vs call the damsell, & wet what she saith to the matter. And they called forth Rebecca, and said vnto her: wilte thou go with this man? And she sayed: yea.

So they let Rebecca their sister go with her nurse & Abrahams seruaunte, & the men that were with him. And they blessed Rebecca, & sayd vnto her: Thou art our sister growe into thousande thousandes, and thy seed possesse the gates of their enemies. And Rebecca arose & her dāsels, & sat the vpō the camels, & went their way after the man. And y seruaūt toke Rebecca, & wet his way.

And Isaac was a commynge frō the wel of the * lyuynge & seynge, for he dwelt in the south cōtrey, & was gone out to walke in his meditacions before the euē tide. And he lift vp his eyes & loked, and beholde the camels were cōming: And Rebecca lyft vp her eyes & when she sawe Isaac, she lighted of the camel, & sayd vnto the seruaunt: what man is this that cometh against vs in the feld? And the seruaunt sayd: it is my master. And then she toke her mantil, & put it about her. And the seruaūt tolde Isaac all that he had done.

Then Isaac brought her into his mother Saras tente, and toke Rebecca, and she became his wyfe, & he loued her: & so was Isaac cōforted ouer his mother. ☞ The notes.

And Jsaac dwelled in Gerar. And* the men of the place asked hym of his wife, & he said that she was hys *sister: for he feared to call hys his wyfe, lest the men of the place shold haue killed him for hir sake, bicause she was beautiful to the eye. And it happened after he had bene there long tyme, that Abimelech kynge of the Philistians looked out at a wyndow, & sawe Jsaac sporting wt Rebecca hys wife. And Abimelech sente for Jsaac, & said vnto him: Lo, of a surete thy wyfe, & why saydest thou that she was thy sister? And Jsaac said vnto hym: I thought that I myght peraduenture haue dyed for her sake. Then said Abimelech: why hast thou done this vnto vs? one of the people myght lyghtly haue lyen by thy wife, and so shouldest thou haue brought synne vpõ vs. Than Abimelech charged all his people, saying: he that toucheth this man or his wyfe, shall surely dye for it.

Gene. xii. c and. xx. a.

And Jsaac sowed in that lande, & found in that same yere an .C. bushels: for the Lorde blessed hym, & the man waxed myghty, and went forth and grewe tyll he was exceading greate, that he had possession of shepe, of oxen, and a mighty housholde: so that the Philistians had enuye at hym: in so muche that they stopped and filled vp with earth all the welles whyche hys fathers seruantes digged in hys father Abrahams tyme.

Then said Abimelech vnto Jsaac: gett the fro me, for thou art myghtier thẽ we a great deale. Thẽ Jsaac departed thence, & pitched his tente in the valey Gerar, & dwelt there. And Jsaac digged againe the welles of water which they digged in* dayes of Abrahã his father, which* Philistians had stopped after* death of Abrahã, & gaue thẽ the same names which his father gaue thẽ. Then digged they an other well, & they stroue for that also. Therfore called he it Sitna. And then he builded an aultare there, and called vpon the name of the Lord, and there pitched hys tent. And ther Jsaacs seruauntes digged a well.

Then came Abimelech to hym frõ Gerar & Ahusath his frende and Phitol hys chefe captayne. And Jsaac said vnto them: wherfore come ye to me, seyng ye hate me & haue put me away frõ you? Then said they: we saw that the* Lorde was with the, & therfore we said that there should be an oothe betwene vs & the, & that we wolde make a bond with the, that thou shouldest do vs no hurt, as we haue not touched the, and haue done vnto the nothynge but good, & sent the away in peace: for thou art nowe the blessed of the Lorde. And he made them a feast, and they ate & dranke. And they rose vp by tymes in the mornynge, and sware one to an other. And Jsaac sent them away. And they departed from hym in peace. And that same daye came Jsaacs seruaũtes, & told hym of a well whych they had digged: and said vnto hym, that they had found water. The xxvii. Chapter.

Jacob beaten the blessynge from Esau by hys mothers counsayle, Isaac is sad. Esau is offended. The hatred of Esau toward Jacob.

When Esau was .xl. yere old, he toke to wyfe Judith the daughter of Beery an Hethite, & Basmath the doughter of Elon an Hethite, also whyche were disobedient vnto Jsaac and Rebecca.

And it came to passe that Jsaac waxed olde and hys eyes were dymme, so that he coulde not se. Then called he Esau his eldest sonne & said vnto him: my sonne. And he said vnto hym: here am I. And he said: beholde, I am old, & know not* day of my death: take therfore take thy weapons, thy quiuer & thy bowe, & gette the to the feldes, and take me some venyson, and make me meate such as I loue, and bryng it me, and let me eat that my soule may a.blesse the before that I dye. But Rebecca hearde when Jsaac spake to Esau hys sonne.

And as sone as Esau was gone to the felde to catche venyson, and to bryng it, she spake to Jacob hir sonne saying: Beholde I haue heard thy father talkyng with Esau thy brother & saying: bringe me venyson & make me meate that I may eate and blesse the before the Lord per I dye. Now therfore my sonne hym

heare my voice in that whiche I cõmaunde
the: gette the to the flocke, & bryng me thence two good kydde, and I wyll make meate of the for thy father, such as he loueth. And thou shalt bryng it to thy father, & he shall eate, that he may blesse the before hys death.

Then sayd Jacob to Rebecca his mother:
beholde, Esau my brother is rough, & I am smooth. My father shall peraduenture fele me, & I shal seme vnto him as though I wer
about to begyle hym, & so shall he bryng a curse vpõ me, & not a blessing: & his mother sayd vnto hym: Vpon ♁ me be thy curse my sonne, onely heare my voyce, & go & fetch me
the. And Jacob went & fet the, & brought the to his mother. And his mother made meat of the, accordyng as hys father loued. And she went and fet goodlye rayment of hir eldest sonne Esau, which she had in the house with hir, and put them vpon Jacob hir yongest
sonne, and she putte the skynnes vpon hys
handes, and vpon the smooth of hys necke.
And she putt the meate and breade whyche
she had made in the hãdes of hir son Jacob.

And he went in to his father saying: my father. And he answered: here am I: who arte thou my sonne? And Jacob sayd vnto his father: I am Esau thi eldest sõne, I haue done
according as thou badest me: vp & sit, & eat
of my venison, that thy soule may blesse me.
But Jsaac sayd vnto his sonne: how cõmeth
it ♁ thou hast found it so quickely my sonne?
He answered. The Lord thy God brought it to my hande. Then sayd Jsaac vnto Jacob:
come nere and let me fele the my sonne, whether thou be my sonne Esau or not. The went Jacob to Jsaac his father, and he felt him &
sayd: the voice is Jacobs voice, but the hãdes
are the handes of Esau. And he knewe him not, because hys handes were rough as his brother Esaus handes: & so he blessed hym.

And he axed him: art thou my sonne Esau?
And he sayd that I am. Then sayd he: bryng me & let me eate of my sonnes venison, that my soule may blesse the. And he brought him & he ate. And he brought him wyne also, & he dranke. And his father Jsaac sayd vnto him:
come nere, & kysse me my sonne. And he wente vnto him and kissed him. And he smelled the *Eccle.44.b. sauour of hys rayment, & *blessed him, and Hebr.11.a. sayd: Se, the smell of my sonne is as the smell of a fyld which the Lorde hath blessed. God
gyue the of the dewe of heauẽ, & of the fatnes
of the earth, & plenty of corne & wine. People be thy seruantes, & nations bowe vnto
the. Be Lord ouer thy brethre, & thy mothers children bowe vnto the. Cursed be he that curseth the, & blessed be he that blesseth the.

As soone as Jsaac had made an ende of ble-syng Jacob was scarce gone out frõ the presence of Jsaac his father: the came Esau his brother from his huntyng, & had made also meate, & brought it vnto hys father, & sayd vnto hym. Aryse my father, and eate of thy sonnes venison, that thy soule may blesse me.
Then his father Jsaac sayd vnto him: who art thou? he answered: I am thy eldest sonne Esau. And Jsaac was greatly astonied oute of measure, & sayd. Where is he the ♁ hath hunted venison and brought it me, & I haue eate of all before thou camest, & haue blessed hym, & he shall be blessed styll. When Esau herd the wordes of hys father, he cryed out greatly & bytterly about measure, & sayd vnto his father: blesse me also mi father. And he sayd: thy brother came wyth subtelty, & hath take away thy blessinge. Then sayed he: He may well be called Jacob, for he hath vndermined me now two tymes, fyrste he toke away my byrthright: & lo, nowe hathe he taken away my blessynge also. And he sayed, hast thou kept neuer a blessyng for me?

Jsaac answered and sayed vnto Esau: behold I haue made hym thy Lord, and al his F mothers children haue I made his seruãtes.
Moreouer with corne & wyne haue I stablyshed him, what cã I do vnto the now my sonne? And Esau sayd vnto his father: haste thou but ♁ one blessing my father? blesse me
also my father: so lifted vp Esau hys voyce
and *wept. The Jsaac his father answered *Hebr.xii.e & sayd vnto him: behold thy dwellyng place shall haue of the fatnes of the earth, and of the dewe of heauen from aboue. And with thy swerd shalt thou liue, & shalt be thy brothers seruaunt. But the time wil come, whẽ thou shalt get the maistry, & louse hys poche
frõ of thy necke.

And Esau* hated Jacob, bicause of ♁ ble- *Abdi.i.a syng that hys father blessed hym with all, & sayed in hys hert. The dayes of my fathers sorowes are at hand, for I wyll slea my brother Jacob. And these wordes of Esau hys eldest sonne were tolde to Rebecca. And she G sent & called Jacob hys yongest sonne, & said
vnto him: beholde thy brother Esau threate-neth to kyll the: now therfore my sonne hear my voyce, make the redy, & fle to Laban my brother at Haran: & tary wyth hym a whyle
vntil thy brothers fearcnes be swaged, & vn-tyl thy brothers wrath turne away from the
and he forget that whiche thou hast done to hym. The wyl I send & fet the away from thẽce. Why shoulde I lose you both in one daye. And Rebecca spake to Jsaac: I am we ry of my life, for feare of the doughters of Heth. If Jacob take a wife of the doughters of Heth, such one as these are, of ♁ daughters of ♁ lãd, what lust shold I haue to lyue.

The. xxviii. Chapter.

C Jacob is sent into Mesopotamia to Laban for a wyfe. Esau marieth an Jsmaelites. Jacob dreameth a dreame. Christ is promised. Jacob maketh a vowe.

Then Jsaac called Jacob hys sonne and .a. blessed hym, and charged hym, and saied vnto hym: se thou take not a wyfe of the daughters of Canaan, but arise and gette the to Mesopotamia to the house of Bethuel thy mothers fathers: there take the a wyfe of the daughters of Laban thy mothers brother. And God almyghty blesse the, encrease the, and multiply the that thou mayst be a numbre of people, and gyue the the blessing of Abraham: both to the, and to thy sede with the, that thou mayst possesse the Lande (wherein thou arte a straunger) whych God gaue vnto Abraham. Thus Jsaac sent forth Jacob, to go to Mesopotamia vnto Laban, sonne of Bethuell the Syrien, and brother to Rebecca Jacobs and Esaus mother.

Whē Esau saw that Jsaac had blessed Jacob, & sent him to Mesopotamia, to fet him a wyfe there, & that as he blessed him he gaue him a charge, saying: se thou take not a wife of the daughters of Canaā: and that Jacob had obeyed hys father and mother, & was gone vnto Mesopotamia: and seynge also that the daughters of Canaan pleased not Jsaac hys father: then went he vnto Jsmael, and toke vnto the wyues whyche he had Mahala the daughter of Jsmaell Abrahās sonne, the sister of Nabaioth to be hys wyfe. Jacob departed from Berseba, and went towarde Haran, and came vnto a place, and taried there al nyght, because the sonne was downe. And toke a stone of the place, & put it vnder hys head, and laied hym downe in the same place to slepe. And he dreamed: and behold there stode a ladder vpon the earth, & the toppe reached vp to heauen. And se, the angels of God went vp and downe vpon it, yea, & the Lord stod vpon it, and saied.

I am the Lorde God of Abraham thy father, & the God of Jsaac. The * land whiche thou sleapest vpō wyl I gyue the & thy sede. And thy sede shal be as the dust of the earthe and thou shalt spreade abrode: weste, este, south, and south. And thorowe the and thy sede shal al the kynredes of the earth be blessed. And se I am with the, and wyll be thy keper in all places whether thou goest, and wyll bringe the agayne vnto thys lande: neither wyll I leaue the vntyll I haue made good all that I haue promised the.

When Jacob was awaked out of his slepe he sayd: surely the Lord is in this place, & I was not aware. And he was afrayed & sayd: howe fearfull is this place! it is none other: but euē the house of god, & the gate of heuē. And Jacob stode vp early in the morning, & toke the stone that he had layd vnder his head, and pitched it vpon the ende, and poured oyle vpon the top of it: And he called the name of the place. b. Bethell, for in dede the name of the city was called Luz before time. And Jacob vowed a vowe saynge: If God wyll be with me, and wyll kepe me in thys iourney whyche I goo, and wyll gyue me bread to eate, and clothes to put on, so that I come again vnto mi fathers house in safetye, then shall the Lorde be my God, & thys stone whyche I haue sette vp an ende, shall be Godes house: and of all that thou shalte gyue me, wyll I gyue the .c. tenth vnto the.

C Jacob cometh to Laban and serueth seuen yere for Rachel. Lea was brought to his bedde in stede of Rachel. He marieth them both, and serueth yet seuen yere more for Rachel. Lea conceiueth.

Then Jacob lyfte vp hys fete, and went towarde the east countre. And as he loked about, beholde there was a well in the fylde, and thre flockes of sheepe lay thereby (for at that well were the flockes watered) and there lay a greate stone at the well mouth. And y maner was to bringe the flocke thether, and to roull the stone fro me the welles mouthe, and to water the sheepe, and to put the stone agayne vppon the welles mouthe vnto his place. And Jacob sayd vnto them: brethren whence be ye? And they sayd: out of Haran are we. And he sayd vnto them: knowe ye Laban the sonne of Nahor? And they sayd: we knowe hym. And he sayd vnto them: is he in good healthe. And they sayd he is in good healthe: and beholde hys daughter Rachell cometh with the sheepe. And he sayd: lo, it is a greate while to nyght, neyther is it tyme that the cattell shoulde be gathered togyther: water the sheepe, and go & fede them. And they sayd: we may not, vntyll all the flockes be brought togyther, and the stone be rolled from the welles mouthe, and so we water our sheepe.

While he yet talked with the, Rachel came with hys fathers sheepe, for she kepte the sone as Jacob sawe Rahell, the doughter of L Laban hys mothers brother, & the sheepe of Laban hys mothers brother, he went & rolled the stone frō the wels mouth, & watered the sheepe of Labā his mothers brother. And Jacob kissed Rahell, & lyfte up hys voyce & wepte: and told hir also that he was hys fathers brother & Rebeccas sonne. Then Rahell ranne and told hir father.

When Laban heard tell of Jacob hys sisters sonne, he ran to mete hym, & embraced him & kissed him, & brought him to his house And then Jacob tolde Laban all the matter. And then Laban said: wel, thou art my bone & my flesh. Abide with me the space of a moneth. And afterward Laban saied vnto Jacob: Though thou be my brother shouldest thou therfore serue me for nought? Tell me
D what shal thy wages be? And Laban had .ii. daughters, the eldest called Lea & the yōgest Rahel. Lea was tender eyed, but Rahell was beautifull & well fauoured. And Jacob loued hir well, and said: I wyl serue the seuē yere for Rahel thy yongest doughter. And Labā answered, it is better that I gyue hir the then to an other manne: byde therefore with me.

*Oyre. 20.d And Jacob serued *vii. yere for Rahell, and they semed vnto hym but a few dayes, for the loue he had to hir. And Jacob saied vnto Laban: gyue me my wyfe that I maye lye with hir. For the tyme appointed me is come.

E Then Laban bade al men of that place, & made a feast. And when euen was come, he toke Lea hys doughter & brought hir to him & he wēt *in vnto hir. And Laban gaue
*Gen. xvi. c to hys doughter Lea, Zilpha hys mayd, to be hir seruaūt. And when the morning was come, he hold it was Lea. Then said he to Laban: wherfore hast thou played this vē me? did not I serue the for Rahell, wherfore then hast thou begyled me? Labā answered: it is not the maner of thys place to mary the yōgest before the eldest. Passe out this weke & then shal thys also be geuen the for the seruice which thou shalt serue me yet .vii. yere
F more. And Jacob did euē so, & passed out that weke, & then he gaue him Rahel his doughter to wyfe also. And Laban gaue to Rahell hys doughter, Bilha hys hādmayd to be hir seruaunte. So lay he by Rahell also, & loued Rahell more then Lea, and serued hym yet .vii. yere more.

When the Lord sawe that Lea was despised he made hir fruitful: but Rahel was barG ren. And Lea conceaued & bare a sonne, & called
*De. xxvi.b hys name Ruben, for she said: the Lorde hath loked vpō my tribulatiō. And nowe my husband wyll loue me. And she conceaued agayne & bare a sonne, and said: the Lorde hath hearde that I am despysed, & hath therfore geuen me thys sonne also, & she called
*i. Para.v.a hym *Simeon. And she conceaued yet, and bare a sonne and saied: now thys once wyll my husbande kepe me compayne, because I haue borne him thre sonnes: and therfore she called hys name Leui. And she conceaued yet agayne, and bare a sonne saiynge: nowe wyll I prayse the Lorde: therfore she called hys name Juda, and left bearyng.

Rachell and Lea bryngē dorth barren gyue their maydens vnto their husbande, and they bare hym children. Jacob deceyueth Laban in the conueyaunce of the sheepe and kiddes. Jacobs rewarde for his seruice.

WHen Rahel sawe that she bare A
Jacab no children, she enuied hir sister, and said vnto Jacob Geue me children, or els I am but dead. Then was Jacob wroth with Rahel saying. Am I in Goddes stede whyche keepeth from the, the fruite of thy wombe? Then she said: here is my maid Bylha: go in vnto hir, that she maye beare vpon my lappe, that I may be encreased by hir. And she gaue hym Bilha hir handmaid to wyfe. And Jacob wente in vnto hir: and Bylha conceaued and bare Jacob a sonne. Then said Rahel. God hath gyuen sentence on my syde, & hath also heard my voice, and hath geuen me a sonne. Therefore called she hym Dan. And Bylha Rahels mayd cōceaued agayne, and bare Jacob an other sonne. And Rahel said: God is turned, and I haue made a chaunge with my sister, and haue gotten the vpper hande. And she called hys name: Nepthalp.

When Lea sawe that she had left bearing she toke Zilpha hir mayd, and gaue hir Ja- B

And Ruben went out in the wheate harnest, and founde .a. mandragoras in the fyelden, and brought them vnto his mother Lea Then said Rahel to Lea giue me of thy sonnes mandragoras. And Lea answered. Is it not inoughe that thou haste taken away my husband, but wouldest take away my sonnes mandragoras also? Then said Rahel: wel, C let hym slepe with the thys nyght, for thy sonnes mandragoras. And whē Jacob came from the fyelden at euen, Lea went out to mete hym, and said: come in to me, for I haue bought the with my sonnes mandragoras.

And he slept with hir that nyght. And God hearde Lea, that shee conceaued and bare vnto Jacob the fyft sonne. Then said Lea. God hath rewarded me for my husbande hath geuen me my wayden to my husbande, and she called hym Jachar. And Lea cōceaued yet agayne, and bare Jacob the syxt sonne. Then said she. God hath endewed me me with a good wage. Now will my husbande dwell with me, because I have borne him three sonnes: and called his name Zabulon. After that she bare a daughter, & called her Dina.

Then said Laban vnto him: If I haue founde fauoure in thy sight (for I suppose that the Lorde hath blessed me for thy sake) aske what thy reward shall be, and I will giue it the. But he said vnto him: thou knowest what seruice I haue done the, and in what taking the cattell haue bene vnder me: ✝ for it was but litle ✝ ✝ haddest before I came, & now it is increased into a multitude, & the Lord hath blessed the for my sake. I will go about all thy shepe this day, & seperate from them all the shepe that are spotted & of diuers colours, & all blacke sheepe among the lambes, & the party, and the spotted amog the kiddes: & the same shall be my reward. Jacob toke rodds of greene populer, hasil & of chestnottrees, & pilled white strakes in them, & made the white appeare in the stakes: And he put the stakes whiche he had pilled, euē before the shepe in ✝ gutters & watring troughes, when the shepe came to drynke: that they should conceyue when they came to drynke. And alwaye in fatte backenge time of the shepe, Jacob put the stakes before the shepe in the gutters, that they might conceyue before the stakes: but in the laste backing time he put them not there: so the laste bode was Labans, & the fatt Jacobs. And Jacob hearde the wordes of Labans sonnes howe they sayed: Jacob hathe taken awaye all that was our fathers & of our fathers goodes hath he gotten all his honour. And Jacob beheld the countenance of Laban, that it was not toward him as it was in tymes paste.

And the Lorde sayed vnto Jacob: turne againe into the Land of thy fathers & to thy kinred, & I will be with the. Then Jacob sent & called Rahell & Lea to the fielde vnto his shepe, & said vnto the: I se your fathers countenance, that it is not towarde me as in tymes past. Moreouer the god of my father hath bene with me. And ye know how that I haue serued your father with al mi might. And Laban ouertoke Jacob: Jacob had pitched his tēt in the moūt. And Laban & his brethrē pitched their tent also vpō the mounte Gilead. Then sayd Laban to Jacob: Why hast thou thus done to steale awaye my herte, and carye awaye my daughters as though they had bene take cap tyue wt the swerde? Wherfore wentest thou away secretly vnknowne to me, and diddest not tel me, that I might haue brought the on the way wt mirth, singyng, timbrels and harpes, & hast not suffered me to kisse my children & my daughters? But with whome soeuer thou findest thy Godes, let hym dye here before our brethr̄. Serche thyne in by me, & take it to þ: for Jacob wist not that Rahel had stole thē. Then went Laban into Jacobs tente, & into Leas tente, & into ij. maydes tentes: but founde thē not. Then went he out of Leas tent, & entred into Rahels tēte. And Rahel toke the Jmages & put thē in the camels strawe & sate downe vpon thē. And Laban searched all the tente but found them not. Then sayd she to her father my Lorde, be not angrye that I can not ryse vp before the, for the disease of women is come vpon me. So searched he but found them not.

Jacob was wroth & chode with Laban. Jacob also answered and sayd to him: what haue I trespased or what haue I offended, þ thou folowest after me? *Gene. xxix.

Laban answered & sayd vnto Jacob: the daughters are my daughters, & the children are my children, & the shepe are my shepe, & al that thou seest is myne. And what can I do thys day vnto these my doughters, or vnto their childrē which they haue borne? Now therfore come on: let vs make a bond, I and thou togyther, & let it be a witnes betwene the & me. Then toke Jacob a stone and sett it vp an ende, and sayed vnto his brethren, gather stones. And they toke stones, & made an heape, and they ate thet vpō the heape. And Laban called it Jegar Sahadutha, but Jacob called it Gilead.

Then sayed Laban: thys heape be* witnes betwene the & me this day (therfore is it called Gilead) & this token which the Lord (sayd he) be witnesse betwene me and the when we are departed one from another that thou shalt not here my daughters neyther shalt take other wyues vnto them. Here is no man wyth vs: behold God is witnes betwyxt the and me. And Laban sayd moreouer to Jacob: beholde, this heape and this marke which I had set here, betwyxt me, & the: this heape be witnesse: & also this marke that I will not come ouer this heape to the, & thou shalte not come ouer thys heape and marke to do any harme. The God of Abraham, the God of Nahor, & the God of their fathers be Judge betwyxt vs.

And Jacob sware by him that his father Jsaac feared. Then Jacob did sacrifice vpō the mounte, and called hys brethren to eate bread. And they ate bread & tarried al nyght in the hyll. And early in the morning Laban rose vp & kyssed hys children and his daughters, & blessed the & departed and went vnto hys

¶ The vision of the Angelles. Jacob sendeth messengers vnto his brother Esau. How he wrest led with the angell which changed his name
and called him Israell.

A Jacob sent messengers before him
Josu.xxiiij. a to Esau his brother, vnto the lãd
*of Seir, and the feeld of Edom
And he commaunded them saying ing: see that ye speake after this maner to my Lord Esau: thy seruaunt Jacob sayeth
thus. I haue sojourned and bene a straunger with Laban vntil this time, and haue gotē oxen, asses, and sheepe, menseruauntes & wo-menseruauntes, & haue sent to shew it my Lord, that I may finde grace in thy sight. And the B messengers came againe to Jacob saying:
we came vnto thi brother Esau, & he cōmeth
against the .iiij. hundred men with him.
Then was Jacob greatly afraied, & wiste
not which way to turne him selfe, and deui-ded the people that was with him, and the sheepe, oxen, & camels, into .ii. companies, &
said: If Esau come to the one part & smite it
the other maye saue it selfe.

And Jacob said: O god of mi father Abraham, & God of my father Isaac: Lord which saydest vnto me, returne vnto thy countrye &
C to thy kynred, & I will do all well with the.
I am not worthy of the leaste of all the mercies & truth which thou hast shewed vnto thy seruaunt. ffor with my .s. staffe came I ouer this Jordane, & now haue I gotten two droues. Deliuer me from the hādes of my brother Esau: for I feare him: least he will come and smyte the mother with the children. Thou saydest that thou wouldest surely do me good, and wouldest make my seede
as the sande of the sea, which cānot be numbred for multitude.

D And he taried ther that same nyght, and
toke of that which came to hand a present, vn
to Esau his brother. ij. hundred she goates,
and .xx. he goates. iij. hundred sheepe, and .xx.

x. foles, and deliuered them into his seruaun-
tes, euery droue by them selues, & said
vnto them, go forth before me & put a space betwixte euerye droue. And he commaunded the formest saying.

Whē Esau my brother meeteth the & asketh
the saying: whose seruaunte arte thou and whither goest thou, and whose are these that go before the: then shalte say, they be thy ser-

Lorde Esau, and beholde he him selfe commeth after vs. And so cōmaunded he the hed, & eue so the third, & likewise al that followed the droues saying, of this maner se that ye speake vnto Esau saying whē ye mete him, & said moreouer. Behold thy seruaūt Jacob cometh after vs, for he said. I will pease his wrath with the present that goth before me, and afterward I will se him my selfe, so peraduēture he will receiue me to grace. So went the present before him and he taried all that nyght in the tent, and rose vp the same nyght
and toke his two wyues, and his two mayde-dens and his .xi. sonnes, and went ouer the fourd Jabok. And he toke them and sent the ouer the ryuer, and sente ouer that he had, & taried behind him selfe alone.

F And there *wrestled a man with him vn- *Ose.xii.b.

that he could not preuayle against him, he smote him vnder the thye, & the sinewe of

And he said: let me goo, for the day breaketh.
And he said: I will not lette the go, except thou blesse me. And he sayd vnto him: what is thy name? He answered: Jacob. And he said: thou shalt be called Jacob no more, but *Israel. ffor thou hast wrestled with God *Ge.xxxv.b and hast preuayled.

And Jacob asked him saying, tell me thy

The.xxxiii. Chapter.

¶ Esau and Jacob are agreed, & Jacob came vnto Sichem.

Jacob lift vp his eyes & sawe his A brother Esau come, & with him iiij. hundred men. And he deuided
the children vnto Lea and vnto Rahell, and vnto the two maydens. And he put the maydens and their children formest, & Lea & her children after, & Rahell & Joseph hindermost. And he went before them & fell on the ground. vij. times, vntyll he came vn-
to his brother.

Esau came to mete him & embraced him
and fell on his necke & kissed him, and they wepte. And he lyfte vp his eyes & sawe the wyues & their children, & said: what are these which thou there hast: And he sayd they are

B the children which god hath geuen thy seruaunt
Then came the maydens to the, & dyd their obeysaunce. Lea also & hir children came and dyd their obeysaunce. And laste of all came Joseph & Rahel and dyd their obeysaunce.

And he sayed: what meanest thou by all the droues which I mette. And he answered: to fynd grace in the syghte of my Lorde. And Esau sayed: I haue inough my brother, kepe
that thou hast vnto thy selfe. Jacob answered:
Oh naye, but if I haue founde grace in thy syght, receyue my present of my hande: for *1.Reg.xix.c I haue sene thy face * as though I had sene
Esdr.xv.d. the face of god: wherfore receiue me to grace & take my blessinge that I haue brought the,
for god hath geuen it me. And I haue inough of al thinges. And so he cõpelled him to take it. And he sayd: let vs take our iourney, and C goo, and I wyll go in thy company. And he said vnto him: my lord knoweth that I haue tender children, ewes, & kine with yong, vnder myne hand, which if men shoulde ouerdriue but one day, the whole flocke would dye. Let my Lord therfore go before his seruaunte, and I wyl driue fayre and softly, ac-cordyng as the cattell that goth before me, &
the children be able to endure: vntyll I come to my Lord vnto Seir.

And Esau said: let me yet leaue some of my folke with the. And he sayed: what needeth
it: let me find grace in the syght of my Lord.
D So Esau went his waye agayne that same daye vnto Seyr. And Jacob toke his iourney toward Sucoth, and built him a house,
and made boothes for his catell: wherof the name of the place is called Sucoth.

And Jacob came prosperly into the cytye
of Sichē in the Lande of Canaan, after that he was come frō Mesopotamia, & pytched
before the cytye, & bought a percel of ground
wher he pytched his tent, of the children of Hemor Sichēs father, for an hundred lābes.
And he made ther an aulter, & there called vp-
on the mighty God of Israel.

The.xxxiii.Chapter.

¶ The rauysshynge of Dina Jacobs daughter
by the men of Sichē. And of the great bloude shedding done by the sonnes of Jacob.

A IJna & doughter of Lea whiche
she bare to Jacob, went out to se
the doughters of the land. And Sichem the sonne of Hemor the Heuite Lorde of the countrey, a To lie with his wife in Gene.xix.g. Deu.xxii.c. saw hir, and toke hir, and lay with hir, and forced *hir: and his herte lay vnto Dina the daughter of Jacob. And he loued that damo-sell, & spake kyndly vnto hir, and spake vnto
his father Hemor saying, get me this mayden vnto my wyfe. And Jacob hearde that he had defiled Dina his daughter, but his sonnes were with the cattel in the felde, and therfore he held his peace, vntyl they were come.

Then Hemor the father of Sichem went out vnto Jacob, to comen with him. And & sonnes of Jacob came out of & field as sone
as they heard it, for it greued the, & thei were not a little wroth because he had wrought
folly in Israel, in that he had lyed vi Jacobs doughter, which thynge ought not to be done. And Hemor comened with the saying: B
The soule of my sonne Sichē lōgeth for your doughter: giue her him to wife, & make mariages vi vs: giue your doughters vnto vs, & take our doughters vnto you, & dwel with vs & the land shal be at your pleasure, dwel & do your busines, & haue your possessions therein. And Sichem sayed vnto his father & his brethren: lette me fynde grace in your eyes, & whatsoeuer ye appoint me, that wyl
I gyue. Axe freely of me both the dowry and gyftes, & I wyll giue accordynge as ye saye
vnto me, & gyue me the damsel to wyfe.

Then the sonnes of Jacob answered to Sichē & Hemor his father deceytfullye, because he had defiled Dina their sister. And they sayd vnto the, we can not do this thing that we shoulde gyue our syster to one that is vncircūcised, for that were a shame vnto
vs. Only in this wyl we consent vnto you:
If ye wyl be as we be, that all the men children amonge you be circumcised, then wyll
we gyue our doughter to you & take yours
to vs, & wyl dwell with you & be one people.
But & if ye wyll not herke vnto vs to be circumcised, then wyll we take oure doughter and go our waies. And their wordes pleased C Hemor & Sichem his sonne. And the yonge mā deferred not but to do the thyng, because he had a lust to Jacobs doughter: he was also most set by of all that were in his fathers house. Then Hemor & Sichē wente vnto the gate of their cyte, & commed with the men of their city saying: these men are peaceable
with vs, & wyl dwel in the land and do their occupation therin. And in the lāde is rowme inoughe for the, let vs take their doughters
to wyues & gyue the ours: only herein wyll
they cōsent vnto vs for to dwel with vs & to be one people: if all the men childre that are among vs be circumcised as they are. Their goodes and their substaunce, & all their cat-tel are ours, only let vs cōsent vnto the, that they may dwell with vs.

And vnto Hemor and Sichem his sonne harkened al that went out at the gate of his city. And al the men children were circūcised D whatsoeuer went out at the gates of his city.
And the third day when it was paynfull to them. ii. two of the sons of Jacob Simeon, & Leui Dinas brethren, toke either of the his *Gen.xlix.a

al that was male, and slewe also Hemor and Sichem his sonne vi the edge of the sweorde,
and toke Dina their syster oute of Sichems
house, and went their way.

Then came the sonnes of Jacob vpon the dead, & spoyled the city, because they had defiled their syster: and toke their shepe, oxen asses,

alles and what so euer was in the cite, and also in the fyeldes. And all their goodes, all their children, and their wyues toke they captiue and made hauocke of al that was in the houses.

And Jacob sayd to Simeon and Leui: ye haue troubled me and made me stincke vnto the inhabitours of the Lande, both to the Canaanites and also vnto the Pherezites. And I am a fewe in numbre. Wherefore they shal gather the selues togyther against me & slee me, & so shal I and my house be destroied. And they answered: Shold they deale with our sister as with an whore.

The.xxxv.Chapter.

¶ Jacob goeth vp vnto Bethel, & burieth the Images vnder an oke. Debora dieth. Jacob is called Israell. The land of Canaan is promised hym. Rahel dyeth in labour. Ruben lyeth vnder his fathers concubyne. The death of Isaac.

AND God sayd vnto Jacob, aryse & get the vp to Bethel, and dwell there. And make ther an aultare vnto God that appered vnto the when thou fleddest from Esau thy brother. The sayd Jacob vnto hys houshold & to all that were with him, put away the.a.straunge Goddes that are amonge you, and make your selues cleane, and chaunge your garmētes, and let vs arise and go vp to Bethel, that I may make an aultre there vnto God, whyche hearde me in the day of my tribulation and was with me in the waye whyche I wente.

And they gaue vnto Jacob all the straunge Goddes whych were vnder their handes, & al their eareynges which were in their eares, & Jacob hid them vnder an oke at Sichem. And they departed. *Gen.xxxv.g Then dyed * Debora Rebeccas nourse, & was buryed beneth Bethell vnder an ooke. And the name of it was called the oke of lamentatiō. Notwithstandinge thou shalt be no *Gen.xxxij.f more called *Jacob, but Israell shall be thy name. And so was his name called Israell.

And God sayd vnto hym: I am God almighty, growe & multiplye: for people and a multitude of people shall spryng of the, yea & kinges shal come out of thy loynes. And the lād whych I gaue Abrahā & Isaac wyl I giue vnto the, & vnto thy sede after the wyl I gyue it also. And God departed from him in the place where he talked with hym. And Jacob set vp a marke in the place where he talked with hym: euen a pillour of stone, & poured drynke offeryng thereon, & poured also oyle thereon, & called the name of the place wher God spake with him, Bethel.

And they departed from Bethell, & when he was but a feld breadth frō Ephrath, Rahel begā to trauel. And in trauelynge she was in perell. And as she was in paynes of hyr labour the mydwyfe sayed vnto hir: feare not, for thou shalt haue thys sonne also. L

Then as hyr soule was a departynge, that she *must die, she called his name .a. Ben-Oni. *i.Reg.xiij.b. But his father called him .c. Ben Jamyn. And thus died Rahel & was buried in the way to Ephrath which nowe is called Bethleh. And Jacob sette vp a pillar vpon hir graue, whych is called Rahelles graue pillar vnto this daye. And Israel went thēce & pytched vp his tent beyond the *tower of Eder. And *Mich.iiij.c it chaūced as Israel dwelt in that lāde, that Ruben wēt & laye *with Bilha hys fathers *Ge.xlix.a. concubyne, and it came to Israels eare. The D sonnes of Jacob were .xij. in nūbre. The sonnes of Zilpha Leas mayde, Gad and Aser. These are the sonnes of Jacob whyche were borne hym in Mesopotamia.

Then Jacob went vnto Isaac his father to Mamre a principal cite, otherwise called Hebron: where Abraham & Isaac soiourned as straungers. And the dayes of Isaac were an hundred & .lxxx. yeres: & then fell he sycke & dyed, & was .d. put vnto his people beyng olde and full of dayes. And his sonnes Esau and Jacob buried him.

Joseph accuseth his brethren. Joseph dreameth and is hated of of his brethren & is solde to the Ismaelites. Jacob bewayleth Joseph.

AND Jacob dwelt in the Lande wherin his father was a straūger, that is to saye in the Land of Canaan. And these are the generations of Jacob, when Joseph was .xvij. yere olde, he kepte sheepe with hys brethren, and the ladde was with the sonnes of Bilha and of Zelpha hys fathers wyues. And he brought vnto their father an euil saying that was of them. And Israel loued Joseph more then al his childrē because he begate hym in hys olde age, and he made him a cote of many colours.

When hys brethrē sawe that their father loued hym more then all his brethrē, they hated him, & could not speake one lōde worde vnto hym. Moreouer Joseph * dreamed a dreame & told it his brethren: wherfore they hated him yet ỳ more. hys brethren vnto hym: what, shalt thou be our kyng or shalt thou reygne ouer vs? And they hated him yet the more, because of hys
dreame and of hys wordes.

E And he dreamed yet another dreame & told it his brethren sayinge: behold, I haue had one dreame more: me thought the sonne and the moone and.xi. starres made obeysaunce

and his brethren, hys father rebuked hym &
sayde vnto him: what meaneth this dreame
which thou hast dreamed: shal I and thy mo

him, but his father noted the saying.

His brethren went to kepe their fathers come that I may sende the to thē. And he an-they are departed hence, for I herde them say D let vs goo vnto Dothan. Thus went Joseph after hys brethren, and founde them in

And when they sawe him a farre of before

The mariage of Juda. The trespace of Er & Onan and the vengeaunce of God therof came ther vpon. Juda lay by his daughter Thamar. The byrthe of Phares and Zarah.

AND it fortuned at that tyme that

Chesyb when she bare him.

And Judas gaue Er hys eldest sonne a

D When Juda sawe her, he thought it had bene an whoore, because she had couered her face. And turned to her vnto the waye and sayde, come I praye the, let me lye wyth the, for he knewe not that it was his daughter in lawe. And she sayd what wylt thou geue me for to lye vs me? Than sayde he, I wyl sende the a kydd from the flocke. She answered, Than geue me a pledge tyl thou send it. Thā sayde he, what pledge shall I geue the? And

But he found her not. Than asked he the men of the same place sayinge: where is the whoore that sat at Enaim in the waye? And they sayde: there was no whoore here. And he came to Juda agayne sayinge: I can not fynde her, & also the men of the place sayd: that there was no whoore there. And Juda sayde: let her take it to her, lest we be shamed: for I sent the kydd and thou couldest not fynde her.

¶ God prosperyth Joseph. & Pharaos wyfe tempteth hym. She is accused and cast in prysō. God hath mercy vpon hym.

IOseph was brought vnto E-

And the Lorde was wyth Joseph, & he was a luckie felowe and continued in the house of his master the Egyptian. And hys mayster sawe that the Lorde was wyth hym, and that the Lorde made all that he dyd prosper in hys hande: Wherfore he founde B grace in his maisters syghte, and serued him. And hys mayster made hym ruelar of hys house, and put al that he had in hys hād. And assoone as he had made him ruelar ouer his house & ouer al that he had, the Lorde blessed this Egyptians house for Joseps sake, and the blessynge of the Lorde was vpon all that he had: both in the house & also in the feldes. And therfore he left all & he had in Josephs hande, & loked vpon nothing that was with him, saue only on the bread which he ate. And Joseph was a* goodly persone and a wel fa- *1. Reg. xvi.c

But he denyed & sayde to her: Beholde, my master wotteth not what he hath in the house vb me, but hath committed all that he hath to my hande. He him selfe is not greater in the house than I, and hath kepte nothyng from me, but only the because thou art hys wyfe. How than can I do thys great wyckednes, for to synne agaynst God? And after thys maner spake she to Joseph daye by day: but he harkened not vnto her, to slepe nexte her, or to be in her company.

And it fortuned about the same season, C
that Joseph entred in to the house, to do hys busynes: & there was none of the housholde by, in the house. And she caught hym by the garment sayng: come slepe wyth me. And he left his garment in her hande & fled and got him out. When she sawe that he had left hys garment in her hande, and was fled out, she called vnto the men of the house, & tolde them sayinge: Se, he hath brought in an Hebrewe vnto vs to do vs shame: for he came in to me, for to haue slept wyth me. But I cryed with a loude voyce. And when he harde, & I lyfte vp my voyce & cryed, he left his garment vb me & fled away and got him out.

ed him mercye, & got him fauoure in the syghte of the keper of the prison which com-mytted to Josephs handē all the prisoners that were in the prison house. And what soeper of the prison loked vnto nothynge that was vnder his hande, because the Lorde

was with him, and because that what soe-uer he dyd, the Lorde made it come luckely to passe.

¶ The.xl. Chapter.

¶ Joseph expoundeth the dreames of the two prisoners.

A And it chaunced after this, that the the chefe butlar of the kyng

of Egypte and his chefe baker had offended their Lorde the kynge of Egipte. And Pharao was angrye vp them and put them inwarde
in his chefe marshals house: euen in the prison where Joseph was bound. And the chefe marshall gaue Joseph a charge with them, and he serued them. And they continued a season inwarde.

And they dreamed either of them in one nyghte: both the butlar and the baker of the kynge of Egypte which were bounde in the prison house, either of them his dreame, and B eche mannes dreame of a sondrye interpreta-cion. When Joseph came vnto them in the mornyng, & loked vpon them: beholde, they were sadd. And he asked them saying: wherfore loke ye so sadly to day? They answered him, we haue dreamed a dreame, & haue no man to declare it. And Joseph sayd vnto the.
Interpretynge belongeth to God but tell me
yet. And the chefe butlar told his dreame to Joseph and sayde vnto him. In my dreame me thought there stode a vyne before me, & in the vyne were .iii. braunches, and it was
as though it budded, and her blossoms shott forth: & the grapes there of waxed ripe. And I had Pharaos cuppe in my hand, and toke
C of the grapes & wronge them into Pharaos cuppe, & delyuered Pharaos cuppe in to his hande. And Joseph sayd vnto him, this is the interpretacio of it. The.iii. braūches are the dayes: for within thre dayes shall Pharao
lyft vp thyne heade, & restore the vnto thyne
office agayne, and thou shalt delyuer Pha-raos cuppe in to his hande after the old maner, euen as thou dydest when thou wast his butlar. But thynke on me with the, when thou art in good case, and shewe mercy vnto
me. And make mencion of me to Pharao, & helpe to bringe me out of this house: for I was stollen out of the lande of the Hebrues, & here also haue I done nothing at all wherefore they should haue put me in to this dungeon. Whē the chefe baker sawe that he had well interpretate it, he sayde vnto Joseph,
me thought also in my dreame, that I had .iii.
whyte basketes on my heade. And in the vppermost basket of all maner bakemeates for Pharao. And the byrdes ate them out of the basket vpon my head.

Joseph answered and sayde: this is the in-terpretacio therof. The .iii. basketes are .iii. D dayes, for this daye .iii. dayes shall Pharao take thy heade from the, and shall hange the
on a tree, and the byrdes shall eate thy flesshe from of the.

And it came to passe the thyrde day which was Pharaos * byrth daye, that he made a *Gen.xl.a feast vnto all his seruauntes. And he lyfted vp the head of the chefe buttelar and of the chefe baker amonge his seruauntes. And restored the chefe buttelar vnto his buttelarshippe agayne, and he reched the cuppe in to Pharaos hande, and hanged the chefe baker
euē as Joseph had interpretated vnto them.
Notwythstandyng the chefe buttelar remem-
bred not Joseph, but forgat him.

¶ The.xli. Chapter.

¶ Pharao dreames are expouded by Joseph. He is made ruler ouer all Egypt. He hath two sonnes, Manasses and Ephraim. The derth beginneth in Egypt.

A And it fortuned at .ii. yeres ende

& Pharao dreamed, & thought that he stode by a ryuers syde,
and that there came out of the ryuer .vii. goodly kyne and fatesshed, and fedd in a medowe, and him thought that .vii. other kyne came vp after them out of the ryuer euyl fauoured and leane fleshed and stode by the other vpon & bryncke
of the ryuer. And the euyll fauoured and leane fleshed kyne ate vp the .vii. wel fauoured and fat kyne: and he awoke there with. And he slepte agayne and dreamed the second tyme,
that seuen eares of corne grewe vpon one stalke ranche and goodly. And & .vii. thynne eares blasted with the wynde, sprange vp after them: and that the .vii. thynne eares deyoured the .vii. ranche and full eares. And B thā Pharao awaked: & se, here is his dreame.
When the morowe came, his spyrye was troubled. And he sent and called for all the sothesayers of Egypte & al the wyse men thereof, and tolde them his dreame: but there was none of them that coulde interpretate it vnto
Pharao. Then spake the chefe buttelar vnto Pharao saying, I do remēbre my faute this daye. Pharao was angrye vp his seruauntes, & put me warde in the chefe marshals house
both me & the chefe baker. And we dreamed both

both of vs in one nyght & ech mānes dreame of a sundrye interpretacion.

And there was with vs a yonge man, an Ebrue borne, seruaunte vnto the chefe marshall. And we told hym, and he declared our dreames to vs accordynge to ether of oure dreames. And as he declared them vnto vs, euen so it came to passe. I was restored to myne office agayn, and he was hanged.

Than Pharao sent & called Joseph. And they made him haste out of *prison. And he *p. I.c.my b shaued him self and chaunged his rayment, and went in to Pharao. And Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: I haue dreamed a dreame & no man can interpreate it, but I haue herde say of the that as sone as thou hearest a dreame thou dost interpretate it. And Joseph answered Pharao sayng: God shal geue Pharao an answere of peace without me. Pharao sayd vnto Joseph: in my dreame me thought
L I stode by a ryuers syde, and there cam out of the ryuer .vii. fat fleshed and well fauored kyne, and fedde in the meddow. And the. vii. other kyne came vp after them, poore & very euell fauored & leane fleshed: so that I neuer sawe there lyke in all the lande of Egypte in euell fauordnesse. And the .vii. leane and euel fauored kyne eate vp the fyrste .vii. fat kyne. And when they had eaten them vp a man couldo not perceyue that they had eaten the: for they were styll as euyll fauored as they were at the begynnyng. And I awoke. And I sawe agayn in my dreame. vii. eares spryng out of one stalke ful and good, and .vii. other eares wythered, thynne an blasted with wynde, sprynge vp after them. And the thynne eares deuoured the .vii. good eares. And I haue told it vnto the soothsayers, but no man can tell me what it meaneth. Then Joseph sayde vnto Pharao: both Pharaos dreames are one. And God doth shewe Pharao what he is about to do. The seuen good kyne are .vii. yeres: & the seuen good eares are seuen yeres also, and it is but one dreame. Likewyse the seuen thynne and euel fauored kyne that came out after them, are seuen yeres: and the .vii.
D emptye and blasted eares shalbe .vii. yeres of hunger. This is that whiche I sayde vnto Pharao, how god doth shewe Pharao what he is about to do.

Beholde there shal come .vii. yere of great plentyousnes throughe oute all the lande of Egypte. And there shal aryse after them .vii. yeres of hunger. So that all the plentyousnes shalbe forgotten in the lande of Egypt. And the hunger shall consume the lande: so that the plentyousnes shall not be once a sene in the lande by reason of that hunger that shall come after, for it shalbe exceadynge greate. And as concernynge that the dreame was doubled vnto Pharao the seconde tyme, it betokeneth that the thynges is certainly prepared of God, and that God wyll shortye bringe it to passe.

Nowe therfore let Pharao prouyde for a man of vnderstandyng & wysdome, and set him ouer the land of Egypte. And let Pharao make officers ouer the lande, & take vp the fyfte parte of the lande of Egypte in the vii. plentyous yeres & let them gather all the foode of these good yeres that come, and lay vp corne vnder how power of Pharao, how there may be foode in the cytyes, and there let them kepe it: that there maye be foode in stoore in the lande, agaynste the .vii. yeres of hunger whych shal come in the land of Egypte, and that the land perysh not thorow hunger.

And the sayinge pleased Pharao & all his
S seruauntes. Than sayde Pharao vnto hys seruauntes: where shal we fynde soch a man as thys is, that hath the spirite of GOD in hym: wherfore Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: for as moch as God hath shewed the al this, there is no man of vnderstandyng or of wysdome lyke vnto the. And he toke of hys ryngre from hys fyngre, and put it vpon Josephs fyngre, and araped him in rayment of byssse, & put a golden chayne about hys necke & set him vpon the best charet that he had saue one. And they cryed before hym. a. Abrech, & that Pharao had made him ruler ouer al the lād of Egypte.

And Pharao sayd vnto Joseph: I am Pha
ff rao, without thy wyll, shall no man lyfte vp ether his hand or foote in al how land of Egypte. And he called Josephs name. b. Zaphnath Paena. And he gaue him to wyfe Aseath the daughter of Putiphar prest of On. Than went Joseph abrode in the lande of Egypte. And he was. xxx. yere olde. c. when he stode before Pharao kyng of Egypte. And thā Joseph departed from Pharao, & went thorow out al the lande of Egypte.

And in the .vii. plentyous yeres they made gg heapes & gathered vp all the fode of the .vii. plentyous yeres whych were in the lande of Egypte & put it in to the cytyes. And he put the foode of the feldes that grewe rounde about euery cyte: euen in the same. And Joseph layde vp corne in stoore, lyke vnto the sande of the sea in multitude out of measure, vntyll he left nombrynge: for it was with out nombre. And vnto Joseph were borne .ii. sonnes before how yeres of hunger came, which Aseath the doughter of Putiphar prest of On, bare vnto him. And he called the name of the fyrst sonne *Manasse, for God (sayde *Gen.xlvi.c.
he) hath made me forget all my labour and all my fathers household. The seconde called he Ephraim, for God (sayde he) hath caused me to growe in the lande of my trouble.

And when the .vii. yeres of plentyousnes that was in the land of Egypte were ended, than came the .vii. yeres of *derth, accordyng *Act.vij.b as Joseph had sayd. And the derth was in all landes:

landes: but in the lande of Egypte was there yet foode. When now all the lande of Egypt began to hunger, than cryed the people to Pharao for breade. And Pharao sayde vnto all Egypte: goo vnto Joseph, and what he sayth to you that doo. And when the deareth was throw out all the lande, Joseph opened all that was in the eyries and solde vnto the Egyptyans. And hunger waxed sore in the lande of Egypte: And all countrees came to Egypte to Joseph for to bye corne: because that the hunger was so sore in all the landes.

¶ Jhosephs brethren come into Egypte to bye corne. And he knoweth them and tryed them. Symeon is put in prysone, the other returne to their father to fetche Benjamyn. Jhos father is lothe to let them go, but at the last he yeldeth it.

1 WHen Jacob sawe that there was corne to be solde in Egypte, he sayd vnto hys sonnes: why are ye negligent: beholde, I haue harde that there is corne to be solde in Egypte. *Gette you thyther and by vs corne from thence, that we maye lyue and not dye. So went Josephs ten brethre downe to bye corne in Egypte, for Beniamyn Josephs brother wolde not Jacob sende with hys other brethren: for he sayde: some misfortune myght happen hym.

*Act. vii. b

And the sonnes of Israel came to bye corne among other that came, for there was derth also in the lande of Canaã. And Joseph was gouernour in the land, and solde corne to all the people of the land. And his brethre came, & fell flat on the grounde before him. When 2 Joseph sawe his brethre, he knewe them: But made straung vnto them, and spake roughly vnto them sayinge: Whence come ye? they sayde: out of the lande of Canaan, to bye vytayle. Joseph knewe his brethern, but they knewe not hym.

*Ge. xxxvii. b And Joseph remembred his *dreames which he dreamed of them, and sayde vnto them: ye are spies, and to se where the lande is weake is youre comynge. And they sayd vnto hym: nay my Lorde: but to bye vytayle thy seruauntes are come. We are all one mans sonnes, & meane truely, and thy seruauntes are no spies. And he sayd vnto them: nay verely, but euen to se where the lande is weake is youre comyng. And they sayde: we thy seruauntes are. xii. brethern, the sonnes of one man in the lande of Canaan. The yongest is yet with oure father, and one, no mã weteth where he is. Joseph sayde vnto them, that is it that I sayde vnto you, that ye are surelye spies. Here by ye shall be proued. For by the lyfe of Pharao, ye shall not go hence, except your yongest brother be come hither. Sende therfore one of you and let him fet your brother, and ye shalbe in prysone in the meane season. And thereby shall youre wordes be proued, whether there be any truethe in you: or els by the lyfe of Pharao, ye are but spies. And he put them in warde thre dayes.

And Joseph sayd vnto them the thyrd daye: D Thys do and lyue, for I feare God. If ye meane no hurte, let one of youre brethern be bounde in the prysone, and go ye and bringe the necessarie foode vnto youre householdes, and bringe youre yongest brother vnto me: that youre wordes maye be beleued, and that ye dye not. And they dyd so.

Then they sayde one to another: we haue verely synned against oure brother, in that we sawe the anguyth of hys soull when he besought vs, & wold not heare: therefore is thys trouble come vpon vs. Ruben answered them sayinge: sayd I not vnto you? ye shulde not *synne against the lad: but ye wolde not here. And nowe verely se, hys *Ge. xxxvii. d bloud is required. They were not awares that Joseph vnderstode them, for he spake vnto them by an interpreter. And he turned from them & wept, and than turned to them E agayn and commened with them, & toke out Symeon from amonge them and bounde hym before their eyes, & commaunded to fyl their sackes with corne, and to put euery mans money in his sacke, and to geue them vitayle to spende by the waye. And so it was done to them. And they laded their asses with the corne and departed thence. And as one of them opened hys sacke, for to geue hys asse prouender in the Inne, he spyed hys money in hys sackes mouth. And he sayde vnto hys brethren: my money is restored me agayne, and is euen in my sackes mouth. Then their hartes fayled them, and were afrayned and sayde one to another: howe cometh it that God dealeth thus with vs. And they came F vnto Jacob their father into the land of Canaan, and tolde hym all that had happened them sayinge. The Lorde of the lande spake roughly to vs, and toke vs for spyes to serche the countre. And we sayde vnto hym: we meane truely and are no spyes. We be. xii. brethern sonnes of oure father, one is away, and the yongest is now with oure father in the lande of Canaan. And the Lorde of the countre sayde vnto vs: here by shal I knowe yf ye meane truely: leaue one of youre brethern here with me, and take foode necessary for youre householdes and get you away, and bringe youre yongest brother vnto me. And thereby shall I knowe that ye are no spyes, but meane truely: so wyll I deliuer you youre brother agayn, and ye shall occupye in the lande.

AND the derth waxed sore in the lande. And when they had eate vp the corne which they brought out of the lande of Egypt, their father sayde vnto them: go again and by vs a litle food. Than sayd Juda vnto him: the man dyd testifye vnto vs

But yf thou wylt not sende him, we wyl not goo: for the man sayde vnto vs: take that ye see not my face, except your brother be with you. How could we knowe yt he wold bydde vs bringe our brother doune with vs? Than sayd Juda vnto Israel his father: Sende the lad with me, and we will ryse and go, that we maye lyue and not dye: both we, thou and also our children. And take as much money more with you. And the money that was brought agayne in your sackes, take it agayn with you, peraduenture it was som ouersyghte.

Take also your brother with you, & aryse & go agayn to the man. And God almighty geue you mercy in the syght of the man and send you your other brother and also Ben Jamin, and I wyll be as a man robbed of his children.

Thus toke they the present and twyse so moche more money with them, and Ben Jamin. And rose vp, went doune to Egipte, and presented the selues to Joseph. When Joseph D sawe Ben Jamin with them, he sayde to the ruler of his house: bringe these men home & slay and make redy: for they shal dyne with me at none. And the man dyd as Joseph bad, and brought them in to Josephes house.

Whē they were brought to Josephs house, they were afrayde and sayde: because of the money that came in our sackes mouthes at the fyrst tyme, are we brought, to pyke a quarell with vs and to laye some thynge to our charge to bring vs in bondage and our asses also. Therfore came they to the man yt was E the ruler ouer Josephes house, & commened with him at the doore & sayde.

And they bowed them selues and fel to the ground.

And he lyfte vp his eyes & beheld his brother Ben Jamin his mothers sonne, & sayde: * is this your youngest brother of whome ye sayde vnto me? And sayde: God be mercyful vnto the my sonne. And Joseph made hast (for G * his hert did melt vpō his brother, & sought where to wepe, & entred in to his chambre, for to wepe there. A AND he commaunded the ruler of his house sayinge: Fyll the vessels sackes with food, as moche as they can carye, and put euery mans money in hys bagge mouth. And put my syluer cuppe in the sackes mouthe of the yongest and his corne money also. And he dyd as Joseph had sayd. And in the mornyng as soone as it was lyght, the men were let go with their asses. And when they were oute of the cyte and not yet farre away, Joseph said vnto his ruler of his house: vp and folowe after the men and ourtake them, and say vnto them: wherfore haue ye rewarded euel for good? is that not the cuppe of which my Lord drynketh, and doth he not prophesye therin? ye haue euel done, that ye haue done.

And he ourtoke them and sayde the same wordes vnto them. And they answered him: B wherfore sayeth my Lord such wordes? God forbyd that thy seruauntes should do so. Beholde, the money whyche we founde in oure sackes mouthes, we brought agayne vnto the, oute of the lande of Canaan: howe then should we steale out of my lordes house, either syluer or golde? with whom soeuer of thy seruauntes it be founde let him dye, and let we, also be my Lordes bondmen. And he sayde: Now therfore accordyng vnto your wordes, he vp whom it is found, shalbe my seruaute: but ye shalbe harmelesse.

And anone euery man toke downe hys sacke to the grounde, and euery man opened C hys sacke. And he serched, and began at the eldest and left at the yongest. And the cuppe was founde in Beniamins sacke. Then they *Ge.xxxiii.f rent their clothes, and laded euery mā hys asse and went agayne vnto the cyte. And Juda and hys brethre came to Josephes house, for he was yet there, and they fell before hym on the grounde. And Joseph sayde vnto them: what dede is this which ye haue done? wyst ye not that soche a man as I. can prophesye?

Then sayde Juda: what shall we saye vnto my Lorde, what shall we speake or what excuse can we make? God hath founde out the wickednesse of thy seruauntes. Beholde, both D we and he vp whom the cuppe is founde, are thy seruauntes. And he answered: God forbyd that I should do so, the man vp whō the cuppe is found, he shalbe my seruaute: but go ye in peace vnto your father.

Then Juda went vnto hym and sayde: Oh my Lorde, let thy seruaunte speake a worde in my Lordes eare, and be not wroth with thy seruaunte: for thou art euen as Pharao. Neuertheles yf oure yongest brother go with vs then wyll we go, for we maye not se the mannes face except oure yongest brother be with vs. Then F sayde thy seruaunt oure father vnto vs. Ye knowe that my wyfe bare me two sonnes. Moreouer yf thou knowe any men of actiuyte amonge them, make them ruelers ouer my catell. And Joseph brought in Jacob his father and set hym before Pharao. Fewe & euell haue the dayes of my lyfe bene, & haue not attayned vnto the yeres of the lyfe of my fathers in the dayes of their pilgremages. And Jacob. b. blessed Pharao and went out, from hym. There was no bread in all the lande, for ♄ derth was exceadyng sore: so that the land of Egypt & the land of Canaã, were famesshed by the reason of ♄ derth. ¶ The ende of the fyrste boke of Moses.

¶ The pzologe to the secõd boke of Moyse

ten called Exodus.

F the pzologe to the fyzst boke of Moyses called Genesis, maye stere them vnderstande the boke to be: cause they fulfil in thys boke also, & in all other bokes of the scripture. Cleane vnto the ende and playne wzoge, and subscribe: they fulfil to fourthe vnto the vnderstandinge of all that is described therein, and the true sense of all maner of speakinges of the scripture, of prouerbes, similitudes, & hyddeth speache, wherof ¶ entreated in the boke of the obedience, and brygure of lyberte allegozies.

And note euerye thynge earnestlye, as thynges pertayninge vnto thyne owne herte and soule.

For as God dyd hym selfe vnto them of the olde testamente: so shal he vnto the worlde end vnto all him selfe vnto be, wherin hone recorded hys holye scripture, and the testamente of hys sonne Jesus. So God doeth all thynges here for them that beleue hys promyses, and harken vnto hys commaundementes, and walke after the same cleane vnto him, and walke with hym: so shall he do for vs, if we receyue the worthes of Christe with a stronge fayeth, and embrace posterity folowyng hys steppes. And on the other syde, as they that fell from the promyses of God thorowe vnbelefe, and from his lawes and ordinances, thorowe mysgouernaunce of their owne lustes, were forsaken of God, and so perished: euen so shall we as manye as do lyke wyse, & as many as marke with the doctrine of Christe, and make a cloke of it to lyue fleshly and to folowe our lustes.

Note thereto howe God is founde true at the laste, and how when all is past remedy and brought into desperacion: then fulfilleth he his promises, and that by an obiecte and a cause aboue, a dyspised and a refused person, yea, and by a way impossible to brynge.

The cause of all captiuitie of Goddes people is thys, The worlde euer loueth them for they fayeth & trust wherein they haue all God: but in vayne, yll they fall from the fayeth of the promyse, and loue of the lawe and ordinances of God, and put they trust in helpe: des of they owne fyndinge, and lyue accordyng ther as they owne lust and pleasure wythoute regarde of God, as respecte of they neighboure. Then God forsaketh vs, and sendeth vs into captiuitie, for our vnthankfulnesse of his name, & dyspytynge of our neighboure. But the worlde perseuereth so for euer fayeth in Christe onelye (as the people nowe dayes) and not for our lyues (as the people in the wylderneis) and therfore trusteth. For in hys kyngedome shall neyther quyetnes and worth lyuynge, and neyther a preacher do wherefore abhominacion there here vsed: but God perseuereth so, brynge we about hys holy testament, and hys ende what we knowe the truth we folowe it not.

Note also the mysgouernaunce of the kynge, howe he playeth with hys ministers, & punisheth them, and fyzsyth them by a lawe: and a lyttle, & beleeueth not hys people in no wyse that knoth the patience of hys electe, and also the worldely wit and wyly policye of the wicked, wherewith they do fyghte against God, myght appeare.

Marke the longe sufferynge and soft pacience of Moyses, and howe he taught the people and in euer betweene the wyll of God & them, and to ernest to lyue and dye wyth them, and to by put vnto of the boke that God had wzytten for they sakes (as Paule saythe) for our learninge. Exo. xx. and howe he taketh his owne wyfe and chyldren patiently, and neuer an regarde hym selfe. And make not Moyses a figure of Christe to Rachelite: but an exaumple vnto all Pzoyses, and to all that are in authozyte, howe to rule vnto Goddes pleasure, and vnto they owne profite. For there is not a perfecter lyfe in thys worlde, both to the honoure of God, and profite of hys congregacion, nor yet a greater crosse, then to rule christendome. Both of Aaron also, for that thou make no figure of Christe, wzyght he come vnto hys sacrifisynge: but an exaumple vnto all gouernoze of Gods worde, that they abhoz nothynge vnto Goddes worde, ny take aught therfro.

Note also, howe God sendeth hys promyse to the people, and Moyses confyzmeth it with myracles, and the people beleue. But when temptacion commeth, they fall into vnbelefe, and fyrst byde Gods wzonge. When that God that all be not chyldren that wyll be so called, and that the cruell rzeede the true seede the sayeth, yea of the cruell were not, Christe shoulde haue disciples nowe. Wherein also thou seest, what an excellente gyfte of God true fayeth is, and impossible to be had wythoute the spirite of God. For it is about all naturall powers that a man in tyme of temptacion when God seemeth hym, shoulde beleue then vnbelefe, how that God loueth him, and caredh for him, and harde prepareth all good thynges for hym, and that, that happeneth in an earnest that God hath electe and chosen hym.

Note howe oft Moyses fyzyeth them vp to beleue and truste in God, puttynge them in remembraunce alwaye in tyme of temptacion, of the myracles and wonders that God hathe wzought before tyme in they captyuite. Beware diligently also forbiddeth he al that myght the hyndre they hartes from God, to put ought to Gods wozd, to take ought from it, commaundynge to do that onely that is right in the sight of the Lord, that they should make no maner is mage, to bowe downe before them, that they shoulde make none ymitacion of brasse stone, for store of Images, to be the heathen Pzoteccion, and to destroye they Aulters, and not bowne they selues vnto they worshippes, and that they shoulde not take the Daughters of them vnto they Sonnes, nor geue they daughters to the sonnes of the, and that when seuerye moneth any of them to worshippe false Goddes, howsoeuer often of dayes he were, they make a cesse vnto, & brynge him to death, yea, and wherefore they hearde of mose, woman, or chyld, that worshipped false Goddes, they shoulde slea them, and destroye the citye selfe, and not bynde it agayne, and all bycause they shoulde worshipp nothyng but God, nor putte confidence in any thynge, saue in hys worde.

Yea, and howe warneth he to beware of vnthankfulnesse, couetousnesse, vnmercifulnesse, and all craftes of the deuyll, and of hys wayes, forbyddynge, and of wordes here to beware thynge the worlde, and that they shoulde fashe make fayre to lyue.

Then wrote he wyghty fayre, they will a wonderfull. What shyne? God wyll that we care not to knowe what shall come, the wyll haue vs to care onelye to hope hys commaunde mentes, and to commyt all chaunces vnto him, for hath power enough to care for vs, and to hope to frame all well. All thynges are in his hande, he can remedye all thynges, and wyll for his truethe sake. If we hope hym. In hys promyses onely wyll he haue vs be trust, and ther rest and to seke no further.

Howe also doeth he provoke them to love, ever rehersyng the benefites of god done to the afore, and the godly promises þ were to come? And howe goodly lawes of love geveth he, to helpe one an other, and that a man should not hate his neyghbour in his herte, but love him as hym selfe. Leuiticus. xix. And what a charge geveth he in every place, ever þ poor and nedie ever the stranger, fatherlesse and widowes? And when he dehorteth them from wrongs, he reherseth with all, the benefytes of god done to them at there nede, that they myght be a cause of the lesse ware in god to shewe mercye of their love unto their neyghbours as they nede.

Also there is no lawe so symple in appearance throughout the fyve bokes of Moyses, but that there is a greate reason of the making therof, if a man searche diligently. As that a mann is forbydde to seithe a kydde in his mothers mylke, moveth he unto compassion, and to be pitifull. So doeth also that a mann should not offre the fyve dayes and the yong both in one daye. Leuiticus. xxii. For it myght seme a cruell thynge, in as much as the mothers mylke is as it were his bloude, wherfore God will not have him fedde therwith: but wil have a man shewe curtesye, upon the very beastes. So in an other place he commaundeth that we muzell not the oxe that treadeth out þ corne (whyche mance of thesthynge is ded in holie scripture) and that because we should muche rather to be liberall and kynde unto men that do us service. O happye God wouldes have none such wanton mercy ded among his people. For the kydd of it selfe is nourishyng: and the bootes mylke is restaurative, and both together myght be to tranche, and therfore forbidden, or some other lyke cause ther was.

Of the ceremonies, sacrifices, and tabernacle, with all his glory and pompe, understond that they were not permitted onelye, but also commaunded of God, to lead the people in the shadowe of Moyses and myghte of the olde testament, untyll the lyght of Christe and day of the newe testament were come. As children are ledde in the phantasyes of youth untyl the discretion of mans age be come upon them. And all was done to kepe them from Idolatry.

The tabernacle was ordeyned to the entent they myght have a place appointed them to do their sacrifices openly in the syght of the people, and namelye the priestes whyche wayted therin: that it myght be seme that they did all thynges accordinge to Goddes worde, and not after the Idolatrye of their owne imagination. And the costlynesse of the Tabernacle, and the beautye also, pertayninge therunto, that they should see nothynge amonge the heathen, but that they should se thynges more beautyfull at home, because they should not be moved to folowe them.

And in lyke maner, the byuersle fashions of sacrifices and ceremonies was to occupy their myndes, that they should have no lust to folowe the heathen: and the multitude of them was, that they should have so muche to do in keepynge them, that they should have no leasure to imagyne other of their owne: and that gods worde might be by us at that they did, that they myghte have their faythe grounde in God, whyche he can not have that followeth eyther his owne inventions, or traditions of menne makynge without Goddes worde.

Finally, God hath vi. Testamentes: the olde and the newe. The olde testament is thole temporall promises whyche God made the children of Israell of a good Lande, and that he would defende them, and of wealth and prosperitie, and of temporall bleasynges, of which thou readest over all the lawes of Moyses, but namely. Leuiticus. xxvi. and Deuter. xxviii. and the curysynge of all threatenynges and curses of whyche thou readest lykewyse every where, but specially in the two bokes above rehersed, and the curysynge of all punishment ordeyned for the transgressours of the law.

And the olde testament was builte altogether upon the keepyng of the lawe and ceremonies, and was the rewarde of keepynge them in thys lyfe onelye, and reached no farther then thys lyfe and thys worlde. So thou readest Leuiticus. xviii. A man that doeth them shal lyve therein, whyche texte Paule rehearseth. Ro. x. and Galathyans. iii. That is, he that keepith them, shall have his lyfe glorious, accordynge to all the promises and blessynges of the lawe, and shall swerde both all temporall punyshementes of the lawe, and all the threatenynges and cursynges also. For neyther the lawe cureth of the ten commaundementes, nor yet the ceremonies, sattisfied in the best before God, or purified unto the lyfe to come. In so muche that Moyses at his death, even fourtye yeres after the lawe and ceremonies were geven complayneth sayinge. God hath not geven you an herte to understande, nor eyen to see, nor eares to heare unto this daye. So who should have sayed. God hath geven you ceremonies, but ye knowe not the use of them, and hath geve you a lawe, but God hathe not wrytten it in youre hertes.

Wherefore seeyth the lawe then, if it geve no power to do the lawe? Paul answereth the, that it was geven to vexe synne onely, and to make it appeare. So a cotesie is layed unto an olde coze, not to heale it, but to styrre it up, and make the disease ryse, that a man myghte feele in what iopardye he is, and howe nyghe death and not aware, and to make aware unto the healynge plaster.

Even so, sayeth Paule. Gala. iii. The lawe was geven because of transgression, that is to make the synne arise, that it myght be sene, untyll the seede came unto whome it was promised, that is to saye, untyll the children of sayeth came, or untyll Christe that seede in whom God promised Abraham, that all nations of the worlde should be blessed, came.

That is, the lawe was geven to vexe synne, death, damnation, and curse, and to bynde us to Christe, in whom forgyvenesse, lyfe, sattisfying and blessynges were promised, that we myght se so greate love of God to us wardes in Christ that we hence forth ourre come with kyndnes, myght love again, and of love kepe the commaundementes.

Nowe that goeth about to quiet his conscience, and to sattisfy hym selfe with the lawe doeth but heale his woundes with treating cotesie. And he that goeth about to purchase grace with ceremonies doeth but sucke the alepole to quenche his thyrste, in as muche as the ceremonies were not geven to sattisfie the lawe, but to signifie the sattisfying, and forgyvenes that is in Christes bloude.

Of the ceremonies that they sattisfye not, thou readest Hebrues. x. It is impossible that synne should be done awaye with the bloude of oxen, and goates. And of the lawe thou readest Gala. iii. If there had bene a lawe geven that could have quickened or geven lyfe: then had ryghteousnesse or sattisfyinge come by the lawe in deede. Now the lawe not onely quickeneth not the herte, but also woundeth it with sharpenes of synne, y multiplyeth death and damnacion unto hym. Ro. vii. So that he must nedes dye and be dampned, except he fynde another remedye. So farre it is of that he is sattisfied or holpen by the lawe.

The newe testamente is thole curtesyinges promises whyche are made us in Christe the

Lorde

Lorde thoȝwe outt all the ſcripture. And that Teſtament is buylte on fayeth, and not on woȝckes.

For it is not ſayed of that Teſtamente. He that woȝcketh ſhall lyue: but he that beleueth ſhall lyue. As thou readeſt. John. iii. God ſo loued the woȝlde, that he gaue hys onely begotten ſonne, that none that beleue in hym ſhould perysshe, but haue lyfe euerlaſtynge.

And when thys teſtament is preached and beleued, the ſpirite entereth the herte, quyckeneth it, and geueth it lyfe, ſatisfieth hyt. The ſpirite alſo maketh the lawe a lyuelye thynge in the herte, ſo that a manne byndeth hymſelfe good woȝckes of hys owne accorde wyth oute compulſion of the lawe, without feare of threatenynges, or curſynges: yea, and wythout all maner reſpecte of loue vnto anye temporall pleaſure, but of the verye power of the ſpirite, receyued thoȝwe fayeth, as thou readeſt. John i. He gaue the power to be the ſonnes of God, to that they beleued on hys name.

And of that power they woȝcke, ſo that he whyche hathe the ſpirite of Chriſt, is nowe no more a chylde: he neyther learneth nay woȝcketh any longer for paine of the rodde, or for feare of bugges or pleaſure of apples, but doeth all thinges of hys owne courage. As Chriſte ſayeth John. vii. He that beleueth on me, ſhal haue riuers of liuynge waters flowynge oute of hys bealy. That is al good woȝckes, and al ſpyrte of grace ſpryngе out of hym naturallye, and by theyr owne accorde. Euen as nedeſt not to wyſſe good woȝckes out of hym, as a manne woulde wryngе wynne oute of crabbes. Naye they flowe naturally oute of hym, as ſpryngeſ oute of rooſes.

The newe Teſtament was euer euen frome the begynnynge of the woȝlde. For there were alwayes promiſes of Chriſte to come, by fayeth in whyche promiſes, the elects were then iuſtified inwardelye before God, as gute wardelye before the woȝlde, by kepynge of the lawe and ceremonies.

And in concluſion, as thou feeſt bleſſynges or curſynges folowe the breakynge or kepynge of the lawe of Moyſes: euen ſo naturallye do the bleſſynges or curſynges folowe the breakynge or kepynge of the lawe of nature, oute of whyche hyngе all our temporall lotteȝ. For that when the people kepe the temporall lawes of theyr Lande, temporall proſperite, and all maner of ſuche temporall bleſſynges as thou readeſt of in Moyſes, do accompany them and fal doȝn vpon them. And contrarywyſe, when they hyrne vnpunyſhed, and when the rulers haue no reſpecte vnto equitie or iuſtice, then God ſendeth hys curſſe amonge them, as hunger, dearth, moreyn, hanninge, peſtilence, woȝry oppreſſion, wyth ſtraunge and wonderfull deſtruccio, and newe kyndes of miſchiefes and euyll luckes.

If anye manne aſke me, ſyrynge that fayeth iuſtifieth me why I woȝcke? I anſwere. Loue compelleth me. For as longe as my ſoule feleth what loue God hath ſhewed me in Chriſte: I can not but loue God againe, and hys wyl and commaundementes, and of loue woȝcke them, nor can they ſeme harde vnto me. I thynke not my ſelfe better for my woȝkynge, nay I ſe heauen not an higher place in heauen beſauſe of it. For a chriſtian woȝcketh to make hys brother perfecter, and not to ſeke an hygher place in heauen. I compare not my lyfe vnto him that woȝcketh not. Nay, he that woȝcketh not to daye, ſhall haue great to turne and to woȝcke to moȝrowe, and in the meane tyme, I pyne hym and prayе for hym. If I had wyſſe ght the wyll of God thyſe thouſande yeres, and an other had wrought the wyl of the deuel an longe, I thynk hy ſyrynge and he as well wyſſynge to ſuffer wyth Chriſte as I: he hath thys daye ouer taken me, and is as farre come as I, and ſhall haue as muche reward as I, and I enuye hym not but reioyce muche of al, as of lyke treaſure founde.

For if I be of God, I haue thyſe thouſande yeares ſuffered to wynne hym for to come and praiſe the name of God wyth me. Thyſe thouſand yeres, I haue prayed, ſoȝowed, longed, fyghte, and ſought for that whyche I haue thys daye founde, and therfore reioyce with al my myghte, and praiſe God for hys Grace and mercye.

¶ The seconde booke of Moises called Exodus.

The first Chapter.

¶ The children of Jacob are numbred. The newe Pharao oppresseth them. The acte of the godly midwyues.

*Ge.xlvi.b. A

Hese are ye names of the *children of Israel, which came to Egypte with Jacob, euery man with hys household: Ruben, Simeon, Leui, Juda, Isachar, Zabulon, Beniamyn, Dan, Nepthali, Gad, and Aser. All these soules that came out of the lopnes of Jacob were lxx. and Joseph was in Egypte all ready.

When Joseph was deade and all hys brethren, and all that generation: the children of Israell grewe, encreased multiplied, & waxed exceadyng myghtye: so that the land *Act.vii.c Psal.cvii.c was full of them.

B Then there rose vp a newe kyng in Egipt whyche knewe not Josephe. And he sayed vnto hys folke: beholde, the people of the children of Israell are moo and mightyer then wee. Come on, lette vs playe wyselye with them: least they multiplye, and then (if there chaunce anye warre) they ioyne themselues vnto ours, enmyes and fyghte against vs, and so gette them oute of the Lande.

And he sette taskemasters ouer them, to kepe them vnder with burthens. And they buylte vnto Pharao treasure cytyes: Phyton, and Ramises. But the more they vexed them, the more they multiplyed and grewe: so that they abhorred the children of Israell. And the Egyptians helde the children of Israell in bondage withoute mercye, and made their lyues byter vnto them, with cruell laboure in clay and bryche, and all maner woorke in the fyelde, and in all maner of seruice, wherin they caused them to woorke cruellye.

And the kynge of Egypte sayed vnto the midwyues of the Ebrues women, of which the ones name was Sephora, and the other Phua: when ye do the office of a midwyfe to the women of the Hebrues, and se in the bedde tyme that it is a boye, kyll it. But if it D be a mayde, lette it lyue. Notwythstanding the midwyues feared God, and dyd not as the kynge of Egypt commaunded them: but saued the men children.

Then the kynge of Egypte called for the midwiues and sayd vnto them: why haue ye delt on this maner and haue saued the men children? And the midwiues answerd Pharao, that the Hebrues women were not as the women of Egypte: but were sturdy women, and were delyuered per the midwyues came at them. And God therfore dealte wel vnto the midwyues. And the people multiplyed and waxed very mighty. And because the midwyues feared God, he .a. made them houses.

Then Pharao charged all his people saying All the men children that are borne, cast into the ryuer, and saue the mayd children alyue.

¶ The notes.

God made the midwyues houses, that is, To make them he encreased and multiplied them, and made houses, householdes of them, geuynge them both bull andes and children. As in Ge.xli.a.

The second Chapter.

¶ Moyses is borne, cast into the flagges. He is taken vp of Pharaos daughter. He killeth the Egyptian. He fleeth, marieth a wife. The Israelites crye vnto the Lorde.

A Nd there went a man *of the house of Leui. And take a daughter of Leui. And the wife conceaued and bare a sonne. And when she saw that it was a proper childe, she hyd him three monethes longe. *Exodi.vi.c Ps.xxiii.b.

And when she could no longer hyde him she take a basket of bulrydes, & dawbed it with slyme & pytch, & laied the child therin, & put it in the flagges by the ryuers brinke. And his sister stode a farre of, to wete what wold come of it. * And the daughter of Pharao came downe the ryuer to wash her selfe & her maydes walked a long by ye ryuers side. And whe she saw the basket amog the flagges, she sent one of her maydes & caused it to be fet. And when she had opened it she sawe the child, & behold, the babe wept. And she had compassion on it: & sayed it is one of the Ebrues children. Then sayd his sister vnto Pharaos daughter: shall I go and call vnto the a nurse of the Ebrues wome, to nurse the child? And the mayd ranne & called the childs mother. Then Pharaos daughter sayd vnto her: take this childe awaye and nurse it for me, & I wil reward the for thy laboure. And the woman take the childe, and nursed it vp. *Ia.xlvii.a. Act.vii.c Hebr.xi.

And when the childe was growen, she brought it vnto Pharaos daughter, and it was made her son, & she called it .a. Moses, because (said she) I toke him oute of the water. And it happened in those daies whe Moses was waxe great, that he went out vnto his brethren and loked on their burdens, & spyed an Egiptian smytynge one of his brethren an Ebrue. And he loked round about and when he sawe that there was no man by, he .b. slewe the Egyptian and hyd him in the sond. And he went oute an other daye: & behold, two Hebrues stroue togyther. And he sayd vnto him that did the wrong: wherfore smytest thou thyne neyghbour? And he answered: who hathe made the a ruler or a iudge ouer vs? intendest thou to kyll me, as E thou kylledst the Egyptian? Then Moyses feared and sayed: of a surete the thynge is knowen. And Pharao hearde of it and went about to slea Moyses: but he fled frō Pharao and dwelte in the lande of Madian, ¶

he sate downe by a welle syde.

The preest of Madian had.vii. doughters which came and drewe water and filled the troughes, for to water theyr fathers sheepe.
And the shepherdes came ¶ drove the awaye
but Moyses stode vp ¶ helped the, ¶ watered their sheepe. And whē they came to .r. Raguel their father he sayed: howe happeneth it that ye are come so sone to daye? And they answered: there was an Egyptian that delivered vs frō the shepeherdes, ¶ so darn vs water, ¶ watered the shepe. And he sayed vnto hys doughters: wher is he? why have ye left the man? Go call him ꝙ he may eate breade.
And Moyses was content to dwell with the manne. And he gave Moyses Zephora his daughter, which bare a sonne, ¶ he called hym Gerson: for he sayd: I have bene a straūger in a straunge lande. And she bare yet an other sonne, whom he called Eleser, sayenge: the God of my father is myne helper, and hath rydd me out of the handes of Pharao.

And it chaunced in processe of tyme, that the kynge of Egypt dyed, and the children of Israel syghed by the reaso of labour and cried. And their cōplaint came vp vnto God from the labour. And God remembred hys promise with Abraha, Isaac, ¶ Jacob. And God.b. lokyd vpō the children of Israel, and knewe them.

¶ The notes.

Moyses. a. Moyses is an Hebrue name, and it signifieth drawen out of the water.

Slewe the Egyptian. b. Thys slayng of the Egyptian betokeneth that Moyses shoulde be a reuenger of the iniuries done to the people of God, and he
the rebukyng of the Hebrue on the other day was a sygne that he shoulde be a iudge and a lawe geuer amonge them.

Raguell. c. Thys Raguell is not Jethro, but is the father of Jethro, and the grādfather of Zephora, and was also the preest of Madian.
For it was a lyke order with them as it was with the Jewes, that the sonne pertayned the office of hys father.

To loke vpō them. a. God loketh vpō hys people, whē he hath pyte and compassion on them, and in lyke
maner he knoweth them whom he delyuereth
from their miseries.

The.iii. Chapter.

¶ Moyses kepeth shepe. God appeareth vnto him in a bushe, and talketh him to the children of Israell, and to Pharao that tyraut.

MOyses kepte the sheepe of Jethro hys father in lawe preest of Madian, and he drove the flocke to the backeparte of the desarte, and came to the mount fayne of God, Horeb. And the Angell of the Lorde appeared vnto hym in a flame of fyre out of a bushe. And he percyued that the bush burned wyth fyre, and consumed not.

Then Moyses sayed: I will go neere,
and se thys greate syghte howe it commeth
that the bush burneth not. And whē the Lord sawe that he came for to se, he called to hym
out of the bushe, and sayed: Moyses, Moy- 4
ses. And he answered: here am I.
And he sayed: Come not hyther, but put thy shoors of thy feete: for the place wherein thou standest is holy ground. And he sayed: I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moyses hyd hys face: for he was a frayed to looke vpon God.

Then the Lorde sayed: I have surely sene
the trouble of my people which are in Egypt, 6
and have heard their cry whyche they have
of their taskemasters. For I know their sor-rowe, and am come downe to deliuer the out of the handes of the Egyptians, ¶ to bringe
them out of that lande vnto a good lande ¶ a large, ¶ vnto a lande ꝙ floweth with mylke
¶ hony: vnto the place of the Chanaanites Hethites, Amorites, Pheresites, Heuites, ¶ of the Jebusites. Nowe therfore behold, the complaynt of the children of Israel is come vnto me, and I have also sene the oppressiō wherwith the Egyptians oppresse the. But come, I will sende vnto Pharao, that thou maist bring my people, the children of Israel 10
out of Egypt. And Moyses said vnto God:
what am I to go vnto Pharao, ¶ to bringe
the children of Israell out of Egypt? And he sayde: I will be with the. And this shalbe a token vnto the that I have sente the, after that thou hast brought the people out of Egypt,
ye shall serue God vpon this mountayne.

Then said Moyses vnto God: whē I come vnto ꝙ children of Israel ¶ say vnto them, the God of your fathers hath sent me vnto you ¶ they say vnto me, what is hys name, what answer shal I geue the? The sayd God vn- 14 to Moyses: a. I will be what I will be: ¶ he said, thus shalt thou say vnto the children of Israel: I wolbe hath sent me vnto you. And God spake further vnto Moyses: thus shalt thou say vnto the children of Israel: the Lord God
of your fathers, ꝙ God of Abraha, the God of Isaac, ¶ ꝙ God of Jacob hath sent me vnto you: this is my name for ever, and this is my memorial throughout all generations.
Go therfore ¶ gather the elders of Israell together, ¶ say vnto the: the Lorde God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob appeared vnto me, and sayed. I have bene mindful both you and that which is done to you in Egypte. And I have sayed o. that I will bringe you out of the tribulatiō of Egypte
vnto the lande of the Chanaanites, Hethites, Amorites, Pheresites, Heuites, and Jebu-sites, vnto a lād that floweth wt mylke ¶ hony.

Jtē

If it come to passe ꝙ they heare thy voice
thou go, both thou and the elders of Israel
vnto the kyng of Egypt, and say vnto him:
The Lorde God of the Hebrues hath mette
with vs: let vs go therfore .iii. dayes iourney
into the wylderues, that we maye sacrifice
vnto the Lord our God. Notwithstandynge
I am sure that the kyng of Egypte wyll not let you go, except it be with a mighty hãd:
Yea, ꝙ I will therfore stretche out myne hand & smyte Egypt with all my wonders which I will do therin. And after that he will let Ex.viii.xii.c you goo. And* I will geue this people fa-uour in the syghte of the Egyptians: so that when ye go, ye shall not go emptye: but eue-
ry wyfe shall borowe of hyr neyghbouresse, & of hyr that soiourneth in hir house, trewels
of syluer and of gold & rayment. And ye shal put them on youre sonnes & daughters, and shall.e. robbe the Egyptians.

The notes.

Desert. a. Desert, is a place not inhabited and maye
be called wylderues.

Holye. b. The scripture vseth that thing holy, which eyther the Lorde chalengeth to him selfe, or that is dedicated vnto the lord. As Ex.xvii.b

Myrhe and honye. c. By myrhe and honye is vnderstande aboudance and plentyousnes of all thinges that perteyne to the comfort of man.

Iaphe. d. This translation followeth the Hebrue, whyche hathe, I will, for that wyrdhe is in all tacenes translations, Sum, I am. But whyche waye soeuer it be taken it signifieth, that God onely hath bene, is, and shall be, & hath his beynge of him selfe, and that al other thynges haue their beynge of him.
Stryue not therfore for the matter, but let it be was, am, or wylbe, all is one matter.

To robbe. e. We maye not here take in hande to proue robbynge to be good and lawful to be vsed, bicause the Hebrues (at the commaundement of God) robbed the Egyptians: for our and the same thyng is both good and euil. Good when he commaundeth it, and euyll when he forbiddeth it. For God can not be the author of euyll.

The.iiii. Chapter

Moyses mistrusteth his callyng and wold fayne auoyde it. His wife circumcised her sonne. Aaron metteth Moyses. Mo
yses taketh his leaue of his father in lawe.

A MOyses answered and said: Behold they will not beleue me, nor hear ken vnto my voice: but will say
the Lorde hath not appeared to
the. Then the Lord sayed vnto him: what is that in thyne hand? and he said
a rodde. And he sayd cast it on the grounde, and it turned into a serpente. And Moyses came away from it. And the Lord sayd vnto Moyses, put forth thyne hand & take it by the tayle. And he put forth his hãd & caught it, and it became a rodde agayne in his hãd, that they may beleue that the Lorde God of their fathers, the God of Abrahã, the god of Isaac, and the God of Iacob hathe appe- B red vnto the.

And the Lord sayd furthermore vnto him thruste thyne hand into thy bosome. And he thrust his hand into his bosome and toke it out. And behold, his hand was leperous euẽ as snowe. And he sayd: put thyne hand into thy bosome agayne. And he put his hande in to his bosome agayne, and plucked it oute
his bosome, & behold, it was turned agayne as his other flesh. If they wyll not beleue the neither hear the voyce of the firste token: yet
wyll they beleue the voyce of the second to- C
ken. But and if they wyll not beleue the two tokens, neyther herken vnto thy voyce, then take of the water of the riuer and poure it vp-on the dry land. And the water which thou takest out of the ryuer shall turne to bloude
vpon the dry land.

And Moyses sayed vnto the Lorde: oh my Lorde* I am not eloquent, no not in tymes *Jere.i.a.
past, and namely sence thou hast spoken vnto thy seruaunt: but I am slowe mouthed, and slow tonged. And the Lord sayed vnto him: D who hath made mans mouthe, or who hath made the dombe or the deafe, the seynge or the blynde? haue not I the Lord? Go therfore and* I wilbe with thy mouth, and teach the *Mat.x.a what thou shalte saye. But he sayed: oh my Lord, send I pray the whom thou wylt. And the lord was angry with Moyses and said:
I knowe Aaron thy brother the Leuite that he can speake. And more ouer behold, he cometh to mete the, & whe he seeth the he will be glade in his herte. And thou shalt speake vnto him and put the wordes in his mouth, and I wylbe with thy mouth and with his mouth, and wyl teach you what ye shall do.
And he shal be thy spokesman vnto the people. e. he shall be thy mouth, & thou shalt be his God: and take this rodde in thy hande,
wherwith thou shalt do myracles.

And Moyses went & returned to Iethro
his father in law againe and said vnto him, lette me goo (I praye the) & turne againe vn- E
to my brethren which are in Egypte, that I may se whether they be yet alyue. And Iethro said to Moyses: goo in peace. And the Lorde said vnto Moyses in Madiã: returne againe into Egypte* for they are dead which were *Mat.ii.b.
about to hil the. And Moyses toke his wyfe and his sonnes, and put them on an asse and went againe to Egypte, and toke the rod-
de of God in his hande.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moyses: when thou art come in to Egypte againe, se that thou do all the wõders before Pharao which I haue put in thy hand: but I wyl harde his herte, so that he shal not lette the people go. F
And tel Pharao, thus sayeth the Lorde: Israel is myne eldest sonne, and therfore sayth
vnto the let my sonne go, that he maye serue
me. If thou wylt not lette him go: behold, I wyl slea thyne eldest sonne.

And it chaunced by the way in the inne,
that

that the Lord mett hym & wolde have kylled him. The Zephora toke a stone & circumcised hyr sonne & fell at hyr fete, and sayed: a bloudy husband art thou unto me. And he lette him go. She sayed a bloudy husbande because of the circumcision. Then sayed the Lord unto Aaron: go mete Moses in ỹ wildernes. And he went & mett hym in the mount of God & kissed him. And Moses told Aarō G al the wordes of the Lord which he had sent hym, & all the tokens which he had charged hym withall. So went Moses & Aaron and gathered all the elders of the chyldre of Israell. And Aarō told al the wordes which the Lorde had spoken unto Moses, & did the miracles in the syght of the people, & ỹ people beleved. And whē they herde that the Lord had visited the children of Israell and had loked vpō their tribulation. & they bowed them selues and worshypped.

The notes.

Mouth. a. He shalbe thy mouth, that is, he shal speake for the. As in Job. xxix.c.

To bowe. b. They bowed the selues, that is they gaue thankes, & praysed the Lord.

The.v.Chapter.

¶ Moses & Aaron goeth unto Pharao. The people of Israell are oppressed more and more and they rage oute upon Moses and Aaron therefore.

AFter Moses & Aaron went & told Pharao, thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel. Let my people go, that they maye kepe holye day unto me in the wildernes. And Pharao answered: what felowe is the Lorde, that I should heare hys voyce for to let Israell go? I knowe not the Lord, neyther wyll let Israell go. And they sayed: the God of the Hebrues hath mett with us: lett us go (we praye the) the dayes iourney into the deserte, that we may sacrifice unto the Lord our God: lest he smyte us eyther with pestilence, or with swoorde. Then sayed the kynge of Egypte unto them: wherefore do ye Moses and Aaron let the people from their worcke, get you unto your labour. And Pharao sayd furthermore: behold, there is much people in the lande, and ye make them playe and let them worcke stand.

And Pharao cōmaunded the same day unto the taskemasters ouer the people, & unto the officers saying: se that ye giue the people no more straw to make bryche withall, as ye dyd in time passed: let them go and gather them straw them selues, and the numbre of bryche whyche they were wonte to make in D tymes passed, laye unto their charges also, & minish nothing therof. For they be idle and therfore cry saying: let us goo and do sacrifice unto our God. They muste have more worcke layed upon them, that they maye labour therin, and then wyll they not turne them selues to false wordes.

Then went the taskemasters of the people and the officers oute and told the people saynge: Thus sayth Pharao: I wyll geue you no more straw, but go your selues and gather you straw wher you can fynde it, yet shall none of your labour be minished. Then the people scattered abrode throughout all the land of Egypt for to gather them stubble to be in stede of straw.

And the taskemasters hasted the forwarde E saying: fulfyl your worcke day by day, euen as when straw was geuen you. And the officers of the children of Israel whych Pharaos taskemasters had set ouer them, were beate. And it was sayd unto them: wherfore have you not fulfilled your taske in making bryche both yesterdaye and to daye, as well as in tymes past.

Then went the officers of the children of Israel & complayned unto Pharao sayenge: wherfore dealest thou thus with thy seruantes? there is no straw geuen unto thy seruantes, and yet they say unto us make bryche. And loo, thy seruantes are beaten, and thy people is foule intreated. And he answered: D yll favoredly are ye idle, and therefore ye say: let us goo and do sacrifice unto the Lorde. Go therfore and worcke, for there shall no straw be geuen you, & yet se that ye delyuer the whole tale of bryche.

When the officers of the chyldre of Israel sawe the selues in shame case (in that he said ye shall minish nothyng of your daylye makyng of bryche) then they mette Moses and Aaron standinge in their way as they came out from Pharao, and sayd unto them. The Lorde loke unto you and iudge, for ye have made the sauour of us. & stynke in the syght of Pharao, and of his seruantes, and have put a sweord into their handes to slea us.

Moses returned unto the Lord & sayd: Lorde wherefore dealest thou cruelly with this people: and wherefore hast thou sent me? For sence I came to Pharao to speke in thy name, he hath vexed foule with thys folke, & yet thou hast not delyuered thy people at al. Then the Lord sayd unto Moses: Nowe shalt thou se what I wyll do unto Pharao for with a myghtye hande shall he let them go, and with a myghtye hande shall he driue them out of his land.

The notes.

To know. a. He knoweth not the lord that feareth him not, neither beleueth in him, but is as one having nothing to do with him. Suche are all the hard hertes, and greadye worldelynges that passe not to transgresse Goddes commaundementes for lucres sake.

To speke. b. When a man can not abyde a thynge, the we say, it sticketh in his sight. So to speke in Pharaos syght is to be al houred of him.

And the frogges shall come vpon the, and on thy people, and vpon al thy seruauntes.

And Aaron stretched his hād ouer the water of Egypt, & ỳ frogges came vp & couered the lād of Egypt. And the sorcerers dyd lyke wyse with theyr sorcerye, & the frogges came vp vpon the land of Egipt.

Then Pharao called for Moyses & Aaron and sayed, praye ye vnto the Lorde that he C maye take away the frogges from me and from my people, and I wyll lette the people goo, that they maye do Sacrifice vnto the Lorde. And Moyses sayed vnto Pharao: Appoynt thou the tyme vnto me, when I shall praye for the & thy seruauntes and thy people, to dryue away the frogges from the and thy house, so ỳ they shall remayne but in the ryuer onely. And he sayd to morow. And he sayd euen as thou hast sayed, that thou mayst know that there is none lyke vnto the Lord oure God. And the frogges shal departe frō the and from thine houses and from thy seruauntes, and from thy people, and shall remayne in the ryuer onely.

And Moyses & Aaron went out from Pha- D rao, & Moyses cryed vnto the Lord vpon the appointment of frogges which he had made vnto Pharao. And the Lord dyd accordinge to the saying of Moyses. And ỳ frogges died out of the houses, courtes and feyldes. And they gathered them together vpō heapes: so that the land stanke of them.

But when Pharao sawe that he had rest geuen hym, he hardened his hert and herkened not vnto them, as the Lord had sayed. And the Lord sayed vnto Moyses: saye vnto Aaron stretch out thy rod and smite the dust of the lande that it maye turne to lyce in all E the land of Egypt. And they dyd so. And Aa-

The thyrde plage.

And the enchaunters allayed lykewyse wyth theyr enchauntments to bringe forthe lyse, but they coulde not. And the lyse were both vpon man and beaste. Then sayed the enchaunters vnto Pharao, it is the .a. finger of God. Neuertheles Pharaos hert was hardened, and he regarded them not, as the Lorde had sayed.

And the Lord sayd vnto Moyses: ryse vp early in the mornynge & stande before Pharao, for he wyll come vnto the water: & saye vnto hym, thus sayeth the Lord: let my people goo, that they maye serue me. If thou wylt not let my people go, beholde, I wyll sende all maner of flyes both vpon the & thy seruauntes, and thy people, & into thy houses. And the houses of the egyptians shall be ful of flyes, and the ground whereon they are. And I wyl put a deuision betwene my people and thyne. And euen to morowe shal this myracle be done.

The fourth plage.

And the Lord dyd euen so: & there came noysom flyes into the house of Pharao, and into hys seruauntes houses, and into all the land of Egypt: so that the lande was marred with flyes. Then Pharao sente for Moyses & Aaron & sayd: Go & do sacrifice vnto youre God in the land. And Moyses answered: it is not mete so to do. For we muste offer vnto the Lorde oure God, that whiche is abhominacion vnto the Egyptians: beholde, shall we sacrifice that whych is an abhomination vnto the Egyptians before theyr eyes, and shal they not stone vs? we wyll therfore goo thre dayes iourney into the desert, and sacrifice vnto the Lorde oure God as he hathe commaunded vs.

C And Pharao sayd: I wyl let you goo, that ye may do sacrifice vnto the lord your God in the wildernes: onely go not farre awaye, & se that ye pray for me. And Moyses sayed: beholde, I wyll go out from the and praye vnto the Lord, and the flyes shall depart frō Pharao & from his seruauntes and from his people to morrow. But let Pharao frō hēce forth deceyue no more, that he wyll not lette the people go to sacrifice vnto the Lord.

And Moyses went out from Pharao and prayed vnto the Lorde. And the Lord did as Moyses had sayd, & toke away the flyes from Pharao & frō his seruauntes, & frō his people so that there remayned not one. But for all that Pharao hardened his hert euen thē also and would not let the people go.

Sende therefore and fette home thy beastes and all that thou hast in the feyld. And as many as feared the worde of the Lorde among the Seruauntes of Pharao, made theyr seruauntes and theyr beastes flee to house: and they that regarded not the word of the Lord lefte theyr seruauntes and theyr Beastes in the fyelde.

E And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: stretch forth thyne hād vnto heauē, that there maye be haile in al the land of Egypt: vpō man & beast, & vpō all the herbes of the fielde in the feld of Egypt. And Moses stretched out his rodd vnto heauē, & the Lorde thondered and hayled, so that the fyre ran a longe vpon the grouūd* And the Lord so hayled in the lād of Egypt, that there was hayle & fyre mingled with the hayle, so greuouse, that there was none suche in all the Lande of Egypte, sence people inhabited it. And the hayle smote in the lande of Egypte al that was in the feld both man and beaste. And the hayle smote al the herbes of the field, and broke al the trees of the felde: only in the land of Gosan where the childrene of Israell were, was there no hayle. And Pharao sent and called for Moses and Aaron, and sayed vnto them: I haue now synned, the Lord is righteous, & I and my people are vnwicked. Pray ye vnto the Lord, that the thonder of God & hayle may cease, and I will let you go, and ye shall tarye no lenger. And Moyses sayd vnto hym: as sone as I am out of the cyty, I wyl spreade abrode my handes vnto the Lorde, and the thonder shal cease, neither shal there be any more hayle that thou mayste knowe howe that the earth is the Lordes. But I know yt thou & thy seruauntes yet feare not the Lorde God. The flaxe and the barley were smitten for the barley was shot vp, & the flaxe was boulled: but the wheat and the rye were not smytten for they were late sowne.

And Moses went out of the cyty frō Pharao, and spread abrode hys handes vnto the Lord, and the thunder and hayle ceased, neither rayned it any more vpon the earth, whē Pharao sawe that the rayne and the hayle & thunder were ceased, he synned agayne and hardened his hert: both he and his seruātes. So was the herte of Pharao hardened, that he wolde not let the children of Israel go, as the Lord had said by Moses.

¶ The hert of Pharao is hardened of God. The grasshoppers. The thyrde darckenes.

THe Lord sayed vnto Moses: go in vnto Pharao: for I haue hardened hys herte, & the hertes of hys seruauntes, that I myght shew these my signes amongest them, & that thou tell in the audience of thy sonne, & of thy sonnes sonne, the pageantes which I haue played in Egypt, and the miracles which I haue done among them: that ye may know how that I am the Lord. Then Moses and Aaron went in vnto Pharao, and sayd vnto hym: Thus sayth the Lorde God of the Hebrues: howe longe shall it be or thou wylt submit thy selfe vnto me? * Let my people go that they may serue me. If thou wylt not lette my people go: beholde, to morowe wyll I bringe grashoppers into thy lande, and they shall couer the face of the earth that it can not be seene, and they shal eate the residue which remayneth vnto you and escaped the hayle: and they shall eate all youre greene trees vppon the feilde, and they shall fyll thy houses, and all thy seruauntes houses, & the houses of al the Egyptyans after suche a maner: as neither thy fathers nor thy fathers fathers haue sene sence the tyme they were vpō the earth vnto thys day. And Pharaos seruauntes said vnto him: How long shal we be thus cumbred? Lette the men goo that they maye serue the Lord theyr God: wylte thou not yet knowe that Egypt is destroyed? And then Moyses and Aaron were brought againe vnto Pharao, and he sayed vnto them: Goo and serue the Lorde youre God, but who are they that shal go? And Moyses answered: we wyll go with ouge and olde: yea & with our sonnes and with our daughters, and with our sheepe & oxen must we go. For we must holde a feast vnto the Lorde.

And he sayd vnto them: let it be so? The Lorde be with you, should I lette you goo, and your children also? Take hede, for ye haue some mischiefe in hande, Nay not so but go ye that are men and serue the Lorde, for that was your desyre. And they thrust them out of Pharaos presence.

And he went out frō Pharao, & prayed vnto the Lord: & the Lord turned the wynd into a mighty strōg west wynde, & it toke away the grethoppers and cast them into the rede sea: so that there was not one grethopper in all the coastes of Egypte. Thys is a vpghte of the Lorde to be kepte of al the chyldren of Jsrael and of their genera-cions after them.

And the Lord sayd vnto Moses & Aaron:
thys is the maner of Passouer: there shal no
straunger eate therof, but all the seruauntes that are bought for money shall pe circumcyse, and then let them eate therof. A straunger and a hyerd seruaunte shal not eate

carie none of the flesh out at the doores: more *John. xix.g ouer *se that pe breake not a bone therof. All ỹ multitude of the chyldren of Jsrael shall ob-serue it.

If a straunger dwel among you, and wyl
holde Passouer vnto the Lorde, let him circumcyse al that be males, and then let hym come and obserue it, and be taken as one that is borne in the lande. No vncircumcised person shal eate therof: one maner of law shalbe vnto them that are borne in the lande, and vnto the straungers that dwell among you.
And al the chyldren of Jsrael dyd as ỹ Lord
commaunded Moses and Aaron. And euen the self same daye dyd the Lorde bryng the chyldren of Jsrael out of the lande of Egypt
with their armyes.

Shepe. a. That is here called a shepe, is in Hebrue a word indifferent, to be taken either for shepe or gote.

Passouer. b. The lambe is called the Passouer, that the very name it selfe shoulde kepe in memorye what was sygnifyed therby, wherfore
Moses and maner of speakynge the scripture vseth often, callynge the sygne by the name of the thynge that it signifieth. As in Genes. xvii. b.

Euer. c. Euer is not here taken for a tyme without ende, but for a longe season whose ende is not determined, as in Genes. xiii. b. and Eze.
xxvii. g.

Will passe ouer. d. To passe ouer, is a maner of speache of the scripture, and signifieth no more, but that as he woulde plage the wycked (as he dyd here
the Egyptians) so he woulde shewe mercye
vnto the faythful, as he dyd to the Jsraelites
as in Exod. xxxiv. d.

Borne in the lande. e. Those that were borne in the lande, are ayp those that were borne amonge them: not descendyng of the stocke or lynage of Jsrael.
And the straungers were those that dwelt among the Jsraelites and were not borne amonge them, as about in this same chapter
at the letter d.

Sapnctyfie. Haply.

a. Luke Genes.xi.a

b. By this word haply some myght chaunce through a fleshly mynde, thynke that God was vncertayne what the Hebrues woulde haue done yf they had mette with sharpe warres at them: yf they departynge oute of Egypt. But let all maner of persons that take in hande to reade the scriptures, knowe that thys all ipke sentences, are spoken after the maner of men, as it is in Genes. vi. And by this is declared the greate weakenes, euen of those people for whom God had wrought so many wonders and also that he woulde not worcke any wonders as then amōg the Philistines. but only vpon the Egyptians, who by the Israelites goynge thorow the wyldernes toke occasion to folowe vpon them, and so were (to the glorye of God) ouerthrowen in the redde sea.

¶ The.xiiii.Chapter.

¶ Pharaos heart is hardened and followeth the Israelites with all his hoodle & captaynes and is drowned. The Israelites grudge. They go thorow the red sea.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: byd the children of Israel that they turne and pitch their tentes before the entrynge of Hiroth betwene Migdole & the sea toward Baalzephon: euen before that that ye pitch vpon the sea. For Pharao will say of the children of Israel: they are tangled in the lande, the wyldernesse hath shut them in. And I wyll harden his harte, that he shall folow after them. that I may get me honour vpon Pharao & vpō all his hoste, that the Egyptyans may knowe that I am the Lorde. And they dyd euen so.

B And whē it was tolde the kynge of Egypt that the people fled, that Pharaos harte and all hys seruauntes turned vnto the people & sayde: why haue we thys done that we haue let Israel goo out of oure seruice? & he made readye hys charettes and toke hys people vnto him and toke .vi. hundred chosen charettes & all the charettes of Egypte and captaynes vpon al hys people. For the Lord hardened the harte of Pharao kynge of Egypt, that he C folowed after the children of Israel whyle they went out thorow* and hye hande. *Luke in the xxxvi.b.

and the Egyptians folowed after them and ouertoke them where they pitched by the sea, with all the hosses & charettes of Pharao & his hosseme & his hoste, euen fast by the entryng of Hiroth before Baall Zephon. And Pharao drewe nye, & when the children of Israel lyft vp their eyes & sawe howe the Egyptians folowed after them, they were sore afrayde & cryed out vnto the Lord.

D Than sayde they vnto Moses: were there no graues for vs in Egypte, but thou muste bringe vs awaye for to dye in the wyldernesse. wherfore hast thou serued vs thus, for to carye vs out of Egypte? Dyd not we tell the thys in Egypte sayinge, let vs be in rest & serue the Egyptians? For it had bene better for vs to haue serued the Egyptians, than for to dye in the wyldernesse. And Moses sayde vnto the people: feare ye not but stonde styll and beholde howe the Lorde shall saue you thys daye: For as ye se the Egyptians thys daye, shall ye se them nomore for euer tyl the worldes ende. The Lord shal fyght for you and. E. ye shal holde your peace.

The Lorde sayde vnto Moses: wherfore .b. cryest thou vnto me? speake vnto the children of Israel that they goo forwarde. But lyfte thou vp thy rodde & stretch out thy hand ouer the sea and deuyde it a sonder, that the children of Israel may goo on dry grounde thorow the myddest therof. And beholde I wyl harden the hertes of the Egyptians that they maye folowe you. And I wyll get me honoure vpon Pharao and vpon all hys hoste, vpon his charettes and vpon his hosseme. *And the Egyptians shal know that I am the Lord whan I haue gotten me honour vpon Pharao vpon his charettes and vpon his hossemen.

And the angell of God which went before F the hoste of Israel, remoued & went behynde them. And the cloudy pyller that was before them remoued & stode behynde the: and went betwene the hoste of the Egyptians & the hoste of Israel. It was a darke clowde, and gaue lyght by nyght: so that all the nyght long the one coulde not come at the other.

*When now Moses stretched forth hys hande ouer the sea, the Lorde caused awaye the sea with a strōge east wynde that blewe all nyght, & made the sea drye land and the water deuyded it selfe. And the children of Israel went in thorow the myddest of the sea vpon the drye ground. And the water was a walle vnto them, both on their ryght hād & on their lefte hande. And the Egiptians folowed and G went in after them to the myddest of the sea, with all Pharaos hosses, & hys charettes & his hossemen. And in the morninge watch, the Lorde loked vnto the hoste of the Egyptians out of the fyery and cloudy pyller, and troubled their hoste & smote of their charett wheles and caused them downe to the grounde. ¶ The laste plage.

Than stretched forth Moses hys hande
ouer the sea, & it came agayne to hys course

Egyptians in the myddest of the sea, & the water returned and couered the charettes

Pharao that came in to the sea after them, there remayned not one. But the chyldren of Israel went vpon drye lande in the myddest

both on the ryghte hande of them and also on

For when they haue a matter, they come vnto me, and I must iudge betwene euery man & his neyghbour, & must shew them the ordinaunces of God and his lawes.

The.xix. Chapter.

¶ The children of Israel came to the mounte Sinai. The people of God are holy & a royall priesthode. He that toucheth it shall dye. God appeareth vnto Moses vpon the mounte in thonder and lightenynge.

IN the thyrd moneth after the children of Israel were gone out of Egipt: the same daye they came into the wildernesse of Sinai.* For they were departed from Raphidim, & were come to the desert of Sinai, and had pitched their tentes in the wildernesse. And there Israell pitched before the mounte. And Moses went vp into God. And the Lorde called to him out of the mountayne, sayinge: thus saye vnto the house of Jacob, & tell the children of Israel: ye haue seene what I dyd vnto the Egipcians & how I tooke you vp vpō Egles wynges, & haue brought you vnto my self. Now therefore if ye will heare my voyce & kepe myne appointment: ye shall be myne owne about al nacions, for all the erth is myne. Ye shalbe vnto me a kyngdome of preistes & an holy people: these are the wordes which thou shalt saye vnto the children of Israel.

And Moses came & called for the elders of Israel, & layde before them all these wordes which the Lord had cōmaunded him. And the people answered altogether and sayde: All that the Lorde hath sayde, we will do. And Moses brought the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: Lo, I will come vnto the in a thycke cloude, that the people maye heare when I talke with the, and also beleue the for euer. And Moses shewed the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: Go vnto the people & sanctifye them to daye & to morow, & let them washe their clothes: that they maye be redy against the thyrde daye. For the thyrd day the Lord will come downe in the sighte of all the people vpon mounte Synai. And set markes rounde about the people & saye: beware that ye go not vp into the mounte, & that ye touche not the borders of it, for whosoeuer toucheth the mounte, shall surely dye. There shall not an hande touch it, but that he shall eyther be stoned or els shot thorow: whether it be beast or man, it shall not liue, when the horne bloweth: than let them come vp into the mountayne.

And Moses went downe from the mount vnto the people and sanctified them, & they washed their clothes: And he sayde vnto the people: be redy against the thyrde daye, & se that ye. b. come not at youre wyues. And the thyrde daye in the morninge there was thonder & lightening & a thicke cloude vpon the mount, & the voice of the horne wayed exceadynge loude, & all the people that was in the hoste was afrayed. And Moses brought the people out of the tentes to mete with God, & they stode vnder the hyll.

And mounte Sinai was altogether on a smoke because the Lorde descended downe vpon it in fyre. And the smoke therof ascended vp, as it had bene the smoke of a hylle, & all the mount was exceadynge fearfull. And the voyce of the horne blewe & waxed louder & louder. Moses spake, & God answered him and that with a voyce. And the Lorde came doune vpon mount Sinai, euē in the toppe of the hyll, and called Moyses vp into the toppe of the hyll. And Moyses went vp.

And the Lord sayd vnto Moyses: go doune & charge the people that they breake not vp vnto the Lorde for to se hym, & so many of thē perish. And let ỹ preistes allowyche come to the Lordes presence sanctifye them selues: lest the Lord smyte them. Then Moyses sayd vnto the Lord: the people can not come vp in to the mount Sinai, for thou chargedest vs saying: set markes about the hyll, & sanctifie it. And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: awaye, & get the doune: & come vp both thou & Aaron with the. But let not the preistes & the people presume for to come vp vnto the Lord: lest he smyte them. And Moyses went doune vnto the people, and tolde them.

And fyl the handes of Aaron and of hys sonnes, and bringe the oxe before the tabernacle of witnesse. * And let Aaron and hys sonnes put their handes vpō hys head & kyl hym before the Lord in the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse. And take of the bloude of the oxe and put it vpō the hornes of the altre with thy finger & poure all the bloude vpon the botome of the auter, and take all the fat that couereth the intrayles, & the kal that is on the liuer and the .ii. kidneys with the fat that is vpon them: and burne them vpō the auter: But the flesh of the oxe & hys skynne and hys dounge shalte thou burne with fyre without * Leuit.i.b.

Then take one of the rammes, & let Aaron & hys sonnes put their handes vpon the head of the ramme, and cause him to be slaine, and take of hys bloude and sprenkell it rounde aboute vpon the alter, and cutt the ramme in peces and waith the inwardes of hym and hys legges, and put them vnto the peces and vnto his head, and burne the hole ram vpon the alter. For it is a burnt offeryng vnto the Lorde, and a.a. swette sauoure of the Lordes sacrifyce.

And take the other ram and let Aarō and hys sonnes, put their handes vpon hys head and lett him than be killed. And take of hys bloude and put it vpon the tippe of the right eare of Aaron and of hys sonnes, and vpon the thombe of their ryghte handes and vpon the greate too of their ryghte fete and sprenkel the bloude vpon the auiter round aboute.

Then take of the bloude that is vpon the alter and of the anoyntynge oyle, and sprenkell it vpon Aaron and his vestimentes, and vpon his sonnes and vpon their garmentes also. Then is he and his clothes holy and his sonnes and their clothes holye also.

Then take it from of their handes and burne it vpon the alter ✠ vpon the burnteofferyng, to be a sauoure of swetnesse before the Lorde. For it is sacrifyce vnto the Lord. Then take the brest of the ramme that is Aarons ful offring and waue it a waueoffring before the Lorde, and lette that be thy part. And sanctify the brest of the waueofferyng and the shoulder of the heue offeryng whyche is waued and heued vp of the ram which is the fullofferyng of Aarō and of his sonnes. And it shalbe Aarons and his sonnes duty✠ for euer of the children of Israel, for it is an heueofferyng. And the heue E offeryng shalbe the Lordes duty✠ of the children of Israell: euen of the sacrifyce of their praceofferynges whyche they heue vnto the Lorde. And the holye garmentes of Aaron shalbe hys sonnes after hym, to anoint them therin, and to fyll their handes therin. And they shall eate them because the attonement was made therwyth to fyll their handes & to sanctify them: but a straunger shall not eate therof because they are holy.

G And on the morowe, Moses sayde vnto the people: Ye haue sinned a great synne. But now I will goo vp vnto the Lorde, to wytt whether I can make an attonemēt for your synne.

A And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: departe and go hence: both thou & the people which thou hast brought out of the land of Egypt, vnto the lande which I swore vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob sayinge: vnto thy seed I will geue it. * And I will sende an angell before the, & I will cast out the Cananites, the Amorites, the Hethites, the Pherezites, the Heuites, & the Jebusites: that thou mayst go into a land that floweth with mylke and honye. But I will not go amonge you my selfe, for ye are a stifnecked people: lest I consume you by the waye. And when the people herde this euell tydinges, they sorowed: and no man dyd put on his best rayment.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, say vnto the chyldren of Israel: ye are a stifnecked people: I must come once sodenly vpō you, & make an ende of you. But now put youre goodly rayment from you, that I maye wete what to do vnto you. And the chyldren of Israel layde their goodly rayment from them euen vnder the mount Horeb.

B And Moses tobe the tabernacle & pytched it without the hoste a ferre of fro the hoste, & called it the tabernacle of wytnesse. And al & wold aske any question of the Lorde, went out vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse whych was without the hoste. And when Moses went out vnto the tabernacle, all the people rose vp and stode euery man in his tent dore and loked after Moses, tyrpll he was gone in to the tabernacle. And as sone as Moses was entred in to the tabernacle, the clouden pyller descended and stode in the dore of the tabernacle, and he talked with Moses. And when all the people sawe the clouden piller stande in the tabernacle dore, they rose vp & worshipped: euery man in his tent dore.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, a. face to face, as a man speaketh vnto his frende. And when Moses turned againe in to the hoste, the lade Josua his seruaūte the sonne of Nun departed not out of the tabernacle.

C And Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: se, thou sendest vnto me: leade this people forth, but thou shewest me not whom thou wylt sende with me. And hast sayde moreouer: I know the by name and thou hast also founde grace in my syght: Now therfore, yf I haue found fauour in thy sight, then shewe me thy waye & let me know the: that I may fynde grace in thy syght. And loke on this also, howe that this nacion is thy people.

And he sayde: my presence shal goo with the, and I will geue the rest. And he sayde: If thy presence goo not with me, carye vs not hence for how shall it be knowne now that both I and thy people haue founde fauoure in thy syght, but in that thou goest with vs: that both I and thy people haue a preemynence before all the people that are vpon the face of the erth. And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: I will do this also that thou hast sayde, for thou hast founde grace in my syght, and I knowe the by name.

D And he sayde: I beseche the, shewe me thy glorye. And he sayde: I will make all my good god before the, and I wyll be called in thy name Iehouah before the, & wil shew mercy to whom I shewe mercy, and wyll haue cõpassion on whom I haue compassiõ. And he saied furthermore, thou maist not see my face, there shall no man se me and liue.

And the Lorde saied, beholde, there is a place by me, & thou shalt stand vpõ a rocke, And whyle my glory goeth forth I wyll put the in a clyfte of the rocke, & wyll put myne hand vpon the whyle I passe by. And then I wyll take away myne hande, and thou shalte se my backe partes: but my face shall not be seene.

No man shal se God. b. So longe as man liueth here, is not possible for hys weakenes to see the maiestye of God, for the eyes that be carnall can not be able to se the Godhead that is a spirit. Thus notwythstanding, when our corruptible bodyes shall be made incorruptible: then shall we se him as he is, and not dye, but be satisfied and fed by the syght of him, as the holy spirites are nowe.

AND Bezaliel wroughte and Aholiab and all wyſe herted me to whom the Lorde had geuen wiſedome and vnderſtanding to knowe howe to worcke all maner worcke for the holy ſeruice, in al that the Lorde commaunded. And Moſes cal-led for Bezaliel Aholiab and al the wyſe herted men in whoſe hertes the Lord had putte wiſedome, euē as many as their hertes cou-raged to come to the worcke to worcke it. And on euery braſiche were. iij. cuppes like vnto almondes with knoppes & flowres thorow out the ſyxe braſiches that proceded out of the candelſtycke. And vpon the candelſtycke ſelfe were. iiij. cuppes after the facyon of almondes with knoppes & flowres: vnder euery two braunches a knoppe. And the knoppes & the braunches proceded out of it, and were al one pece of pure thycke golde. And he made ſeuen lampes therto, and the ſnoffers therof, and fyre pannes of pure golde. Thys is the summe of the habitacion of wytnesse, wheych was counted at the commaundement of Moses: and was the offyce of the Leuytes by the hād of Ithamar sonne to Aaron the preest. And Bezaleel sonne of Uri sonne to Hur of the tribe of Juda, made all that the Lord commaunded Moses, and with hym Aholiab sonne of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan, a compynge grauer and a worker of nedle worke in iacincte, scarlet, purple & bysse.

¶ The.xxxix.Chapter.

¶ The makyng of Aaron & hys sonnes apparel. ¶ That the Lord commaunded was offred.

A Nd of the iacincte, scarlet, purple & twyned bysse, they made the wel̄ymentes of mynistracio to do seruyce in that holy place and made the holy garmentes that pertayned to Aaron, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And they made the Ephod of gold, iacincte scarlet, purple, and twyned bysse. And they dyd beate ye golde in to thynne plates, & cutte it into wyres to worke it in ye iacincte, scarlet, purple & the bysse, wyth brodred worke. And they made the sides come to gether, and cloosed them vp by the two edges. And the hangynge of the gyrdell that was vpon it, was of the same stuffe and after the same worcke of golde, iacincte, scarlet, purple and twyned bysse, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

B And they wrought Onix stones cloosed in ouches of golde & graued as sygnettes are grauen with the names of the chyldre of Israel, & put the on the shoulders of the Ephod that they shulde be a remembraunce of the chyldren of Israel, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

C And they made the brestlappe of cūpyng worke, after the worke of the Ephod: eue of golde, iacincte, scarlet, purple and twyned bysse. And they made it. iiii. square & double, an handebreadeth long & an handebreadeth brode. And they fylled it wyth. iiii. rowes of stones: the fyrst rowe Sardius, a Topas & *Smaragdus: the second rowe, a ‡Rubye, a Saphyr & a Diamōde: ye. iii. rowe, Ligurius an Achat and an Amatist: the fourth rowe: a Turcas, an Onix & a Jaspis: closed in ouches of gold in their inclosers. And the xii. stones were grauen as sygnettes with the names of the chyldren of Israel: euery stone wyth hys name, accordyng to the xii. trybes.

*or an Emerande. ‡or Acarbun cle.

D And they made vpon the brestlappe, two fastenyng chaynes of wrethe worcke & pure golde. And they made two hokes of golde & two golde ringes, & put the two ringes vpō the two corners of the brestlappe. And they put the two chaynes of gold in ye. ii. ringes, in the corners of the brestlappe. And the two endes of the two chaynes they fastened in ye two hokes, and put them on the shoulders of the Ephod vpon the fore front of it.

And they made two other ringes of gold and put them on the two other corners of the brestlappe a lōge vpon the edge of it, toward the inside of the Ephod that is ouer against it. And they made yet two other gold ringes, & put them on the two sides of the Ephod, be neth on the fore syde of it: euen where ye sides go together, aboue vpon the bindyng of the Ephod, & they strayned the brestlappe by his ringes vnto the ringes of the Ephod, wyth laces of iacincte, that it myght lye fast vpon the bindynge of the Ephod, & shulde not be lowsed from of the Ephod: as the Lord commaunded Moses.

E And he made the tunycle vnto the Ephod of wouen worke, and al together of iacincte, & the heade of the tunicle was in the middest of it as the coller of a parlet, wyth a bonde rounde about the coler, that it shulde not rent, trie. And they made beneth vpon the hem of the timple: pōgranates of iacincte, scarlet, purple & twyned bysse. And they made lytle belles of pure golde, & put them among the pomgranates roumde aboute vpon the edge of the timple a bell & a pomgranate, a bell & a pomgranate roumde about the hemmes of the timple to mynystre in, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And they made cotes of bysse of wourn worcke for Aaron and his sonnes, & a mytre of bysse, & goodly bonettes of bysse, & lynen breches of twyned bysse, & a girdell of twyned bysse, iacincte, scarlet and purple: euen of nedlewoorke, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And they made the plate of the holy croune of fyne golde, & wrote vpon it with grauen worke, the holynes of the Lorde: and tyed it to a lace of iacincte to fasten it an hye vpon the mytre, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

Thus was al the worke of the habitacion of the tabernacle of witnesse fynyshed. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde had cōmaunded Moses. And they brought the habitaciō vnto Moses: the tent and al his apparel therof: the buttones, boordes, barres, pilleres & sochettes: and the couerynge of rams skynnes red, & the couerynge of taras skynnes, & the hāgyng vayle, & the arche of witnesse with the staues therof, and the mercyseate: the table & al the ordinaunce therof, and the shewbrod, & the pure candelstycke, and the lampes prepared therunto with all the vessels therof, and the oyle for lyghtes, and the golden altare, and the anoyntynge oyle and the swete cens, and the hangynge of the tabernacle doore, & the brasen altar, and the gredyron of brasse longynge therunto with hys barres and all hys vessels, and the lauer with hys fote, and the hangynges of the court with his pilleres and sochettes, & the hanging to the courte gate, hys boordes & pynnes, & all the ordynaunce that serueth to the habitacion of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the mynystrynge vestymentes to serue in the holy place, and the holy vestymentes of Aaron the preist, and hys sonnes rayments to mynystre in: accordyng to all that the Lord commaunded Moses: euen so the chyldre of Israel made al the worke. And Moses behyld al the worke: and se, they had done it euen as the Lord commaunded: and then Moses ‡ blessed them.

¶ The tabernacle is reared vp. The glorye of the Lord appeareth in a clowde couerynge the tabernacle.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: In the fyrst daye of the fyrst moneth shalt thou sett vp the habitacion of the tabernacle of wytnesse, & put therin the arche of witnesse, & couer the arche with the vayle, and bringe in the table & appareil it, and bringe in the candelstycke and putte on hys lampes, and sette the golde altare of golde before the arche of wytnes, and put the hangynge of the doore vnto the habitacion. And sette the burntofferynge aultare before the doore of the tabernacle of witnes and set the lauour betweene the tabernacle of witnes & the aultare, & put water therein, and make the courte roumde aboute, and sette vp the hanging of the court gate.

*And take the anoyntynge oyle and anoynt the habitation & al that is therein, & hallowe it and all that belongeth therto: that it maye be holy. And anoynt the aultar of the burntofferynges & all hys vessels, and sanctify the aultar that it may be most holy. And anoynt also the lauer & hys fote, and sanctifye it.

Then bringe Aaron and his sonnes vnto the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and washe them with water. And put vpō Aarō the holy vestymēts, and anoynte him & sanctifye hym that he maye minister vnto me, that their anoynting may be an euerlastinge preasthode vnto their rowme out their generation. * And Moses dyd accordynge to all that the Lord commaunded him.

Thus was the Tabernacle reared vp the fyrst daye in the fyrste moneth in the seconde yere. And Moses reared vp the tabernacle & fastened his sochettes, and set vp the boordes and put in their barres, & reared vp the pilleres, & spred abrod the tent ouer the habitacion, and put the couerynge of the tente an hye aboue it: as the lord cōmaunded Moses.

And he toke and put the testimony in the arche, and set the staues to the arche, & putte the mercyseate an hye vpon the arche, and broughte the arche vnto the habitacion, & hanged vp the vayle, & couered the arche of witnes as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And he put the table in the tabernacle of wytnesse in the north side of the habitacion without the vayle, and set the bread in order before the Lord, euen as the Lord had commaunded Moses.

And he put the candelstycke in the tabernacle of witnes ouer against the table in the south syde of the habitacion, and sette vp the lampes before the Lorde: as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And he put the golden altare in the tabernacle of witnes before the vayle, and burnte swete sence therupon as the Lord commaunded Moses. And set vp the hangynge in the doore of the habitacion, and set the burnt offrynge alter before the doore of the tabernacle of witnes, & offered burntofferynges and meate offerynges therupon as the lord commaunded Moses.

*And he set the lauer betweene the tabernacle of witnes and the aultare, and poured water therin to washe vp all. And both Moses, Aaron & his sonnes washed their hādes & their fete therat: both when they went in to the tabernacle of witnes, & when they went to the aultare, as the Lord cōmaunded

Moses. And he reared up the courte rounde about the habitation and the aultare & set up the hangynge of the court gate; and so Moses finished the warke.

* And the cloude covered the tabernacle of witnes, and the glorye of the Lorde fylled the habitation: so that Moses coulde not entre into the Tabernacle of witnesse because the cloude abode therin, and the glorye of the Lord filled the habitation.

When the cloude was taken up from of the habitation the childre of Israel toke their iourneys as oft as they had iourneyed. And if the cloude departed not, they iourneyed not till it departed: for the cloud of the Lorde was upon the habitation by daye, and fyre by nyght: in the syght of all the house of Israell in all their iourneys.

The ende of the seconde boke of Moses.

A Prologe into the thyrd boke of Moses called Leviticus

W. T.

THe ceremonies which are described in ye boke folowynge, were chiefly ordeined of God as I sayed in the ende of the Prologe upon Exodus to occupy ye myndes of ye people of Israel lyers, & to kepe them from superstycyons of God after the imagination of their blynde harte and good entente: that their conscyences might be stablyshed and they sure that they pleased God therein, whiche were impossible if a manne dyd of his owne heade that whiche was not commaunded of God nor depended of anye appoyntements made betwene hym and God.

Such ceremonies were vnto the olde men, A.B.C. to learne to spell and reade, and as a nurce to fede them with mylke and pappe, and to speake vnto the after their own capacitie and to lyspe the wordes vnto them accordynge as the babes and chyldren of that age myght sounde them agayne. For all that were before Christe were in the infancy and childhode of the worlde and sawe that thynge whyche we see openlye, but thoughe a cloude and hadde but feble and weake imaginations of Christe, as chyldren A have of mens deades, a fewe Prophetes except whyche yet described hym vnto other in Sacrifices and ceremonies, likenesses, rydles, proverbes, and darcke and straunge speakynge vntyll the full age were come that God wouldo shewe hym openly vnto the whole worlde and deliuer them from their shadowes and clowdy lighte and the heathen oute of their dead slepe of darcke blynde ignorauncye. And as the shadowe vanysheth away at the commynge of the lyghte, euen so do the ceremonies and Sacrifices at the commynge of Christe, and are henceforthe no more necessarye then a token lefte in remembraunce of a bargayne is necessary whē the bargayne is fulfylled. And thoughe they seme playn chyldysh, yet they be not altogether frutelesse: as the popetes and suche maner of trifles which mothers permitte vnto their yonge chyldren be not all in vayne. For albeit that suche phantasies be permitted to satisfye the chyldres lustes, yet in that they are the mothers gift, and be done in place and tyme at her commaundements, they keepe the chyldrene in awe and make them knowe the mother and also B make them more apte against a more stronger age, to obeye in thynges of a greater sorte.

And more ouer thoughe Sacrifices and ceremonies can be no grounde or fundation to build vpon: that is, though we can proue nought with them: yet when we haue once found oute Christ and his misterie, then we may bestowe figures that is to say allegories, similitudes or C ensamples to open Christe and the secretes of God hyd in Christe euen vnto the quycke, and to declare them more lyuely and sensibly wyth them then wyth all the wordes of the world.

For similitudes haue more vertue and power wyth them than bare wordes, and lead a mans wytte further into the pythe and marye and spirituall vnderstandynge of the thynge, than all the wordes that canne be imagined. And though also that all the ceremonies & sacrifices haue as it were a starreclyghte of Christ, yet some there be that haue as it were the lyghte of the brode daye a lytle before the sonne rysyng, and expresse hym, and the circumstaunces and verite of his death so plainly as if we shold play his passion on a stadfold or in a stage play openly before the eyes of the people. As the scape gote, the brasen serpent, the ore burnt without the hoste, the paschall lambe, &c. In so muche D that I am fully persuaded, and can not but beleue that God hath shewed Moses the secretes of Christe and the very maner of his death before hande, and commaunded hym to ordeyne them for the confyrmation of our fathers whyle they are nowe in the clere day lyght. And I beleue also, that the Prophetes whyche folowed Moyses to conferme his Prophesies and to maintayne his doctrine vnto Christes comyng were moued by such thynges to search further of Christes secretes. And though God wolde not haue the secretes of Christ generally knowen, saue vnto a fewe familier frendes which in that infancy be made of mans wyt to helpe the other bodes yet as they had a generall promise that one of the sede of Abraham shoulde come and bleese them, euen so they had a generall fayeth, that God wolde by the same man saue the, though they wist not by what meanes as the very apostles whē it was oft told them yet they could neuer comprehend it, tyll it was fulfylled in dede.

And beyond all this their Sacrifices and ceremonies as far forth as the promyse annexed vnto the reaede, so farforth they saued them and iustified them, and made them in the same stede as our Sacramentes doo vs: not by the power of the Sacrifice or deade it selfe, but by the vertue in the fayeth in the promyse whyche the Sacrifyce or ceremonie preached and wher E of it was a token or sygne. For the ceremonies and Sacrifices were lefte wyth them and commaunded them to kepe the promyse in remembraunce and to wake vp their fayeth. For it is not enoughe to sende manye on erraundes and to tell them what they shall doo: but they must haue a remembraunce with them, and it be but a ringe of a ruth about one of their fingers. And as it is not enough to make a bargayne with worde only, but we must put thereto an oth and geue earnest to confyrme the fayth of the person with whom it is made. And in like maner yf a man promyse, whatsoeuer trifle it be, it is not beleued except he holde vppe his fynger also. Loth is the wekenesse of the worlde. And therfore Christ hath left vnto vs certayne ceremonyes to carrye the fayth to stirre vp their fayth with all. As for an ensample it was not the bloud of the lambe that saued the in Egypte, when the angell smote the Egyptians: but the mercye of God and his truth whereof that bloud was a token and remembraunce to stirre vppe their fayth to with all. For though God make a promyse, yet it auayleth no creature but them that longe for it and pray God with a stronge fayth to fulfyll it for his mercye and truthe sake: and knowledge their vnworthynesse. And euen so our sacramentes (yf they be truelye ministred) preache Christ vnto vs and leade oure fayth vnto Christ, by wheych fayth oure synnes are done awaye and not by the deade of worke of the Sacrament. For as it was impossible that the bloud of calues shuld put awaye synne: euen so is it impossible that the water of Baptyme shuld wash our harte. Neuertheles the sacramentes cleanse vs and absolue vs of oure synnes as the preacher do, in preachyng of repentaunce and fayth, for wheych cause ether other of them were ordened, but yf they preach not, whether it be the preach or the sacrament, so profyte they not.

And yf a man alleage Christ Johan in the .iii. chapter saying: Except a man be borne agayn of water and the holye goost he can not se the kyngdome of God, and wyll therfore that the holy goost is present in the water and therfore the verye deade of worke doth put awaye synne: then I wyll send him vnto Paule wheche writeth vnto Galathyans whether they receyued the holy goost by the deade of the lawe or by preachynge of fayth and there concludeth that the holy goost accompanyeth the preachyng of fayth, and wash the worde of fayth, entreth the hart and purgeth it, which thou mayst also vnderstand by Peter Paul saying: ye are borne a new out of the water throwe the worde. So now yf baptym preach me the washyng in christes bloude, so doth the holy goost accompanye it and that deade of preachyng taketh farthe doth put away my synnes. For the holye goost is no dome God nor no god that goeth a mummyng. Yf a man say of the sacrament of Christes body & bloud, that it is a sacrifice, as well for the dead as for the quycke, and therfore the very deed it self iustifyeth and putteth awaye synne. I answere that a sacrifice is the offeryng of the body of a beast or a man: whether yf it be a sacrifice, then is christes body there slayn and his bloude there shed: but that is not so.

And therfore it semeyeth no sacrifice but a sacrament and a memorial of that euerlastyng sacrifice once for all wheche he offered vpon the crosse now vpon a .xx. hundred pases a go and preacheth only vnto them that are alyue. And as for them that be dead, it is no profytable vnto them as to a candell in a lantern wythout lyght vnto them that walke by the waye in a darke nyght, and as the gospel semeth in vayn vnto them that vnderstand none at all, and as a sermon preached to hym that is deed and heareth it not. It preacheth vnto them that are alyue only, for they that be dead, yf they deed in the fayth which that sacrament preacheth, they be safe and are pull all iooperdye. For when they were alyue their harte loued the lawe of God and therfore synned not, and were sygge that their membres synned and euer moued to synne, and therfore the yoke layth it was forgeuen them. And neuer theles synne shall remembre the death, so that they can neuer synne no more, wherfore it is vnto them that be dead neither sacrament nor scripture: But vnder the pretence of their soul health, it is a sacrament vnto our spyrytualtyes holye countersaincte and an ensample vnto vs and a byldar of Abbayes, Colleges, Chauntryes and cathedral churches with all a goten good, a pychpacke, a pollax, and a bottelfulle baggs.

Many men would happely say, that the prayers of the masse helpe muche: not the bryngers only, but also the dead. Of the fortheye of their feruent prayer wheche semeth father than all the world is able to bryngge sacrifice, I haue layde sufficiently in other places. Graunt be it it is not possible to bryngge me to beleue that the prayer wheych he wyth a wycke mouthe vttreth to no vertue, shuld preache me the forgeuenesse of my synnes. If I saw that their prayers had obteyned the grace to leue sucha life as godes lawe wolde byd not rebuke, yet could I neuer be borne in hande that what soeuer they axed of God their prayers shuld not be in vayne. But now, what good can he wyll me in his prayer that resysteth my Christ the lyfe and the lyght of my soule? What good can he wyll me whose herte cleaueth a sunder for prayer when I am taught to repent of my euel?

Furthermore because that we knowe the vse of the olde testament, and the moste parte therofe is nothynge necessarye, but to make alle garres, wherin they layne euery man after his owne fantyse at all vyll aduentures without any certayne rule: therfore though I haue spoke of them in another place) yet lest the boke come not to all mennes handes that shall reade this I wyll speake of them here also a worde or twayne.

We had nede to take hede euery where that we be not begyled wyth false allegaynes, whether they be taken out of the newe testament, or the olde, ether owte of auye other scripture or of the creatures of the worlde, but namely in this boke. There a man had nede to put on all his spectacles and to arme him self against manly his spyrites.

First allegorize your nothyng and by false gospes vnderstande examples or symilitudes borowed of straunge matters and of another thynge than that then entreated of. As though circumcyscion be a figure of baptyme, yet thou canst not proue baptyme by circumcyscion. For this argument were very false, the Jewes were circumcyscid therfore we must be baptyscid. And in like maner though the offering of Isaac were a figure or ensample of the resurrection, yet is this argument nought. Abraham wold haue offered Isaac, but god hindered him fro both, therfore we shal ryse agayne, and so forth in al other.

But the very vse of allegories is to beware and open a text that it maye be the better perceyued and vnderstande. So when I haue a clere text of Christ and of the Apostles, that I must be baptyscid, then I may happen on an ensample of circumcyscion to expoude the natural power and fruit or effect of baptyme. For as circumcyscion was vnto them a comen badge or cognysaunce that they were al Gods and to serue hys worde, and seperating them from all other nacyons, by obedyence vnto God: euen so baptyme is our comen badge and sure euydent and perpetuall memoriall that we perteyne vnto Christ and are seperated from all that are not Christes. And as circumcyscion was a token euerythynge them that they were seruys vnto the lawe of God and there synnes forgeuen them: euen so baptyme euerythyng be that we are washed in the bloude of Christe and reconsyled to heauen for hys sake, and circumcision signifieth vnto them the cuttynge away of theyr owne lustes and desayres of theyr fre wyll as they call it, to folowe the wyll of god euen to baptisme signifieth vnto vs repentaunce and the mortifyenge of our euyll membres and body of synne, to walke in a newe life and so forthe.

And lykewyse though that the sauinge of Noe and of them that were with hym in the shippe, thorow water, is a figure, that is to say an exemple and likenesse of baptisme, as Peter maketh it. 1. Pet. iii. Yet I can not proue baptisme there by, but rather destroye it only, for as the shipe saued the in the water thorow fayth, in that they beleuyd God and as the other that wold not be lerne Noe perished: euen so baptisme sauyth vs thorow the word of fayth whiche is preached when al the world of the vnbeleuyng perisheth.

And Paule. 1. Cor. x. maketh the sea and the cloude a figure of baptisme, by whyche and a thousid mo I might declare it but not proue it. Paule also in the fayed place maketh the roche out of whyche Moses brought water vnto the children of Israel, a figure or exemple of Christe, not to proue Christe (for that were impossible) but to declare Christ vnto vs: that as Christ was stryken. Exo. xvii. betokeneth a similitude of figure of the brasē serpent to lead Nicodemus from hys earthy imagination into the spirituall vnderstanding of Christ, sayenge. As Moses lifted vp a serpent in the wylderneas, so must the sonne of man be lyfted vp, that none that beleue in him perish but haue euerlastinge lyfe, by which similitude the vertue of Christes death is better declared that thou couldest declare it with a thousand wordes, for as those murmurers against god, as sone as they repented were healed of theyr deadly woundes thorow lokinge on the brasen serpent only, without medicyne or any other helpe, yea, and without any other reason, but that God hath sayd it should be so, and not to murmur: euenso, but to amende their murmuryng: euen so all that repent and beleue in Christe are saued from euerlastynge death of pure grace without and before their good workes, and not to synne agayne, but to fyght agaynste synne, and henceforthe to synne no more.

Euen so with the ceremonies of thys boke thou canste proue nothynge saue declare and declare onely the puttynge away of our synnes thorow the death of Christ. For Christ in Aaron and Aarons sonnes and al that offer the sacrifyce to purge sinne. And Christe in all manor offeryng that is offered: he is the ox, the sheepe, the goote, the bird, the lambe: he is the oxe that is burnt without the dore, and the scapegote, that caried all the synne of the people away into the wylderneas, for as they purged the people frō their worldly vnclennes thorow bloude of the sacrifyce, euen so doeth Christ purge vs from the vnclennes of euerlastynge death with hys owne bloude, so as they worldly sinnes could none otherwyse be purged then by bloude of sacrifice, euen so cannot our sinnes be no otherwyse forgeuen then thorow the bloud of Christe. All the deades in the worlde, saue the bloud of Christe, can purchase no forgeuenesse of synne: for oure deades do but helpe oure neyghboure and mortifye the flesh and helpe that we synne no more, but and if we haue synned, it maste be truly forgeuen thorowe the bloud of Christ or remayne cast.

And in lyke maner of the leprey thou canste proue nothynge: thou canste neuer conuert oute rebellion thence, howe be it thou haste an handsome exemple there to open the byndynge and lowsynge of our prestes with the keye of godes worde, for as they made no wanne a leper, euen so oures haue no power to commaunde anye man to be in synne or to go to purgatorye or hell. And therfore (in as much as byndynge and lowsynge is one power) be thoste prestes beated no man, euen so oures can not of theyr inuisible and homne power dryue anye man into synne awaye, or deliuer hym frome hell or forwrd purgatorye, howe be it, if they preached gods worde purely whych is the authorite that Christ gaue them, then they shoulde bynde and louse, kill and make alyue agayne, make barlesse and clenne agayne, and sende to hell and fette them agayne, so mighty is Gods worde, for if they preached the lawe of God, they shold bind the consciences of synners with the bandes of the paynes of hell and bring them vnto repentaunce. And then if they preached theym the mercy that is in Christ, they should louse theim and quiet theyr ragynge consciences and certifye theym of the fauoure of God and that theyr synnes be forgeuen.

Finallye beware of allegories, for there is not a more handsome or apt a thynge to begyle wyth all then an allegory, nor a more subtle and pestylente thynge in the worlde to perswade a false matter then an allegorye. And contrarywyse, there is not a better, wholsomer, or myghtyer thynge to make a man vnderstande wythall then an allegory. For allegories make a manne quycke witted and pryuate wyseddome in hym and make it to abyde, where bare wordes goo but in at the one eare, and oute at the other. So thys wyth suche lyke sayinges: put salt to al your sacrifices, in stede of thys sentence, do all your dedes with discretion, greatheth and byeth (if it be vnderstande) more then playne wordes. And when I saye in stede of theste wordes bothe not your sacrifyce of your good deades, care not the bloud nor the fatte of your sacrifice, there is as great differēce betweene them as there is betweene heauen and earth. For the life and beautye of all good deades is of God, and we are but the instrumentes, we are onely the instrumentes wherby god worketh only, but the power is hys. So god created Paule aforne, poured hys wysedome into hym, gaue hym myghte, and promised hym that hys grace shoulde neuer fayle hym etc. and al wythoute deseruynges, except that murtherynge the sayntes and makynge theym cursse and rayle on Christe be meritorious. Howe as it is beatyfe to eate the bloud or fatte of any sacrifyce, so is it not (I thynke ye) damnable to robbe God of hys honour and to glorifye my selfe wyth hys honoure.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

ND the Lorde called Moses & spak to hym out of the tabernacle of witnesse sayeng: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: who soeuer of you shal bryng a offre vnto the Lord, shal bryng it of the catel: euē of the oxen and of the shepe.

If he bryng a burntoffrynge of the oxen he shall bryng a male wythout blemysh, & shal bryng hym to the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse, that he maye be accepted before the Lorde. And let hym a. put hys hand vpon the hed of the burntsacrifice, and sauoure shalbe geuen hym to make an attonement for hym, and let hym kyll the ore before the Lorde. And let the preastes Aarons sonnes bringe the blond and let them sprynkel it rounde about vpon the alter that is before the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse. And let the burntoffrynges be strypped and hewed in peces. And then let the sonnes of Aaron the preast put fyre vpon the alter, & put wood vpon the fyre, & let them laye the peces with the hed and the fatte, vpon the wood that is on the fyre in the alter. But the inwardes and the legges they shall wash in water, and the preast shal burne altogether vpon the alter, that it be a burntsacrifice & an offring of a. b. swete odoure vnto ỹ Lord.

C If he wyl offer a burnt sacrifice of the shepe whether it be of the lambes or of the gootes he shal offer a male wythout blemysh. And let hym kyll it on the northside of the alter, before the Lord. And let the Preastes Aarōs sonnes sprynkle the bloude of it round about vpon the alter. And let it be cut in peces: eche with hys hed and his fatte, and let ỹ preast put them vpon the wood that lyeth vpō the fyre in the alter. But let hym wash ỹ inwardes and the legges with water, and than bryng all together and burne it vpon the alter: that is a burntoffryng and a sacrifice of swete sauour vnto the Lorde. If he wyl offer

D a burntoffrynge of the foules he shall offer eyther of the turtyll doues or of the yong pigeons. And the Preast shal bryng it vnto the alter, and wrynge the necke a sunder of it, & burne it on the alter, and let the bloude renne out vpon the sydes of the alter, and plucke away hys croppe & his fethers, & cast them besyde ỹ alter on the east parte vpon ỹ heape of ashes, and bruse hys wynges, but pluche them not asunder. And then let the Preast burne it vpon the alter, euen vpon the wood that lyeth vpon the fyre, a burntsacrifice and an offrynge of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

¶ The order of meate offrynges, of swete cakes, of fyne flour, of frankencens. etc. with oute leuen, and with oute hony, but not with oute salt.

F any soule wyl offer a meate offrynge vnto the Lorde, hys offrynge shalbe fyne flour, & he shal poure therto oyle, and put frankencens theron, and shall bryng it vnto Aarons sonnes the preastes. And one of them shall take therout hys handfull of the flour, and of the oyle with all the frankencens, & burne it for a memoriall vpon the alter: an offrynge of a. b. swete sauoure vnto the Lord. And the remnaunt of the meatoffring shalbe Aarons & his sonnes as a thynge most holy of the sacrifices of ỹ Lorde. If ony man bryng a meatoffrynge

D that is baken in the ouen, let hym bryng swete cakes of fyne flour myngled with oyle, and vnleuended wafres anoynted with oyle. If thy meatoffrynge be baken in thy fryeng pan, then it shalbe of swete flour myngled with oyle. And thou shalt myncē it small, and poure oyle theron: and so it is a meatoffrynge.

If thy meatoffrynge be a thyng boyled vpon the gredyron, of flour myngled with oyle it shalbe. And thou shalt bryng ỹ meat offrynge that is made of these thynges vnto the Lorde, & shalt delyuer it vnto the preast, and he shal bryng it vnto the alter, and shall

E heue vp parte of the meatoffrynge for a memorial, & shal burne it vpon the alter: an offrynge of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And that whyche is left of the meatoffrynge shall be Aarons and hys sonnes, as a thyng that is moost holy of the offrynges of the Lorde.

All the meatoffrynges which ye shal bringe vnto the Lorde, shalbe made wythout leuen. For ye shall neither burne leuen nor honye in any offrynge of the Lorde. Notwithstandyng ye shal bryng the firstfruytes of them vnto the Lorde: but they shall not come vpon the alter to make a swete sauoure.

All

All thy meat offeringes thou shalt salt wt salt: neuther shalt thou suffer the.b. of the couenaunt of thy God to be lacking from thy meat offering: but vpon all thyne offeringes thou shalt bring salt.

If thou offer a meatofferinge of the firste ripe frutes to the Lord, the take that which is yet grene, & dope it by the fyer and beat it small & so offer the meate offeryng of thy first ripe frutes And then poure oyle therto, and put frankincense thereon: & so it is a meatofferinge. And the priestes shal burne parte of the beaten corne & parte of the oyle wythall the frankincense, for a remembraunce. That is an offeryng vnto the Lorde.

☞ The notes.

Swete sauour. a. This swete sauour signifieth the prayer of the mynde and faythfull, as it is interpreted in Apoca.viii.a. The wycked prayers do displease the harp of the Lorde.

Salte. b. All offeringes must be salted wt salt, which signifieth that all our good workes must be be directed after the doctrine of the Apostles and godly teachers: then shal they be acceptable in the syght of the Lorde, if they sauoure of the salt of the Lord, ellis not.

If a man bringe a peace offeringe of the herd: whether it be male or female, he shal bring such as is without blemish, before the Lorde: and let hym put hys hande vppon the heade of hys offeringe, and kyll it before the dore of the tabernacle of witnes. And Aarons sonnes the preastes shal sprinkle the blood vpō the aulter round about. And they shal offer of the peace offering to be a sacrifice vnto the Lord the fatt that coueryth the inwardes, and all the fat ꝑ is vpō the inwardes: & the two kidneys with the fatt that lyeth vpō the loynes: B and the kall that is on the lyuer they shall.a. take awaye with the kidneyes. And Aarōs sonnes shall burne them vpon the alter with the burne sacrifice which is vpō ꝑ wodd on the fyer. That is a sacrifice of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

If a man bringe a peace offeryng vnto the Lord from of the flocke, whether it be male or female, it shall be without blemysh. If he offer a Lambe, he shall bringe it before the Lord, and put his hand vpon his offeringes head, & kyll it in the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, & Aarons sonnes shall sprynkle the blood therof round about the aulter.

And of the peace offering they shal bring C a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: the fatt therof & the rumpe altogether, which they shal take of hard by the backe bone: & the fatt that coueryth the inwardes & all the fatt that is vpō the inwardes & the two kidneys & the fatt that lyeth vpon them & vpon the loynes, & the kall ꝑ is vpō the lyuer he shal take awaye with the kidneyes. And the priestes shal burne thē vpō the alter to fede the Lordes sacrifice withall, & to make a swete sauour. And thus shall all the fat be the Lordes, and it shall be a lawe for euer amonge youre generations after you in your dwellynge places: that ye eate neyther fat nor blood.

a By takynge awaye the fatte, the inwardes, the two kidneys, and the calle: is signified vnto vs, that if we will be a swete sacrifice vnto the Lorde, we must cut of all concupiscence and naughty desyres of the flesh and the euyll dispositiō of all oure membres, and must subdue and mortifye our affectiōs, and offer them to God, by the mortification of the crosse, as sayeth the Prophete, Psalme. xvii.a. Take awaye the fatte.

And he shall bring the oxe without the hoste, and burne him as he burned the first: so is this the sinneofferyng of the comunalty.

When a Lorde synneth and committeth throwe ignoraunce any of these thinges whyche the lord his God hath forbidē to be done in his commaundemētes & hath so offended: when his synne is shewed vnto him, which he hath synned, he shall bringe for his offeryng an he goote without blemishe & laye his hand vpon the head of it, and kil it in the place where the burntofferyngs are kylled before the Lord: this is a synneoffring. The let the preist take of the bloude of the synneofferyng with his finger, and put it vpō the hornes of the burnt offeryng auter, & poure his bloud vpon the botome of the burntofferyng alter, & burne all his fatt vpon the auter, as he doth the fatt of the peaceoffringes. And the preiste shall make an atonement for him as cōcerning his synne, and so it shalbe forgeuen him.
F If one of the cōmon people of the lād sinne throwe ignoraunce and cōmit any of the thynges which the Lord hath forbydden in his commaundementes to be done & so hath trespaced, whē his synne which he hath synned is come to his knowledge, he shal bring for his offering a she gote without blemish for his synne which he hath synned, & laye his hand vpō the heade of the synne offering & slea it in the place of burnt offringes* And *Leui.iij.b
the preistes shall take of the bloud with his finger, & put it vpō the hornes of the burntofferyng alter, and poure al the bloud vpon the botome of the alter, and shall take away al his fatt as the fatt of the peaceoffringes is taken awaye. And the preist shall burne it vpon the alter for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, and the preiste shall make an atonemente for him, & it shalbe forgeuen him.
G If he bringe a lambe & offer it for a synne offering, he shall bring a female without blemyth, & lay his hand vpō the head of the synneofferyng, & slea it in the place where the burntoffringes are slayne. And the preist shal take of the bloud of the synne offeryng with his fynger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burntoffring alter, & shal poure al the bloud therof vnto the botome of the alter. *And he *Leui.iij.b shall take away all the fatt therof, as the fat of the sheepe of the peace offeringes was take away. And the preiste shall burne it vpō the alter for the Lordes sacrifice, and the preiste shall make an atonement for his synne, and it shalbe forgeuen him.

And that preest of hys sonnes that is anoynted in hys stede shall offer it: & it shalbe the Lordes duye for euer, & it shall be burnt altogether. For all the meatofferynges of the preestes shal be burnt altogether, & shal not be eaten. And the Lord talked with Moses sayinge: speake vnto Aaron & vnto hys sonnes & say: This is the law of the synne offring. In the place wher the burnt offring is killed shall the synne offering be killed also before the Lord, for it is moste holy. The preeste that offereth it shall eat it in the holye place: euen in the court of the tabernacle of wytnesse. No man shal touch the flesh therof saue he that is halowed. The.vii.Chapter

A THis is the law of the a trespace offerynge which is moste holy. In the place where the burnte offering is killed, the trespace offerynge shall be killed also: & hys blonde shalbe sprynkeled rounde about vpon the aultare. And all the fat therof shalbe offered: the rompe and the fatte that coureth the inwardes, and the two kydneys wt the fatte that lyeth on them & vpō the loynes & the kall on the liuer shal be taken away wt the kydneys: & the preeste shall burne them vpon the aultare to be an offerynge vnto the Lorde, this is a trespace offerynge.

All the males amōge the preestes shall eate therof in the holy place, for it is moste holye. As the synne offerynge is, so is the trespace offerynge, one lawe serueth for both: it shall be the preestes that reconcileth therwyth. And the preest that offereth a mans burntoffering, shall haue the skynne of the burnt offerynge whych he hath offered. And all the meat offerynges that are bakē in the ouen, and all that is harled vppon the gredyron and in frynge panne, shal be the preestes that offereth them. And all the meat offerynges that are myngled wt oyle or dry, shall pertayne vnto all the sonnes of Aaron, & one shal haue as muche as an other. This is the lawe of the peaceofferynges which shalbe offered to the Lorde. If he offer to gyue thankes, he shal bryng vnto hys thanke offerynge: swete cakes mingled wyth oyle and swete wafers anoynted wyth oyle, & cakes mingled wyth oyle of fyne flower fryed, & he shal bring his offerynge vpō cakes made of leuented bread vnto the thākeoffering of his peace offerynges and of the same he shal offer one to be an heue offerynge vnto the Lorde, and it shall be the preestes that sprynkeleth the blonde of the peaceofferynges. And the flesh of the thākeoffering of his peaceofferynges shalbe eaten the same day that it is offered, and there shal none of it be layed vp vntil the mornyng.

If it be a vowe or a free wyllofferynge that he bryngeth, the same daye that he offereth it shal be eaten, & that which remaineth may be eaten on the morowe: but as much of the offered flesh as remaineth vnto the third day shalbe burnt with fyre. For if any of the flesh of the peaceofferynges be eaten in the thirde day, the shal he that offred it optayne no fauour, neyther shall it be rekened vnto hym: but shall be an abhominatiō, and the soule that eateth of it shal beare the synne therof. The flesche that toucheth any vncleane thing shall not be eaten, but burnte wyth fyre: & all that be cleane in thys flesh, may eat flesh. If any soule eat of & flesh of the peace offrynge that pertaine vnto the Lorde, & his vncleanesse yet vpon hym, the same soule shal perysshe from amonge hys people. Moreouer if a soule touch any vncleane thing, whether it be the vncleānes of man or of any vncleane beast, or of any abhominatiō that is vncleane and the eat of the flesche of the peaceofferynges which pertayne vnto the Lord, that soule shal perysshe from his people.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: Ye shal eate no maner fatte of oxen, sheepe or goten, neuerthelesse & fatte of the beast that dyeth alone & the fat of that whych is torne with wylde beastes, maye be occupied in all maner vses: but ye shall in no wyse eat of it. For whosoeuer eateth the fat of the beast of which men bryng an offerynge vnto & Lorde, that soule that eateth it shall perish from hys people. Moreouer ye * shall eate no maner of blonde, whersoeuer ye dwel, whether it be of fowle or of beast. Whatsoeuer soule it be that eateth anye maner of blonde the same soule shall perysh from hys people.

And the Lord talked with Moses sayinge:

spake vnto ỹ children of Israel, & say: he that offereth his peaceoffring vnto the Lord, shal bring his gifte vnto the Lord of his peaceofferynges, wyth his owne handes shal bring the offering of the Lord: euen the fatt vpon the breast he shal bring with the breast to waue it a waueofferynge before the Lord. And the priest shal burne the fatt vpō the alter, & the breast shalbe Aarons & his sonnes. And ỹ right shoulder they shal geue vnto the priest, to be an heue offringe, of their peaceofferynges. And the same that offereth the bloude of the peace offerynges and the fatte, amonge the sonnes of Aaron shall haue the right shoulder vnto his parte, for the waue breast, & the heue shoulder I haue taken of the children of Israell, euen of their peaceofferynges, & haue geuen it vnto Aaron the priest and vnto his sonnes: to be a duty for euer amōge their generatiō. This is the lawe of burnt offerynges, of meateoffrynges, of synne offerynges, of trespace offerynges, of fulfillynges, of peaceofferynges, which the Lord commaūded Moses in the mosie of Sinai, in the day when he commaunded the children of Israel to offer their offerynges vnto the Lord in the wyldernes of Sinai.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: take Aaron and his sonnes with hym, and the vestures, and the anoyntyng oyle and an oxe for a synne offering and two rammes, & a basket of swete breade: and gather all the congregacyon togyther vnto the doore of the Tabernacle of witnes. And Moses dyd as the Lorde commaunded hym, & the people gathered thē selues togyther vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witnes. And Moses sayed vnto the people: this is the thyng which the Lord commaunded to be,

And Moses brought Aaron & his sonnes & washed them with water, & put vpon him the albe & gyrded hym with a gyrdle, & put vpō hym the tunicle, & put the Ephod therō, and gyrded hym with the brodered gyrdle of the Ephod, and bound it vnto hym therwith. And he put the brestlappe theron, and put in the breastlappe * Vrim & Thumim. And he put the miter vpon his heade, & put vpon the mytre euen vpon the foreffront of it, the golden plate of the holy crowne, as the Lord cōmaunded Moses. * Loke in Exodus.xxviii.c Nu.xxvii. d

And Moses toke the anoyntyng oyle and anoynted the habitaūle & al that was therin, and sanctified them, & sprinkled therof vpō the alter seuē tymes, and anoynted the alter & all his vessels, & the lauer with his fote, to sanctifye them. And he poured of the anoyntyng oyle vpon Aarons heade, & anoynted hym to sanctify hym. And he brought Aarōs sonnes and put albes vpō them, and gyrded them with gyrdelles, and put bonetes vpō their heades: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And the synne offering was brought. And Aaron and his sonns put their handes vpon the head of the oxe of the synne offering. And when it was slaine, Moses toke of ỹ bloude and put it vpon the hornes of the alter rounde aboute wt his finger, & purified it, & poured the bloud vnto the botome of the alter, & sanctified it & reconciled it. And he toke all the fatt that was vpon the inwardes, & the kall that was on the liuer and the two kidneys with their fatt, & burned it vpō the alter. But the oxe, the hyde, his flesh and his donge, he burnt with fyre without the hoste, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And he brought the ram of ỹ burntoffrynge & Aaron & his sonnes put their hādes vpon the head of ỹ ram, & it was killed. And Moses sprinkled the bloud vpō the alter rounde aboute, and cut the ram in peces & burnt the head, the peces, & the fatte, & washed the inwardes & the legges in water, and burnt the ram euery whyt vpon the alter. That was a burnte sacrifice of a swete sauoure, and an offeryng vnto the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he brought the other ram that was the fulloffrynge, & Aaron & his sonnes put their handes vpon the head of the ram: and when it was slayne, Moses toke of the bloude of it, and put it vpon the typpe of Aarōs right eare, and vpon the thombe of his right hand & vpon the great too of his right fote. Then were Aarons sonnes brought, and Moses put of the bloude on the typpe of the right eare of them, and vpon the thombes of their right handes, and vpon the greate toes of their right fete, and sprinkled the bloud vpō the alter round about.

And he toke the fatt and the rompe and al the fatt that was vpon the inwardes, & the kall of the liuer, & the .ii. kidneys with their fatte fatt and ther: right shoulder. And out of the basket of swete breade that was before the Lord, he tobe one swete cake of oyled breade

and one wafer, put them on the fatt and vpō
the ryght shoulder: & put altogither vpō Aarons handes & vpon his sonnes handes, and
A waued it a waue offeryng before the Lorde.
And then Moses tobe them from of ther:
handes agayne, and burnte them vpon the aulter, euen vpon the burnt offeryng: These are the fulofferynges of a swete sauoure & a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. And Moses tobe ✝ breste & waued it a waue offering before the Lorde, of the ram of the fulofferynges: and it was Moses part, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And Moses tobe the anoynting ople and of the blood which was vpon the aulter, and sprinkled it vpō Aaron & vpō his weliamētes & vpon his sons, & on their weliamētes with him, & sanctified Aaron & hys weliames & his sonnes & his sonnes weliames also. The Mo-B ses sayd vnto Aaron & his sonnes: boyle the
Exo. xxix.f flesh in the doze of the tabernacle of wytnes & there eate it with the breade that is in the basket of fulofferynges, as the Lord cōmaunded saying: Aaron and hys sonnes shall eate
it: & that which remaynyth of the flesh and of the bread, burne it with fyre.

And se that ye departe not from the booze
of the tabernacle of witnes seuē daies longe vntil the dayes of your ful offeryngs be at an ende. ✠ For seuē daies must your handes be filled, as they were this dayes: so the Lord hath cōmaunded to do, to reconcyle you with all. Be therfore that ye abyde in the doze of the tabernacle of wytnes day & nyght seuen
dayes longe, & kepe the watch of the Lorde
*Lohe in the fourth of the kynges, the xix.chap.d. that ye dye not, for so I am commaunded.
And Aaron and hys sonnes dyd all thynges
whyche the Lorde cōmaunded* by the hand of Moses.

The.ix.Chapter.

¶ The fyrst offeryngs of Aaron, fyr him self & for the people. Aaron blesseth & prayeth. The glory of the Lord is shewed. The fyre consumeth the sacrifice.

C On the.viii. day Moses called Aaron and his sonnes, and the elders of Israel, and sayd vnto Aaron, take a calfe for a synne offeryng, and a Ramme for a burntoffering: both without blemysh, & bring them before the Lord. And vnto the children of Israel he spake saying: take ye an he gote
for a synne offering, & a calfe & a lambe both
two of a yere olde, & without blemysh for a burnt sacrifice, & an oxe & a ram for a peace-offerynges to offre before the lord, & a meateoffering mingled with oile, for to day ✝ Lord D will appeare vnto you. And they brought that which Moses cōmaunded to the tabernacle of witnes, & al the people came & stode before the Lorde. And Moses sayd, this is the thyng whych the Lord commaunded that ye should do, and then the glory of the Lord
shal appeare vnto you. And Moses sayd vnto Aaron: go vnto the aulter & offre thy synne offeryng, & make an atonemente for the and for the people: and then offre the offeryng of the people, and reconcyle them also, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And Aaron went vnto the aulter, & slewe
the calfe that was his synne offeryng. And the sonnes of Aaron brought the blood vnto hym, & he dypt hys fingers in the blood and put it vpon the hornes of the aulter, & powred
the blood vnto the bottome of the aulter. And the fatte & the two kydneys with the hall of the lyuer of the synneofferyng, he burnt vpō
the aulter as the Lorde cōmaunded Moses:
but the flesche & the hyde, he burnte with fyre without the hoste. Afterwarde he slewe the E burntoffering, & Aarons sonnes brought the blood vnto hym, and he sprinkled it rounde about vpon the aulter. And they brought the burntofferyng vnto hym in peces & the head
also, and he burnte it vpon the aulter, & dyd
washe the inwardes and the legges, & burnt them also vpon the burntoffering in the aulter.

And then he brought the peoples offering & tobe the goote that was the peoples synne offering, & slewe it & offered it for a synne offering: as he dyd the fyrst. And then brought the burnt offeryng, & offered it as the maner was, & brought the meat offering & filled his hand therof, & burnt it vpon the aulter, besyde
the burnt sacrifice in the morninge.

Then he slewe the oxe & the ram that were the peoples peaceofferynges, & Aarons sōnes
brought the blood vnto hym, & he sprynkled
it vpon the aulter round about, and tobe the fatt of the oxe & of the ram: the rumpe & the fatt that coureth the inwardes and the kid-neyes & the cal of the liuer: & put them vpon
the breastes & burnt it vpon the aulter: but the D
breastes & the ryght shoulders Aaron waued
before the Lord, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And Aaron lyft vp hys hand ouer
the people & blessed the, and came downe fro offering of synne offeringes, burntofferinges, & peace offeryngs. The Moses & Aaron went into the tabernacle of wytnes and came out agayne and blessed the people, and the glory of the Lord appered vnto al the people. And there came a fyre out from before the Lord, & consumed vpō the aulter the burntofferyng and the fatt. And all the people sawe it, and shouted, and fell on their faces.

And Moses called Misael and Elisaphan the sonnes of Oziel the vncle of Aarō, and sayed vnto them: goo and carye youre brethren frō the holy place out of the host.
And they went to them, and caried them in their albes out of the host: as Moses bade.
And Moses said vnto Aaron & vnto Eleazar & Ithamar his eldest sōnes: vncouer not your heades, neither rēt your clothes, lest ye dye and wrath come vpon all the people, let your brethren the whole house of Israell bewepe the burnynge whyche the Lorde hathe burnt. But go ye not out frō the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes, least ye dye: for the anoyntynge oyle of the Lord is vpon you. And they dyd as Moses bad.
And the Lord spake vnto Aaron sayinge: drynche no wyne, no strong drynke, neither thou nor thy sonnes with the: when ye go in to the tabernacle of wytnes, lest ye dye. And let it be a lawe for euer vnto youre children after you: that ye may put difference betwene holy & vnholi, & betwene vncleane & cleane, and that ye may teach the children of Israel all the ordinances whych the Lord hath commaunded them by the handes of Moses.
And Moses sayed vnto Aaron and vnto Eliazar & Ithamer his sons that were lefte: take the meatoffering that remayneth of the sacrifices of the Lorde, and eat it without leuen beside the altre, for it is moste holy: eat it therfore in the holye place, because it is thy dutie and thy sonnes dutie of the sacrifice of the Lorde: for so I am cōmaunded. And the wauebreast and heue shoulder eate in a cleane place: both thou, & thy sonnes, & thy daughters with the. For it is thy duty & thy sonnes duty with the, of the peace offerynges of the children of Israel. For the heue shoulder & the wauebreast whyche they bryng with the sacrifices of the fat to waue it before the Lord shall be thyne and thy sonnes with the and be a lawe for euer, as the Lorde hath commaunded.
And Moses sought for the goote that was the synne offerynge, and se it was burnt. And he was angry with Eliazar & Ithamar the sonnes of Aaron, whyche were lefte a lyue saying: wherfore haue ye not eaten the sinne offerynge in the holy place, seynge it is moste holy: and for as muche as it is geuen you to beare the sinne of the people, and make agrement for the before the Lord? Beholde, the bloude of it was not brought in within the holy place, therfore shoulde ye haue eate it in the holy place as I commaunded. And Aarō sayed vnto Moses: beholde this daye haue they offred their sinne offerynge & their burnt offerynge before the Lord, and it is chaunced me after this maner. If I shold.b. eat of the synne offerynge to day, would the Lord be content wythal. And when Moses heard that he was content.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayinge, speake vnto the children of Israel and say, these are the beastes which shall eate amonge all the beastes that are on the earth: whatsoeuer hathe hoofe and deuideth it into two clawes and chewe cudde amonge the beastes that shall be eate. Neuertheles, these shall ye not eate of them that chewe cud and haue hoofes. The camel for he cheweth cud but he deuyded not the hoofe into two clawes, therfore he shall be vncleane vnto you. And the cony for he cheweth the cud but deuideth not the hoofe into two clawes, therefore he is vncleane to you. And the hare, for he likewyse cheweth the cud, but deuideth not the hoofe into .ii. clawes, he is therfore vncleane to you. And the swyne, for thoughe he deuyde the hoofe into two clawes, yet he cheweth not the cudde, and therfore is vncleane to you. Of their flesshe se that ye eate not, and their carkasses se that ye touche not, for they are vncleane to you.
These shal ye eate of al that are in the waters: whatsoeuer hath fynnes & shales in the waters, seas, & ryuers, that shal ye eat. And all that haue not fynnes & shales in the seas & ryuers of al that moue and lyue in the waters shal ye abhorre. Ye that ye eate not of their flesh, and also that ye abhorre their carkases: for all that haue no fynnes nor scales in the waters, shalbe abhominatiō vnto you. The scripture calleth fysshe, flesshe.
These are the foules which ye shal abhorre, & whych shal not be eate, for they are an abhommatiō. The egle, the gosshauke, the cormaister, the hoote, the vulture & al his kynde & all kynde of rauens, the estriche, the nightcrowe, the cocow, the sparowhauke, & al the kynde: the lytle oule, the storke, the greate oule, the backe, the pellicane, the gyer the heron, the lap with the kynd, the lapwynge, and the swalowe. And all foules that creepe & go vpō al foure shalbe an abhominatiō to you.
Yet these may ye eate of al the foules that moue and go vpon .iiii. fete: euen those that haue no lesses aboue vpon their fete to lepe with

Among al maner beastes, that haue hoo-

And al that goeth vpon hys handes amonge

And these are also vncleane to you among the thyngs that crepe vpon the erth: the we-sell, the mouse, the toode and all hys kynde,
the hedgehogge, stellio, the lizarde, the snayle
and the molle: these are vncleane to you amonge all that moue, and all that touche
them when they be dead, shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen. And what soeuer amp of the dead carkalles of them fall vpon, shalbe vncleane: whatsoeuer vessell of wood it be, or rayment, or shynne, or bagge or what soeuer thing it be that amp worke is wroughte with shallbe cleane agayne.

All maner of erthen vessell wher in to amp

soeuer goeth vpō the breast, and whatsoeuer goeth vpon. iii. or moo fete amonge all that scrauleth vpō the erth, of & se ye eate not: for they are abhominable. Make not youre sow-

¶ The.xiii.Chapter.

¶ The Preastes are appointed to iudge who are Lepers.

A AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses & vnto Aaron saying: when there appeareth a.a.rising in anye mās flesh either a scabbe or a gipsirring whyte: as though the plage of leprosye were in the skynne of hys flesshe, then let hym be brought vnto Aaron the Preaste or vnto one of hys sonnes the Preastes, and let ỳ Preast loke on the sore that is in the skynne of hys flesh. If the heare in the soore be turned vnto whyte, & the sore also seme to be lower then the skynne of his flesshe, then it is surely a leprosye, & let the Preast loke on hym, & iudge hym vncleane.

If there be but a whyte pleche in ỳ skynne of his flesh, and seme not to be lower then ỳ other skynne nor the heare therof is turned vnto whyte: then let the Preast shut him vp seuen daies. And let the Preast loke vpō him the.vij.day: yf the sore seme to hym to abyde styll & to go no further in the skynne, then let the Preast shut hym vp yet.vij.dayes moo. And let the Preast loke on him agayn ỳ.vij. day. Then yf the soore be waxed blacke, & is not growen abroode in the skynne, let the Preast make hym cleane, for it is but a skyn. And let hym washe his clothes, & then he is cleane. But & yf ỳ scabbe growe in ỳ skynne after that he is sene of the Preast agayne. If the Preast se ỳ the scabbe be growen abroode in the skynne, let him make hym vncleane: for it is surely a leprosye.

B If the plage of leprosie be in a mā, let him be brought vnto the Preast, & let the Preaste se hym. If the rysyng appeare whyte in the skynne, & haue also made the heare whyte, & there be rawe flesh in the sore also: then it is an old leprosye in ỳ skynne of his flesh. And the Preast shall iudge him vncleane, and shal not shutte hym vp for he is vncleane.

If a leprosye breake out in the skynne and couer all the skynne from the heed to ỳ foote ouer all wherseuer the Preast loketh, then let the Preast loke vpon hym. If the leprosye haue.b. couered al his flesshe, let hym iudge the disease cleane: for in as moche as he is altogether whyte he is therfore cleane. But and yf there be rawe flesh on him when he is sene, then he shalbe vncleane. Therfore whē the Preast seeth the rawe flesh, let him iudge hym vncleane. For in as moche as hys flesshe is rawe, he is vncleane and it is surely a true

C leprosye. But and yf the rawe flesh departe agayne & chaunge vnto whyte, then let hym come to the parst, & let the Preast se hym: If the soore be chaunged vnto whyte, let the Preast iudge the disease cleane, and then he is cleane.

When there is a byle in the skynne of anymans flesh and is healed & after in the place of ỳ byle there appeare a whyte ryssing either a shynyng whyte somwhat reddyth, let hym be sene of the Preast. If when the Preast seyth hym it appeare lower than the other skynne & the heare therof be chaunged vnto whyte, let the Preast iudge him vncleane: for it is a very leprosye, that is broken out in the place of the byle. But and yf whē the Preast loketh on it there be no whyte heares therin nether the scabbe lower then ỳ other skynne and be somwhat blackesh, then the Preast shall shutt him apaarte.vij.dayes. If it spreade abroode in the meane season, then let the Preast iudge hym vncleane: for it is a leprosye. But and yf the gipsirnge whyte abyde styll in one place & go no further, thē it is but the pynne of the byle, and the Preast shall iudge hym cleane.

D When ỳ skynne of any mās flesh is burnt with fyre that it be rawe & there appere in ỳ burnyng a glistring whyte that is somwhat reddyth or altogether whyte, let the Preast loke vpō it. If the heare in that bryghtenesse be chaunged to whyte, and it also appeare lower then the other skynne, then it is a leprosye that is broken out of the place of the burning. And the Preast shal iudge him vncleane, for it is a leprosye. But and yf (when the Preast loketh on it) he se that there is no whyte heare in the bryghtenesse, & ỳ it is no lower then the other skynne, & that it is also blacketh, then let the preast shut him vp.vij. dayes. And yf (whē the Preast loketh on him the.vij.day) it be growen abroode in the skynne, let hym iudge hym vncleane: for it is a leprosye. But and yf that bryghtenesse abyde styll in one place & go no further in ỳ skynne & be blackesh, then it is but a ryssynge in the place of the burnynge, and the Preast shall make hym cleane: for it is but the pynne of the burnyng only.

E When ether man or woman hath a breakyng out vpon the heed or the beerde, let the preast se it. And yf it appeare lower than the other skynne, & there be therin golden heares & thyn, let the preast iudge him vncleane, for it is a breakyng out of leprosye vpō the heed or beerde. If (when the Preast loketh on the breakynge out) he se that it is no lower then the other skynne & ỳ there are blache heares therin, let hym shut hym vp.vij.dayes. And let the preast loke on the disease the.vij.day: & yf the breakyng out be gone no further nether be any golden heares therin nether the scabbe be lower then the other skynne, then let him be shauen, but let hym not shaue the scabbe: & let ỳ preast shut hym vp.vij. dayes moo. And let the preast loke on the breakyng out the.vij.day agayn: If the breakynge out be gone no further in the skynne nor noore lower then ỳ other skynne, then let the preast iudge hym cleane, and let hym washe hys clothes, & then he is cleane. If the breakyng out growe in the skynne after that he is once F iudged cleane, let the Preast fra him. If it be growne abroode in bede in the skynne, let the preast se he no further for any golde heres, for he is vncleane. But and yf he se that the scabbe stande stell, & ✝ there is blacke heire growne vp therin, then the scabbe is healed and he is cleane: & the preast shal iudge him cleane. If there be found in the skinne of the flesh of man or woman a glysteringe whyte, let the preast se it. If there appeare in their flesh a glysteringe whyte somwhat blacheth then it is but freckels growen vp in ✝ skinne: and he is cleane.

If a mans heire fal of his herd, then he is herd bauide & cleane. If his heire fal before in his forehed, then he is forehedbald and cleane. If there be in the bauld hed or bauld forehed a reddish whyte scabbe, shē there is lepr̄sye sprunge vp in hys bauide herd or bauide forehede. And let the preast se it: and yf the rysing of the sore be reddysh whyte in his bauide hed or forehed after the maner of a lepr̄osie in the skinne of the flesh, then he is a leper & vncleane: & the preast shal iudge him vncleane, for the plage of his hed. And the leper in whome the plage is, shall haue his clothes rēt & his herde bare & hys mouth mofled, & shalbe called vncleane. And as log as the dysease lasteth vpō him, he shalbe vncleane: for he is vncleane, and shall therfore dwel alone, & euen without the host shal hys habitacion be.

When the plage of lepr̄osye is in a cloth: whether it be lynē or woollen, ye & whether it be in the warpe or woofe of the linē or of the woollen: ether in a skynne or any thing made of skynne, yf the dysease be pale or somwhat reddysh in the cloth or skynne: whether it be in the warpe or woofe or any thynge that is made of skynne, then it is a verey lepr̄osye, & must be shewed vnto the Preast. And when the Preast seyth the plage, let hym shut it vp vij. dayes, & let hym loke on the plage the. vij day. If it be increased in the cloth: whether it be in the warpe or woofe or in a skynne or in any thynge that is made of skynne, then the plage is a freatyng lepr̄osy, and it is vncleane: & that cloth shalbe burnt, ether warp or woof, whether it be woollen or lynē or any thynge that is made of skynne wherein the plage is, for it is a freating lepr̄osy, & shalbe burnt in the fyre.

If the preast se that the plage hath freate no further in the clothether in the warpe or woofe or in whatsoeuer thynge of skynne it be, then let the preast cōmaunde the to wash the thynge wherin the plage is, and let hym shut it vp. vij. dayes moo. And let the preast loke on it agayne after that the plage is washed. If the plage haue not chaunged hys facion though it be spred no further abrode, it is yet vncleane. And se that ye burne it in the fyre, for it is freat inwarde: whether in parte or in al to gether. But & yf the preast se that it is somwhat blacheth after that it is washed, let him rent it out of the cloth, or out of the skynne or oute of the warpe or woofe. But and yf it appeare any more in the cloth ether in the warpe or in the woofe or in any thynge made of skynne, then it is a warynge plage. And se that ye burne that wyth fyre, wherin the plage is. Moreouer the cloth ether warpe or woofe or whatsoeuer thynge of skynne it be which thou hast washed & the plage be departed frō it, shalbe washed once agayne: and then it is cleane. Thys is the lawe of the plage of lepr̄osye in a cloth whether it be woollen or linē: ether whether it be in the warpe or woofe, or in any thynge made of skynnes, to iudge it cleane or vncleane.

¶ The cleansyng of the leper, and of the house that he is in.

THen the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayenge: *thus is the lawe of a leper when he shalbe clensed: He shalbe brought vnto the Preast, & the Preast shall go out wythout the hoste & loke vpon hym. If the plage of lepr̄osye be healed in the leper, then shal the Preast commaunde that there be brought for hym that shalbe clensed two lyuynge byrdes that are cleane, and cedar wood, and a pece of purple cloth and yssope. And the Preast shall commaunde that one of the byrdes be killed in an erthen vessel wyth renning water. And the Preast shall take the lyuyng byrde and the cedar wood and the purple & the yssope, & shall dyppe them and the lyuyng byrde in the bloude of the slayne byrde, & in the renning water & sprenkle it vpon him that must be clensed of hys lepr̄osye seuen tymes and clense him, and shal let the lyuyng byrd goo fre in to the felde. And he shal wash hys clothes and his flesh in water, and then he shalbe cleane. B

And when ✝. viij. day is come, let him take ij. lambes without blemyshe & a pece lambe of

of a yere olde without blemysh, and.iii. tenth deales of fyne floure for a meatoffring myngled wyth oyle, and.a. logge of oyle. Than let the Preast that maketh him cleane, bring the man that is made cleane wyth those thinges before the Lorde vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And let the Preast take one of the lambes & offer hym for a trespace offryng, and the logge of oyle: and waue thē before the Lorde. And then let hym slee the lambe in the place where the synneoffryng and the burntoffryng are slayne: euen in the holy place. ffor as the synneoffring is, euen so is the trespace offryng the Preastes: for it is moost holy.

C Then let the Preast take of the blonde of the trespace offryng, & put it vpon the typpe of the ryght eare of him that is clensed, and vpon the thombe of hys ryght hande, and vpon the great too of hys ryght fote. Thē let the Preast take of the logge of oyle, and poure it into the palme of hys lefte hande, & dyppe hys ryght fynger in the oyle that is in the palme of hys left hande, and let hym sprynkle it with hys fynger.vii. tymes before the Lorde. And of the rest of the oyle that is in hys hande, shal the preast put vpon the typpe of the ryghte eare of him that is clensed, and vpon the thombe of hys ryght hād, and vpon the great too of hys ryght foote: euen vpon the blonde of the trespaceoffryng. And the remnaunte of the oyle that is in the Preastes hande, he shal poure vpō the heed of hym that is clensed: & so shal the Preaste make an attonement for hym before the Lorde.

Then let the Preast offer the synneoffring and make an attonement for him that is clensed for his vncleānesse. And then let ỹ burnt offryng be slayne, and let the preast put both the burntoffryng & the meatoffryng vpon the altar: & make an attonement for hym, and then he shalbe cleane. If he be poore and can not get so much, then let hym bryng one labe for a trespace offring to waue it and to make an attonement for hym, and a tenth deale of fyne floure myngled wyth oyle for a meatoffryng, and a logge of oyle, & two turtyl doues or two ponge pygeons which he is able to get, & let the one be a synneoffryng and ỹ D other a burntoffryng. And let him bryng thē the.viii. day for hys clensyng vnto the preast to the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse before the Lorde.

And let the Preast take the lambe that is the trespace offryng & the logge of oyle, and waue them before the Lorde. And when the lambe of the trespaceoffryng is kylled, the Preast shal take of the blonde of the trespace offryng, and put it vpon the typpe of hys ryghte eare that is clensed, and vpon the thombe of hys ryghte hande, and vpon the greate too of hys ryght fote. And the preast shall poure of the oyle into hys ryght hand, and shall sprynkle wyth his fynger of ỹ oyle that is in hys left hande seuen tymes before the Lorde.

And the Preast shall put on the oyle ỹ is in his hand vpon the typpe of the right eare of hym that is clensed, & vpon the thombe of hys ryght hande, & vpō the great too of hys ryght fote: euen in the place where the blond of the trespaceoffryng was put. And the rest of the oyle that is in his hand, he shall poure vpō the heed of hym that is clensed: to make an attonement for him before the Lord. And he shall offre one of the turtyl doues or of the yoūg pigeons, soche as he can gett: the one for a synne offerynge & the other for a burntoffryng vpō the alter. And so shal the Preast make an attonement for him that is clensed before the Lorde. Thys is the lawe of hym that hath the plage of leprosye, whose hande is not able to get that whyche pertayneth to hys clensynge.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses & Aarō E saying: when he be come vnto the land of Canaan which I geue you to possesse: yf I put the plage of leprosye in any house of the lāde of youre possession, let hym that oweth the house go & tell the preast saynge: me thynke ỹ there is as it were a.b. leprosy in the house And the Preast shal commande them to ryd all thyng out of the house, before the Preast go in to se the plage: that he make not al that is in the house vncleane, and then the preast shal go in & se the house.

☞ The notes.

Moloch. a. Vnder thys name Moloch, is forbydden all maner of Idolatrye, specially the offrynge of chyldren therunto, for that was abominable before the Lord. Moloch was an Idole of the chyldren of Ammon, whose Image was holow, hauing in it. iiii. closets. One was to offer therin fyne flour, an other for turtledoues, the thyrde, for a shepe, the fourth, for a ramme, the fyft for a calfe, the syxt for an oxe. And for hym that would offer his sone, was opened the. iii. closet. And the face of thys Idole was lyke the face of a calfe, hys hand made playne redy to receiue of them that stode by.

¶ The.xxi. Chapter.

¶ The preest is forbydde to be at the death of any of his people, a fewe of his kynne excepte. Preestes may not be shaue neither on the head nor yet of the beards. The preestes wyfe must be a mayde. The preestes daughter may not be an harlot.

ANd the Lord sayd vnto Moses speake vnto the preastes yͭ sones of Aaron and saye vnto them. A.a. preast shal defile hym selfe at the deth of none of hys people, but vpon his kynne that is nye vnto him: as his mother, father, sonne, daughter, & brother: & on hys syster as longe as she is a mayde & dwelleth nye him & was neuer geuen to man: on her he may defyle him selfe. But he shall not make hym selfe vncleane vpon a ruelar of hys people to polute hym selfe wyth all.

☞ They shal make them no baldnesse vpon their heedes or shaue of the lockes of their beardes, nor make any markes in their flesh. They shal be holy vnto their God, and not polute the name of their God, for the sacrifices of the Lord and the bread of their God they do offer: therfore they must be holy.

☞ They shall take no wyfe yͭ is an whoore or polluted, or put from her husbande: for a preast is holy vnto his God. Sanctifye hym therfore, for he offereth vp the bread of god: he shall therfore, be holy vnto the, for I the Lord which sanctifye you, am holy.

☞ If a preastes daughter fall to playe the whore, she poluteth her father: therfore she shal be burnt wyth fyre.

☞ He yͭ is the hye preast amōg his brethren vpon whose head the anoyntynge oyle was poured & whose hande was fylled to put on the beshmentes, shall not vncouer his head nor rent hys clothes, neither shall goo to any dead body nor make hym selfe vncleane: no not on hys father or mother, neither shall go out of the sanctuarye, that he polute not the holy place of his God, for the croune of the anoyntyng oyle of God, is vpon him. I am the Lorde. * He shall take a mayde vnto hys wyfe: but no widowe nor deuorsed nor polluted whoore. But he shall take a mayde of his owne people to wyfe, that he defyle not his seed vpon his people: for I am the Lord which sanctifye hym. Ezech.xliiii.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: speake vnto Aaron and saye: No man of thy seed in their generacions that hath any deformitie vpon hym, shall preace for to offer the bread of his god: for none that hath any blemyth shall come nere: wether he be blynde, lame, snot nosed, or that hath any mysshapen membre, or broken foted, or broken handed, or croke backed, or perleyed, or gogleyed, or maunge, or shaulde, or hath hys stones broken.

No man yͭ is deformed of the seed of Aarō the preast, shall come nye to offer the sacrifices of the Lorde. If he haue a deformytie, he shal not preace to offer the bred of his God. Notwythstandynge he shal eate of the bred of his God: euen as wel of the most holy, as of the holy: but shal not go in vnto the vayle nor come nye the alter, because he is deformed that he polute not my sanctuary, for I am

am the Lord that sanctyfye them. And thou shalt tolde it vnto Aaron and to hys sonnes, & vnto all the chyldren of Israel.

☞ The notes.

A paiste shall not come at burpalles.

a. The preastes be warned that they shall not come at the commune wayllynges & lamentatiõs of the dead, lest they should therby be the more mapt to do ꝑ sacrifices, wherunto they were properly appointed, and lest they should by they: weppynge geue an occasyon to destroye the beleue of the resurrection of the deade.

¶ The.xxii. Chapter.

¶ What maner persones ought to abstayne from eatyng the thinges that were offred. How what, & when they shuld be offred.

AND the Lord comened wyth Moses saying: tell Aaron & his sonnes that they abstepne from the halowed thinges of the chyldē of Israel, whyche they haue halowed vnto me, that they polute not my holy name: for I am the Lorde. Saye vnto them: whosoeuer he be of all youre seed amonge youre generacion after you, that goeth vnto the halowed thynges whyche the chyldren of Israel shall haue halowed vnto the Lorde, hys vnclennes shalbe vpon hym: and that soule shall perysshe from oute of my syght. I am the Lorde.

None of the seed of Aaron that is a leper or that hath a runnyng sore, shall eate of the halowed thynges tyll he be cleane. And whosoeuer toucheth any vncleane soule or man whose seed runneth from him by night, or whosoeuer toucheth any worme that is vncleane to hym, or man that is vncleane to hym, whatsoeuer vnclennesse he hath: the same soule that hath any soche thyng, shalbe vncleane tyll euen, and shall not eate of the halowed thynges tyll he haue washed hys flesh wyth water. And then when the sonne is downe he shalbe cleane and shall afterwarde eate of the halowed thynges: for they are hys fode. * Of a beast that deeth alone or is reut wyth wylde beastes, he shall not eate, to defyle hym selfe therwyth: I am the Lorde. But let them kepe therfore myne ordynaunce, lest they lade synne vpon them and dye therin when they haue defyled them selues: for I am the Lorde whych sanctyfye them.

There shall no straunger eate of the halowed thinges, neither a gest of the preastes, or an hyred seruaunte. But yf the preast bye any soule wyth money he may eate of it, and he also that is borne in hys house maye eate of hys bred. If the preastes daughter be maryed vnto a straunger, she maye not eate of ꝑ halowed heue offrynges. Notwithstãdyng yf the preastes daughter be a widowe or be worlesd & haue no chyld but is returned vnto her fathers house agayne, she shall eate of her fathers bread as well as the kyd in her youth. But there shall no straunger eate therof. If a man eate of the halowed thynges vnwyttyngly, he shal put the fyfte part there vnto, & make good vnto the preast the halowed thynge. And let the preastes se, that they defyle not the halowed thynges of the chyldren of Israel wheych they haue offered vnto the Lorde, lest they lade them selues wyth mysdoynge and trespace in eatynge their halowed thynges, for I am the Lorde which halowe them.

And the lord spake vnto Moses saynge: L
speake vnto Aaron & his sonnes and vnto all the chyldē of Israel & say vnto them, whatsoeuer he be of the house of Israel or straunger in Israell that wyll offer hys offrynge: whatsoeuer vowe or free wyll offrynge it be wheych they wyll offer vnto the Lorde for a burntoffrynge to reconcyle them selues, it must be a male without blemyth of ꝑ oxen, shepe or gootes, let them offer nothyng that is deformed for they shall gett no fauoure therwyth.

If a mã wil offer a peace offrynge vnto the Lord and separate a vowe or a free wyll offrynge of the oxen or the flocke, it must be without defaumpte, ꝑ it may be accepted. There maye be no blemyth therin: whether it be blynd, broken, wounded or haue a wen, or be maunge or scabbed, se that ye offre no suche vnto the Lord, nor put an offrynge of any such vpon the altre vnto the Lord.

An oxe or a shepe that hath any membre D
out of proporcio, mayst thou offer for a free wyll offrynge: but in a vowe it shall not be accepted. Thou shalt not offer vnto the lord that wheych is broosed, broken, pluckt out or cutt awaye, neyther shalt make any soche in youre lande, neyther of a straungers hand shall ye offer an offrynge to your GOD of any soch. For they marre all in that they haue deformities wythem, and therfore can not be accepted for you. And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: when an oxe, a shepe or a goote is brought forth, it shalbe seuen dayes vnder the dam̃e. And from the viij. day forth, it shalbe accepted vnto a gyfte in the sacrifice of the Lord. And whether it be oxe or shepe, ye shall not kyl it and her yong both in one day.

When ye wyll offre a.a. thankoffrynge vnto the Lord, ye shal so offre it that ye may be accepted. And the same daye it must be eaten vp, so that ye leaue none of it vntyl the morowe. For I am the Lorde, kepe nowe my commaundementes and do them, for I am the Lord. And polute not my holy name, that I maye be halowed amonge the chyldren of Israel. For I am the Lorde whyche halowe you, and brought you out of the land of Egypt, to be youre GOD: for I am the Lorde.

¶ The oyle for the lampes and lyghtes of the breade of remembraunce or shewe breade. He that curseth muste be stoned. He that kylleth must be kylled. &c.

AND the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: commaunde the children of Israell that they bringe vnto the, pure oyle of olyue beate for lyghtes to poure into the lampes alwaye, wythout the vayle of wytnes wythin the tabernacle of wityes. And Aaron shall dresse them both euenyng and mornyng before the Lorde alwayes. And it shall be a lawe for euer amonge your children after you. And they shalbe Aaron and hys sonnes, and they shal eate the in the holy place. For they are most holy vnto hym of the offerynges of the Lord, and shalbe a duty for euer.

Wastelles, loued loues.

And the son of an Israelitish wyfe whose father was an Egyptian, went out amonge the children of Israel. And this sonne of the Israelitish wyfe and a man of Israel stroue together in the host. And the Israelitish wo- mannes sonne blasphemed the *name & cursed, & they brought hym vnto Moses. And hys mothers name was Salomith, & dought- ter of Dibry of the tribe of Dan: and they put hym in warde, that Moses shoulde declare vnto the what the Lorde sayd therto.

To curse God.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge, bringe hym that blasphemed wythoute the hoste, and lette all that hearde hym, put theyr handes vpon hys head, and let all the multitude stone him. And speake vnto the children of Israel sayinge. Whosoeuer. b. curseth his God, shal beare hys synne: And he that blasphemeth the name of the Lord, shall dye for it: all the multitude shall stone him to death. And the straunger as well as the Israelyte if he curse the name, shal dye for it.

He that killeth any manne, shall dye for it but he that kylleth a beaste shall paye for it, beast for beast. If a man mayme hys neyghboure as he hath done, so shall it be done to hym agayne: broke for broke, eye for eye and toth for toth: euē as he hath maimed a man, so shall he be maymed agayne. So nowe he that kylleth a beast, shall paye for it: but he that kylleth a man, shall dye for it. Ye shall haue one maner of lawe amonge you: euen for the straungers as well for one of youre selues, for I am the Lord your God.

The.xxv.Chapter.

¶ The Sabboth of the.vii. yeres & of the yeare of iubely, otherwyse called the holy yere.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses in mount Sinai, sayinge: speake vnto the children of Israel & saye vnto them. Whē ye be come into the Lande whyche I geue you, let the Land rest a Sabbothe vnto the Lorde. Syxe yeres thou shalt sowe thy felde, and syxe yeres thou shalt cut thy vynes & gather in thy frutes. But the seuenth yeare shall be a Saboth of rest vnto the lande. The Lordes Saboth it shalbe, and thou shalt neuer sowe thy feylde nor cut thy vynes.

The come that groweth by it selfe thou shalt not reepe, neither gather the grapes that growe vnpruned thy dedlynge: but it shall be a Saboth of rest vnto the lande. Neuertheles the Saboth of the Lande shall be meate for you: euen for the and thy seruaunte and for thy mayd and for thy hyred seruaute and for the straunger that dwelleth with the: and for thy cattell and for the beastes that are in thy Lande, shall all the encrease thereof be meate. The number seuē. 7. weekes of yeres, that is, seuen tymes seuē yere: and the space of the seuen weekes of yeres, wil be vnto the. xlix. yere. And then thou shalt make an horne blowe: euen in the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth, which is the day of atonemēte. And then shal ye make the horne blowe, euen thorowoute all youre Lande. And ye shall halowe the fyftyeth yere, & proclayme libertye thorowoute the Lande vnto all the inhabyters therof. It shall be a yere of. Jubelye to you: & ye shal returne euerye man vnto hys possession and euerye man vnto hys kynred agayne. A yere of iubilye shall that fyftyeth yere be vnto you. Ye shall not sowe neyther reepe the come that groweth by it selfe, nor gather the grapes that growe vnpruned thy labour. For it is a yere of Jubelye and shalbe holy vnto you, howebeit, yet ye shall eate of the encreace of the fyelde. And in this yere of iubelye ye shall returne, euerye man vnto hys possession agayne.

When thou sellest ought vnto thy neyghboure or byest of thy neyghbours hande, ye shall not oppresse one another: but according to the number of yeres after the Jubilye yere thou shalt bye of thy neyghboure, and according to the number of frute yeres, he shall sell vnto the. According vnto the multytude of yeres, thou shalt encrease the pryce thereof and according to the fewnes of yeres, thou shalte mynyshe the pryce: for the numbre of frutes he shall sell vnto the. And se that no man oppresse his neyghboure, but feare thy God. For I am the Lord your God. Wherfore do after myne ordinaces and kepe my lawes and do therin, that ye maye dwell in the land and in safety. And the land shal geue hys frute, and ye shall eate your fyll & dwell therin in safety.

If ye shall saye, what shal we eate the seuenth yere in as much as we shall not sowe nor gather in our encrease. I wyll sende my blessing vpon you in the syxte yeare, and it shall bringe forthe frute for thre yeres: & ye shall sowe the eyghte yeare and eate of olde frute vntyll the. ix. yere, and euen vntyll hys frutes come, ye shal eat of old store. Wherefore the Land shall not be solde for euer, because that the land is myne, & ye but straungers and sojourners wyth me: and ye shall thorowout all the land of your possession let the land go home for agayne.

When thy brother is warre poore and hath solde awaye of hys possession, if anye of hys hyn come to redeme it, he shal bye out that which his brother sold. And though he haue no man to redeme it for hym, yet if hys hand can get sufficiente to bye it out agayne, then let hym counte howe longe it harbe be solde, and deliuer the reste vnto hym to whome he solde it, & so he shall returne vnto hys possession agayne. But and if hys hand can not get sufficient to restore it to hym agayne, the that whyche is solde shall remayne in the hande of hym that hath bought it, vntyll the iubelye, and in the yeare of Jubilye it shall come oute, & he shal returne vnto hys possession agayne.

If a man sell a dwellyng house in a walled cyte, he maye bye it oute agayne anye tyme within a whole yere after it is sold: and that shal be the space in whyche he may redeme it agayne. But & if it be not bought oute agayne within the space of a full yere, the the house in the walled cyty shal be stablysshed for euer vnto hym that boughte it and to hys successours after hym and shall not go out in the yere of iubelye. But the houses in vyllages which haue no walles rounde aboute them shalbe counted lyke vnto the fyeldes of the countrey, and may be bought out agayne at anye season, and shall go out free in the yeare of iubelye.

Notwythstandynge the cities of the Leuytes and the houses in the cytyes of their possessions the Leuytes maye redeme at all seasons. And if a man purchase ought of the Leuites: whether it be house or cyty that they possesse the bargayne shal go out in the yere of iubelye for the houses of the cityes of the Leuites, are their possessiōs amōge the children of Jsrael. But the fyldes that lye round about their cityes, shall not be boughte: for they are their possessions for euer.

If thy brother be waxed poore and falle in decay with the, receiue him as a straūger or a sojourner, & let him lyue by the. And thou shalt take none vsurye of hym, nor yet vantage. Thou shalt not lend him thy money vpon vsurye, nor lende hym of thy foode to haue aduantage by it: for I am the Lorde youre God whyche brought you out of the Lande of Egypte, to geue you the land of Canaan & to be your God.

for they are my seruauntes which I brought out of the Land of Egypt, and shall not be

vncle or his vncles sonne, or any that is nye
of kyn vnto him of hys kynred: either if hys hand can get so much he may be loosed. And he shall reken with hym that bought hym,
from the yere that he was solde in vnto the yere of Iubelye, and the prece of hys bying
shall be accordyng to the nombre of yeres,
& he shalbe with hym as an hyred seruaūt.
If there be yet many yeres behynde, accor-
dyng vnto thē he shall gyue agayne for hys
deliueraūce of the money that he was solde
for. If ther remayne but few yeres vnto the yere of Iubelye, he shal so counte with him & accordyng vnto his yeres gyue him again for his redēption, & shalbe with him yere by yere as an hyred seruaunte & the other shall not raygne cruelye ouer hym in thy syghte.
If he be not bought fre in the meane tyme,
then he shal go out in the yere of iubelye and his chyldre with him: for the children of Israel are my seruauntes whyche I brought out of the land of Egypt.

The.xxvi.Chapter.

C Images are forbydden. Blessed are they that kepe Gods thynges that god byddeth and most cursed are they that kepe them not.

I Am the Lorde your God. Ye shal make you no Idolles nor grauen image, neyther reare
you vp anye piller, neyther ye A shall sette vppe anye images of stone in your Lande to bowe your selues
therto: for I am the Lorde your God: kepe
my Sabothes & reuerence my sanctuary: for I am the Lorde.

If ye shall walke in myne ordinaunces &
kepe my commaundementes & do them, the I wyll send you rayne in the ryght season & your lande shall yelde hys encrease and the trees of the feld shal gyue their fruite. And the threshing shal reach vnto wynne hervest, & the wyne hervest shall reach vnto sowyng
tyme, and ye shall eate your bread in plen-tuousnes, and shal dwell in your lande peasably. And I wyll sende peace in your lande that ye shall slepe, and no mayme shal make you afrayde.

And I wyll vtterly expell beastes oute of your Lande, and there shall no swerde goo thorowe out your lande. And ye shal chasse your enemyes, & they shall fall before you vpon the swerd. And fyue of you shal chasse an hundred, & an hundred of you shall put .x.
thousand to flyghte, and your enemyes shall fall before you vpon the swerde. And I wyll turne vnto you and encrease you & multi- B
plye you, and fer vp my testament with you.
And ye shall eate olde store, and cast out the olde for plentuousnes of the newe. * I wyll make my dwellynge place amonge you, and *i.Cor.vi.b.
my Soule shall not loth you. And I wyll Exo.xxix.g
walke amonge you and wyll be your God,
and ye shalbe my people. For I am the Lord your God, whyche brought you out of the land of the Egiptians, that ye should not be their bondemen, and I brake the bowes of your yockes, and made you go vpryght.

*But and if ye will not herken vnto me, *De.xxviij.
nor wyll do all these my cōmaundementes, b.Mal.ij.a.j
or if ye shal despise myne ordinaunces either
if your Soule refuse my lawes, so that ye wyll not do al my cōmaundementes, but shal
breake myne appoyntmentes then I wyll do this agayne vnto you: I wyll visit you with hevynes, swellinge & feuers, & shall make your eyes dasel, & the sowynes of herte. And ye shall sowe your seede in vayne, for your enemyes shall eate it. And I wyll sette my C face agaynst you & ye shal fal before your enemyes, & they that hate you shall raygne
ouer you, and ye shall flee when no man folowth you.

b. And if ye wyll not yet for all these herken
vnto me, then wyl I punyshe you seuē tymes more for your synnes, and wyll breake the

pride of your strength. For I will make the heauen ouer you as harde as yron, & youre lande as harde as lead. And so youre labour shall be spent in vayne. For your land shal not geue his encrease, neyther the trees of the land shal geue their fruites.

And if ye walke contrarye vnto me and will not herken vnto me, I will bringe seuen tymes mo plages vpon you accordyng to your synnes. I will send in wyld beastes vpon you, whyche shall robbe you of your children & destroy your cattell, & make you so fewe in number that your hye wayes shal grow vnto a wyldernes.

And if ye will not be learned yet for all this but shall walke contrary vnto me, the will I also walke contrarye vnto you and will punyshe you yet seuē times for your synnes. I will send a swerd vpō you, that shall auenge my testament wyth you. And when ye are fledde vnto your cityes, I will sende the pestilence amonge you, ye shal be deliuered vnto the handes of your enemies. And whē I haue broken the staffe of your bread: that is, wynes shall bake your breade in one ouē and men shall deliuer you youre bread again by wayght, then shall ye eate and not be satisfied.

D And if ye will not yet for all this herken vnto me, but shal walke contrary vnto me, then I will walke contrarye vnto you also wrathfullye and will also chastyce you seuē tymes for youre synnes: so that ye shall eate the flesh of your sonnes & the flesche of youre daughters. And I will destroy your aulters E & hye vpon hye hylles, and ouerthrow youre images and caste youre carkasses vpon the bodyes of your idolles, and my soule shall abhorre you. And I will make your cityes desolate, and bringe your sanctuaries into nought, and will not smell the sauoures of your swete odoures.

And I will bringe the lande into a wyldernesse: so that your enemies whych dwell therin shal wonder at it. And I will strawe you among the Heathen, and will drawe ouē a swerde after you, and youre land shal be waste, and your cityes desolate. Then the F Lande shall reioyce in his Sabbothes, as longe as it lyeth voyde and ye in youre enemyes lande: euen then shal the Lande kepe holy day and reioyce in his Sabbothes.

And as longe as it lyeth voyde it shall rest, for that it could not rest in your Sabothes, when ye dwelt therin.

And vpon them that are left a liue of you I will sende a faintnes into their hertes, in all the land of their enemies: so that the sound of a leaf that fluttereth, shall chase them & they shall flee as though they fled a swerde, and shall fal, no man followyng them. And they shal fal, one vpon another, as it were before a swerde, euen no man followyng them, and ye shal haue no power to stand before your enemies. And ye shall perysshe amonge the Heathen, and the land of your enemies shal eate you vp. H

And they that are lefte of you, shall pyne away in their vnrighteousnes, euē in their enemyes lande, and also in the wickednes of their fathers shall they consume. And they shall confesse their wickednes and the wickednes of their fathers in their trespaces, whych they haue trespaced against me, & for that also & they haue walked contrary to me. Therfore I also will walke contrarye vnto G them, and will bringe them into the lande of their enemies. And then at the least waye their vncircumcised hertes shalbe tamed, & then they shall make an atonement for their wickednes.

And I will remembre my bond with Ia- Mercy is re-cob, and my testament with Isaac, and my ioyned testament with Abraham, and will thynke vnto hym & on the lande. For the Lande shall be lefte of repenteth, & them and shall haue pleasure in his Sabbo- beleueth that thes, whyle she lyeth wast without them, & God will for-they shall make an atonement for their wic- gyue hym
kednes, because they despised my lawes and their soules refused myne ordinaunces. And yet for all that when they be in the Lande of their enemy, *I will not so cast them away *Deu. iiij. c.
nor my soule shal not so abhorre them, that I will vtterlye destroye them and breake myne appoyntment with them: for I am the Lord their God. I will therfore remembre vnto them the first couenaunte made, when I brought them out of the Lande of Egypte in the sight of the Heathen to be their God: for I am the Lorde.

These are the ordinaunces, iudgmētes, & lawes whych the Lord made betweue hym and the children of Israell in mount Sinai by the hand of Moses.

The.xxvii.Chapter

Of

¶ Of diuerse vowes and the redemyng of the same. Of tythes. &c.

AND the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge, speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them: If any man wyll gyue a singuler vowe vnto the Lord accordynge to the value of hys soule, then shall the male from twentye yere vnto.lx. be
*Nume. iii.g sette at fyfty *sycles of syluer, after the sycle of the sanctuary, & the female at. xxx. sicles.

And from fiue yeares to twenty the male shall be set at twentye sycles, and the female at.x. sycles. And from a moneth vnto.v. yere the male shal be set at.v. sycles of syluer, & the female at thre. And the man that is.lx. and
B aboue, shal be valued at. xv. sycles, and the woma at.x. If he be to poore so to be set, then let hym come before the priestе: and let the priestе value hym accordinge as the hand of hym that vowed is able to get.

If it be of the beastes of whych men bring an offeryng vnto the Lord: all that any man giueth of such vnto the lord, shalbe holy. He may not alter it nor chaunge it: a good for a bad or a bad for a good. If he chaunge beast for beaste, the both the same beast and it also wherewith it was chaunged shalbe holy. If it be any maner of vncleane beaste of which men may not offer vnto the Lorde, let hym bringe the beaste before the priest & lette the priest value it. And whether it be good or badde as the priestе setteth it, so shall it be. And if he wyll hye it agayne, lette him giue the fyfte part more to that it was set at.

If any man dedicate his house, it shall be holy vnto the Lord. And the priest shall sette
C it, whether it be good or bad, & as the priestе hath set it, so it shalbe. If he that sanctified it wyll redeme his house, lette hym giue the fifte part of the money that it was iudged at therto, and it shalbe hys.

If a man.a. halow a pece of hys enhereted lande vnto the Lorde, it shalbe set accordyng to ỳ it beareth. If it beare an homer of barlye, it shal be set at fyfty sycles of syluer. If he halow his feld immediatly that from the yere of iubely, it shal be worth according as it is estemed. But & if he halow his feld after the trumpet yere, the priest shall rekē the price wyth him accordynge to the yeres that remayne vnto the trumpet yere, and therafter it shalbe lower set.

If he that sanctified the field wyl redeme it agayne, let him putte the fyfte parte of the price that it was set at therunto, and it shall be hys, & he wyll not it shall be ordered no mare. But when the fielde goeth out in the yere of iubely, it shalbe holy vnto the Lorde: euen as a thyng dedicated, and it shal be the priestes possession.

D b. Luke Gene. xiij. f.

If a man.b. sanctify vnto the Lorde a field, whych he hath bought and is not of hys enheritaunce, then the priestе shall reken wyth hym what it is worth vnto the yere of Iubely, & he shal gyue the price that it is set at the same day, and it shall be holy vnto the Lord. But in the yere of Jubely, the field shal returne vnto hym of whō he bought it, whose enheritaunce of land it was.

And al settynges shal be accordyng to the *holy sycle. One sycle maketh. xx. Gerah. *Holy sycle or sycle of the sanctuarye they be both one.

But the fyrst borne of the beastes that pertayne vnto the Lorde, maye no man sanctifye whether it be oxe or sheepe, for they are the Lordes alreadye. If it be an vncleane beaste, then lett hym redeme it as it is set at, & gyue the fyfte part more therto. If it be not redemed, thē let it be sold as it is rated.

Notwythstandynge no dedicate thynge that a man dedycateth vnto the Lorde, of all his good whether it be man or beast or lande of his enheritaunce, shalbe solde or redemed for all dedicate thynges are moste holy vnto the Lorde. No dedicate thynge therfore that is dedicate of mā, may be redemed, but must nedes dye.

All these tythes of the Lande, whether it be of the corne of the field or fruite of ỳ trees, shalbe holy vnto the Lord. If anye man will redeme ought of hys tythes, lette hym adde the fyfte parte more therto. And the tythes of oxen and sheepe and of all that goeth vnder the heardemans keppynge, shall be holye tythes vnto the Lorde. Men shall not loke if it be good or badde nor shall chaunge it. If any man chaunge it, then both it and that it was chaunged wythal, shal be holy & maye not be redemed.

These are the commaundementes whyche the Lorde gaue Moses in charge to giue vnto the chyldren of Israell in mount Sinai.

¶ The ende of the thyrd boke of Moses.

Apen-

A Prologe into the fourthe boke of Moses called Numere.

In the seconde & thyrde boke they receyued ye law. And in thys.iiii. they begynne to worcke & to practise. Of whiche practisinge ye se many good ensa|ples of vnbeleffe & what fre will doeth, when the taketh in hande to kepe the law of hir own power Without helpe of faith in the promises of god: how the fourth hyr maisters carkasses by the ware in the wylderues, and bringeth them not into the Lande of reste. Where coulde they not enter in? Bycause of theyr vnbeleffe. Hebrues.iii. For had they beleued, so hadde they bene vnder grace, and theyr olde synnes had bene forgeuen them, and power should haue bene geuen the to haue fulfylled the lawe thencefoorth and they should haue bene kepte from all temptations that had bene to stronge for theym. For it is written. Johan.i. He gaue them power to be the Sonnes of God, that awe beleuynge in hys name.

Nowe to be the Sonne of God is to loue God and his commaundementes and to walke in hys wayes after the ensample of hys Sonne Christe. But these people toke vppon theym to worcke wythout fayeth as thou seest in the first of this boke, where they would fight and also dyd wythoute the worde of promyse: euen when they were warned that they shuldes not. And in the.xvi. agayne they would: pleace god wyth theyr holye fayethlesse worckes (for wher Gods word is not there can be no faith) but the fyre of God consumed theyr holy worckes, euen dyd Nadab and Abihu. Leuit.x. And from these vnbeleuers turne thyne eyes vnto the Phariseis wherbe before the commynge of Christ in hys flesshe hadde layed the fundation of fre wyll after the same exemple. Wheron they built hoy worckes after theyr own imagination with out forth of the worde, so feruently that for the greate zeale of them they lewe the kynge of all holy worckes, and the Lord of fre wyll whiche only thorow hys grace maketh the wyll free & loseleth hyr from bondage of synne, and geueth hir love and loste vnto the lawes of god, and power to fulfyll them. And so thorowe theyr holye worckes done by the power of fre wyll, they excluded them selues out of the holye rest of forgeuenes of sinne be faith in the bloude of Christ.

And then take on our hypocrites wherbe in lyke maner folowynge the doctrine of Aristotle and other Heathen pagaines, bene agaynste all the scripture sette vp fre wyll agayne, vnto whole power they ascribe the happing of the commaundementes of God. For they haue set vp wylfull poverte of an other maner then ones is commaunded of God. And the chastite of matrymony vtterly beried, they haue set vp an other wilful chastite not required of God, wherbe they vowse, vow and professe to gine god, whether he will geue it theym or no, and compell all theyr disciples thereunto, sayinge that it is in the power of euery mannes fre wyll to obserue it, contrarye to Christe and hys Apostle Paule.

And the obedience of god and manne ecclesiasted they haue vowed an other wylfull obedience condemned of all the scripture wherbe they will yet geue God whether he will or will not.

And what is become of theyr wylfull poverte? hath it not robbed the whole worlde, & brought all vnder them? Can there be either kynge or Emperowre or of whatsoeuer degree it be, except he will holde of them and be sworne vnto them to be theyr seruaunte, to goo and come at theyr lustes, and to defende theyr quarelles be they falce or true? Theyr wylfull poverte hathe alreadye eaten vppe the whole worlde & yet stryl greadyar then euer it was, in so muche that ten worldes moo were not inough to satisfye the honger therof.

Moreouer besydes dayly corruptynge of other mennes wyues and open whordome, vnto what abhominacions to lytle to be spoken of, hathe theyr voluntarye chastite brought them?

And as for theyr wylful obedience, what is it, but the disobedience & the disavowe both of all the lawes of god & man in so muche that if any prince begynne to execute any lawe of man vpō the, they curse him vnto the botome of hel, and proclayme him no right kinge & that his lordes ought no longer to obey him, and interdite hys commune people as they were Heathen turkes or Sarasins. And if any man preache theym Goddes lawe, hym they make an heritike and burne hym to asshes. And in stede of Goddes lawe and mans, they haue sett vp one of theyr owne imagination wherbe they obserue wyth dispensations.

And yet in these worckes they haue so greate confydence that they not onlye truste to be saued thereby, and to be heyar in heauen then they that be saued thorow Christ: but also prouyde to all other forgyuenesse of theyr synnes thorowe the merytes of the same. Wherein they erre and teach other to erre also, excludyng the whole worlde fromse the rest of forgeuenesse of synnes thorowe fayeth in Christes bloude.

And now seynge that fayeth onely letteth a man into rest, & vnbeleffe excludeth him, what is the cause of this vnbeleffe? verelye no lyenge that the worlde seeth, but a pope holines and a righteousnes of of their own imagination as Paule sayeth Roma.x. They be ignorante of the righteousnes wherby God iustifieth and haue set vp a righteousnes of theyr owne making thorow which they be disobedient vnto the righteousnes of god. And Christe rebuketh not the Phariseis for groce synnes wherbe the worlde sawe, but for those holy dedes wherbe so blered the eyes of the worlde that they were taken as Goddes: euen for longe prayers, for fastynge, for tithynge so obstinately that they lefte not so muche as theyr herbes vnaccordes, for theyr clennesse in washynge before meate and for washynge of cuppes, dysshes, and all maner vessels, for buyldynge the prophetes sepulchres, and for hangynge the holye dayes, and for turnynge the Heathen vnto the fayeth, and for gaynge of stones.

For vnto suche holy dedes they ascribed righteousnes & therfore whē the righteousnes of god was preached vnto the they could not but persecute it, the deuil was so stronge in theym wherbe thorowe Christe well describeth Luke. xi. sayenge that after the deuell is caste out he cometh agayne and fyndeth his house swepte and made gaye, and then taketh seuen worse then hym selfe and dwelleth therin, and so is the ende of that manne worse then the begynnynge. That is, when they be a lytle cleansed from grose synne wherbe the worlde seeth and then made gaye in theyr owne syghte

with the ryghteousnes of traditions, then for with Leuen, that is to saye the whole power of the deuill, for Leuē in the Hebrues tongue signifieth a multitude without number: & the ceremonie of a thinge vile & spoache beforeth (I suppose) out of Leuiticus where so ofte mencion is made of Leuē. Where I would saye: I will punysh the that all the worlde shall take an example of the thee the Jewe wouldst saye, I will circumcyse the or baptise the Leuen tymes, that is to saye by Leuen to ment all the deuyse of hell & all the myght and power of the deuyll. For vnto what further blyndenes couldst all the deuyse in hell bryng them, then to make the beleue that they were iustified thorowe theyr owne good workes. For whē they once beleued that they were purged from theyr synnes & made ryghteous thorow theyr owne holy workes, what lowne was there lefte for the ryghteousnesse that is in Christes bloudesheddynge? And therefore when they be fallen into this blyndenesse they can not but hate & persecute the light. And the more cleare & euidentelye they beadeo be rebuked the furiouller & malitiouslier blynde are they vntil they breake out into open blasphemy and sinning against the holy goost, which is the malitiouse persecutinge of the cleare trouth so manifestly preued that they can not once bidde against it. As the Phariseis persecuted Christe because he rebuked their holye beades. And when he preached his doctrine & the scriptures & miracles, yet though they couldē not improue hym no: reason against hym they thought that the scripture muste haue some other meanynge because his interpretation vnderwrought their fundation and plucked vp by the rotes the sectes which they had planted, and they allyed also his myracles to the Deuill. And in lyke maner thoughe oure Hypocrites cānot denye but that he is the scripture, yet because there cānot be none other sectes gathered therof, but that ouerthroweth their buyldynges, therefore they oure thynke that it hathe some other meanynge then as the wordes sounde and that no man vnderstādeth it or did vnderstand it sence the tyme of the Apostles.

Or if they thinke that some that wrote vpon it sence the Apostles vnderstode it: yet thinke that we in lyke maner as we vnderstande not the texte it selfe, so we vnderstand not the meanynge of the wordes of that doctour.

For when thou layest the sufficiencye of holye workes, and denyest the sufficiencye of faith, howe canste thou vnderstande Sayncte Paule, Peter, Johan, and the Actes of the Apostles or anye scripture at all, seynge the sufficiencye of faith is aboode all that they entende to proue.

Finally, concerninge bowes wherof thou speakest Chapter. xxx. there may be many questions, wherevnto I answere shortelye that we ought to putte saluo to all oure allegacyons that is, we ought to submitte knowledge in all oure workes, and to do nothinge wherof we could not geue a reason out of Gods worde.

We be no we in the daye lyghte, and all the secretes of God & al hys counsayls are wrytē in scripture vnto vs, & he that was promised should come and bidde vs to come alreadye and hathe bidde hys bloude for vs, and hathe bidde vs lyue with all maner blessynges and hath obteyned all grace for vs, and in him we haue all. Wherfore God hateth the will receyue no more sacrifice of beastes on vs, as thou readest, Heb. x. If thou burne vnto God the bloude or fatte of beastes, to obteyne forgeuenes of synnes therby, or that God shoulde the better heare thy requeste, then thou dost wrong vnto the bloude of Christ, and Christ vnto the in vayne.

For in hym God hath promised mē forgeuenesse of synnes onelye, but also whatsoeuer we aske to hope vnto synne and temporall welthe, And what if thou burne frankencense vnto hym, what if thou burne a candle, what if thou burne thy chaldrye or vestymentes vnto hym for the same purpose, doest thou not lyke vnkinde vnto Christes bloude?

Moreouer, if thou offer golde, syluer or any other good for the same entente: is there anye differēce? And euen so, if thou go in pylgrymage, or fastest, or goest barefoote, or lyenest vpō the grounde with holy water or els whatsoeuere bedde it is, or obseruest whatsoeuer ceremonye it be, for lyke meaninge, then it is lyke abhominacion. We muste therfore beynge the lyght of the knowledge of Godden worde with all oure sacrifices, or elles we shall make no sweete sauoure vnto God therof. Then wryte ye me, shall I vowe nothynge at all? Godden commaundementes whiche thou hast vowed in thy baptysme. For what entente soeuere for the loue of Christe wherin hathe bought the with hys bloude, & made the same and heyre of God with hym, that thou shouldest walke in his wayes & commaundementes and purefye thy wayes according to the same doctrine that hathe purified thyne herte, for if the knowledge of Godden worde haue not purified thyne herte, so that thou consentest vnto the lawe of God that it is ryghteouse, and good, and holye, that thy membres moue the vnto the contrary, so hast thou no part with Christ.

For if thou repente not of the synne, so it is impossible that thou shouldest beleue that Christ hadde deliuered the from the daunger therof. If thou beleue not that Christe hath deliuered the, so is it impossible that thou shouldest loue Goddes commaundementes.

If thou loue not the commaundementes, so is Christes spirite not in the, wherin is the earnest of forgyuenesse of synne and of Saluacion.

For scripture teacheth, fruite repentaunce then layeth in Christe, that for hys sake synne is forgeuen to them that repente: then good workes, wherin are nothynge saue the commaundement of God onely. And the commaundementes are nothynge els saue the louynge of oure neyghbours as they: made and the ordynge of oure membres that they myghte be pure alle as the herte is pure thorowe loue of hym and loue of vertue, as Godden worde teacheth vs, whiche worckes muste procede out of faith: that is, I muste do the for the loue which I haue to God for that greate mercye which he hath shewed me in Christe, or elles I do them not in the lyght of God. And that I thinke not in the power of the ordynge of the synne that is in my flesshe, myne helpe is the promyse of the sufficience of the power of God, and the comforte of the rewarde to come, wherin rewarde I stirre vnto the goodnes, mercy, and trouth of the promyser that hathe chose me, called me, taught me, and geuen me the grace therof, and not vnto the merites of my workes or sufferynges. For all that I do and suffer is but the way to the rewarde & not the deliuerynge therof. So if the hyenge grace Godde promyse me to beleue me at home in myne owne countrye yet the waye thether is perylous the sea, wherein I myghte happely suffer no lesse trouble. And yet for all that, if I myghte hyre a ship where I come thether, I would thanke a fo would other saye, that my perelles were well rewarded which reward and benefite I would not ymputy to stirre vnto the merites of my perelles, sufferynges or the waye: but vnto the goodnes, mercyfulnesse, and constaunte trouth of the hyenge grace which gaue it vs, and to whom the praise, and thanckes the rest belongeth of hatye and ryghte. So muste I rewarde to a gyfte gyuen

trelye of the goodnes of the geuer, and not of the deserynges of the receyuer. Thus it appeareth, that if I vowe whatsoeuer it be, for anye other purpose then to tame my membres and to be an ensample of vertue and edifyenge vnto myne neyghboure, my sacrifice is vnsauery and cleane wythout salte, and my Lampe wythoute oyle, and I one of the folysshe vyrgyns, and shal be shut out from the feaste of the bredegrome when I thynke my selfe most sure to enter in.

If I vowe voluntary pouerty, thys muste be my purpose, that I wyll be content wyth a competente liuyng whyche commeth vnto me eyther by succession of myne elders or whyche I gette truely wyth my labour in ministrynge and doynge seruice vnto the commune wealthe in one office or in an other, or in one occupation or other, because that ryches and honoure shall not corrupte my mynde and drawe myne herte from God, and to geue an ensample of vertue and edifyenge vnto other and that my neyghboure maye haue a liuynge by me as wel as I. If I make a cloke of dissimulation of my vowes, layenge a nette of layned beggerye to catche superfluous aboundaunce of ryches and hye degrees and authorytye, and thereby the estimation of false holynesse to fede & maintayne my slouthfull ydelnesse wyth the sweate labours, landes, and rentes of other men, after the ensample of our spirituality) robbing them of their sarthes and God of hys honoure turnynge vnto myne hypocrisye that confidence whyche shoulde be geuen vnto the promises of God only, am I not a wely foxe, & a rauenynge wolfe in a lambes skynne & a painted sepulcre, fayre without & fylthye within? In like maner though I seke no worldelye promocion therby, yet if I do it to be satisfied therwyth and to get an hyer place in heauen, thynkynge that I do of myne owne naturall strengthe & of the natural power of my fre wyll & that euery man hath myght euen so to doo and that they do it not to their fault & negligence and so with the proude phariseye in comparison of my selfe, despise the synfull publicane: what other thynge do I, then cate the bloud & fleshe of my sacrifice deuourynge that my selfe which should be offered vnto god alone and his Christ. And shortly whatsoeuer a man doeth of hys naturall gyftes, or of hys naturall wytte, wysedome, vnderstandynge, reason, wyll, & good entent be fore he be otherwise & clearly taught of Gods spirite, & haue receyued other wyse vnderstandynge, reason, & wyll, is fleshe, worldelye, and wrought in abhominable blyndenes, & wherin a man can but seke him selfe, his own profyte glorye, & honoure, euen in verye spirituall matters. So if I were alone in a wylderneese where no man were to seke profyte or prayse of yet if I wolde seke heauen of God there, I coulde of myne owne naturall gyftes seeke it more ouer wayes then for the merites and deseruynges of my good workes and to enter therein by an other way then by the doore Christ, which were very theft, for Christ is Lord ouer al and whatsoeuer anye maner wyll haue of God, he muste haue it geuen him freely for Christes sake.

Nowe to haue heauen for myne owne deseruynge, is myne owne prayse, and not Christes. For I can not haue it by fauoure & grace in Christe and by myne owne merytes also: For the geuynge and deseruynge cannot fall together.

If thou wylt offer of thy goodes vnto God thou muste put salte vnto thye sacrifice: that is thou muste mingle knowledge in thye dede as Peter teacheth. 1. Pet. 4. Thou muste put oyle of Gods worde in thy lampe, & be of acceptynge to knowledge, if thou wylte for the clensynge of thy synnes to ryse in wyth hym into hys reste. Thou wylte hange it about the Image to moue men to deuotion. Deuotion is a feruente loue vnto Gods commaundementes and a desyre to be wyth God and wyth hys euerlastynge promises. Howe shall the syghte of suche tyches as are shewed at sayncte Thomas shryne or at Walsingam moue a man to loue the commaundementes of God better and to desyre to be loosed fro me flesshe and to be wyth God, or shall it not rather make hys poore herte syghe because he hath no suche at home and to wythe part of it in an other place?

The preest that haue it in Gods stead. Shall the preest haue it? If the preest be bought wyth Christes bloude, then he is Christes seruaunt & not his owne, & ought therefore to fede Christes flocke wyth Christes doctrine, & to ministre Christes sacramentes vnto the purely for very loue, and not for filthy lucres sake, as to be Lord ouer the as Peter teacheth. 1. Pet. v. and Paul. act. xx. Besides this Christ is ours & is a gifte geuen vs, & we be heyres of Christ & of al that is Christes. Wherfore the preestes doctrine is ours, & we heyres of it, it is the lode of oure soules. Therfore if he ministre it not truely and freely vnto vs wythoute lettynge, he is a theefe and a soule murtherer, and cut lo to be if he take vpon hym to fede vs & haue not wherwyth. And for a lyke conclusion because we also wyth all that we haue be Christes, therfore is the Preest heyre wyth vs also, of all that we haue receyued of God, wherfore in so much as the preest wayteth on the worde of God, and is oure seruaunt therein, therfore of right we are his betters and owe to him a sufficiente liuyng of our goodes, and euen thereto a wyfe of oure daughter owe we vnto hym if he requyre hyr. And nowe when we haue appointed him a sufficiente liuinge, whether in tithes rentes, or yerelye wages, he ought to be content & to require no more nor yet to receyue any more, but to be an exemple of sobernesse and of beseynge wordelye thynges vnto the ensample of his parishioners.

Wylt thou vowe to offer vnto the poore people? that is pleasaunt in the syght of God, for they be left here to do our almes vpon in Christes stead, & they be the ryghte heyres of all oure aboundaunce & ouerplus. Moreouer we muste haue a scole to teach Gods worde in (though it needed not to be so costly) & therfore it is lawful to vowe vnto the buyldynge of mayntaynaunce therof, & vnto helpynge of al good workes. And we ought to vowe to pay tythes, tolle, rente, & al maner of duties and whatsoeuer we owe for that is Gods commaundement.

If thou wylt vowe pilgrymage, thou muste put salte therto in like maner if it shal be accepted, if thou vowe to go and vysit the poore or to heare Gods worde or whatsoeuer edifieth the soule vnto loue & good worke after knowlege or whatsoeuer God commaudeth, it is wel done and a sacrifice that sauoureth well, yt wyll happen ye fare, that ye wyll goo to thys or that place because God hath chosen one place more then an other and wyll heare youre petition more in one place then in an other. So for youre prayer it must be accordynge to Gods worde.

Presume not before God to take vengeaunce on hym who Gods worde teacheth you to pray and to pardon for. And as for that other gloze that god wyll heare you more in one place then in an other, I suppose it, shal inuincibum, fayre balsamy, for if it were wysdome howe coulde we resist the death of Steue. Yet vii. wyues dyed for the Bridde that God dwelleth not in typles made wyth hode. We that beleue in god are the typle of god saith Paule, if a man loue God & kepe hys worde he is the temple of god & hath God presently dwellynge in him, as wytnesseth Christe. Iohn. xiiii. sayinge: If a man

love me he wyl kepe my woꝛde, & then my father wyl love hym and we wyl come vnto hym and dwell wyth hym. And in the. xv. he sayth: if ye abyde in me and my woꝛdes abyde in you, then aꝑe what ye wyll & ye shal have it.

If thou believe in Christ & hadst the promises wherin God hath made the in thyne hert, then go on pylgrymage vnto thyne owne herte and there pray, and God wyl heare the for hys mercye and truethes sake, and for hys sonne Christes sake, and not for a few stones sake What eareth God for the temple? The very bralles in that they have hys in theym be muche better then an heape of stones couched together.

To speake of chastite, it is a gyfte not geuen vnto al persones testifyeth both Christe and also hys Apostle Paule, wherfoꝛe all persons may not vowe it. Moꝛeouer there be causes wherfoꝛe manye persones may better lyve chaste at one tyme then at an other. Manye maye lyve chaste a twentye and thyrty foꝛ certayne colde diseases folowynge them, whereto at. xl. when they health to come can not be. Many be occupied wyth wylde phantasies in theyr youth, that that care not foꝛ marage, wil the same when they be waxen old that be greatly dyseruous, it is a daungerous thing to make vowe where none is, and to foꝛfeasse the benefits of God and to bind the self vnder payne of damnation of the soule that thou wouldest not vse the remedye that God hath created it vnto requyred.

Am other thynge is thys, beware that thou get the not a fayre fayned chastite made wyth the hypocrite persuasions of layme hypocrites as of Guido in hys fyftye boke of the remedye a gaynste love, shall when thoꝛowe lustye imaginations thou hast vtterly holpeth, holpe, and abhoꝛred all womans kynde, shalt come into lustie talk thoꝛowe the fauoꝛe wyttes of God, that thou canste neyther lyve chaste nor fynde in thy herte to marye, and so be compelled to fall into the abhominations of the pope against nature and kynde.

Moꝛeouer God is a wyse father & knoweth al the infirmities of hys children, & is mercyfull, and therefoꝛe hath created a remedy wyth euery frame and gaue therto hys fauoure and blessynge. Let vs not be wyser then God wyth our imaginations, nor tempt him, foꝛ as gyftes chastite is not euery mans gyfte: but he that hath it to hym hath not power to obteyne it of hys owne nature, neyther hath God promysed to gyue it hym fyrst & to cure hys infirmyte eue wyth oute hys natural remedye, no moꝛe then he hath promysed to take hys hunger the out meate, or thyrst wythout drynke.

Wherfoꝛe other lye al thynges bide fre and as God hath created them, and nother vowe that wherto God requyred not, nor foꝛfeasse that wherto God promysed the wyth hys fauoure and blessynge after the if thou wylte kepe thyne vowe. Vowe vnto God & make a chaste: that thou wylte continue chaste so long as God geueth the that gyfte, & as longe as neyther thyne owne necessite, nother charite stoꝛeth the not: gaynste our, nor the authoꝛyte of the maker wedde power them art bounde vnto the obeye.

The puryshe of the vowe ought to be taken also in the wyldome of God. Thou maist not vowe to be subiecte thereby vnto the satisfaction foꝛ thy synnes or to woꝛke heauen wyth hyer place: foꝛ then breke thou wronge vnto the bloude of Christ yche vowe were playne Idolatry & abhominable in the syghte of God. Thy vowe must be onely vnto the furtheraunce of the cõmaundementes of God, which are as I have sayed nothing but the ꝛuninge of the mysery and the seruice of the neyghboure: that is if thou ryseste the backe to wooke foꝛ: the burthen of wickednes & that thou canst not exercise thy wyfe, children, seruauntes, and make prouision foꝛ the goddy & wythoute ouermuche lustynge and wauntynge thy selfe, and dyminysshe thy selfe in worldly busynesse wythoute ꝛuine of that thou canst doone thy neyghboure in some other better beynge chaste then maryed. And then thy vowe is good & lawfull. And euen so must thou vowe obedience of meates and drynkes in foꝛce foꝛthe as it is profitable vnto thy neyghboure: & vnto the taminge of thy flesh: But thou canst vowe neither of them vnto the hynge of thy body. Sa Paule commaundeth Timothe to drynke wyne & no moꝛe water. Beeause of hys infirmyte. Thou wilt say that Timothe had not happely soꝛe stomoꝛe wyne. I thynke the same and that the Apostle knewe not medicine (though many of them speak thereof) neither yet knewe meate ne drynke, wherby they abhoꝛred from the, & that it were good foꝛ vs to folowe their exaumple. Moꝛeouer though I vowe and sweare and thynke on none exception, yet is the hyenesse of Gods commaundementes except all chaunces that hange of God. So if I chaunce to be in a certayne place, at a certayne houre to make a loue here without exception, yet if the hynge in the meane tyme commaunde me another were, I muste go by Gods commaundemente, and yet breake not myne oth. And in like case if my father and mother be syeke and require my presence, as of my wyfe, children or housholde be beleed that my abidinge be required, as if my neyghboure house be a fyre at the same houre and a thousande lyke chaunces reason wherby all I breake myne oths and am not forsworne and so forth. Wherfoꝛe God wyth humylyte & wyth a good hert and a stedy

And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: onelye se that thou numbre not the tryb of Leuy, neither take the summe of them amōg the chyldren of Israell. But thou shalte appoynt the Leuites vnto the habitatiō of witnesse, and to all the apparell therof and vnto all that longeth therto. For they shal bear the tabernacle and al the ordinaunce therof, and they shall minister it, and shall pytche their tentes rounde about it. And when the tabernacle goth forth the Leuites shall take it downe: and whē the tabernacle is pitched they shal set it vp: for if any straunger come nere, he shal dye. And the chyldren of Israel shall pytche their tentes, euerye man in his owne companye and euery man by his owne standart throughout all their hostes. But the Leuites shall pytche rounde about the habitation of witnes, that there fall no wrathe vpon the congregation of the children of Israel, and the Leuites shal wayte vpō the habitation of witnesse. And the children of Israel dyd accordyng to al that the Lord commaunded Moses.

The.ii.Chapter.

¶ The order of the pytchynge of the Tentes rounde about the tabernacle of wytnes. The heade and chefe Lordes of the kynredes of Israel are named.

A And the Lord spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayinge: The chyldren of Israell shall pitch euerye man by his owne standarte with the armes of their fathers houses, aware from the parfence of the tabernacle of witnes.

On the easte side the cōpany of Juda Issachar and Zabulon. On the East syde toward the ryssynge of the Sunne shall they of the standarte of the hoost of Juda pytch with their armes: And Nahesson the sonne of Aminadab shalbe capitayne ouer the sonnes of Juda. And his hoost and the numbre of them. lxxiiii. thousande and.vi. hundred. And next vnto hym shall the tryb of Issachar pytche and Nathanaell the sonne of Zuar captayne ouer the chyldren of Issachar, his hoost and the numbre of them liii.thousand.iiii.hundred.

And then the tryb of Zabulon: & Eliab the sonne of Helon, captayne ouer the chyldren of Zabulon, and his hoost in the numbre of them.lvii.thousand.q. iiii hundred. So B that all they that pertayne vnto the hoste of Juda are an hundred thousand.lxxxvi.thousand and.iiii.hundred, in their companyes: and these shall go into the forefronte, when they journey.

On the south syde the companye of Ruben Symeon and Gad. And on the southsyde, the standarte of the hoost of Ruben shall lye with their companyes & the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ruben Elizur the sonne of Sedeur, and his hoost and the numbre of them. xlvi. thousand q.b.hundred. And fast by hym shal the tryb of Symeon pytche, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Symeon. Salumiel the sonne of Zurp Sadai, and his hoost and the numbre of them.lix.thousand and.iii.hundred. And the tryb of Gad also: And the captayne ouer the sonnes of Gad, Eliasaph the sonne of Dreuell his hoste and the numbre of the xlv.thousande fyue hundred and fifty. So that all the numbre that pertayne vnto the hoste of Ruben, are an hundred thousande li.thousande. iii. hundred and fyfty by their companyes, and they shall be the seconde in the iourney. C

The Leuites with ỹ tabernacle in the myddest. And the tabernacle of wytnesse with the hoost of the Leuites, shall goo in the myddes of the hostes: as they lye in their tentes, euē so shall they procede in the iourney, euerye man in his quarter about the standartes.

On the weste syde the companye of Ephraim Manasse & Benjamin. On the weste syde the standarte and the hoost of Ephraim shal lye with their companyes. And the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ephraim Elisama the Sonne of Ammiud: & his hoste and the numbre of them.xl.thousand and.b.hundred.

And fast by hym, the tryb of Manasse, and the captayne ouer the Sonnes of Manasse, Gamaliel the sonne of Pedazur and his hoste, and the numbre of them. xxxii. thousand and two hundred. And the tribe of Ben Jamin also: and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ben Jamin, Abidan the Sonne of Gedeoni, and his hoste and the numbre of them.xxxv.thousande & iii.hundred. All the numbre that pertayned to the hoste of Ephraim, were an hundred thousand. viii. thousand and an hundred in their hostes: & they shalbe the third in the iourney.

On the north syde the company of Dan Aser & Nephthali. And the standart & the hoste of Dan shall lye on the north syde with their companies: and the captayne ouer the chyldren of Dan, Ahiezer the sonne of Ammi Sadai: and his hoost & the number of them. lvii. thousande and vii. hundred. And fast by hym shall the tribe of Aser pytch, & the captaine ouer the sonnes of Aser, Pagiel the sonne of Ocran: and his hoste, and the numbre of them. xli.thousand & b.hundred. And the tribe of Nephthaly also & the captayne ouer the chyldren of Nephtali: Ahira the sonne of Enan: and hys hoste and the nombre of them, liii. thousande and.iiij. hundred. So that the hole nombre of all that pertayned vnto the hoste of Dan, was an hundred thousande. lvii. thousande & vi. hundred. And they shal be the last in that iourney with their standertes.

These are the summes of the chyldren of Israel in the house of their fathers: euen all the nombres of the hoste with their companyes. vi. hundred thousande. iij. thousand. v. hundred and fifty. And yet the Leuites were not nombred among the chyldren of Israell, as the Lord commaunded Moses. And the chyldren of Israel dyd according to all that the Lord commaunded Moses, and so they pitched with their standertes, & so they iourneyd euery man in hys kynred, and in the howshold of hys father.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

¶ The Leuites are not nombred to goo to battell, but to mynistre to the holy place & sanctuary. They must also pitch their tentes next to the habitacyon.

THese are the generatiõs of Aaron & Moses, when the Lorde spake to Moses in mount Sinai and these are the names of the sonnes of Aarõ: Nadab the eldest sõne, and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. These are the names of the sonnes of Aaron which were priestes anoynted & their handes fylled to minister, but Nadab and Abihu dyed before the Lorde, as they broughte straunge fyre before the Lord in the wylderneß of Sinai, & had no chyldre. And Eleazar & Ithamar mynistred on the syght of Aaron their father.

*Leui.x.a Num.xxvi.g

And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: D bringe the tribe of Leui, and set the before Aaron the priest, & let the serue hym, & wayte vpon him & vpõ al the multitude, before the tabernacle of witnes, to do the seruyce of the habitation. And they shall wayte vpon all the apparell of the tabernacle of wytnesse, & vpon the chyldren of Israel, to do the seruice of the habitatiõ. And thou shalt gyue the Leuites vnto Aaron & hys sonnes, for they are geuen vnto him of the children of Israel. And thou shalt appoynt Aaron and his sonnes to wayte on their priestes office: & the straunger E that cometh nye, shal dye for it.

*Exo.xiii.a Num.viij.f

And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: behold* I haue take the Leuites frõ among the children of Israel, for al the firstborne & openeth the matrice, amõg the children of Israel, so the Leuites shall be myne: bycause al the firstborne are myne: for the same day that I smote al the firstborne, in the land of Egypt, I halowed vnto me al the firstborne in Israel, both man and beaste, & myne they shalbe, for I am the Lord.

Leuite sometyme signifieth one that is a minister, or seruaunt, as here and Exo. xxi. g.

¶ The.v. Chapter.

¶ Who they be that ought to be cast out of ỹ hoste. The knowlegynge of synne. The cleansyng of synne done of ignorāce. The law of the tryall trueth, & of iealousye.

AND the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: commaunde the chyldē of Israel, that they put out of the hoste, al the leapers & all that haue yssues and al that are defyled vpon the dead, whether they be males or females ye shall put them oute of the hoste, that they defyle not the tentes among whych ye dwell. And the chyldren of Israel dyd so, and put them oute of the hoste euen as the Lorde commaunded Moses, so dyd the chyldren of Israell.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israell: whether it be man or woman, when they haue synned any maner of sinne which a mā doeth where wyth a man a trespaseth agaynst the Lord, so that the soule hath done amysse: then they shall knowledge their synnes whyche they haue done, and restore agayn the hurte that they haue done in ỹ whole, and put the fyft parte of it moare thereto, and geue it vnto hym whom he hath trespased agaynst. But and yf he that maketh the amendes haue no mā to do it to, then the amendes that is made shalbe the Lordes and the Preastes, beside the ram of the attonement offeryng, wherwith he maketh an attonement for him self. And al heaue offerynges of all the halowed thynges which the chyldren of Israel bryng vnto the preaste, shalbe the preastes, & euery mans halowed thynges shalbe hys awne, but what soeuer any man geueth the preast, it shalbe the preastes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israell, and saye vnto them. If any mans wyfe go aside and trespase agaynste hym, so that another man lye with her fleshely and the thynge be hyd from the eyes of her husbande and is not come to light that she is defyled (for there is no wytnesse agaynst her) in as moche as she was not taken wyth the maner, and the spirite of.b. iealousy commeth vpon him and he is

is ielouse ouer hys wyfe and she defyled, or happely the spirite of ielousye cometh vpon him, and he is ielouse ouer hys wyfe and she yet vndefyled. Then let her husband bringe her vnto the Preast and bringe an offeryng for her: the tenthe parte of an Epha of barly meele, but shall poure none oyle thereunto, nor put frankencense theron: for it is an offeryng of ielousye, and an offeryng that maketh remembraunce of synne.

And let the preast bringe her and sett her before the Lord, and let him take holy water in an erthen vessel & of the dust that is in the L floore of the habitacyon, and put it in to the water. And the preast shal set the wife before the Lorde and vncouer her head, and put the memorial of the offering in her handes which is the ielousye offeryng, & the preast shal have bytter and cursyng water in hys hand, and he shal coniure her & shal saye vnto her. If no man have lyen with the nether haste gone aside, and defyled thy selfe behynd thy husbande, then have thou no harme of thys bytter cursyng water.

But and yf thou hast gone aside behynde thyne husband and art defyled & some other man hath lyē with the beside thyne husband (and let the preast coniure her with the conjuracion of the curse & say vnto her: the Lord make the a curse and a coniuracion amonge thy people: so that the Lord make thy thygh rotte, and thy belly swel in this bitter cursing water goo in to the bowels of the, & thy belly swel and thy thygh rotte, and the wyfe shal say. c. Amen Amen.

And the preast shal wrytte thys curse in a byl and washe it out in the bitter water. And
D when the cursynge water is in her that it is bytter, then let the preast take the ielousye offeryng out of the wyfes hand, & waue it before the Lord, and bring it vnto the alter: and he shal take an handeful of the memorial offeryng and burne it vpon the alter, and then make her drynke the water and whe he hath made her drynke the water. If she be defyled and have trespased agaynst her husband, then shal the cursyng water go in to her and be so bytter, that her belly shal swell and her thygh shall rotte, & she shalbe a curse among her people. And yf she be not defyled but is cleane, then she shal have no harme, but shal be mary conceyue.

This is the lawe of ielousye, when a wife goeth a syde behynde her husband and is defyled, or when the spirite of ielousye cometh vpon a man, so & he is ielouse ouer hys wyfe then he shal bryng her before the Lorde, and the Preast shall minister all thys lawe vnto her, and the man shalbe giltelesse, and & wyfe shal beare her synne.

¶ The lawe of them that vowe vppon the abstynence. The maner of blessyng the people.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses A layenge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and say vnto them: whether man or woma appoynteth to. a. bowe a bowe of abstinēce for to abstem vnto the Lord, he shall abstayne fro wyne & stroge drynke, and shall drynche no vynegre of wyne or of stroge drynke, nor shal drynke whatsoeuer is pressed out of grapes: & shall eate no fresh grapes nether yet dryed as log as hys abstynence endureth. Moreouer he shal eate nothyng that is made of & vyne tre no not so much as the cornels or the huske of the grape.

And as longe as the bowe of his abstynence endureth, there shall no rasure nor shere come vpon hys herd, vntyl his dayes be out which he sanctyfieth vnto the Lord, and he shalbe holy and shall let the lockes of hys heare growe. As log as he abstayneth vnto & Lord he shall come at no dead bodye: he shall not make hym selfe vncleane at the death of hys father, mother, brother or sister: for the. b. abstynence of hys God is vpon hys head. And therfore as longe as hys abstynence lasteth, he shalbe holy vnto the Lord.

And yf it fortune that any wil by chaunce dye sodenly before him, and defile the heed of hys abstynence, then must he shaue his head the day of his clensyng: euen the seuenth day he shall shaue it. And the eyght daye he shall bringe. ii. turtels or. ii. younge pigeons to the preast, vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the preast shall offre the one for a synnofferyng & the other for a burntofferyng & make an attonement for him, as concernynge that he synned vpon the dead, and shall also halowe his head the same daye & he shall abstayne vnto the Lorde the tyme of hys abstinence, and shall bringe a lambe of an yere old for a trespacofferynge: but the dayes & were before are lost, because hys abstinencie was despled. Thys is the lawe of the abstrynet, when the tyme of hys abstynence is out he shalbe brought vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse & he shal bring his offeryng vnto the Lorde: an he labe of a yere old wyth out blemyshe for a burntofferynge & a he lambe of a yere old without blemyth for a synofferynge, a ram without blemyth also for a peaceofferynge, and a basket of swete bread of fyne flour myngled with oyle and wafers of swete bread anointed with oyle wt meatofferynges and drynkofferynges that longe thereto.

And the preast shal bringe him before the Lord and offer his synofferyng & hys burntofferyng, and shal offer that ram for a peace offeryng vnto the Lorde wyth the basked of swete bread, and the preast shal offer also hys meatofferyng and hys drynckofferyng. And the abstrynet shal shaue his head in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse and shal take ✠ heare of his sober head & put it in that fyre whych is vnder the peaceoffering. Then the preast shall take the sodden shoulder of the ram and one swete cake out of the basket and one swete wafer also & put them in the hãde of the abstrynet after he hath shauen his abstinence of, and the preast shall waue them vnto the Lord, whych offering shalbe wholy vnto the preast with the wauebrest and heue shoulder: and then the abstrenet may drynke wyne. Thys is the law of the abstrynet whiche hath vowed hys offering vnto the Lord for hys abstynence, besydes that hys hande can gett. And accordyng to the vowe whych he vowed, euen so he must do in the lawe of hys abstynence.

And the Lord talked wyth Moses saying speake vnto Aaron and hys sonnes sayinge: of thys wyse ye shal blesse the chyldren of Israel saying vnto them:

And Aaron did euē so, and put the lampes vpon the fore front of the candelstycke, as the Lord commaunded Moses, & the worke of the candelstyck was of fyne golde: both the shaft and the floures therof. And accordyng vnto the wisdom why che the Lord had shewed Moses euen so he made the candelstyck.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses saynge: take the Leuites from amonge the chyldren of Israel, and cleanse them. And thus do vnto them when thou cleansest the, sprenkle water of purifyenge vpon them and make a rasure to ronne alonge vpon all the fleshe of them, and let them washe their clothes, and B then they shal be cleane. And let them take a bullocke and hys meateoffrynge, fyne floure myngled with oyle: and another bullocke shalt thou take to be a synneoffrynge.

Then bryng the Leuites before the tabernacle of witnesse and gether the whole multitude of the chyldē of Israel together. And bryng the Leuites before the Lorde, and let the chyldren of Israell put their handes vpō the Leuites. And let Aaron heaue the Leuites before the Lorde, for an heaueoffrynge geuen of the chyldren of Israel, and then let them be appointed to wayte vpon the seruyce of the Lorde.

And let the Leuytes put their handes vpō the heades of the bullockes, & then offer the: the one for a synneoffrynge and the other for a burntoffrynge vnto the Lorde, to make an attonemēt for the Leuites. And make the Leuites stande before Aaron and hys sonnes, & heaue them to be an heaueoffrynge vnto the Lorde. And thou shalt separate the Leuites from among the chyldē of Israel, that they be myne: and after that let them goo and do the seruice of the tabernacle of witnesse. ¶ The.ix. Chapter.

¶ The ryte or professe offrynge of the cleane and vncleane. A cloude coueryng the tabernacle vnder the name.

And

1 AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the wildernesse of Sinai, in the
* Exo.xii.a. Exod.xxiij.a Num.xxviij.c Deut.xvi.a fyrste moneth of the seconde yere after they *were come out of the lande of Egypt saying: let the chyldren of Israell offer Passeouer in hys season: euen
the.xiiij. daye of thys moneth at euen, they shall kepe it in hys season, accordynge to all the ordinaunces and maners therof. And Moses bad the chyldren of Israell that they shoulde offer Passeouer, and they offered Passeouer the.xiiij. daye of the fyrst moneth
at euen in the wyldernesse of Sinai: and dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde commaun-
ded Moses.

And it chaunced that certayne men whych were defyled vp a dead coarse that they might not offer Passeouer the same daye, came before Moses and Aaron the same tyme, and 2 sayde: We are defyled vpon a dead coarse,
wherfore are we kepte backe that we maye not offer an offeryng vnto the Lorde in the due season, amonge the chyldren of Israell?
And Moses sayde vnto them: tary, that I
maye here what the Lorde wyll commaunde you. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israell
and saye. If any man amonge you or youre children after you be vncleane by the reason of a coarse or is in the waye ferre of, then let hym offer Passeouer vnto the Lorde: the xiiij. day of the seconde moneth at euen, and eate it with swete bread and soure herbes, &
3 let them leaue none of it vnto the mornynge
nor breake any boone of it. And accordynge to all the ordinaunce of the Passeouer let them offer it.

But yf a man be cleane & not let in a iour-ney, and yet was negligent to offer. a. Passeouer the same soule shall perysh from hys
people, because he brought not an offeryng
vnto the Lorde in his due season: and he shal
4 bere hys synne. And when a straunger dwel leth amonge you and wyll offer Passeouer
vnto the Lorde accordynge to the ordinaunce
of Passeouer and maner therof shal he offre
it. And ye shall haue one lawe both for the straunger & for him that was borne at home in the land.

And the same day that the habitacio was reared vp, a cloude couered it an hye vpon
the tabernacle of witnesse: and at euen there was vpon the habitacion, as it were the sy-militude of fyre vntyll the mornyng. And so it was alway, that the cloude couered it by day, and the symylitude of fyre by nyght.
And when the cloude was taken vp from of the tabernacle, then the chyldren of Israell iourneyed: and where & cloud abode there & chyldren of Israell pitched their tentes. At the mouthe of the Lorde the chyldren of Israel iourneyed, and at the mouth of & Lorde
5 they pitched. And as long as & cloude abode vpon the habitacion, they lay styl. and when the cloude tarped styll vpon the habitacion
longe tyme, the chyldren of Israell wayted
vpon the Lord and iourneyed not.

If it chaunced that the cloude abode any space of tyme vpon the habitacion, then they kepte their tentes at the mouth of the Lorde
and they iourneyed also at the commaunde-ment of the Lord. And yf it happened that & cloude was vpon the habitacion from euen
vnto mornynge and was taken vp in & mor-nynge then they iourneyed. Whether it was by daye or by nyght that the cloude was taken vp, they iourneyed. But when & cloude tarped *two dayes or a moneth or a long season vpon the habitacion, as longe as it tar-ped theron, the chyldren of Israell kepte their tentes and iourneied not. And as soone
as the cloude was taken vp, they iourneied.
At the mouth of the Lord they restyd, & at &
commaundement of the Lord they iourneyed.
And thus they kepte the watche of the Lord,
at the commaundemedt of the Lorde by the hande of Moses.

*After & grewe certayne dayes, a fewe or some dayes.

¶ Aaron and Mir Jam grudge against Moses. Miriam was stryken with the lepre and healed at the prayer of Moses.

AND Myriam & Aaron spake a-gaynst Moses, because of hys
wyfe of Inde which he had taken: for he had take to wife one of Inde. And they sayde doth þ Lorde speake only thorowe Moses? doth he not speake also by vs? And the Lorde hearde
it. But Moses was a very mylde man above al the men of the erth. And the lord spake at-once vnto Moses vnto Aarō and Myriam:
come out ye.iii. vnto the tabernacle of wyt-
nesse: and they came out al thre.

And the Lord *came doune in the piller of the cloude and stode in the dore of the tabernacle & called Aaron and Myriam. And they went out both of them. And he sayed heare my wordes If there be a prophet of the Lor-des among you, I wyl shewe my selfe vnto
him in a vision & wyll speake vnto hym in a dreame. But my seruaunt Moses is not so,
which is faithful in al mine house. Vnto him
I speake.a.mouth to mouth and he seith the syght & the facion of the Lord, & not thorowe ryddels. Wherfore the were ye not afraid to speake agaynst my seruaunt Moses?

And the Lord was angry with them and went his way, and the cloud departed from
of the tabernacle. And beholde, Myriam was become leprous, as it were snowe. And when Aaron loked vpon Myriam and sawe
that she was lepr ous, he sayde vnto Moses:
Oh I beseche the my Lord, put not the synne vpon vs which we haue foolishly committed and synned. Oh, let her not be as one þ came dead out of hys mothers wombe: for halfe her flesh is eaten away.

And Moses cryed vnto the Lord sayinge:
Oh God, heale her. And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: If her father had.b.spitte in her face should she not be ashamed.vii.dayes, let her be shytte out of the hoste.vii.dayes, and after that let her be receyued in agayne. And Myriam was shut out of þ hoste.vii.dayes and the people remoued not, tyll she was brought in agayne. And afterward they remoued from Haseroth, and pitched in þ wyl
dernesse of Pharan.

☞ The notes.

a. To speake mouth to mouth, is to shew cer tenly by manifest signes and tokens, so that therby we be vndoubtedly assured of þ wyl
of God. As for the bodyly mouth, here is no mention therof.

b. If her father had spyt in her face, That is yf he had punished her and caused her to se
her offence. The Lorde is a father, and punysheth hys chosen not to damne them, but to correct them and feare them, and to driue
them to cruell repentaunce. After.vii.dayes was she receyued agayne into the hoste: so after repentaunce had must we be receyued
into the congregation.

and se the lande what maner thyng it is and the people þ dwelleth therin: whether they

what the lande is that they dwel in whether it be good or bad, and what maner of cyties
they dwel in whether they dwel in tentes or walled townes, and what maner of lande it is: whether it be fatt or leane, and whether there be trees therin or not. And be of a good C courage, and bryng of the fruites of the lād.
And it was about the tyme that grapes are fyrst rype.

And they wēt vp & searched out the land
from the wylderuesse of Zin vnto Rehob,

betweene twayne, and also of the pomgranates and of the figges of the place. The ryuer was called.b. Nehell Escoll, because of the cloustre of grapes whych the children of Israel cut doune there.

And they turned backe agayn from searchynge the land, at.xl. dayes ende. And they went and came to Moses and Aaron & vnto
all the multitude of the chyldren of Israell, vnto

vnto the wylderneſſe of Pharan: euen vnto Cades, and broughte them worde and alſo vnto all the congregation, and ſhewed them the frute of the lande. And they tolde hym ſayinge: we came vnto the land wether thou ſendeſt vs, and ſurelye it is a lande that flo-weth wyth mylke and honye and here is of the frute of it. Neuertheleſſe the people be ſtrong that dwell in the lande, and the Cytyes are walled and exceadynge greate, and moreo-uer, we ſawe the chyldren of Anach ther. The Amalechites dwell in the ſouth contre, & the Hethytes, Jebuſites and the Amorites dwel in the mountaynes, and the Cananites dwell by the ſea and a longe by the coſte of Jordan.

And Caleb ſtylled the murmure of the people agaynſt Moſes ſayinge: let vs go vp and conquere it, for we be able to ouercome it. But the men that went vp wyth hym, ſayde: We be not able to go vp agaynſte the people for they are ſtroger the we: And they brought vp an euel reporte of the lād whych they had ſearched, vnto the chyldē of Iſrael ſayinge: The lande whyche we haue gone throwe to ſearche it out, is a lande that .b. eateth vp the inhabiters therof, and the people that we ſawe in it are men of ſtature. And there we ſawe alſo gyaūtes, the chyldren of Anach whychare of the gyaūtes. And we ſemed in oure ſyght as it were greſhoppers and ſo we dyd in their ſyght.

¶ The.xiiii. Chapt.

¶ The people deſpearyng of comynge to the land promyſed, do murmur agaynſt God. and would haue ſtoned Caleb and Joſua. The ſlaū-ghter of the land dyr. Anabell kylleth the Ma-riſtes.

AND all the multitude cryed out, and the people wepte thatnyght, and all the chyl-dren of Iſrael murmured a-gaynſt Moſes and Aaron. And the whole congregacion ſayde vnto them: wolde God that we had dyed in the land of Egypt, other we wold that we had dyed in thys wyldernelle. Wherfore hath the Lorde broughte vs vnto thys lande to fall vpon the ſwerde, that both oure wyues, and alſo our chyldre ſhoulde be a praye: is it not better for vs we returne vnto Egypt agayne? And they ſayd one to another: let vs make a captayne and returne vnto Egypt agayn.

And Moſes and Aaron fel on their faces before al the congregacion of the multitude of the chyldre of Iſrael. And Joſua the ſonne of Nun, & caleb the ſonne of Jephune wheych were of them that ſerched the land rent their clothes and ſpake vnto all the compayne of the chyldren of Iſrael ſayinge: The lande which we walked throwe to ſerche it, is a very good land. If the Lorde haue luſt to vs he wyl bringe vs in to thys land and geue it vs, whyche is a lande that floweth wyth mylke and honye. But in any wyſe rebell not agaynſt the Lorde, Moreouer feare ye not the people of the land, for they are but bread for vs. Their ſhyeld is departed from them, and the Lorde is wyth vs: feare them not therfore.

And all the whole multitude bade ſtone them with ſtones. But the glory of the Lord appeared in the tabernacle of witneſſe, vn-to all the chyldren of Iſrael. And the Lorde ſayde vnto Moſes: Howe longe ſhall thys people .b. raple vpon me, & how long wyll it be ere they beleue me, for all my ſygnes wh-che I haue ſhewed amonge them? I wyll ſmyte them wyth the peſtilence and deſtroy them, & wyll make of the a greater nacion & a mygh-tier then they.

And Moſes ſayd vnto the Lorde: then the Egyptiās ſhall heare it, for thou broughteſt thys people wyth thy myght from among them. And it wylbe told to the inhabiters of thys land alſo, for they haue heard likewyſe, that thou the Lord are amōg thys people, & that thou art ſene face to face, and that thy cloude ſtandeth ouer them & that thou goeſt before the by day tyme in a pyller of a cloud and in a pyller of fire by nyght. If thou ſhalt kyl al thys people as they were but one man then the nacions which haue herde the fame of the, wyl ſpeake ſayinge: becauſe the Lorde was not able to bringe in thys people into the land which he ſware vnto them, therfore he ſlewe them in the wylderneſſe.

So nowe let the power of my Lorde be greate, accordyng as thou haſt ſpoke ſayinge: The Lord is longe yere he be angry, and ful of mercy, and ſuffereth ſynne and treſpace, and leaueth no man innocent, and viſyteth the vnrighteouſneſſe of the fathers vpon the chyldren, euen vpon the third and fourth ge-neraciō, be mercyfull I beſeche the therfore vnto the ſynne of thys people accordyng vn-to thy greate mercy, and accordyng as thou haſt forgeuen thys people from Egypt euen vnto thys place.

And the Lorde ſayde: I haue forgeuen it, accordyng to thy requeſt. But as truelye as

J lyue, all the erth shalbe.c. fylled w̄ my glorye. For of al those men which haue seue my glorye & my miracles which J did in Egypte & in the wyldernesse, & yet haue tēpted me now this.x. tymes & haue not herkened vnto my voyce, there shall not one se the lande which J swarē vnto their fathers neither shal any of thē that rayled vpon me, se it. But my seruaunt Caleb because there is another maner spirite with him, and because he hath followed me vnto the vttmost: him J wil bryng into the lande whyche he hath walked in, & his seed shall conquere it, and also the Amalechites and Cananites whych dwell in the lowe countrey. To morowe turne you & get you into the wyldernesse: euen the waye toward the redd sea.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayinge: how longe shal this euyll multitude murmure agaynst me? J haue herde the murmurynges of the chyldren of Jsraell whych they murmure against me. Tell them that the Lorde sayeth. As truly as J lyue, J wyl do vnto you euen as ye haue spoken in myne eares. Your carkeises shall lye in this wyldernesse, neither shal any of these nōbres whych were nombred from .xx. yere & aboue of you which haue murmured agaynste me come into ✠ land ouer which* J lyfted mine hande to make you dwell therin, saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune, and Josua the sonne of Nun. Luke xxo. bvb

And your chyldre which ye said should be a praye, them J wyl bryng in, and they shall knowe the lande which ye haue refused, and your carkeises shall lye in this wyldernesse And your chyldren shall wandre in this wildernesse .xl. yeres and suffre for your .b. whoredome vntil your carkeises be wasted in ✠ wyldernesse, after the nombre of the daies in which ye serched out ✠ land .xl. daies, & euery daye a yere: so ✠ they shall beare your vnrighteousnes .xl. yere, & ye shal fele my displeasure J the Lorde haue sayed that J wyll do it vnto all this euyll congregacion that are gathered together against me: euen in this wyldernesse ye shalbe consumed, and here ye shal dye.

And the men which Moses sent to serche the lande, & which (when they came again) made all the people to murmure against it in that they brought vp a slaunder vpon the lande: dyed for they bringing vp that euyll slaunder vpon it, & were plaged before the Lorde. But Josua the sonne of Nun and Caleb the sonne of Jephune which were of the men that went to serche the lande, lyued styll. And Moses tolde these sayinges vnto al the chyldren of Jsraell, and the people toke great sorowe.

And they rose vp early in the morninge & gat them vp into the toppe of ✠ mountayne sayinge: lo we be here, & wyll go vp vnto the place of which the Lorde sayed, for we haue synned. And Moses sayed: wherfore wyll ye go on thys maner beyonde the worde of the Lorde? it wyll not come well to passe go not vp for the Lorde is not amonge you, that ye be not slayne before your enemyes. For the Amalechytes and the Cananites are there before you, and ye wyll fal vpon the swerde because ye are tourned awaye from the Lorde, and therfore the Lorde wyll not be wyth you.

But they were blynded to go vp into the hyll toppe: Neuer the latter, the arcke of the testament of the Lord and Moses departed not out of the hoste. Then ✠ Amalechytes & the Cananites which dwelt in that hyl, came doune and smote them and hewed them vtterly vnto Horma.

The dyuchofferynges of them that enter in to the lande. The punishment of hym that synneth of arrogance or pryde. The man is stoned that gathered stycks on the Sabboth. Sacrifice must be made vpon the quarters of they garmentes.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Jsraell & saye vnto the: when ye be come into the land of your habytacion whiche J geue vnto you, & wyll offer an offering vpon the fyre vnto the Lord, whether it be a burnt offerynge or a specyall vowe or free wyll offerynge or yf it be in your principall feastes to make a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, of the oxen or of the flocke.

Then let him that offereth hys offerynge vnto the Lord, bringe also a meatofferynge of a tenth deale of floure myngled wyth the fourth parte of an hin of oyle, and the fourth parte of an hin of wine for a dryncofferynge and offer with ✠ burntofferyng or any other offeryng when it is a lambe. And vnto a ram thou shalt offer a meatofferyng of two tenth deales of floure, myngled wyth the thyrde parte of an hin of oyle, and to a dryncofferynge thou shalt offer the thyrde parte of an hin of wyne, to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

When thou offerest an oxe to a burntofferynge or in any speciall vowe or peacofferyng vnto the Lord, then thou shalt bringe vnto an oxe, a meatofferyng of .iij. tenth dea-

les of floure mingled wt an.hyn of oyle.
And thou shalt bringe for a drynkeofferinge halfe an hyn of wyne, that is an offering of ¶ a swete sauoure vnto the Lord. Thus is the maner þ shall be done vnto one oxe, one ram a lambe or a kyd. And accordynge to the nũbre of suche offerynges, thou shalte encrease the meate offerynges, & the drinckoffrynges.

All that are of youre selues, shall do these thynges after thys maner, when he offereth an offering of swete sauoure vnto the Lorde And if there be a straunger wyth you or be amonge you in your generations, and wyll offer an offering of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde: euē as ye do, so he shall do. a. One ordinaunce shall serue both for you of the cõgregation, and also of the straunger. And it shall be an ordinaunce forever among your children after you, that the straunger and ye shalbe lyke before the Lord. One lawe and one maner shall serue, both for you and for the straūger that dwelleth wyth you.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israell and saye vnto them: When ye be come into the lande whyther I wyl bring you, thē when ye will eate of the bread of the land, ye shall giue an heueroffrynge vnto the Lorde. Ye shal giue a cake of the fyrste of youre dowe vnto an heue offrynge, as ye do the heueroffringe of the barne, euen so shall ye heue it. Of the fyrste of youre dowe ye muste giue vnto the Lorde an heuerofferynge throwe out youre generations.

If ye ouer se youre selues, & obserue not all these commaundementes which the Lord hath spoken vnto Moses, & all that the Lord hath cõmaunded you by the hand of Moses from the fyrst daye forward that the Lorde commaunded among your generations: whē ought is committed ignorantlye before the eyes of the congregation, then all the multitude shall offer a calfe for a brent offrynge to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, & the meat offrynge and the drynke offrynge therto, accordynge to the maner: and an he gote for a synne offrynge. And the preest shal make an atonemẽt for al & multitude of the childre of Israel, & it shalbe forgeue thē for it was ignorance. And they shall bringe theyr giftes vnto the offringe of the Lorde and theyr synne offrynge before the Lorde for theyr ignorance. And it shalbe forgeuen vnto al the multitude of the childre of Israel, & vnto the straunger that dwelleth amonge you: for the ignorauncye pertayneth vnto all the people.

D If any one soule sinne throwe ignorance, he shall bringe a she gote of a yere olde for a synneoffrynge. And the preeste shall make an attonemente for the soule that synned ignorantly wyth the synneoffrynge before the Lord, and re concyle hym, and it shalbe forgeue hym. And both thou that art borne one of the chyldre of Israel & the straunger that dwelleth amõg you shal haue both one lawe, if ye synne throwe ignorancy.

And the soule that doeth ought presumptously, whether he be an Israelite or a straūger, the same hath despised the Lorde. And they that founde hym gatherynge styckes, brought hym vnto Moses and Aaron & vnto all the congregation: and they put hym in warde, for it was not declared what should be done vnto hym. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: the mã shal dye: let al the multitude stone hym with stones without the host. And all the multitude brought hym without the host and stoned hym with stones, & he dyed as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: speake vnto the children of Israell and byd them, that they make them gardes vpon the quarters of theyr garmentes throweoute theyr generations, and lette they put make the c. gardes of rybandes of Jacynct. And the garde shall be vnto you to loke vpon it, that ye remembre all the commaundementes of the Lord and do them: that ye seke not alwaye after your owne hertes & after youre owne eyes, for to goo a whorynge after them: but that ye remẽbre, & do do all my cõmaundementes and be holye vnto youre God, for I am the Lord your God whyche brought you out of the land of Egypt for to be your god. I am the Lord God.

a. Thys commaundement was a foretoken of the gatherynge of the gentyls and the Iewes into one church of Christ. As Joh.x.c Wherin there is no differẽce betwene the Hebrue or Iewe, and the Grecian, the riche and poore, the Citizen and straunger or forreaner. One ordinaunce.

b. Moyses drowe not this maner to gather styckes on the Sabothe day, and therefore he was worthye deathe. For he dyd casteth he breake the commaundemente, whyche was that on the Sabothe daye they shoulde do no maner worcke, bycause they shoulde not be letted from the hearynge of the lawe then, & the puttynge of the same in practise, by tradynge theyr lyues after it. Gatherynge styckes.

c. Would God these gardes were depelye spred in all chaūten mens hertes, that therebye they myght remembre all the commaundementes of God, and leaue seking of their owne fantasies. Gardes.

¶ The.xvi. Chapter

¶ The rebellion and vnfaithfulnes of Dathan and Abiron. The earth openeth and swalowed them vp.

A Ode* Corah the sonne of Jezehar the sonne of Caheth the sonne of Leui and Dathan & *Abiram the sonnes of Eliab, and On, the sonne of Peleth, the sonne of Ruben: stode vp before Moses, with other of the children of Israell. cc. hundred and fyfty heades of the congregation and counceloures, and me of fame, and they gathered them selues together against Moses and Aaron and sayed vnto them: ye haue done inough. For all the multitude are holy euery one of them & the Lorde is amonge them. Why therefore heaue we our selues vp aboue the congregacion of the Lorde.

* Somewhile Horeb & sonne of Izehar.
* Somewhile Abiron.

When Moses hearde it, he fell vpon his face and spake vnto Corah and vnto al his company sayinge: to morowe the Lorde will shewe who is his and who is holy, and will take them vnto him, and whom soeuer he hath chosen, he will cause to come to him. Thus do: take firepannes, thou Corah and all thy company, & do fyre therin and putte cense therto before the Lorde to morowe. And the whomsoeuer the Lorde hath chosē, the same is holy. Yea, make inough to do ye children of Leui.

B And Moses sayed vnto Corah: heare ye children of Leui, Semeth it but a smal thinge vnto you, that the God of Israel hath seperated you from the multitude of Israel to bringe you to him, to do the seruice of the tabernacle of the Lorde, and to stande before the people to minister vnto them: he hath take the to him, and al thy brethren the sonnes of Leui with the, & ye seke the office of the preest also: For which cause both thou and all thy companye are gathered together against the Lorde: for what is Aaron, that ye should murmure against him.

And Moses sente to call Dathan & Abiram the sonnes of Eliab, and they answered we will not come. Semeth it a smale thinge vnto the, that thou hast brought vs out of a lande that floweth with mylke and hony, to kyl vs in the wyldernes. But & thou shouldest rapgne ouer vs also? Wast ouer thou hast brought vs vnto no land that floweth with mylke and hony, neyther hast geuen vs possessiōs of feldes, or of vines. Eyther wilt thou pull out the eyes of these men? we will not come.

And Moses waxed very angry and sayd vnto the Lord. Turne not vnto their offeringes. I haue not taken so much as an asse frō them, neyther haue hexed any of them.

C Then Moses sayd vnto Corah: Be thou and all thy company before the Lord: both thou they, and Aaron to morowe. And take euery man his censer and putte cense in them, and come before the Lord euery man with his cēser: two hundred and fiftye censers, and Aaron with his censer. And they toke euery man his censer and put fyre in them & layed cense theron, and stode in the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse, and Moses and Aarō also. And Corah gathered all the cōgregatiō against them vnto the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse.

And the glory of the Lord appeared vnto all the congregation. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayinge: seperate your selues from this congregation, that I may cōsume them at once. And they fel vpō their faces and sayd* O most mighty God of the spirites of al flesshe, one man hath sinned, and wilt thou be wroth with al the multitude? * Num. xxvij

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge, speake vnto the congregation and saye: Get you away from about the dwellynge of Corah, Dathan, and Abiram. And D Moses rose and went vnto Dathan and Abiram, & the elders of Israel folowed him. And he spake vnto the congregation saying: depart from the tentes of these wicked men & touche nothynge of theirs: lest ye perysshe in al their synnes. And they gate them from the dwellynge of Corah, Dathan, and Abiram on euery syde. And Dathan and Abiram came out and stode in the dore of their tentes with their wyues, their sonne and their children.

And Moses sayed hereby ye shall knowe that the Lorde hath sente me, to do all these workes, & that I haue not done the of mine own mynde: If these mē dye the cōmen death * That is pu of all men, or if they be* visited after the visytacion of all men, then the Lorde hathe not sente me. But and if the Lorde make a newe E thynge, and the earth open hir mouth & swalowe them, and all that pertayne vnto the, so that they go downe a.quicke vnto hel: the ye shal vnderstand, that these men haue rayled vpon the Lord.

And assone as he hadde made an ende of speakyng al these wordes, the ground cloue a sunder that was vnder them, and the earth opened hir mouth and swalowed them and their houses, and al menne that were with Corah and al their goodes. And they and all that pertained vnto them, went downe aliue vnto hell, and the earth closed vpon them and they perysshed from amonge the cōgregation. And all Israel that were about them fledde at the cry of them. For they said: The earth myght haply swalow vs vp also.

And there came out a fyre from the Lord and consumed the two hundred and fyfty men that offered cense.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: Speake vnto Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preest and lette hym take vp the censers out of the burninge & scatter the fyre here and there, for the .c. censers of the synners are halowed in their deathes: and let the be beaten into thyne plates and fastened vpon the alter. For they offered them before the Lorde, and therfore they are holye and they shalbe a sygne vnto the children of Israel.

And Eleazar the Preest toke the brasen F

cen-

censers whych they that were burnt had offered, & beate them and fastened thē vpō the alter, to be a remembraunce vnto the children of Israel, that no straunger which is not of the seed of Aaron, come nere to offer eēse before the Lord, that he be not made lyke vnto Corah and hys compayne: as the Lord sayd vnto hym by the hand of Moses.

And on the morowe all the multitude of the chyldren of Israell murmured agaynste Moses and Aaron sayinge: ye haue kylled the people of the Lorde. And when the multitude was gathered againste Moses & Aaron they loked toward the tabernacle of witnes. And beholde, the cloude had couered it and the glory of the Lord appeared. And Moses & Aaron went before the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: Get you from this congregation, that I may consume them quyckely. And they fell vpon theyr faces.

And Moses sayd vnto Aaron: take a censer, and put fyre therin out of the alter, and poure on cense, and go quickely vnto the congregation and make an atonement for them. For there is wrath gone out from the Lord and the plage begone. And Aaron toke as Moses commaunded hym, and ran vnto the congregation, & beholde, the plage was begonne amonge the people, and he put on cense, & made an atonemente for the people. And he stode betwene the deade, & the that were a lyue and the plage ceased. And the number of them that dyed in the plage, were .xiiii. thousand and seuē hundred: besyde thē that dyed about the busines of Corah. And Aaron wente againe vnto Moses vnto the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and the plage ceased.

Go downe quycke into hell. a. To go downe into hel quycke or a lyue, is to perysh sodayne death, & to be ouerwhelmed wyth the earth.

The censers are halowed b. It is sayd that the censers were halowed in the death of these rebellious: because that by theyr death all other were put in feare to presume to the office of the ceremonyes, contrarye to expresse the commaundemente of God who had appointed that office and hys sede onely.

Aaron stode betwene. &c. c. Here is Aaron a figure of Christ, who is the mediatour betwene God and the church who restrayneth the iuste vengeaunce of god for the synnes of the world, who helpeth the chosen when they be in ieopardy.

The.xvii.Chapter.

¶ Aarons rodde budded & beareth blossoms.

AND the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and take of them for euery principal house a rodde, of theyr princes ouer the houses of their fathers twelue. xii. rodds, & write euery mans name vpon his rod. And write Aarons name vpō the staffe of Leui: for euerye headman ouer the house of theyr fathers shal haue a rodde. And put them in the tabernacle of wytnesse where I wyll mete you. And hys rodde whome I chose, shall blossome: So I wyl make cease from me the grudgynges of the chyldren of Israel whyche they grudge agaynst you.

And Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and al the princes gaue him for euery prince ouer theyr fathers houses, a rod: euē xii. rods, and the rod of Aaron was among the rodds. And Moses put the rodds before the Lord in ỹ tabernacle of witnes. And on the morow, Moses went into the tabernacle: and behold *the rod of Aaron of the house of Leui was budded & bare blossoms and almondes. And Moses brought out all the staues fromē before the Lorde, vnto all the chyldren of Israel, & they loked vpon thē and toke euery man hys staffe.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: bring Aarons rod agayne before the wytnes to be kept for a token vnto the chyldren of rebellyon, that they murmurynges may cease fro me, that they dye not. And Moses did as the Lorde commaunded hym. And the chyldren of Israell spake vnto Moses sayinge: behold, wee are destroyed and all come to nought: for whosoeuer cometh nye the tabernacle of the Lorde, dyeth. Shall we vtterlye consume away.

The.xviii.Chapter.

¶ The office of the Leuites. The tithes & fyrst fruite must be geuē them. Aarons heritage.

AND the Lorde sayd vnto Aaron. Thou and thy sonnes, and thy fathers house with the, shall beare the faulte of that whyche is done amysse in the *holye place. And thou & thy sonnes with the, shal beare the fault of that whyche is done amysse in your priesthode. And thy brethren also the tribe of Leui, the tribe of thy father take with the, and let thē be ioyned vnto the, and minister vnto the. And thou and thy sonnes with the shall minister before the tabernacle of wytnes. And let thē wayte vpō the & vpō al the tabernacle: onely let thē not come nye the holy vesselles & the alter, that both they & ye also dye not. And let them be ioyned vnto the and wayte on the tabernacle of wytnesse, and on all the seruice of the tabernacle, and let no straunger come nye vnto you.

*Vnderstand if ye take not hede ỹ it be not touched.

Wayte therfore vpon the holy place and vpon the alter, that there fal no more wrath vpon the chyldren of Israel: behold, I haue taken your brethren the Leuites fromē amonge the chyldren of Israell, to be yours, as gyftes geuen vnto the Lord to do the seruice of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And se that both thou and thy sonnes with the take hede vnto your preestly office, in all thinges that per tayne vnto the alter, and wythin the vayle. And se that ye serue, for I haue geuen youre preestes office vnto you for a gifte to

And the Lorde ſpake vnto Aaron: behold I haue geuen the, the kepyng of mine heue-offerynges in al the halowed thynges of the chyldꝛē of Iſrael. And vnto the I haue geuē them vnto anoyntynge and to thy ſonnes: to be a dutye for euer. This ſhall be thyne of moſt holy ſacrifices. Al theyr giftes, thorow out al theire meateofferynges ſynnofferinges and trelpace offerynges whyche they bringe vnto me. They ſhall be moſt holy vnto the & vnto thy ſōnes. And ye ſhal eat it in the moſt holy place: all that are males ſhall eate of it for it ſhal be holye vnto the.

And this ſhalbe thine: the heueofferinges of theyr gyftes, thorowout all the waue offerynges of the chyldren of Iſrael, for I haue geue thē to the, & thy ſōnes, & thy daughters wyth the to be a dutye for euer: and all that are cleane in thy houſe, ſhall eate of it, al the fatt of the oyle, of the wyne and of the corne theyr fyrſte frutes whych they geue vnto the Lorde that haue I geuen vnto the. The firſt frutes of all that is in theyr Landes whyche they bringe vnto the Lorde, ſhall be thyne: and all that are cleane in thyne houſe, ſhall eate of it.

All dedicate thynges in Iſrael, ſhalbe thine All that breaketh the matrice of all fleſhe that men bringe vnto the Lorde, both of mā and beaſt, ſhall be thyne. Neuerthelater the fyrſt borne of man ſhall be redemed, and the fyrſt borne of vncleane beaſtes ſhal be redemed. And theyr redēptions ſhall be at a moneth olde, valued at fyue ſycles of ſiluer, of the holye ſycle. A ſycle maketh twentye Gerras. But the fyrſt borne of oxen, ſheepe, & gotes ſhall not be redemed. For they are holy, and thou ſhalt ſprinkle theyr bloud vpon the altar, and ſhalt bourne their fat to be a ſacrifice of a ſwete ſauour vnto the Lord.

And the fleſhe of the ſhal be thyne, as the wauebreſt & all the ryght ſhoulder is thyne al the holy heaueofferinges whych the chyldren of Iſrael heaue vnto the Lorde, I gyue the and thy ſonnes and thy daughters with the to be a duti foreuer. And it ſhalbe a ſalted couenaūte for euer, before the Lorde: vnto the and thy ſeed wyth the.

Salted couenaūte for a fyne ſure & ſtable couenaūt

And the Lorde ſpake vnto Aaron: thou ſhalt haue none enheritaunce in theyr Land nor parte amonge them. For I am thy parte and thy enheritaunce amonge the chyldē of Iſrael. And behold I haue geuen the chyldē of Leui, the tythe in Iſraell to enherit, for the ſeruice whych they ſerue in the tabernacle of wytneſſe, that the chyldren of Iſraell henceforth come not nye the Tabernacle of wytneſſe, and beare ſynne and dye. And the Leuites ſhal do the ſeruyce in the tabernacle of wytnes and beare theyr ſynne, & it ſhal be a lawe for euer vnto youre chyldrene after you: But amonge the children of Iſrael they ſhall enherete none enheritaunce. For the tythes of the chyldren of Iſraell whych they heaue vnto the Lorde, I haue geuen the Leuites to enherite. Wherfore I haue ſaid vnto them: Amoug the childē of Iſrael ye ſhal enherite none enheritaunce.

And the Lord ſpake vnto Moſes ſayeng: ſpeake vnto the Leuites and ſay vnto them: when ye take of the chyldren of Iſrael the tithes whych I haue geuen you of the to your enheritaunce, ye ſhall take an heaueoffering of that ſame for the Lorde: euen the tenthe of that tythe. And it ſhall be rekened vnto you for your heaueofferynge, euen as though ye gaue corne out of the barne or a ful offeryng from the wyne preſſe.

And of this maner ye ſhal heaue an heaue-offerynge vnto the Lorde, of all your tythes whyche ye receyue of the chyldren of Iſrael and ye ſhal gyue therof the lordes heaueof-ferynge vnto Aaron the prieſte. Of all your giftes, ye ſhal take out of the Lordes heaue-offerynge: euen the fatt of all theyr halowed thynges.

And thou ſhalte ſaye vnto them: when ye haue take awaye the fatt of it frō it, it ſhal be counted vnto the Leuytes, as the encreaſe of corne and wyne. And ye ſhall eate it in all places both ye and youre houſholdes, for it is youre rewarde for youre ſeruice in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And ye ſhall beare no ſynne by the reaſon of it, when ye haue take from it the fatte of it, neyther ſhall ye vnhalowe the halowed thynges of the chyldrē of Iſrael, and ſo ſhal ye not dye.

The.xix.Chapter.

¶ Of the redde kowe. The lawe of hym that dyeth in the tabernacle: and of hym alſo, that toucheth any vncleane thynge.

And the Lord ſpake vnto Moſes and Aaron ſayenge: this is A the ordinaūce of the lawe whyche the Lorde commaundeth ſayinge, ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſraell and let them take the a redde kowe wythout ſpotte wherin is no blemiſh and whyche neuer bare pocke vpon hyr. And ye ſhal gyue hyr vnto Eliazar the prieſt and he ſhall bryng hyr wythout the hoſt and cauſe hyr to be ſlayne before hym.

And Eliazar the Prieſte ſhall take of hyr bloud vpon his finger, & ſprynkle it ſtraight toward the tabernacle of witnes. vii. times. And he ſhall cauſe the kowe to be burnt in hys ſyght: both ſkinne fleſh and bloud, with the doung alſo. And let the prieſt take Cedar wodd, and Iſope and purple cloth, and caſt it vpon the kowe as ſhe burneth. And let the prieſt waſh hys clothes and bath his fleſh in water, & thē come into the hoſt, & the prieſte ſhalbe vncleane vnto the euen. B

And he that burneth hyr, ſhall waſh hys clothes in water & bath hys fleſh alſo in water and be vncleane vntil euen. And one that is cleane ſhall goo and take vp the aſhes of the kowe, and put them wythout the hoſt in a cleane

a cleane place, where they shall be kepte to make sprinkelynge water for the multitude of the childre of Israel: for it is a sprnoffering And let hym that gathered the ashes of the kowe wash his clothes, & remaine vncleane vntyll euen. And thys shall be vnto the chil-

Gene.xiij. dwelleth amonge them, a maner * for euer.

He that toucheth any dead persō, shall be vncleane.vij. dayes. And he shal purify hym selfe wyth the ashes the thyrd daye and then

Whosoeuer toucheth any person that dyeth & sprinkeleth not hym self, defileth the dwelling of the Lorde: & therfore that soul shalbe .roted out of Israel, bicause he hath not sprynkled the sprinkelynge water vpon hym he shal be vncleane, and hys vncleannesse shal rayne vpon hym.

This is the lawe of the man that dyeth in a tent: al that come into the tente and all that is in the tent, shalbe vncleane.vij. dayes. And al the vessels that be open which haue no lid nor couerynge vpon them, are vncleane. And whatsoeuer toucheth one that is slayne wyth a swerde in the feldes, or a dead person, or a
D bone of a deade man, or a grane: shall be vncleane.vij.dayes.

And they shall take for an vncleane person of the burnt ashes of the sprinklynge, & put runnynge water therto into a vessel,
And a cleane person shal take Isope & dippe it in the water, and sprinkle it vpon ỹ tente & vpon al the vessels & on the soules that were there, & vpon hym that toucheth a bone or a slaine person or a dead body or a grane. And the cleane person shal sprinkle vpon the vncleane the thyrde daye and the seuenth daye. And the seuenth day he shall purify him selfe and washe hys clothes and bathe hym selfe in water, and shalbe cleane at euen.

If any be vncleane & sprinkle not him selfe the same soule shalbe destroied frō amōg the cōgregation: for he hath defiled ỹ holy place of the Lorde & is not sprinkeled wyth sprynkling water, therfore is he vncleane. And this shalbe a perpetual lawe vnto them. And he that sprynkeleth the sprinkelyng water, shal wash his clothes.

And he that toucheth the sprynklyng water shall be vncleane vntyll euen. And what soeuer the vncleane person toucheth, shal be vncleane. And the soule that toucheth it shal be vncleane vntil the euen.

¶ Wyth Jone dyeth. The people murmur. Thei haue water euen out of the rocke. Edom denieth the Israelites passage thorow hys realme. The death of Aaron in whose roume Eliazar succeadeth.

AND ỹ whole multitude of the chyldren of Israell, came into the desert of Syn in the fyrste moneth, and the people dwelt at Cades. And there dyed Mir-
Jam, and was buried there. Moreouer there + was no water for the multitude, wherfore they gathered them selues togyther agaynste Moses and agaynste Aaron. And the people chode wt Moses & spake saying: wolde God that we had perished when our brethren perished before ỹ Lord. Why haue ye brought the congregatiō of the Lord vnto this wildernes that both we & our cattel should dye here? Wherfore brought ye vs out of Egypt to bring vs into this vngratious place, whiche is no place of seed nor of figes nor vines nor of pomgranates, neyther is there anye water to drynke.

And Moses & Aaron went frō the cōgregation vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wit nes, and fell vpon their faces. And the glory of the Lord appered vnto thē. And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: take thy staffe, & gather thou & thy brother Aarō the cōgregatiō together, & say vnto the roche before their eyes, that he geue forth his water. And thou shalt bringe them water oute of the roche & shalt giue the companye drynche and their beastes also.

And Moses toke the staffe frō before the Lord as he commaunded hym. And Moses and Aaron gathered the congregation togither before the roche, and he said vnto them here ye rebellious, muste we fetche you water out of thys roche? And Moses lyfte vp hys handes wyth hys staffe, and smote the C roche two tymes, and the water came oute abundantly, and the multitude dranke and the beastes also.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses & Aaron: bicause ye beleued me not to.s. sanctify me in the eyes of the chyldren of Israel, therfore ye shall not bringe thys congregation into the land which I haue geuen them.
This is the water of strife, bicause the children of Israel strone wyth the Lord, and he
+ was sanctified vpon them.

And Moses sente messengers from Cades vnto the kyng of Edom. Thus sayeth thy brother Israel. Thou knowest al the trauel ỹ hath happened vs, how our fathers went downe into Egypt, and how we haue dwelt in Egypt a longe tyme, and how the Egypcians vexed both vs and our fathers. Then we cried vnto the Lorde and he heard our voyces, and sent an angell & hath fet vs oute of Egypte. And beholde, we are in Cades a citye harde by the borders of thy coūtrey let vs

And Edõ answered him: Se thou come not by me, leaft I come out againft the with the fwerde. And the chyldren of Iſrael ſayed vnto him: we wyl go by the beaten way: and if eyther we or our cattell drynke of thy water, we wyll pay for it, we wyll do no more but paſſe thorow by fote onelye. And he ſaid ye ſhal not go thorow. And Edom came out againſt hym with much people and with a mighty power. And thus Edom denied to giue Iſrael paſſage thorow his countrie. And Iſrael turned awaye from him.

And the children of Iſrael remoued from Cades & went vnto mount Hor with all the cõgregation. And the Lord ſpake vnto Moſes and Aaron in mount Hor, ſayinge: lett Aaron be putt vnto hys people, for he ſhall not come into the lande whiche I haue geuẽ vnto the chyldren of Iſrael: becauſe ye diſobeied my mouth at the water of ſtrife. Take Aaron and Eleazar hys ſonne, and bringe them vp vnto mount Hor, and ſtrippe Aaron out of hys veſtimentes and putt them vpon Eliazar hys ſonne, and let Aaron be put vnto hys people and dye there.

And Moſes dyd as the Lord commaunded: and they went vp into mount Hor in the ſyght of all the multitude. And Moſes toke of Aarõs clothes, and put them vpon Eleazar his ſõne, & Aaron dyed there in the topp of the moũt. And Moſes and Eleazar came downe out of the mounte. Whyle Balac sendeth for Balam to the intēt that he shold curse Israel: but Balā can do nothyng agaynst the wyl of the Lord. Balās asse speaketh to hym in the waye.

A AND Balac the sone of Zipho sawe all that Israell had done to the Amorites, and the Moabites were sore afraied of the people bycause they were many, and abhorred the children of Israel. And Moab sayed vnto the Elders of Madian, nowe shall thys companye lycke vp all that are rounde about vs, as an oxe lycketh vp the grasse of the feld. And Balac the sonne of Zipho was kynge of the Moabites at

And he sent messengers vnto *Balam the sonne of Beor, the interpreter which dwelte vpon the riuer of the lande of the children of hys folke, to call hym sayeng: beholde, there is a people come out of Egypte which couereth the face of the earth and lyeth euē hard by me. Come nowe a felowshyp and curse me thys people. For they are to myghty for me, so peraduenture I might be able to smite them & to dryue them out of the Land. For I wot that whō thou blessest shalbe blessed, and whō thou curssest shalbe cursed.

*Dc.xxiii.a.

And the elders of Moab wente wyth the elders of Madian, & the reward of the fortelynge in their handes. And they came vnto Balam and tolde hym the wordes of Balac. And he sayed vnto thē, tary here al nyght and I wyll bringe you worde, euen as the Lorde shal saye vnto me. And the Lordes of Moab abode with Balam.

And God cam vnto Balam & sayd: what mē are these whych are wyth the? And God sayed vnto Bala: thou shalt not go vnto thē, neyther curse the people, for they are blessed.

And Balam rose vp in the mornyng and sayd vnto the Lordes of Balac: get you vnto your land, for the Lorde wyll not suffer me to go vnto you. And the Lordes of Moab rose vp & went vnto Balac and sayd. Bala wolde not come wyth vs. And Balac sent againe a greater company of lordes & more honourable then they. And they came to Balam and tolde hym. Thus sayeth Balac the sonne of Zipho: oh, let nothynge let the to come vnto me, for I wyll greately promote the vnto greate honour. and wyl do whatsoeuer thou sayeste vnto me, come therefore I praye the curse me thys people.

And the angell of the Lord went & stode in a path betwen the vineyardes, wher was a wal on the one syde, & another on ỹ other. When the asse sawe the angel of the Lorde, she warnched vnto the wall and thrust Balams fote vnto the wall, and he smote her againe. And the angel of ỹ Lorde went further and stode in a narrow place, wher was no waye to turne, eyther to the ryghte hande or to the lyfte. And the Lord opened the eyes of Balam that he sawe the angel of the Lord standyng in the waye, with hys swerd drawen in hys hande. And he bowed him selfe & fell flatt on hys face. And the angell of the Lorde saied vnto him. Wherfore smytest thou thyne asse thus.iii. tymes? behold I came out to resiste the for the waye is contrarye vnto me, & the asse sawe me and auoyded me thre tymes: or elles (had she not turned fro me) I had surely slayne the and saued hyr a lyue. And the angel saied vnto Balam, go with the men: but in any wyse, what I saye vnto the, that saye. And Balam went with the lordes of Balac.

G And when Balac heard that Balam was come he went out agaynst him vnto a cyty of Moab that stode in the border of Arnō whyche was the vtmost part of his contrye. And Balac saied vnto Balam: did I not sende for the, to call the? wherfore camest thou not vn to me? thinkest thou þ I am not able to pro mote the vnto honour. And Balā saied vnto Balac: Loo, I am come vnto the. But I can saye nothynge at all saue what God putteth into my mouth that must I speake. And Balam went with Balac, & they came vnto the *large cyty. How goodlye are thy tentes O Jacob & thyne habitation. a. Israel, euen as the brode valeys, and as gardens by riuers syde, as the tentes whyche the Lorde hath pytched & as cypres trees vpon the water. And his kyngdome shalbe exalted, God that brought him out of Egipt his strength is as the strengthe of an vnicorne, & he shal eate the nations that are his enemies & breake their bones, and perce the thorowe with his arrowes. He touched hym selfe & laye downe as a lyon and as a lyoness, who shall sterre him vp, blessed is he that blesseth the, & cursed is he that curseth the.

And Balac was wroth with Balam and smote his handes together, & sayd vnto him: I sent for the to curse myne enemies: and behold, thou hast blessed them thys thre times and now gette the quickly vnto thy place. I thought that I would promote the vnto honour, but the Lorde hath kept the backe frō worshyp. And Balā saied vnto Balac: told I not thy messengers which thou sentest vnto me saying. * If Balac would giue me his house full of syluer and gold, I can not passe the mouth of the Lorde, to do eyther good or bad of myne owne mynde. What the Lord saith, that must I speake. And now beholde, I go vnto my people: come let me shew the what this people shall do to thy folke in the latter dayes. And he began his Parable and saied: Balam the sonne of Beor hath saied, & the man that hath his eyes open hath said, and he hath saied that he areth the wordes of God & hath the knowledge of the most hie & beholdeth the vision of the almyghty, and whē he falleth downe hath his eyes opened I se him but not now, I behold him but not nye. There shall come a starre of Jacob and rise a scepter of Israel, which shal smite the coastes of Moab and vndermine all the children of Seth. And Edō shalbe his possessiō, and the possession of Seir shall be their enemies, and Israel shall do manfully. And out of Jacob shal come he that shal destroye the remnaunt of the cytes.

¶ The.xxx. Chapter.

¶ Of vowes when they shalbe kept and whē not.

AND Moses spake vnto the heades of the tribes of the chyldre of Israell sayenge: this is the thyng which the Lord commādeth. a. If a man vowe vnto the Lorde or swere an othe and bynde his soule, he shall not go backe with his worde: but shal fulfyll all that proceadeth out of his mouth.

If a damsell vowe a vowe vnto the Lord and bynde her selfe beynge in her fathers house and vnmaried. If her father heare her vowe & bond which she hath made vpon her soule, & holde his peace therto: then all her vowes & bondes which she hath made vpon her soule shall stande in effecte. But & yf her father forbyd her the same daye & he heareth it, none of her vowes nor bondes wherby she hath made vpon her soule shalbe of value, & the Lorde shall forgeue her, because her father forbade her.

If she had an husband when she vowed or pronounced ought out of her lyppes wherwith she bonde her soule, and her husbande hearde it and helde his peace there at the same daye he hearde it: Then her vowes and her bondes wherwyth she bounde her soule, shall stande in effecte. But and yf her husbande forbade her the same daye that & heard it, then hath he made her vowe wherby she had vpon her of none effecte, and that also which she pronounced vt her lyppes wherwyth she bounde her soule, and the lord shal forgeue her.

The vowe of a wyddowe and of her that is deuorced, and all that they haue bounde their soules wyth all, shall stande in effecte wyth them.

If she vowed in her husbandes house or bounde her soule with an oth, & her husband hard it and helde his peace and forbade her not: then al her vowes & boundes wherwith she bound her soule, shall stande. But yf her husband disanulled them the same daye that he heard them, then nothyng & proceded out of her lippes in vowes & bounds wherwith she bounde her soule shall stande in effecte: for her husbande hath loused them. And the Lord shal forgeue her.

All vowes and othes that bynde to humble the soule, maye her husbande stablysshe or breake. But yf her husbande holde his peace from one daye vnto another, then he stablyseth al her vowes and bondes wherby she had vpon her, because he helde his peace the same daye that he heard them. And yf he afterward breake them, he shal beare her sinne hymselfe.

These are the ordynaunces wherby the Lord commaunded Moses, betweene a man and his wife, and betweene the father & his daughter, beynge a damsell in her fathers house.

☞ The notes.

a. This vowe here, is that which a man maketh for a certen space, whether it be to faste or to chastice the body or any other thyng, as it is sayed Leuit. xvi. d. But marcke this alway, gentle reader, that as it was not leaful for the Jewes to vowe the breakyng of goddes commaundementes in any condition, so was it not leaful for them, nor is yet leafull for vs, to breake goddes commaundements for any vowes sake.

If a man vowe.

¶ The.xxxii.Chapter.

¶ To Ruben and Gad are to bylde the wyfe
of Manaſſe, as promyſed the poſſeſſiō beyōde
Jordan eaſtwarde: of their byeng ryght ſouldyers
into the lande of promyſe.

THe chyldren of Ruben and the A chyldren of God, had an excedyng great multitude of catel.
And when they ſawe the lande

of Jazer and the land of Galaad that it was an apte place for catell, they came and spake vnto Moses and Eleazar the preest and vnto the Lordes of the congregacion sayinge. The lād of Ataroth ꝑ Dibo and Jazer, and Nemrah ꝑ Hesbon ꝑ Elaleh and Sabam ꝑ Nebo and Beon, whiche contrye the Lord smote before the congregacion of Israel is a land for catel and we thy seruauntes haue catel wherfore (sayde they) yf we haue found grace in thy syghte, let thys lande be geuen vnto thy seruauntes to possesse, ꝑ bringe vs not ouer Jordan.

And Moses sayd vnto ꝯ chyldren of Gad ꝑ of Ruben: shall your brethren go to warre and ye tarye here? Wherfore discourage ye the hertes of the chyldren of Israel for to go ouer into the land which the Lord hath geuen them. * Thus dyd your fathers, when I sent them from Cades barne to se the Land. And they went vp euen vnto the ryuer of Escol and saw the lande, and discouraged ꝯ hertes of the chyldren of Israell, that they should not go into the land which the Lorde had geuen them.

And the Lorde was wroth the same tyme and sware sayinge. * None of the men that came out of Egypte from twenty yere olde and aboue, shall se the lande which I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, because they haue not continually folowed me: saue Caleb the sonne of Jephunne the Kenezite, ꝑ Josua the sonne of Nun, for they haue folowed me continually. And the Lord was angry with Israel, ꝑ made them wander in ꝯ wyldernesse xl. yere, vntyl all the generacion that had done euel in the syghte of the Lord were consumed.

And beholde, ye are risen vp in your fathers steade, to the encrease of synfull men, and to augment the feerse wrath of the lord to Israell warde. For yf ye tourne awaye from after him, he wyll yet agayn leaue the people in the wyldernesse, so that ye destroy all thys folke. And they went nere hym and sayde: we wyl buylde shepefolds here for our shepe and for oure catell, and cyties for our chyldren. But we our selues wyl go ready armed before the chyldren of Israell, vntyll we haue brought them vnto their place. And oure chyldren shall dwell in the fenced cyties, because of the inhabiters of the land. And we wyll not returne vnto oure howses, vntyll the chyldren of Israel haue enherited: euery man hys enheritaince. For we wyll not enherit with them on ponder side Jordan forwarde, because oure enheritaunce is falled to vs on thys syde Jordan eastwarde.

And Moses sayd vnto them: * If ye wyl do thys thynge, that ye wyl go all harnessed before the Lord to warre, and wyll go all of you in harnesse ouer Jordan before ꝯ Lord, vntyll he haue cast out hys enemyes before him, and vntyl the land be subdued before ꝯ Lord, then ye shall retourne and be without synne agaynst the Lord ꝑ agaynst Israell, ꝑ thys lande shalbe your possession before the Lorde. But and yf ye wyl not do so, beholde, ye synne agaynst the Lord: and be sure your synne wyll synde you out. Bylde youre cyties for your chyldren and foulden for your shepe, and se ye do that ye haue spoken. And the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben spake vnto Moses sayinge: thy seruauntes wyl do as my Lorde commaundeth. Our children oure wyues substaunce and all oure catell shall remayne here in ꝯ cyties of Galaad. But * we thy seruauntes wyll go all harnessed for the warre vnto battell before the Lorde, as my Lord hath sayd.

* Josue.iiii.c.

And Moses commaunded Eleazar the preest and Josua the sonne of Nun and the auncient heades of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, and sayd vnto them: If ꝯ children of Gad and Ruben wyll go with you ouer Jordan, al prepared to fyght before ꝯ Lord then when the Land is subdued vnto you, geue them the lande of Galaad to possesse, but ꝑ yf they wyll not go ouer with you in harnesse, then they shall haue their possessyons among you in the land of Canaan. And the children of Gad ꝑ Ruben answered sayng: that whych the Lord hath sayd vnto thy seruauntes we wyl do. * We wyl go harnessed before the Lord into the land of Canaā, and the possession of our enheritaunce shalbe on thys syde Jordan.

* Iosue.xxii.a

And Moses gaue vnto the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben and vnto halfe the trybe of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, the kyngdome of Sehon kynge of the Amorites, and the kyngdome of Og kynge of Basan, the lande that longed vnto the cyties therof in the coostes of the countre rounde about.

And the chyldren of Gad bylte Dibon, Ataroth, Aroer, Atroth, Sophan, Jazer, Jegbaea, Bethnimra and Betharan fenced cyties, and they buylt folds for the shepe. And the chyldren of Ruben bylte Hesbon, Eleale, Kiriathaim, Nebo, Baal, Meon and turned theyr names, and Sabama also: and gaue names vnto the cyties whych they buylt.

¶ The Coastes and borders of the lād of promyse. Certen are assygned to deuyde the land.

A AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: commaunde the children of Israel and say vnto them: whē ye come vnto the lande of Canaā, thys is the lande that shall fall vnto youre enherytaunce, the lande of Canaan with all her costes. And *youre south quarter shalbe from the wylderneſſe of Sin a longe by the coaſte of Edom, ſo that youre south quarter shalbe frō the ſyde of the ſalte ſea eaſtward, and shall fet a compaſſe from the ſouth vp to Acrabim, and reache to Zinna. And it shal go out on the ſouth ſyde of Cades Barne, and go out alſo at Hazar Adar, and go a lōg to Azmon. And shal fet a compaſſe from Azmon vnto the ryuer of Egypt, and shall go out at the ſea. *Josue.xv.a.

B And youre weſt quarter shall be the greate ſea, which coaſte shalbe youre weſt coaſte.

And thys shalbe youre north quarter: ye shal cōpaſſe from the great ſea vnto mount Hor. And from mount Hor, ye shal compaſſe and go vnto Hemath, and the ende of ſ coſte shalbe at Zedada, and the coſte shall reache out to Ziphron and go out at Hazar Enan. And thys shalbe youre north quarter.

C And ye shall compaſſe youre eaſt quarter from Hazar enan to Sepham. And the coſte shall go downe from Sepham to Ribla on the eaſt ſyde of Ain. And then deſcende and go out at the ſyde of the ſea of Cenereth eaſtward. And then go downe a longe by Jordan, and leue at the ſalte ſea. And thys shal be youre lande with all the coſtes therof rounde about.

And Moſes commaunded the children of Israel ſaying: this is the land which ye shal enherit by lotte, and whych the Lorde commaunded to geue vnto .ix. trybes ¶ an halfe: *for the tryb of the children of Ruben haue receyued, in the houſholdes of their fathers, and the tryb of the children of Gad in their fathers houſholdes, ¶ halfe the tryb of Manaſſe, haue receyued their enherytaūce, that is to wete .ij. trybes and an halfe haue receyued their enherytaunce on the other ſyde of Jordan by Jericho eaſtwarde, towarde the ſonne ryſynge. *Nu.xxvi.f.

D And the Lorde ſpake to Moſes ſayinge: These are the names of the men, which shal deuyde you the land to enherit Eleazar the prieſt, ¶ *Josua the ſonne of Nun. And ye shall take alſo a Lorde of euery tryb to deuyde the lande, whoſe names are these: In ſ tryb of Juda, Caleb the ſonne of Jephunne. And in the tryb of the children of Simeon, Semuel the ſonne of Amiud, ¶ in the tryb of Ben Jamin, Elidad the ſonne of Chiſon. And in the tryb of the children of Dan, the Lord Bucki the ſonne of Jogli. And among the children of Joſephim the tryb of the children of Manaſſe, the Lord Haniel the ſonne of Ephod. And in the tryb of the children of Ephraim, the Lorde Camuell the ſonne of Siphtan. And in the tryb of the ſonnes of Zabulon, the Lord Elizaphan the ſonne of Pharnach. And in the tryb of the children of Iſachar, the lord Paltiel ſ ſonne of Aſan. And the tryb of the ſonnes of Aſer, the lord Ahihud the ſonne of Salomi. And in ſ tryb of the children of Nephthali, the Lord Peda El the ſonne of Ammihud. Theſe are they which the Lord commaunded to deuyde the enherytaunce vnto the children of Israel, in the land of Canaan. *Deu.xxxiij.f. Josue.xvij.a.

¶ Vnto the Leuites muſt be geuen cyties and ſuburbes. The cytyes of refuge or ſanctuaryes. The law of manqueliyng. For one mānes wyfe: that no man be condēpned.

A AND the Lord ſpake vnto Moſes in the feldes of Moab by Jordan ouer againſt Jericho ſayinge: commaunde the children of Israell, that they geue vnto the Leuites of the enherytaunce of their poſſeſſyon: *cytyes to dwell in. And ye shall geue alſo vnto the cytyes of the Leuites, ſuburbes rounde aboute them. The cytyes shalbe for the to dwell in, ¶ the ſuburbes for their catell, poſſeſſyons ¶ all maner beaſtes of theirs. And the ſuburbes of the cytyes which ye shall geue vnto the Leuites, shall reache from the wall of the cytie outwarde, a thouſande cubites rounde aboute. And ye shall meaſure without the cytie, and make the vtmoſt border of ſ eaſtſyde: two thouſande cubytes, And the vtmoſt border of ſ ſouthſyde: two thouſande cubites. And the vtmoſt border of the weſtſyde: two thouſand cubites: ¶ the vtmoſt border of the northſyde: two thouſande cubytes alſo: ¶ the cytie shalbe in the myddes. And theſe shall be the ſuburbes of their cytyes. *Josue.xxi.a.

B And among the cytyes which ye shal geue vnto the Leuites, *there shall be ſyxe cytyes of fraunches which ye shall geue to that intent that he which ſlaeth, maye flye thyther And to them ye shall adde .xlij. cytyes mo: ſo that all the cytyes whyche ye ſhall geue the Leuites ſhalbe .xlviij. with their ſuburbes. *Josue.xx.a.

C And of the cytyes whyche ye shall geue out of the poſſeſſyons of the children of Israel, ye shall geue many out of them: poſſeſſyons that haue moche and fewe out of their poſſeſſyons that haue lytle: ſo that euery tryb shal geue of hys cityes vnto the Leuites, accordynge to the enherytaunce whyche he enheryteth.

D And the Lord ſpake vnto Moſes ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the children of Israell and ſaye vnto them: * when ye be come ouer Jordan into the land of Canaā, ye shall buylde cytyes which shalbe purpleged townes for you: ſ he which ſlaeth a mā vnwares may flye thyther. And these syxe fre cyties shalbe for the chyldren of Israell and for the straunger and for him that dwelleth among you, that all they whyche kyll any persone vnwares, maye flee thyther.

If any man smyte another with a weapon of yron that he dye, then he is a murtherer, and shall dye for it. If he smyte him with a throwynge stone that he dye therwyth, then he shall dye: for he is a murtherer and shalbe slayne therfore. If he smyte him wyth a hand weapon of wood that he dye therwyth then he shall dye: for he is a murtherer & shal be slayne therfore.

The iustice of bloude shall slee the murtherer, assone as he findeth him: If he thrust at him* of hate, or hurle at him with lying of wayte that he dye or smyte hym with his hande of enmy that he dye, he y smot him shal dye, for he is a murtherer. The iustice of bloude shal slee hym as soone as he findeth hym.

*Deu. xix.c.

But and yf he pushed hym by chaunce & not of hate or cast at hym with any maner of thynge and not of layenge of wayte: or cast any maner of stone at him that he dye therwith, and sawe him not: And he cast it vpon hym and he dye, but was not his enemye, neither sought him any harme: Then the congregacion shall iudge betwene the slear and the executer of bloud in soche cases. And the congregacion shal deliuer the slear out of the hande of the iudge of bloude, & shall restore hym agayn vnto the franchesed cyte, whether he was fled. And he shall bide there vnto the deth of the hye preast whych was anoynted with holy oyle.

But and yf he came wythout the borders of his priuileged cite whether he was fled, yf the auenger of bloud fynde hym without the borders of his fre towne, he shall slee the murtherer and be giltlesse, because he should haue bydden in his fre towne vntyll the death of the hye preaste, and after the deth of the hye preaste, he shall retourne agayn vnto the land of his possessiõ. And thys shalbe an ordinaunce and a law vnto you, among your chyldren after you in all youre habitacions.

Whosoeuer sleeth, shalbe slayne at the mouth of wytnesses. * For one witnesse shall not answere agaynst one persone to put him vnto to death. Moreouer ye shall take none amendes for the lyfe of the murtherer whyche is worthy to dye: But he shall be put to death. Also ye shall take none attonement for hym that is fled to a fre cyte, that he shoulde come agayne and dwell in the lande before the death of the hye Preaste. And se that ye pollute not the lande wherin ye are in, for bloud defyleth the lande. And the lande can none otherwyse be clensed of the bloude that is shed therin, but by the bloude of hym that shed it. Defyle not therfore the land wherin ye inhabyte, and in the myddes of whych I also dwel among the chyldren of Israel.

* For one mã wytnesse is to be condemned.

¶ An order for the marrage of the daughters of Zelaphead. One of the tribes may not marye wyth a mother but euery one must take hym a wyfe of hys owne tribe.

ANd the auncyent heades of the children of Galaad the sonne of Machir the sonne of Manasse of the kynred of the children of Joseph, came forth and spake before Moses and the princes which were auncyent heades amõge the chyldren of Israel and sayd. * The Lord commaunded my Lorde to geue the land to enherit by lotte to the chyldren of Israell. And then my Lorde commaunded in the name of the Lorde to geue the enheritaunce of * Zelaphead oure brother vnto hys daughters. Nowe when any of the sonnes of the tribes of Israell take them to wyues, then shall their enheritaunce be taken from the enheritaunce of our fathers, and shalbe put vnto the enheritaunce of the tribe in whych they are and shalbe taken from the lot of oure enheritaunce. And when the yere of iubelye cometh vnto the chyldren of Israell, then shal their enheritaunce be put vnto the enheritaunce of the tribe wherin they are, and so shall their enheritaunce be taken awaye from the enheritaunce of the tribe of oure fathers.

*Nu. xxxvi.a

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israell at the mouth of the Lord sayenge: the tribe of the chyldren of Joseph haue sayde well. Thys therfore doeth the Lorde commaunde the daughters of Zelaphead sayenge: * let them be wyues to whom they them selfe thynke best, but in the kynred of the tribe of their father shall they marye, that the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Israel route not from tribe to tribe. But that the chyldren of Israell maye abyde, euery man in the enheritaunce of the tribe of hys fathers. And euery daughter that possesseth any enheritaunce amonge the tribes of the children of Israell, shalbe wyfe vnto one of the kynred of the tribe of her father, that the children of Israel may enioye euery man the enheritaunce of his father, and that the enheritaunce go not from one tribe to another: but that the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, maye abyde euery man in his owne enherytaunce.

*Tobie.vi.d

And as the Lorde commaunded Moses euen so dyd the daughters of Zelaphead: Mahela, Thersa, Hagla, Melcha and Noa, and were maryed vnto their fathers brothers sonnes, of the kynred of the children of Manasses the sonne of Joseph: and so they had their enheritaunce in the tribe of the kynred of their father.

These are the commaundementes and lawes whyche the Lorde commaunded thorow Moses, vnto the chyldren of Israell in the feldes of Moab vpon Jordan nye vnto Jerycho.

¶ The ende of the .iiij. boke of Moses.

A Prologe in to the fyfte boke of Moses called Deuteronompe.

This is a boke worthy to be redde both day and nyght and neuer to be out of handes. For it is the most excellent of all the bokes of Moses. It is called also and lyght and a very pure Gospell: that is to wete, a preachyng of fayth and loue: deducyng the loue to God out of fayth, and the loue of a mans neyghboure out of the loue of God. Yet in also thou mayst lerne right meditacion or contemplacion, which is nothyng els saue the contynuynge in mynde and a repeatyng in the herte of the glorious and wonderfull deades of god and of his terrible handelynge of his enemyes and mercyful entreatyng of them that come whē he calleth them whyche thinge hyre boke doth and almost nothinge els.

In the .iiij. first chapters, he rehercyth the benefices of God done vnto the, to prouoke the to loue, and his mighty dedes done aboue all natural power and beyonde all natural capacites of faith, that they might beleue god and trust in hym and in hys strength. And thyrdly he rehercyth the fierce plages of God vppon hys enemyes and on them which thorowe impacientie and vnbelefe fell from him: partely to tame and abate the appetites of the flesshe whyche alway fyght against the spirite, and partely to bridle the wilde rages fiers of the in whom was no spirite: for though they habe no power to do good of them, yet at the least waye they shulde absteyne from outwarde cruel fo feare of wurde and cruell vengaunce whyche should fall vppon them and shortly fynde them oute, yf they call vp goddes name and runne at ryote beyonde his lawes and ordinaunces. Moreouer he chargeth them to put nought to, nor take ought awaye from goddes wordes, but to be diligent only to kepe them in remembrance and in the harte and to teache theyr children, for feare of forgettynge. And to beware other of makyng imagery or of bowinge them selues vnto images, sayeng: Ye sawe no image when God spake vnto you, but herde a voyce only and that voyce kepe and herunto cleaue, for it is youre life and it shall saue you. And finally yf (as the frayltie of al flesh is) they shall haue fallen from God and be haue brought them in to trouble, aduersitie, and misbyance and all mere vnkynde, yf they repent and turne, he promyseth them that God shall remember his mercy and receyue them to grace agayn

In the fyft he repeteth the .x. commaundementes and that they myght be a cause to do them of loue, he biddeth them remembre that they were bounde in Egipte and how God delyuered them wyth a mighty hand and a stretched out arme, to serue him and to kepe his commaundementes: as Paul sayeth that we are bought wyth Christes bloud, and therfore are his seruauntes and not oure awne, & ought to seke his wil and honour only and to loue and serue one another for his sake.

In the sixte he setteth out the fountayne of all commaundementes: that is, that they beleue how that there is but one God that doeth all, and therfore ought only to beloued with all the hearte, all the soule, and al the myghte. For loue only is the fulfilling of the commaundementes, as Paule also saieth vnto the Romayns and Galathians likewise. He warneth the also that they forgett not the commaundementes, but teache the their childre & to show their children also how God delyuered the out of the bondage of the Egiptians to serue him and his commaundementes, that the children myght be a cause to worke of loue, lykewyse.

The seuenth, as al to gether of fayth: he remoueth all occasions that might withdraw them from the fayth, and pulleth them also from all confidence in them selues, and stirreth the vp to trust in god boldly, and onlye.

Of the eyght chapiter, thou leyrst how that the cause of all temptation is, that a mā might se his awne hert. For wha I am brought in to that extremite that I must eyther suffer or forsake god, there I shall lerne how much I beleue and trust in him, and how much I loue him. In like maner, yf my brother do me euil for my good, there yf I loue him when there is no cause in him, I se that my loue was of god, & euen so yf I then hate him, I feal and perceyue that my loue was but worldly. And finally he stirreth the to the faith and loue of god, & depryueth them frō all confydence of their awne selues

In the nynth also, he mouyth the vnto fayth and to put their trust in god, and draweth the from confidence of them selues by rehersynge al the wonderfulle whyche they had wrought from the first daye he knew them vnto that same daye. And in the ende the repeteth how he conuered god in boyde and ouercame him with prayer, where thou mayest learne the right maner to pray.

In the tenth, he rehemeth vp the pith of all lawes and the hepinge of the lawe in the harte whyche is to feare God, loue and serue him, with all their hart, soule and myght and kepe his commaundementes of loue. And he sheweth a reason why they should that doeynge because god is lorde of heauen & erth and hath also done all for them of his owne goodnesse without their deserving. And then out of the loue vnto God, he bryngeth the loue vnto a mans neyghbour, saying: god is lorde aboue all lordes and loueth all his seruauntes indifferently, as wel the poore and fable and the hungrer, as the rich and mighty, & therfore wyl that we loue the poore and the straunger. And he addeth a cause, for ye were straungers and god deliuered you and hath brought you vnto a lande where ye be at home. Loue the straunger therfore for his sake.

In the .xi. he exhorteth them to loue and feare god, and rehersyth the terrible dedes of god vppon his enemyes, and on them that rebelled a gayust him. And he testifyeth vnto the both what wil folow yf they loue and feare god, and what also yf they despyse him & breake his commaundement.

In the .xij. he commaundeth to put out of the way al that might be an occasion to hurte the fayth, and for byddeth to be ought after their owne mindes, or to alter the wordes of god.

In

The prologe.

In the.xiii. he forbedeth to herken vnto ought thyng vnto gods worde: no though he whiche coũseileth cõtrarye thinge come with miracles, as paule doth vnto the Galathians.

In the.xiiii. the beastes are forbidde, partly for the vncleanesse of the, and partely to cause hate betwene the bathe and the, that they haue no cõuersatiõ to gether, in that one abhorreth what the other eateth. Vnto the.xv. chapter all perteyne vnto fayth and love chefely. And in the.xv. he beginneth to entreate more specially of thynges pertayninge vnto the comen welth and equite: exhorteth vnto the love of a mans neyghboure. And in the.xvi. amonge other he forgetteth not the same. And in the.xvii. he entreateth of ryght and equite chefely, in so moche that when he laboreth vnto faith and vnto the punyshment of idolatrers, he yet entreteth in a lawe of love and equite: forbyddyng to condemne any mã vnder lefe them two wytnesses at the lest and commaundeth to bynge the trial peces vnto the open gate of the cite where all men go in and out, that al men myght beare the cause and se that he had but ryght. But the pope hath founde a better waye, euen to appose him with out any accusare and that secretely, that no man knowe whether he haue ryght or no, other here the articles or answere: for feare lest the people shulde serch whether it were so or no.

In the.xviii. he forbyddeth all fals: and dewysh crafftes that hurte true fayth. Moreouer because the people could not beare the voyce of the lawe spoken to them in fyre, he promyseth them another prophete to bynge: the better tydinges which was spoke of Christ our sauioure

The.xix. and so forth vnto the ende of the.xxii. is almoost al to gether of love vnto our neyghboures & of lawes of equite and honesty with now and then a respecte vnto fayth.

The.xxiii. is a terrible chap. and to be throughlye red ouer. For there many haue myght well bleed for sorow at the rearynge of it for feare of the wrath that is like to come vpon vs accordyng vnto all the curses which thou there readest.

For accordyng vnto those curses hath GOD bett vpon all nacions, after they were fallen in to the abhominacions of blindnesse.

The.xxix. is like terrible, with a godly lesson in the ende that we should lowe serchyng of gods secretes and geue diligence to walke accordyng to that he hath opened vnto vs. For the keepyng of the commaundementes of God teacheth wysdome as thou mayest se in the same chapter, where Moses sayeth, kepe the cõmandementes, that ye maye vnderstande what ye ought to do. But to serch goddes secretes bringeth a man to it is well proued by the ensamples of oure forefathers, whose wyfe bokes are now when we lyke to the scripture, founde but ful of fayre wordes.

¶ The fyfth booke of Moses called Deuteronomium.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ Moyses rehearsall of thynges done before. his ꝓphesyenge at mount Horeb vntyll they came to Cades barne.

THese be ꝑ wordes wh̃ the Moses spake vnto all Israel, on ꝑ other syde Jordan in ꝑ wyldernesse and in the feldes by the red sea, betwene Pharan and Tophel, Laban, Hazeroth and Dizahab. xi. dayes iourney from Horeb vnto Cades barne, by the way that leadeth vnto mount Seir. And it fortuned ꝑ fyrst daye of the.xi. moneth in the fourth yere that Moses spake vnto the children of Israel accordinge vnto all that the Lorde had geuen him in cõmaundement vnto them after that he had smytten Sehon ꝑ kynge of the Amorites which dwelt in Hesbon, and Og kinge of Basan which dwelt at Astaroth in Edrai.

On the other syde Jordan in the lande of Moab, Moses began to declare this lawe sayenge: the Lorde oure God spake vnto vs in * Horeb sayeng: Ye haue dwelt long ynough in this mount: departe therfore & take youre iourney and go vnto the hilles of the Amorites and vnto all places nye there vnto: both feldes, hylles and dales: and vnto the south & vnto the sea syde in the lande of Canaan, and vnto Libanon euen vnto the great water Euphrates. Beholde, I haue set ꝑ land before you: goo in therfore & possesse the land which the Lorde sware vnto youre fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to geue vnto them and their seade after them.

And I spake vnto you the same season: I am not able to beare you my selfe alone. For the Lorde your God hath multiplyed you: so ꝑ ye are this day as the starres of heauen in nombre (the Lorde God of your fathers make you a thousande tymes so many moo as ye are,) & blesse you as he hath promysed you) how shulde I beare your trouble, your burthen & your stryfe ꝑ is amonge you: bynge therfore men of wisedome & of vnderstandynge & expert chaunce amõge youre tribes, that I maye make the rulers ouer you. And ye answered me and sayde: that which thou hast spoken is good to be done. And then I toke the heades of youre tribes, men of wysdome & that were expert, and made them rulers ouer you: captaines ouer thousandes, & ouer hundreds, ouer fyfty & ouer ten, & officers a monge youre tribes.

Judges.

And I charged youre Judges the same time sayinge: heare youre brethren & iudge righteously betwene euery man and his brother and the straunger that is with him. Se that ye know no man in Judgement: *but heare the small as well as the great & be afrayed of no man, for the iudgment is Gods. And the cause that is to harde for you, bring vnto me and I will heare it. And I cómaunded you the same season, all the thynges which ye should do. And then we departed frō Horeb and walked thorow all that great & terrible wildernesse as ye haue sene alonge by the waye that leadeth vnto the hylles of the Amorites, as the Lord our God commaunded vs, and came to Cades barne. And there I sayd vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hilles of the Amorites, which the Lorde oure God doth geue vnto vs. Beholde the Lorde thy God hath set the lande *before the, goo vp and conquere it, as the Lord God of thy fathers sayeth vnto the: feare not, neither be discouraged. And then ye came vnto me euery one and sayd: Let vs sende men before vs, to searche vs out the lande and to bringe vs worde agayne, loo what waye we shall go vp by, and vnto what cyties we shall come. And the sayinge pleased me well and I toke xii. men of you, of euery tribe one. And they departed and went vp into the hye countrey and came vnto the riuer Escoll, and serched it oute, and toke of the frute of the lande in their handes and brought it downe vnto vs and brought vs worde agayne and sayde: it is a good land whyche the Lorde oure God doth geue vs.

* Leui. xix. c. Deuter. xvi. c. Eccle. xlij. a

* That is, at the commandement.

Notwithstandyng ye would not consente to goo vp, but were disobedyent vnto the mouth of the Lord your God, and murmured in youre tentes and sayde: because the Lord hateth vs, therfore he hath brought vs out of the lande of Egypte, to deliuer vs into the handes of the Amorites and to destroye vs. How shall we goo vp? Oure brethren haue discouraged oure hertes sayinge: the people is greater and taller then we, and the cyties are greate and walled euen vp to heauē, & moreouer we haue sene the sonnes of the Enakimes there.

And I sayde vnto you: dreade not nor be afrayed of them: The Lord your god which goeth before you, he shall fyghte for you, according to al that he dyd vnto you in Egypt before your eyes and in the wildernesse: as thou hast sene how that the Lorde thy God bare the as a man shoulde beare his sonne, thorow out all the waye which ye haue gone tyll ye came vnto this place. And yet for all this sayinge ye did not beleue the Lorde your God which goeth the waye before you, to serche you out a place to pitche your tentes in, *in fyre by nyghte, that ye myghte se what waye to go and in a cloude by day.

* Exo. xiij. b

And the Lorde heard the voyce of youre wordes and was wroth and sware sayinge, * there shall not one of these men of this froward generacion se that good land which I sware to geue vnto your fathers, saue Caleb the sonne of Jephunne, he shall se it, and to him wyl I geue the land which he hath walked in and to his children, because he hath cōtynually followed the Lorde. Lykewyse the Lorde was angry with me for youre sakes sayinge: thou also shalt not go in thither. But Josua the sonne of Nun which standeth before the, he shall go in thither. Bolden him therfore for he shal deuyde the heritage vnto Israell. * Moreouer youre chyldre which ye sayd should be a praye, and youre sonnes which knowe neither good nor bad this day, they shal goo in thither & vnto the I wyl geue it, and they shal enioye it. But as for you, turne backe & take your iourney into the wyldernesse: turn the way to the read sea. Then ye answered & sayd vnto me: We haue sinned against the Lord: we wyl go vp & fyghte, according to al that the Lord our God commaunded vs. And whē ye had gyrde on euery man his weapons of warre & were readye to go vp into the hilles, the Lorde sayd vnto me: say vnto them, se that ye go not vp & that ye fyghte not, for I am not a monge you: lest ye be plaged before youre enemies. &c. And when I told you ye would not heare: but disobeyed the mouth of the Lord, & wolt presumptuously vp into the hylles.

Then the Amorites which dwelt in those hylles, came out against you and chased you as bees do, and hewed you in Seir, euē vnto Horma. And ye came again and wepte before the Lord: but the Lord wolde not heare your voice nor geue you audience. And so ye abode in Cades along season.

The notes.

a. The people beyng vnfaithfull, would not go vnto the lande promised, but murmured against the Lorde that promysed it, because they beleued not that he was faythfull and would fulfyl his promyse. — Would not consent &c.

b. Their conscience gaue them, that they had deserued to be hated of the Lorde, and therfore through vnbeleefe, they thought that what so euer went against them, came of the hatred of GOD, Yea their vnbeleefe caused them to thinke, that their deliuerance out of the seruitude of Egypt came of hatred. But yf euer GOD maye be sayde to hate a man, it is when he regardeth him not but suffereth him to renne at large without any gouernaunce of his grace. — The Lord hateth vs.

c. Here is the verye Image of vs that lyue in this most perilouse tyme. For euen we likewyse, where goddes worde is, there beleue we not: and where it is not, there be we bold. — When Iuli pos.

¶ Wherfore of that whyche was done from the tyme that they departed from Cades barne vnto the battell against the kynges Sehon and Og.

A Then we tourned & toke oure iourney into the wyldernesse, euen the waye to the read sea as the Lorde cõmaunded me. And we cõpassed the mountayns of Seir a longe tyme. Then the Lord spake vnto me saying: Ye haue cõpassed these mountayns lõge ynough, tourne you northward. And warne ye people saying Ye shall go thorow the coostes of youre brethren the children of Esau whyche dwell in Seir, and they shalbe afrayed of you: But take good heade vnto youre selues that ye prouoke them not, for I wyll not geue you of their lande, no not so moch as a fote brade: because I haue geuen mount Seir vnto Esau to possesse. Ye shall bye meate of them for mony to eate, and ye shall bye water of them

And when we were departed frõ our brethren the children of Esau whyche dwelt in Seir by the feld waye from Elath and Ezion Gaber, we turned and went the waye to the wyldernesse of Moab. Then the Lord sayd vnto me se that thou vexe not the Moabites, neither prouoke them to battel for I wyll not geue the of their lande to possesse: because I haue geuen Ar vnto the children of Loth to possesse. The.a. Emims dwelt therin in tymes past, a people great, many & tall, as the Enakims: which also were taken for giantes as the * Enakims: And the Moabites
*Enakims the Iudi.i.d called them Emims. In like maner ye.b. Horims dwelt in Seir before tyme whych the children of Esau cast out, & destroyed them before them and dwelt there in their stede: as Israel did in the land of his possession which the Lord gaue them. Now ryse vp (sayd I) & get you ouer the ryuer Zared: and we went ouer the ryuer Zared. The space in whyche we came from Cades barne vntyll we were come ouer the ryuer Zared was.xxxviii. yeres: vntyll all the generacion of the men of warre were walked out of the host as the Lord sware vnto them. For in deede the hand of the Lord was against them to destroy the out of the host, tyll they were consumed.

D And as soone as al the men of warre were consumed & dead frõ among the people, then the Lord spake vnto me saying. Thou shalt go thorow Ar the coost of Moab this day, & shalt come nye vnto the children of Ammon: se that ye vexe the not, nor yet prouoke them. For I wil not geue the of the land of the children of Ammon to possesse, because I haue geuē it vnto the children of Loth to possesse. That also was taken for a land of giantes & giantes dwelt therin in old tyme, and the Ammonites called the.c. Zamzummins A people that was great, many & tall, as the Enakims. But the Lord destroyed the before the Ammonites, & they call the out & they dwelt there in their stede: as he did for the children of Esau which dwel in Seir: euen as he destroyed the Horims before them, & they call them out and dwelt in their stede vnto this daye. And the Auims which dwelt in Hazarim euen vnto Aza, the Caphthorims which came out of Caphthor destroyed them and dwelt in their rowme.

E Ryse vp, take youre iourney and go ouer the ryuer Arnon. Behold, * I haue geuen in to thy hande Sehon the Amorite kynge of Hesbon, & his land. Go to and conquere and prouoke hym to battell. Then I sent messengers out of the wilderneſſe of the realme vnto Sehon kynge of Hesbon, in wordes of peace saying: * Let me go thorow thy land. I wyll go al wayes alonge * Num.xxi.e.

I wyll go thorowe by fote only (as the children of Esau dyd vnto me whych dwel in Seir & the Moabites whych dwel in Ar) tyll I be come ouer Iordan, in to the lande whych the Lorde oure God geueth vs.

But Sehon the kyng of Hesbon wold not let vs passe by hym, for the Lord thy GOD had hardened hys spirite and made his herte tough because he wold deliuer him in to thy handes as it is come to passe this day.

And the Lorde sayde vnto me: beholde I haue begonne to set Sehon and hys lande * before thee go to and conquere, that ye mayst possesse hys lande. Then both Sehon and al hys people came out against vs vnto battell at * Jahaza. And the Lorde set hym before vs, and we smote hym and hys sonnes and al hys people.

¶ Iehersall of thynges that chaunsed from the victorye of the two kynges Sehon and Og, vnto the institucion of Iosue in Moses stede.

*Num. xxi.g Deut. xxix.b. THen we turned & wet vp the way to Basan. * And Og the kynge of Basan came out agayust vs: both he and all his people to battell at Edrai. And the Lorde sayde vnto me: feare him not for I haue delyuered him & all hys people & his land into thy hand & thou shalt deale wyth him as thou dealedst with Sehon kyng of the Amorites whiche dwelt at Hesbon. And so the Lord our god delyuered into oure handes, Og also the kyng of Basan & al his folcke. And we smote him vntil nought was left him.

And we toke al his cities the same season (for there was not a citie which we toke not from them) euen.iii. score cyties, all the regiō of Argob, the kyngdome of Og in Basan. All these cities were made stronge wyth hye walles gates & barres, besyde * vnwalled townes a great meanye. But all the catel & the spoyle of the cities, we caught for oure selues.

* As thorow fares and dyuerses.

And thus we toke the same season, & land out of the hande of two kynges of the Amorytes on the other syde Iordan, from the ryuer of Arnon vnto mount Hermon (whyche Hermon the Sidonis cal Sirion, but the Amorytes cal it Senir) al the cities in the playne and al Galaad and all Basan vnto Salecha & Edrai, cities of the kyngdome of Og in Basan. For only Og king of Basan remayned of the remnaūt of the gyauntes: behold, his yron bed is yet at Rabath among the chyldren of Ammon. ix. cubytes longe & .iiii. cubytes wyde, of the cubytes of a mā. And whē we had conquered thys lande the same time, I gaue from Aroer which is vpon the ryuer of Arnon, & halfe mount Galad and & cities therof vnto the Rubenites, & Gadites. And the rest of Galaad and al Basan & kingdom of Og, I gaue vnto the halfe tryble of Manasse: al the region of Argob wyth al Basan was called the lande of gyauntes. Iair the sonne of Manasse toke al & region of Argob vnto & coastes of Gesuri & Machati & called them after his owne name: Basan * Auoth Iair vnto this day. And I gaue half Galaad vnto Machir. And vnto Ruben & Gad I gaue from Galaad vnto the ryuer of Arnon & halfe the valley & the coast, euen vnto & ryuer Jaboch which is the border of the chyldren of Ammon, and the feldes and Iordan with the coaste, frō Cinereth euen vnto the sea in the feld which is the salt sea vnder the * spūges of Phasgah the eastwarde.

* That is, tabernacles or villages be lyinge ca Iair.

* Some thynke that Hebothjaijr signifyeth spunges, all though some wyll that it be the name of a towne.

And I cōmaunded you the same tyme (yea Ruben & Gad) saying: the Lord youre God hath geuen you thys land to enioye it: ye that ye go harnessed before youre brethren the chyldren of Israel, all that are men of warre among you. Youre wyues only your chyldren & your catell (for I wote that ye haue moch catel) shal abyde in your cities whych I haue geuen you, vntyl the Lord haue geuē rest vnto your brethren as wel as vnto you, & vntyll they also haue conquered the lande which the Lord your God hath geuen them beyonde Iordan: and then returne agayne euery man vnto his possession whych I haue geuen you.

And I warned Iosua the same tyme saying: thyne eyes haue sene all that the Lorde your God hath done vnto these two kinges, euen so the Lorde wyll do vnto all kyngdomes whyther thou goest. Feare them not for the Lord your GOD he it is that fyghteth for you.

And besoughte the Lorde the same tyme saying: O Lorde GOD thou hast begonne to shewe thy seruaunte thy greatnesse & thy myghty hande, for there is no God in heauē nor in erth that can do after thy workes & after thy power: let me go ouer & se the good lande that is beyonde Iordan, that goodly hye contre and Libanon. But the Lord was angrye wyth me for your sakes & wolde not heare me, but sayd vnto me, be content, and speake henceforth no moare vnto me of this matter. * Get the vp into the toppe of Phasgah & lyfte vp thyne eyes west, north, south, and easte, and behold it wyth thyne eyes for thou shalt not go ouer thys Iordan. ¶ An exhortacion to geue diligent herde vnto the law, & that they shuld not take away or adde any thynge therto. Images may not be worshipped nor yet made. The.iii. cities of refuge.

NOw herken Israel vnto & ordinaūces & lawes which I teach you, for to do them, that ye maye lyue & go and conquere the lande whych the Lorde God of youre fathers geueth you. Ye shall.a. put nothynge vnto the worde whych I commaunde you neither do ought therfrom, that ye maye kepe the commaundementes of the Lord your God which I commaunde you. Youre eyes haue sene what the Lord dyd vnto Baal Peor: for all the

the men that folowed Baal Peor, the Lord
pour God hath destroyed among you.
But ye that clave vnto the Lorde pour God
are a lyue euery one of you this day. Beholde, I haue taught you ordinaunces & lawes
such as the Lorde my God cōmaunded me Psal.xviii.b. that ye should do euē so in the land whither ye go to possesse it.

Kepe the therefore and do them* for that is your wysdome and vnderstandyng in the syght of the nations, whych whē they haue hearde all these ordinaunces, shall saye: O
what a wyse and vnderstaundynge people is this greate nation. For what nation is so B great that hath Goddes so nye vnto him as the Lorde oure God is nye vnto vs, in all thynges, whē we cal vnto him? Yea, & what nation is so greate that hathe ordinaunces,
and lawes so ryghtwoule, as all this lawe
which I set before you this day.

Take hede to thy selfe therfore only & kepe thy soule diligently, that thou forget not the thynges whych thyne eyes haue sene, & that they departe not oute of thyne herte, all the dayes of thy lyfe: but teach them thy sonnes Teach your children and thy sonnes sonnes. The day that I stode

he sayed vnto me, gather me the people together, that I may make them heare my wordes
that they maye learne to feare me as longe
as they lyue vpon the earth & that they may teache their children: ye came and stode also vnder the hyll, and the hyll burnte with fyre

And he declared vnto you his couenaunt
which he commaunded you to do, euē .x. verses & wrote them in two tables of stone. And C the Lord cōmaunded me that same tyme to tea-
che you ordinaūces and lawes, for to do them
in the land whither ye go to possesse it.

Take hede vnto youre selues diligently
as pertayneth vnto youre soules, for ye sawe no maner of ymage the day when the Lorde spake vnto you in Horeb out of the fire
lest ye marre your selues & make you graue
ymages after whatsoeuer likenes it be: whe ther after the lykenesse of manne or woman

any maner fethered foule that flyeth in the ayre, or of any maner worme that creapeth

vp thyne eye vnto heauen, & when thou seist

whatsoeuer is cōtained in heauen, shouldest be deceyued and shouldest bowe thy selfe to them and serue the thynges whych the Lord
thy God hathe distributed vnto all nations
that are vnder al quarters of heauen.

For the Lorde toke you and brought you out of the .y. yron furnace of Egipt, to be vn
to him a people of inheritaūce, as it is come to passe this daye. Furthermore, the Lorde was angrye wt me for your sakes & sware,
that I should not go ouer Jordan and that I should not go vnto that good land, which the Lorde thy God geueth the for inheritaūce.
For I must dye in this land, & shal not go ouer Jordan. But ye shall go ouer and conquere that good land.

Take hede to your selues therefore, that D ye forgett not the appoyntment of the Lorde
your god which he made with you, & that ye make you no grauen ymage of whatsoeuer
it be that the Lorde thy God hath forbidden

grauen ymages after the likenes of whatsoeuer it be, and shall worke wyckednes in the syght of the Lord thy God, to prouoke him.
I cal heauen and earth to recorde vnto you this day, that ye shal shortely perishe frō of the lande whither ye go ouer Jordan to pos-sesse it: ye shal not prolong your dayes therin
but shal shortly be destroyed. And the Lorde shal scatter you among nations, & ye shalbe left fewe in number among the people whither the lord shal bryng you, & there ye shall serue Gods whych are the workes of mans hand, wod & stone which neither se nor heare E nor eate nor smell. Neuertheles ye shall seke the Lord your God euen ther, and shall fynde hym if thou seke hym with all thyne herte and with all thy soule. In thy tribulation and when all these thynges are come vpon the euen in the latter dayes, thou shalte
turne vnto the Lorde thy God, and shalte herken vnto his voyce. For the Lord thy God is a pitiful God, he wil not forsake the neyther destroy the, nor forget the appoynt-
ment made vnto thy fathers whyche he sware

¶ The Israelites may make no couenaunt or appointment with the gētils. They must destroy their Idols. The that kepe the cōmaūdementes doth God loue & bleſſe, & the cōtrari hateth and punisheth. Idolaters must be slayne.

A WHen the Lorde thy God hathe brought the into the land whyther thou goest to possesse it, & hast caste out many nations before the: the Hethytes, the Gergesites, & Amorites, the Canaanites, the Pherezites, the Heuites, and the Jebusites. vii. nations moo in numbre & myghtier then thou: and when the Lord thy God hath sent them before the that thou shouldest smyte the se that thou vtterly destroye them and make no couenaunt with them nor haue compassyon vppon them. Also thou shalte make no marryages wyth them, neyther gyue thy daughter vnto hys sone, nor take hys daughter vnto thy sonne. For they wyl make your sonnes departe from me, and serue straunge Goddes, and then wyll the wrathe of the Lorde waxe whote vpon you and destroye you shortly.

☞ But thus ye shall deale wyth them: ouer throwe theyr altres, breake downe theyr pyllers cut downe their groues and burne their ymages wyth fyre. His owne truth causeth him to worke

¶ The.viii.Chapter.

¶ Moses putteth Israelites in remembraūce of the afflictiōs and benefites that they had the .xl. yeres which they were in the wildernes.

All the cōmaundemētes which I commaunde the thys day ye shall kepe for to do them, that ye may lyue & multiplye, & go & possesse ye lande which the lord sware vnto youre fathers. And thinke on all the waye whych the lord thy God ledde the this .xl. yere in the wildernesse, for to humble the and to proue the, to wete what was in in thyne herte, whether thou wouldest kepe his commaundements or no, &c. a. humbled the and made the hongry and fedde the with Manna, whych neyther thou nor thy father knew of to make the know that a man must not lyue by breade onelye: but by all that proceadeth out of the mouth of the Lord must a
B man liue. b Thy raiment waxed not old vpon the neither did thy fete swell this .xl. yere.

Vnderstand therefore in thyne herte that as a man nourtereth hys sonne, euen so the Lord thy god nourtereth the. Kepe therfore the cōmaundemētes of the Lord thy god that thou walke in hys wayes & that ye fear him. For the Lorde thy God bringeth the into a good Lande, a lande of ryuers of water, of fountaynes & of springes & spring out both in valeies and hylles: a land of wheate & of barley, of vynes, frygge trees & pōgranates, a land of oliue trees with oyle & of honye: a lande wherein thou shalt not eate bread in scharsenesse, and where thou shalt lacke nothynge, a lande whose stones are yron, & out of whose hyls thou shalt digge braſſe. Whē thou haste eaten therof and fylled thy selfe, then blesse the Lord for the good land which he hath geuen the.

C But beware that thou forget not the Lord thy god, that thou wouldest not kepe his cōmaundemētes, lawes & ordinaūces which I commaund the thys daye: yea, & whē thou hast eaten and fylled thy selfe and hast buylt goodly houses and dwelt therein, & whē thy beaſte and thy shepe are waxed manye & thy syluer and golde is multiplied & al that thou hast encreased, then beware lest thyne herte ryse & thou forget the Lorde thy God which brought the out of the lād of Egypt & house of bondage, & which ledde the in the wildernesse both great and terrible with fyry serpētes and scorpiōs and brought where was no water which brought the water out of & roche of flint: which fed the in the wildernes with Manna whereof thy fathers knewe not for to. c. humble the and to proue the, that he myght do the good at thy later ende.

D And beware that thou saye not in thyne herte, my power & the myght of mine owne hande hath done me all these actes: But remembre the Lord thy God, how that it is he which gaue the power to do māfully, for to make good the promises whiche he sware to thy fathers, as it is come to passe this day.

For if thou shalt forget the Lord thy god and shalt walke after straūg Gods & serue them and worshippe them, I testifye vnto you this day, that ye shal surely perysh. As the nations whych the Lorde destroyeth before the, euen so, ye shall perysche, because ye wouldest not herken vnto the voyce of the Lorde your God.

The.ix.Chapter.

¶ They are forbydden to truste in their owne strength. It rehearsall of certayne thynges that were done after the lawe was geuen, vnto the murmuring of the geuen of lawe.

H

Eare Israell, thou goest ouer Iordan thys daye, to go & cōquere nations greater & mightyer then thy selfe, and cyties great and .a. walled vp to heauen, and people greate and tal, euen the children of the Enakyms, whyche thou knowest, and of whom thou hast heard saye, who is able to stande before the childre of Enak? But vnderstand this day that the Lorde thy God whych goeth ouer before & a deuouring fire, fyre, he shall destroye them and he shall subdue them before the. And thou shalt cast them out, and bringe them out, and bringe them to nought quyckelye as the Lorde hathe sayed vnto the.

Where is mans ryghteousnes.

¶ Speake not in thyne herte, after that the Lord thy God hath cast them out before the sayinge: for my ryghteousnes the Lord hath brought me in to possesse this land. Nay, but for the wyckednes of these nations the Lord doeth caste them out before the. It is not for thy ryghteousnes sake or right hert that thou goest to possesse their land: But partely for the wickednesse of these nations, the Lorde thy God doeth caste them before the, and partely to performe that whyche the Lorde thy God swore vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

B Understand therfore that it is not for thy righteousnes sake, that the lord thy God doth give the thys good lād to possesse it, for thou art a styffnecked people. Remembre & forget not how thou prouokedest the lord thy God in the wildernes: for sence the daye that thou camest out of the lād of Egypt vntil ye came vnto this place, ye have rebelled against the Lorde. * Also in Horeb ye angryed the Lord so that the Lorde was wroth wyth you, euē to have destroied you. after that I was gone vp into the mount, to fett the tables of stone the table of an appointmēt whych the Lord made wyth you. And I abode in the hill. xl. dayes & .xl. nyghtes, & neyther ate breade nor dranke water. * And the Lord delivered me two tables of stone writē with the finger of God, and in them was accordynge to all the wordes which the Lord spake vnto you in the mounte out of the fyre in the daye when the people were gathered togyther.

Exo.xxxii.b. Exo.xxxiii.b.

And when .xl. dayes and .xl. nyghtes were ended, the Lorde gave me the two tables of stone, the tables of the testament, and sayde vnto me. * Vp, and get the downe quyckely from hence, for the people whych thou hast brought out of Egypte, have marred themselves. They are turned attonce out of the waye, whych I commaunded them, & have made them a God of metall. Furthermore the Lorde spake vnto me sayinge: I se thys people howe that it is a styffenecked people, let me alone that I maye destroye them and put out the name of them from vnder heaue and I will make of the a nation both greater and mo then they.

And I turned awaye and came downe frō the hylle (& the hyll burnt with fire) & had the two tables of the appointmēt in my handes And when I loked & saw that ye had synned against the Lorde our God & had made you a calfe of metall and had turned attonce out of the waye which the Lord had cōmaunded you * Thē I toke the two tables & cast them out of my two handes, & brake them before your eyes. * And I fell before the Lord: euē as at the fyrst tyme, xl. dayes & .xl. nyghtes & neither ate breade nor dranke water ouer all your synnes which ye had synned in doynge wickedly in the sight of the Lord & in prouokyng hym. For I was afrayed of the wrath and fearcenes wherwith the Lorde was angry wyth you, euen to have destroyed you. But the Lorde hearde my peticion at that tyme also.

Exo.xxxiii.b. Exo.xxxiii.b. Exo.xxxii.b.

The Lorde was very angry with Aaron also, euen for to have destroyed hym: But I made intercession for Aarō also y same tyme And I toke your synne, the calfe whyche ye had made & burnt him wt fyre & stāped him & ground him a good, euē vnto smal dust. And I cast the dust therof into the broke that descended out of the mount. Also at * Thaberah & at Massah & at the sepulchres of lust ye angred the Lorde, yea, and when the Lord sent you from Cades Barne sayinge: go vp & cōquere the lande whych I have geuen you, ye disobeyed the mouth of the Lord your God & neither beleved hym, nor herkened to hys voice. Thus ye have bene disobedient to the Lord, sence the daye that I knew you.

D Exo.xxxiii.b Lorke. Num. xi.a. Learne to praye.

And I fell before the Lord .xl. dayes and .xl. nyghtes whyche I lay there, for the Lord was mynded to have destroyed you. But I made intercession vnto the Lord & sayed * O Lorde God, destroye not thy people & thyne enherytaunce whyche thou haste delyuered thorowe thy greatnes and whych thou hast brought out of Egypte with a myghty hand Remēbre thy seruauntes Abraham, Isaac, & Jacob, & loke not to the stubburnes of thys people nor to their wyckednes & synne: lest the lond whence thou broughtest them sayest Because the Lorde was not able to bringe them into the lande whyche he promised the and because he hated the, therfore he caried them out to destroy them in the wyldernes. Moreouer they are thy people and thyne enherytaunce, whyche thou broughtest oute wyth thy myghty power & wyth thy stretched out arme.

AT the same season the Lorde sayed vnto me * hewe the two tables of stone lyke to the fyrst and come vp vnto me into the mount and make the an arke of wodde, and I wyll wryte in the tables, the wordes y were in the fyrst tables which thou brakest, & thou shalt put them in the arke. And I made an arke of settym wood & hewed two tables of stone like vnto y fyrste, and went vp into the mountayne and the .ij. tables in myne hand.

And he wrote in the tables, accordyng to y fyrst

spake vnto you in the mount of fyre in the day when the people gathered together and gaue them vnto me. And I departed & came downe from the hil and put the tables in the arke whych I had made: and there they remained, as the Lord commaunded me.

B And the children of Israel toke theyr iourney from Beroth of the children Jaakan to Mosera, wher Aaro died and wher he was buried, and Eleazar his sonne became priest in hys stead. And from thence they departed vnto Gadgad: & frō Gadgad to * Jathbath
a land of riuers of water. And the same season the Lorde seperated the tribe of Leui to beare the arcke of the appointemente of the Lorde and to stande before the Lord, and to minister vnto hym and to bleesse in his name vnto thys day. Wherfore the Leuites haue
no part nor enheritaunce with theyr brethren
The Lorde he is theyr enheritaunce, as the Lorde thy God hath promised them.
And I taried in the mount, euē as at the first time. xl. dayes and. xl. nyghtes and the Lord herkened vnto me at that tyme: also, so that the Lord wold not destroy the. And the Lord sayed vnto me: vp & go forthe in the iourney
before the people and let them go in and cōquere the land which I swate vnto theyr fathers to giue them.

C And now Israel what is it that the Lord
thy God requireth of the, but to feare & lord thy God and to walke in all hys wayes & to *loue him & to serue the Lord thy God with all thyne herte, & with all thy soule, that thou kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde & hys ordinaunces which I cōmaund the this day, for thy wealth. Behold, heauen and the heauen of heauēs is the Lordes thy God, &
the earth vth all that therin is: onely the Lorde had a lust vnto thy fathers to loue them, and therfore chose you their sede after them of al
nacions, as it is come to passe this day.

D C Circumcyse therefore the foreskynne of youre hertes, and be no lenger styfnecked.
For the Lord your God, he is god of Godes, and Lorde of Lordes, a greate God, a myghty and a terrible whych regardeth no
mans person, nor taketh giftes: but doth right vnto the fatherles & widowe and loueth the straunger, to giue him fode and raiment.
Loue therfore ye straūger, for ye were straū-
gers your selues in the lande of Egypt.
Thou shalt feare thy Lord thy God & serue him, and cleaue vnto him, & a. sweare by his name, for he is thy prayse and he is thy God & hathe done these greate & terrible thynges

For youre eyes haue sene all the greate

maunde the thys day, that ye may be stronge

to possesse it, & that ye maye prolonge youre
dayes in the lande whyche the Lorde swate vnto your fathers to gyue vnto them and to theyr sede, a lande that floweth with milcke
and hony. For the lande whether thou goest to possesse it, is not as the Lande of Egypte
whēce thou camest out, wher thou sowedest thi sede and. a. waterest it with thy fete as a garde of herbes: but the land whether ye go ouer to possesse it, is a land of hylles and ba-

uen, and a Land whyche the Lord thy God careth for. The eyes of the lord thy God are alwayes vpon it, from the beginnyng of the

If thou shalt herken therfore vnto mi cō-

and vpō thy gates, that your dayes may be multyplyed, and the dayes of your children
vpon the earth, which the Lord sware vnto your fathers to gyue them, as longe as the dayes of heauē last vpon the earth. For if ye shall kepe all these cōmaundementes which I cōmaund you, so that ye do thē, & loue the Lord your God, and walke in all his waies

but turne out of the wape which I cōmaun-de you this dape, to go after straunge God-des which ye haue not knowne.

Exod. xix.a

THese are the wordes of the appoyntmen which the Lord cōmaunded Moses to make with the children of Israell in the lande of Moab, besyde the appoyntment which he made with them in Horeb. And Moses called vnto al Israel & sayd vnto them: Ye haue sene al that the Lord did before your eyes in the land of Egypt, vnto Pharao & vnto all hys seruauntes, and vnto al his land, and the great temptacions whiche thyne eyes haue sene and those great miracles and wonders: & yet the Lord hath not geuen you an herte to perceyue, nor eyes to se, nor eares to heere vnto this day.

*Deu. viii.a

* And I haue led you .xl. yere in the wylder nesse: & youre clothes are not waxed olde vpō you, nor thy shoes are waxed old vpō thy fete. Ye haue eaten no bread not dronck wyne or strounge drynke: that ye myght knowe, how that he is the Lorde your God.

B

* And at the last ye came vnto this place, & Sehon the kynge of Hesbon and Og kynge of Basan came out against you vnto battel, and we smote them and toke thier lande and gaue it an herytaunce vnto the Rubenytes and Gaditen & to the halfe tribe of Manasse

*Num.xxi.f. & g. Deu.xxx 4.

Depe therfore ye wordes of this appoyntmēt and do them, that ye maye vnderstande all that ye ought to do. * Ye stande here this day euery one of you before the Lord your God, both the heades of your tribes your elders, youre officers & all the men of Israel: youre chyldre, your wiues and the straungers that are in thyne host, from ye hewer of thy wood vnto ye drawer of thy water: that thou shuldest come vnder the appoyntment of the Lorde thy God, & vnder his oth which the Lord thy God maketh with the this day. That he make the a people vnto him selfe, & that he maye be vnto the a God, as he hath sayde vnto the & he hath swoune vnto thy fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

Also I make not this bonde and this othe with you onlye: but both with him that standeth here with vs this daye before the Lorde oure god, and also with him that is not here with vs this daye. For ye knowe howe we haue dwelt in the lande of Egypte, and how we came thorow the myddes of ye naciōs which we passed by. And ye haue sene their abhominacious and their idolles: wod & stone, syluer and golde which they had.

Lest there be among you man or woman kynred or tribe, ye turneth away in hys hert thys day from the Lord our God, to go and serue the goddes of these naciōs: & lest there be amonge you some wotz that beareth gall and wormwod, so that when he heareth the wordes of this curse, he blesse him self in his hert sayng: I shall haue peace. I wyll therefore worche after the lust of myne owne hert, that the .a. dronche map perysh with the thyrstye. And so the Lorde wyll not be mercyfull vnto hym, but then the wrath of the lord & his gelousye, smoke against that man, & al the curses that are written in thys boke lyght vpon hym, and the Lorde do out hys name from vnder heauen, and separate hym vnto euell out of all the tribes of Israell accordyng vnto al the curses of the appoyntemēt that is writē in the boke of this lawe.

a. By this is signified, ye both the wycked teacher & the disciple which receyueth euell doctryne shal perish together. Some write that the dronchen map be put to the thyrd sype. Some that drunkennesse maye be put to thyrst.

So that the generacion to come of youre chyldren that shall ryse vp after you and the straunger that shal come from a ferre land, sayn when they se the plages of that lande, & the diseases wherwith the Lord hath smytē it how all the land is burnt vp with brymstone & salt, & yt it is neither sowne nor beareth, nor any grasse groweth therin, after the ouerthrowing of Sodome, Gomor, Adama and Zeboim: which the Lord ouerthrewe in his wrath and angre.

*Jer. xvi.b and.c. iij.Reg.ix.b

And then shal al nacions also say: *wherfore hath the Lorde done of this facion vnto this lande? O how fearse is this great wrath? And men shal saye: because they lefte the testament of the Lorde God of their fathers which he made with them, when he brought the out of the land of Egypt. And they went & serued straunge goddes & worshipped the: goddes which they knew not and which had geue the nought. And therfore the wrath of the Lorde warde whote vpon that lande to bryng vpon it all the curses that are written in this boke. And the Lorde cast them out of their lande in angre, wrath and greate furyousnesse, and cast the in to a straunge land, as it is come to passe this day. The secrettes of the Lord oure God. b. are opened vnto vs and our children for euer, that we do all the wordes of this lawe.

Also the Lorde hath sayd vnto me, thou shalt not go ouer thys Jordan. The Lorde your God he wyll go ouer before the and he wyll destroy ye these nations before the, and thou shalt conquere the. I haue determined to shatter them thowowoute the worlde, and to make awaye the remembraunce of theym from amonge men. Were it not that I feared the raylynge of theyr enemies, lest theyr aduersaries wolde be proude and saye: oure hye hande hathe done all these woodes and not the Lorde.

For it is a nation that hath an vnhappye forcast, and hathe no vnderstanding in them: I would they were wyse and vnderstode thys & wolde consider their latter ende.

How it cometh that one shal chace a thousande, and two putt ten thousande of them to flyght, excepte their rocke had solde the, and because the Lord had deliuered them.

For oure rocke is not as theyr rocke, no thoughe oure enemies be iudge. But theyr vynes are of the vynes of Sodome, & of the fieldes of Gomorra. Theyr grapes are grapes of gall, and theyr clusters be bitter.

Theyr wyne is ỹ poyson of dragõs, and the cruel gall of aspes. Are not such thynges layed in store with me, and sealed vp amõg my treasures? *Vengeaunce is mine, and I wyll reward: theyr fete shall slyde, whē the tyme cometh. For the Lorde thy God is with the whether soeuer thou goest.

Then Josua commaunded the officers of the people, saying: Go thorow the myddes of the hoste, and commaunde the people, saying: prepare you vytayles: for after thre dayes ye shall passe ouer this Jordan, to go and enioy the lande whiche the Lorde your God geueth you, to possesse it.

And vnto the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe the tribe of Manasses spake Josua, saying: Remember that whiche Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded you, saynge. The Lorde your God hath geuen you rest, & hath geuen you this lande. Let youre wyues, youre chyldren, and youre catell remayne in the lande which Moses gaue you on this syde Jordan: But go ye before youre brethren armyd, all that be men of warre, & helpe them vntyll the Lorde haue geuen your brethren rest, as he hath you, and vntyll they also haue obtayned the lande which the Lord youre God geueth them. And then returne vnto the lande of youre possession and enioy it, which lande Moses the Lordes seruaunte gaue you on this syde Jordan towarde the sunne vprynge. And they answered Josua saynge: * All that thou bydest vs, we will do, and whether soeuer thou sendest vs, we will go. And when Josua was come to Jericho, he lyfte vp his eyes and loked: and behold there ſtode a man before him with his ſworde drawē in his hande. And Josua went vnto hym, and ſayde vnto hym, tarieſt thou on our ſyde, or on our aduerſaries. And he anſwered: Naye, but I am the captayne of the hoſte of the Lorde, & am nowe come. And Josua fell on hys face to the earth and dyd reuerence, and ſayd vnto hym, what ſayth my Lorde vnto hys ſeruaunt. And the captayne of the Lordes hoſte ſayde vnto Josua: *do thy ſhoes of thy feete, for the place wherein thou ſtandeſt, is holye. And Josua dyd ſo.

The. vi. Chapter.

The walles of Jericho fall, and it is taken.

AND Jericho ſhut in her people, & was ſhut for feare of the children of Israel, ſo that no man went out or in. And the Lorde ſayde vnto Josua: beholde, I haue geuen into thyne hand Jericho & her kynge & the men of warre. And ye ſhall compaſſe the citie, all that be men of warre, & go rounde about it once: ſo ſhall you do ſyxe dayes. And ſeuen prieſtes ſhall beare ſeuen trompettes of *rammes hornes before the arcke. And the ſeuenth daye ye ſhall compaſſe the cytye ſeuen tymes, & the prieſtes ſhall blowe with theyr trompettes. And when there is a longe blaſte blowen with the rammes horne, aſſone as ye heare the ſounde of the horne, let all the people ſhowte a myghtye ſhowte. And then ſhal the walles of the cytye falle downe, and the people ſhall aſcende vp, euerye man ſtraight before hym. And Josua the ſonne of Nun, called vnto the prieſtes, and ſayde vnto them: take vp the arcke of the appoyntement, and let ſeuen prieſtes beare ſeuē trompettes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde. And he ſayd vnto the people, go and compaſſe the citie: and let the men of armes go before the arcke of the Lorde. And when Josua had ſpoken vnto the people, the ſeuen prieſtes that bare the ſeuen trompettes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde, wente forthe and blew with the hornes, and the arcke of the Teſtament of the Lorde followed after them. And the men of armes wente before the prieſtes that blewe with the hornes, and the other people came after the arcke, as they vſed, they blew with the hornes. And Josua commaunded the people, ſayenge: ſhowte not nor let your voyce be hearde, ne any worde procede out of your mouthes, vntyll the daye I byd you ſhowte then ſhowte.

*After ſome bookes. The common Tranſlation, of the yeare of iubile.

And ſo the arke of the Lorde compaſſed the cytye and went about it once: and then they returned into the hoſte and lodged there. And Josua roſe early on the morowe, and the prieſtes toke vp the arcke of the Lorde, & ſeuē prieſtes bare ſeuē trompettes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde, & as they went blew with the hornes. And the men of armes went before them, & the common people came after the arke of the Lorde, & as they went, they blewe with the hornes. And the ſeconde daye they compaſſed the citie once, & returned agayne into the hoſte, & ſo they dyd ſyx dayes longe.

And the ſeuenth daye they roſe early in the morninge at the dawninge of the daye, and compaſſed the cytye after the ſame maner ſeuen tymes: only in that they compaſſed the cytye ſeuē times

And at the ſeuenthe tyme, the prieſtes blewe with the hornes, & Josua ſayde vnto the people, ſhowte for the Lorde hath geuen you the cytye. But the cytye ſhalbe excommunicate, both it and all that is therin, vnto the Lorde: onelye Rahab the harlot ſhall lyue, both ſhe and all that is with her in the houſe, becauſe ſhe *hyd the meſſengers that we ſent. And in any wyſe beware of the excommunicate thynges, leaſte ye make your ſelues excommunicate, for yf you take of the excommunicate thynges, ſo ſhall you make the hoſte of Israel excommunicate and ſhall trouble it. But of the ſyluer, golde, veſſelles of braſſe, & yron ſhalbe holye vnto the Lorde, and ſhall goo to hys treaſurye.

*Josue. ij. d

And the people cryed, and blewe with hornes: for when the people hearde the ſounde of the hornes, they ſhowted a great ſhowte: and the walles fell downe, and the people wente vp into the cytye, euerye man ſtraight before hym, and toke the cytye. And they vtterlye deſtroyed all that was in the cytye, both man and woman, younge & olde, oxe, ſheepe, & aſſe, with the edge of the ſwerde.

*Josue. vi. d

Then Josua ſayde vnto the two men that went to ſpye out the countreye: *go into the harlottes houſe, and bring out thence, both the woman & all that pertayneth to her, * as ye ſware to her. And the younge men that were ſpyes wente in, and brought out Rahab, and her father, and mother, and all her brethren and all that she had. And they brought out all

And they burnt the cyte with fyre, and al that was therein. Only the syluer, ỹ golde, & the thynges of braſſe, and yron they put vnto the treasure of the house of the Lorde.

* And Josua saued Rahab the harlote, & her fathers housholde and all that pertayned vnto her, & she dwelte in Israel, euen vnto thys daye, because she hydde ỹ messengers whiche Josua sent to spye out Jericho.

And Josua cursed at that tyme, saying, cursed be the man before the Lorde, that ryseth vp and buyldeth this cyte Jericho: so that he laye the foundacyon with the death of hys eldest sonne, & with the death of hys yongest set vp the gates. And the Lorde was with Josua, and hys fame was heard, throughout all landes.

The. vii. Chapter.

Achan is spyed out. Israel is ouercome because he tooke of the excommunicate thynges.

BVt yet the children of Israel trespased in ỹ excōmunicate thinges for * Achan the sonne of Carmi, ỹ sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zareth of the tribe of Juda, toke of the excommunicate thynges. And the wrath of the Lorde waxed whote against the children of Israel.

Then Josua sent men from Jericho to Ai which is beside Bethauen, on the eastside of a Bethel, and spake vnto them, saying: get you vp and view the countrey. And the men went vp and spyed out Ai. And returned vnto Josua, and sayde vnto hym, let not all the people go vp, but let as it were a two or three thousande men go vp and destroye Ai, and make not all the people to labour thether, for they are but fewe.

And so there went vp thether about a three thousande men, whiche fledde before the men of Ai. And the men of Ai smote of them vpon a thyrtye and sixe men, and chased them before the gates euen vnto Gabarim, and smote them in the goynge downe. And the hertes of the people were discouraged and melted lyke water. And Josua rent hys clothes, and fell to the earth vpon hys face before the arcke of the Lorde vntyll the euen tyde, bothe he and the elders of Israel, and put earth vpon their heades.

And Josua sayde, Ah, Lorde Jehouah, wherfore haste thou brought this people ouer Jordan to delyuer vs into the handes of the Amorytes to destroye vs? wolde to God we had aduentured ỹ dwelt on the other side Jordan. Oh Lorde what shall I say, when Israel turneth their backes before their enemyes: Moreouer the Cananites, and all the inhabyters of the Lande shall heare of it, and shall come about vs, and destroye the name of vs out of the worlde. And then what wilt thou do vnto thy mighty name.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua, ryse thy

hy, wherfore lyest thou thus vpon thy face? Israel hath synned & also transgressed myne appoyntement, which I commaunded them, and haue taken of the excommunicate thynges and haue stolen and hydde them, and also put them vnto their owne stuffe: And therfore the children of Israel cannot stande before their enemyes. They shall turne their backes before their enemyes, because they be excommunicate. Neither will I be with you any more, except ye destroye the excommunicate from among you.

Vp & sanctifye the people and byd them sanctifye them selues against the morowe for so sayth the Lorde God of Israel, there is excommunicacyon in among you Israel, and therfore ye cannot stande before youre enemyes, vntyll ye haue put the excommunicacyon from amonge you. To morowe morning ye shall come by youre tribes. And the tribe which the Lord shall fynde gylty, shal come by kynredes. And ỹ kynrede which the Lorde shall fynde gylty, shal come by housholders. And the housholde whiche the Lorde shall fynde faulty, shall come man by man. And he ỹ is founde in the excōmunicacyon shalbe burnt with fyre, bothe he and al that pertayneth vnto hym, because he hath transgressed the couenaunt of the Lord, and because he hath wrought folye in Israel.

And so Josua rose vp early in the morninge and brought Israel by their tribes: and the tribe of Juda was caught. Then he brought the kynredes of Juda, and founde the kynred of the Zarhytes gylty. And he brought the kynred of the Zarhytes by housholders, and Zabdy was caught. And he brought hys housholde man by man, and Achan the sonne of Carmy, the sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zareth in the tribe of Juda was caught.

And Josua sayde vnto Achan: my sonne, geue glorye to the Lorde God of Israel, & geue hym prayse, & shewe me what thou hast done, and hyde it not from me. And Achan answered Josua, and sayde: of a truthe I haue synned against the Lorde God of Israel, and so and so haue I done. I sawe amonge the spoyle a goodlye Babylonyshe garment, and two hundred sicles of syluer, and a * tonge of golde of fyfty sicles weyghte: and I coueted them, and I tobe them. And beholde they lye hydde in the earthe in my tente and the syluer there vnder.

And then Josua sent messengers whiche came vnto the tent. And beholde, it was hydde in hys tent, and the syluer there vnder. And they toke them out of the myddest of his tent, and brought them vnto Josua, and vnto all the children of Israel, and powred them out before the Lorde.

And Josua toke Achan the sonne of Zareth, and the syluer, and the garment, and the tonge of golde, and hys sonnes and hys doughters, hys oxen, asses, sheepe, hys tente and all that he had, and all Israell with hym

The.viii. Chapter.

¶ The hege and ouerthrow of Ai. The kynge therof is hanged. Josua buyldeth vp an altare on mount Ebal. He writeth the lawe of Deuteronomye. He reciteth the people.

AND the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: feare not, nor dismay: but take al the men of warre with the, and vp and get the to Ai. Beholde I haue geuen into thy hande, the kynge of Ai, and hys people, hys cytye and hys lande. And thou shalt do to Ai and her kynge, as thou dyddest vnto * Jericho and her kynge. And then Josua arose, and al the men of warre, to go vp vnto Ai. And Josua chose out thyrty thousand men of warre, and sent them by nyght. And he commaunded them saying: Se that ye lye awaye vnto the towne on the backsyde therof. Go not very farre from the cytye, and se that ye be al redye. And I and al the people that are with me, wil approche vnto the cytye. And when they come out agaynst vs, * as at the fyrste tyme, then will we fle before them. And they will come out after vs, vntyl we haue plucked them awaye from the cytye. For they will saye, they flee vs, as at the fyrste tyme, for we will fle before them. Then shall ye ryse vp from lying awaye & destroye the cytye for the Lorde youre God wyll delyuer it into youre handes. Allowe therfore as ye haue taken the cytye, se that ye set it on fyre. Accordynge to the commaundemẽt of the Lord se that ye do, behold, I haue charged you.

And Josua sent them forth, and they went to lye awaye, and laye betweene Bethel and Ai, on the west syde of Ai. But Josua lodged that nyght amonge the people. And he rose vp erlye in the mornynge and numbred the people and went vp, both he and the elders of Israel before the people, vnto Ai. And all the men of warre that were with hym, went vp and drue nye, and came before the cytye, and pytched on the north syde of Ai, a valeye betweene them and Ai. And he toke vpon a fyue thousande men and put them to lye awaye, betweene Bethel and Ai, on the west syde of the cytye. And he put the people euen al the hoste, on the north syde of the cytye, and the spies awaye on the weste. And Josua went the same nyght into the myddes of the valeye.

And when the kyng of Ai sawe that they hasted & rose vp erlye, then the people of the cytye went out agaynst Israel, to battel, both the kynge & all hys people, at a tyme appoynted, euen before the playne, and wyst not that there were spies awaye on the backsyde of the cytye.

And Josua and Israell were put to the worse before them, and fled towarde the wyldernesse. And al the people of the towne cryed to folowe after them. And they followed after Josua tyll they were drawen awaye from the cytye: So that there was not a man lefte in Ai, or in Bethel, that went not out after Israel. And they left the cytye open and folowed after Israel.

Then the Lorde sayd vnto Josua, stretche out the boucklar that is in thyne hande towarde Ai, for I haue geuen the it. And Josua stretched out the boucklar that was in hys hande, toward the cytye. And the men awaite rose quyckly out of theyr places, and came, assone as Josua had stretched out his hande, and they entred into the cytye, and toke it, and hasted and set it on fyre. And when the men of Ai loked backe after them and sawe, Behold, the smoke of the cytye ascended vp to

And when Josua and al Israel sawe that the spies awaye had taken the cytye and that the smoke of it ascended, They turned agayne and layed on the men of Ai. And the other yssued out of the cytye agaynst them. And so were they in the myddes of Israell, their bande on the one syde of them, and the reste on the other. And they layed vpon them, so that they let none escape or saue. And the kynge of Ai they toke a lyue and brought hym to Josua. And when Israel had made an ende of slayeng all the inhabiters of Ai in the fyelde, and in the wyldernesse, by whych they chased them, and when they were all fallen on the edge of the swerde, vntyll they were wasted. Then all Israel returned vnto Ai and smote it with the edge of the swerde. And al that fell that daye, both of men and women, were twelue thousand, euen all the men of Ai.

The.ix. Chapter.

¶ The Gabeonytes obteyne peace of Josua by treatye, but are after excommunicate.

AND when all the kynges that dwelt on this syde Jordan, in the hilles and valeys, and a longe by all the costes of the great sea, euen vnto Libanon, the Hethites, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Pherezites, the Heuytes, and the Jebusites herde, they gathered them selues together to fyght against Josua and Israel, with one accorde.

But when the Inhabitoures of Gabaon herde what Josua had done vnto Jericho, & Ai, they playd wylyly, and went and feute Ambassadours, and toke the olde sackes vpõ their Asses, and wyne bottelles olde and rent and kupt together again, and olde clouted shoes vpon their fete, and olde rayment vpõ them, and all their prouysyon of bread was dryed vp and mould. And they came vnto Josua vnto the hoste to Galgall and sayde vnto hym and vnto the men of Israell: we be come from a farre countrey, make therfore make agreemẽt with vs. And the men of Israel sayd vnto the Heuites, parauenture you dwelle amonge vs, and then how shoulde we make peace wyth you?

And they sayde vnto Josua, we are thy seruaunts. And Josua sayde vnto them, what are ye, and whence come ye? And they answered him, From a verye farre countrey thy seruaunts are come in the name of the Loode thy God, for we haue heard the fame of him, and al that he dyd in Egypte, and al that he dyd to the two * kinges of the Amorites beyonde Jordan, Sehon kynge of Hesbon, and Og kyng of Basan, whyche dwelte at Asthroth. And Josua made a peace wyth them, and * made a couenaũte with them, to saue their lyues, and the Lordes of the congregacyon sware vnto them. But the dayes after they had made peace with them, they herde that they were neighboures vnto them, & that they dwelt amonge them. For the children of Israel toke their Journey, and came vnto their cities the thirde daye, and their cities were Gabaon, Caphira, Berrath, and Kariath Jarim. And the children of Israell slewe them not, because the Lordes of the congregacion had sworne vnto them by the Loode God of Israel. And therfore al the multitude murmured against the Lordes. But al the Lordes sayd vnto al the congregaciõ, we haue sworne vnto them by the Loode God of Israel, and therfore we maye not hurte them. But thys we will do to them and let them liue, and so shal no wrath be vpon vs because of the othe which we sware vnto them. And the Lordes sayde vnto thẽ, † they should lyue: And they were made * hewers of woode and drawers of water vnto al the congregaciõ, as the Lordes sayde vnto them.

Then Josua sent for them, and talked wyth them, and sayde, wherfore haue ye begiled vs and set ye dwel amonge vs? and nowe therfore cursed be you, and there shall not cease to be of you, bond men and hewers of woode & drawers of water vnto the house of my God.

And they answered Josua and sayde, it was tolde thy seruaunts, how that the Loode thy God had commaunded his seruaunt Moses to geue you al the lande, and to destroye all the Inhabitoures therof oute of youre syght, and therfore we were exceadynge sore afrayed of oure lyues because of you, & nowe beholde, we are in thyne handes, as it seemeth good and right in thyne eyes to do vnto vs, so do.

And he dealte as it is sayde, wyth them, and a The Amorytes are ouercome of Iosua. The rayne stones. The sonne standeth styl and the day so long tyme. The.v. kynges are hanged.

AD when Adonizedec kynge of Ierusalem had heard howe Iosua had taken Ai, and had destroyed it, and howe that * as he had done to Ierycho and her kynge, euen so he had done to Ai and her kynge, and howe the inhabitoures of Gabaon had made peace wyth Israel and dyd remayne amonge them, then they feared exceedingly, for Gabaon was a great cyty, as any cyty of the kyngdome, and therto greater ỳ Ai, and al her men were myghty.

* Iosue. viii. and. xii.

Wherfore Adonizedec kyng of Ierusalem sent vnto Hoham kynge of Hebron, and vnto Pharam kynge of Ierimoth. and vnto Iaphia kynge of Lachys, and vnto Dabir kynge of Eglon saynge: Come vp vnto me & healpe me, that we may smyte Gabaõ, for they haue made peace wyth Iosua and the chyldren of Israell. Then the.v. kynges of the Amorites the kyng of Ierusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Ierimoth, the kynge of Lachys, the kyng of Eglon, gathered them selues together, both they and all their hostes & went vp and besieged Gabaon, and made warre agaynst it.

But the men of Gabaõ sent vnto Iosua vnto the hoste to Galgal, saying: withdraw not thy handes from thy seruauntes, but come vp to vs, for all the kynges of the Amorythes, which dwell in the mountaynes are gathered together agaynst vs.

And Iosua ascended from Galgall, both he and al the people of myghte, and al the men of myghte, and the Lord sayde vnto Iosua: feare them not, for I haue delyuered them into thyne hande, there shal not a man of them stande before the. And Iosua came vnto them sodenlye, and iourneyed from Galgal all nyghte. And the Lorde turmoyled thẽ before Israell, and slewe of them a greate slaughter at Gabaon, and chased them a lõge the wayes, that goeth vp to Bethoron, & slewe them tyll they came to Azaka and Maheda.

C And as they fled from Israel, euen in the goynge doune to Bethoron, the Lorde cast doune great stones from heauen vpon them vntyll they came vnto Azaka, that they dyed. And there were mo that dyed wyth hayle stones, then the chyldren of Israell slewe wyth the swerde.

Then spake Iosua vnto the Lorde, ỳ daye when the Lorde delyuered the Amorites before the chyldren of Israel, and he sayde in ỳ sight of al Israel: Sunne stande thou still vpõ Gabaon, & thou Mone, in the valeye of Aialon. And the sunne abode, and the mone stode styll, vntyll the people had auenged them selues vpon their enemyes. Is not thys written in the boke of the * vpryghtes, howe that the sunne abode in the myddes of heauen, and hasted not to go doune by ỳ space of a whole daye. And there was no daye lyke that, before it, or after it, that the Lorde obeyed the voyce of a man, and al because the Lorde fought for Israel.

And Iosua returned, and all Israell wyth hym, vnto the hoste to Galgall. but the foure kynges fled and hyd them selues in a caue at Maheda. And it was tolde Iosua, saying, the foure kynges are founde hyd in a caue at Maheda. And Iosua sayde, rolle great stones vnto the mouthe of the caue and appointe men therto, for to kepe them. And stande ye not styll, but folowe after your enemyes and smyte the hyndmost of them. And suffre them not to entre into their cyties, for the Lorde your God hath delyuered them into your handes. And when Iosua and the chyldre of Israel had made an ende of slayng the wyth a great slaughter, tyll they were wasted, yet there remayned a certayn of them, whych entered into walled cyties.

And al the people returned to the hoste, to Iosua at Maheda in peace, so that no man durst moue his tonge agaynst the chyldren of Israel. Then sayde Iosua, open the mouth of the caue, and bringe out these.v. kynges vnto me out of the caue. And they dyd so, & brought those foure kynges vnto him, out of the caue: the kynge of Ierusalem, the kyng of Hebron, the kynge of Ierimoth the kynge of Lachys, and the kynge of Eglon.

And when they had brought out these kynges vnto Iosua: Iosua called for all the men of Israel, and sayde vnto the capytaynes of ỳ men of warre, whych came wyth hym, come neare & put your fete vpon the neckes of these kynges. And they came neare & put their fete vpon the neckes of them. And Iosua sayd vnto thẽ feare not, nor dreade. But be stedge and plucke vp your hertes, for so shal ỳ Lord serue all your enemyes agaynst whyche ye fyghte.

a. This was not done of crueltie, but to confirme and strengthen ỳ princes & the whole hoste Israel, which had not hyred al, but suffered some to flee into cyties, ỳ they shoulde here after spare no kynges of the Cananites, whose possessions ỳ Lord gaue vnto them, in as much as they were commaunded to slay al Deute. xx. b.

F After that Iosua departed from Libna, and all Israel wyth hym, vnto Lachys, and besieged it, and assaulted it. And the Lord delyuered into the handes of Israel Lachis, that they toke it the seconde daye, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and al the soules that were therin, accordynge to al that he dyd to Libna.

Then Horam kynge of Geser came vp to helpe Lachys: But Iosua smote him and his people, vntyll he lefte hym naughte remaynynge.

And from Lachis Iosua departed vnto Eglon, and all Israel wyth hym, and there besieged it, and assulted it, and toke it the same daye, and smote it wyth the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therin, & vtterlye destroyed them the same daye, accordinge to al that he dyd to Lachis.

G Then Iosua departed vp from Eglon and all Israel wyth hym, vnto Hebron. And they fought against it, and toke it, and smote it wyth the edge of the swerde, and the kynge therof, and al the townes that pertayned to it, and all the soules that were therin, so that they lefte nought remaynynge: but in al thinges as they dyd to Eglon, so they destroyed it vtterlye, and al the soules that were therin.

Then Iosua returned and all Israel with him to Dabir, and they fought against it, & toke it, and the kinge therof and al the townes that pertained therto. And smote them wyth the edge of the swerde, and vtterly destroyed al the soules that were therin, and let nought remayne. And as he dyd to Hebron, so he dyd to Dabir and the kyng therof, and as he dyd to Libna and her kynge.

And Iosua smote all the hille countreyes and the south countreys, and the valeyes, and the springes of water, with al their kinges, & let nought remayne, but vtterlye destroyed all that * breathed, as the Lorde God of Is- * Deute.xx.a

And all those kynges and their lande, Iosua toke at one tyme, because the Lorde God of Israell fought for Israel. And then Iosua returned, and al Israel wyth hym, vnto the hoste to Galgall.

And these are the names of hys doughters: Mahela, Noa, Hagla Melcha and Thirza: which came before Eleasar the prieſte, and before Josua the sonne of B Nun, and before the Lordes sapinge: * the * Nu. xxvii. Lord commaunded Moses to geue vs an and. xxxvi. enheritaunce among oure brethē. And he gaue them at the mouth of the Lorde, an enheritaunce amonge the brethren of their fathers. And there felle ten portyons to Manasses beſyde the land of Galaad and Basan, whyche are on the other syde Jordā: because y doughters of Manasses dyd enherete amonge hys sonnes. And the coastes descended vnto the riuer Kanah, on whose southside Ephraim hath cy- C tyes amonge the cyties of Manasses. ffor the coastes of Manasses were on the northside of the ryuer, and the endes of them was the sea: so that the south pertayned to Ephraim, and the north to Manasses, and the sea is his boider. And they mette together in Aser northwarde, and in Issacar Eastwarde. And Manasses had in Issacar and in Aser, Bethsean, and her townes: and the enhabitoures of Dor, with the townes pertaining to the same, and the enhabitoures of Endor, with the townes of the same: and the enhabitoures of Thaanath with her townes, and the enhabitoures of Magedo with the townes of the same, euen the countreys: yet the chyldren of Manasses coulde not ouercome those cytyes: But the Canaanites began to dwel in the same lande. Neuertheleſſe allone as the chyldren of Israel were waxed strong, they put the Canaanites to tribute, but expelled them not.

And the children of Joseph spake vnto Jo- D sua, saying: why hast thou geuen vs but one lot, and one portion to enherit, seynge we be muche people, and for as muche as the Lorde hath blessed vs so, and Josua answered thē: yf ye be muche people, then get you vp to the wood countreye, and prepare for youre selues there in the lande of the Pherezites and of the * Raphaites, yf mounte Ephraim be to narowe for you. Then the chyldren of Joseph sayde agayn: the hyll wyll not begoten ouer vs, for all the Cananites, that dwell in the lowe countreye have charettes of yron, and so have they that enhabite Bethsean, and the townes of the same, and they also that dwell in the valeye of Jezreel. And Josua answered the house of Joseph, Ephraim and Manasses sayinge: ye be muche people and have greate power and shall not therfore have one lotte. But the hyll shalbe yours, for it is a woode countreye, and ye shall byeng it to fashion, and it shalbe yours euen vnto the endes of it, for ye shalbe able to cast out the Cananites for all their yron charettes, and for all they be so stronge.

AND then came the principal heades
A of the Leuites vnto Eleazar sonne of Nun, and vnto the auncient heades of the tribes of the children of Israell, and spake vnto them at Silo in the lande of Canaan saynge: * the *Nu.xxxv.a Deut.xix.b. Jos.xx.a. Lorde commanded by Moses, to geue vs cytyes to dwell in, and the feldes about the, for our catell. And the children of Israell gaue vnto the Leuites out of their enheritaunces,

at the bidding of the Lorde, these cytyes following with their suburbes.

And the lot came out vnto the kynredes of the Cohathites, and the children of Aaron,
the preest, which were of the Leuites had geuen them by lot, out of the tribe of Juda, out of the tribe of Symeon, and out of the tribe of

of Merari by their kynredes had out of the tribe of Ruben, out of the tribe of Gad, and out of the tribe of Zabulon, twelue cytyes. And the children of Israel gaue by lot vnto the Leuites, these cytyes with their suburbes as the Lorde commaunded by Moses.

And they gaue out of the tribe of the children of Juda, and out of the tribe of the children of Symeon, these cytyes by name, which the children of Aaron beynge of the kynredes of the Cohathites, and of the children of Leui, obtayned, for theyrs was the fyrste lot.
And they gaue them Hariath Arbe of the father of * Enach, which is Hebron, in the hyll * Arba was their Suburbes. And the kynredes of the children of Cahath that were Leuites, that is to saye, the other children of Cahath had the cytyes of their lot, out of the tribe of Ephra-

And they conquered it, and dwelt therin. And the Lorde gaue them rest round about according to all that he sware vnto their fathers. So that there stode not a man of all their enemyes before them. But the Lorde deliuered all their enemyes into their handes. There fayled not a thynge of all the good thinges, whyche the Lorde had sayde vnto the house of Israell. But all came to passe.

The. xxii. Chapter.

✠ Ruben, Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses are sente againe to their possessions. They builde an altare for a memorial.

THen Josua called vnto the Rubenites, the Gaddites and to the halfe tribe of Manasses, and sayd vnto them, * ye haue kept all that Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded you, and haue obeyed my voyce in all that I commaunded you, ye haue not lefte youre brethren of a long season vnto this daye but haue kept the commaundement of the Lord youre God. And now the Lord hath geuen rest vnto youre brethren as he promised them. Wherfore returne and go vnto youre tentes & vnto the lande of youre possession, which Moses the seruaunt of the Lord gaue you on the other syde Jordan.

✠ But in any wyse take exceding good heede, that ye do the commaundement & law which Moses the seruaunt of the Lord charged you: whyche is, that ye loue the Lorde youre God, and walke in his wayes & kepe his commaundementes, and cleaue vnto him, and serue him with all youre hertes, and all youre soules. And so Josua .a. blessed them, and sent them awaye. And they went vnto their tentes.

a. Blessed the, that is, wished them the fauoure of god

Vnto the one halfe of the tribe of Manasses, Moses gaue possession in Basan, and vnto the other halfe therof gaue Josua with their brethren on this syde Jordan westward. And also when Josua sent them awaye vnto their tentes and blessed them, he sayde vnto them, returne with much ryches vnto youre tentes, and with very much catell, with siluer gold, braule, yron, and with rayment aboue measure, and deuide the spoyle of youre enemyes with youre brethren.

And the children of Ruben, the children of Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasses, returned and departed from the children of Israel out of Silo, which is in the lande of Canaan, to go vnto the countrey of Galaad, and to the lande of their possession, wherin they were possessed at the mouth of the Lorde by the hande of Moses. And when they came vnto the coastes of Jordan, that lye in the lande of Canaan, there the children of Ruben, the children of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses, buylt an altare faste by Jordan, and that a great altare to se to. And when the children of Israel hearde saye: beholde the children of Ruben, the children of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses haue buylte an altare in the foreffrounte of the land of Canaan in the borders of Jordan on the syde of the children of Israell, the whole congregacion of the children of Israel gathered them together to Silo, to go vpon them with battell. And the children of Israell sent vnto the children of Ruben, to the children of Gad, and to the halfe tribe of Manasses into the lande of Galaad, Phinehes, the sonne of Eleazar the priest, and with him ten Lordes of euery their house, a Lorde thorow out all the tribes of Israell, whych heades of their father housholdes were ouer the thousandes of Israell. And they went vnto the children of Ruben, of Gad and to the halfe tribe of Manasses, vnto the lande of Galaad, and spake with them sayinge.

Thus sayth the whole congregacion of the Lord: what transgression is this, that ye haue transgressed against the God of Israell, to turne awaye this daye from after the Lorde (as ye haue) and to buylde you an altare for to rebelle this day against the Lorde, Is the .b. wicked deade of Peor to little for vs, wherof we are not cleansed vnto this daye, & there was a plage in the congregacion of the Lorde: But that ye also shoulde turne awaye this daye from following the Lorde: ye shall rebelle to daye in an hye against the Lorde, and to morow he shall be wroth with all the congregacion. Notwithstanding yf the lande of youre possession be vncleane, then come ouer vnto the lande of the possession of the Lorde, where the Lordes tabernacle dwelleth, and be possessed amõge vs. But rebell not against the Lorde nor with the vnto against vs, to buylde you ayne other aulter of the aulter of the Lorde ouer God. Dyd not Achan the sonne of Zareth trespasse in ye so spirituall thinges, and wrath fell on all the congre-congregacyon of Israel, so that he alone perysshed not for hys wyckednesse.

Then the chyldren of Ruben and of Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasses answered and sayde vnto the heades ouer the thousandes of Israel: The mighty God Jehouah he knoweth, and Israel shall knowe yt it be to rebelle or transgresse agaynste the Lorde, then the Lorde saue vs not thys daye. Or els yf we haue buylt vs an aulter to tourne from folowynge the Lorde, or to offer therevpon burnt offrynge or meate offrynges, or to offer peace offrynges thereon: let the Lorde requyre it: And haue not rather done it for feare of thys: least in tyme to come youre chyldren shulde saye vnto ours: what haue ye to do wyth the Lorde God of Israel, seynge: that the Lorde hath made Jordā a border betwene vs and you ye chyldren of Ruben & of Gad: ye haue nō parte therinne in the Lorde: and so shall youre chyldren make our chyldren cease from fearynge the Lorde.

And therfore we sayde: Let vs begynne an aulter to be made, not for burntoffrynges, nor sacrifyces, but it shalbe a wytnesse betwene vs, and you and ours generacyons after vs, that we shulde serue the Lorde, wyth our offrynges, sacrifyces and peace offrynges: and that youre chyldren shulde not saye vnto ours in tyme to come, ye haue no parte in ye Lorde.

And we thought yf they shuld so saye to vs or to ours generacyons in tyme to come, that we wolde saye agayne: Beholde the fashyon of the aulter which our fathers made, neither for burntoffrynges nor sacrifyces, but that it shulde be a wytnesse betwene vs and you God forbydde that we shulde rebell agaynst the Lorde, and that we shulde turne this day from after hym, and buylde an aultre for burnt offrynges or sacrifyces, saue the aultare of the Lorde, oure God that is before hys tabernacle.

And when Phinehes the Preest, and the Lordes of the congregacion and heades ouer the thousandes of Israell whiche were wyth hym, hearde the wordes that the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Manasses spake, they were well contente. And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the preest sayde vnto the chyldren of Ruben, of Gad & of Manasses thys daye we perceyue that the Lorde is among vs, because ye haue not done thys trespace agaynst the Lorde. And now ye haue ryd the chyldren of Israell out of the handes of the Lorde.

And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the Preest and the Lordes returned fro the chyldren of Ruben and of Gad out of the lande of Galaad vnto the lande of Canaan, to the chyldren of Israell, and brought them worde agayne. And the answere pleased the chyldren of Israel well, and they prayed God and dyd not entende to goo agaynste them in battayle, to destroye the lande where the chyldren of Ruben and Gad dwelte in. F And nowe feare the Lorde and serue him in puritie and truthe: And put awaye the Goddes which your fathers serued on the other syde of the floude, and in Egypt, & serue
the Lorde. But yf it seme euyll vnto you to serue the Lorde, then chose you this day who you will serue whether the Goddes whiche
your fathers serued that were on the other syde of the floude, eyther the Goddes of the Amorites in whose lande ye dwelte, and I &
my house will serue the Lorde.

And the people answered and sayd, God
forbyd that we shulde forsake the Lorde and serue straunge Goddes. For the Lorde oure God he it is that brought vs and our fathers
out of the lande of Egypte, the house of bondage, and whiche dyd those myracles in oure syght, and preserued vs in all the waye we went and amonge all the nacions whiche we came thorow. And the Lorde dyd cast out before vs all the nacions with the Amorites, whiche dwelt in the lande, wherfore we will serue the Lorde, for he is oure God.

G But Josua sayde vnto the people, ye can not serue the Lorde: for he is an holye God &
cannot beare youre transgressyon and synne.
But when ye haue forsaken the Lorde and haue serued straunge Goddes, he will turne and do you euyll, and consume you, after that he hath done you good. And the people answered Josua: naye, but we will serue the Lorde.

Then Josua sayde vnto the folke, ye are witnesses vnto youre selues, that ye haue chosen you the Lorde, to serue him: and they said
we are witnesses. Then put awaye, sayde he the stronge Goddes which are among you,
and bowe your hertes vnto the Lorde God of Israell. And the people answered Josua: the Lorde oure God we will serue, & his voyce
we will obey. And so Josua made a couenaūt with the people the same daye, and set ordy-naunces and lawes before them in Sichem.

H And Josua wrote these wordes in the boke
of the lawe of God, and tooke a great *stone

therfore a witnesse vnto you, leste ye lye vnto

The fyrst Chapter.

After Josua was dead, Juda hys confederate had ouer the empire when Jerusalem was besieged. The people that were not destroyed became tributaryes.

After the death of Josua the children of Israel asked & Lord saying Who shal go vp first vnto & Cananites to fyghte agaynst them? And the Lorde sayde: * Juda shall go vp: beholde I haue deliuered the lād into hys hāde. Then Juda sayde vnto * Simeon hys brother: come with me into my lotte, and let vs fyghte agaynste the Cananites: And I lykewyse wil go with the into thy lotte. And so Simeon wente with hym.

And Juda went vp, and the Lord deliuered the Cananites and Pherezites into their hondes. And they slewe of them in Bezek .x. thousand men. And they found a Adonibezek in Bezek. And they fought against hym, & slewe the Cananites & Pherezites. But Adonibezek fled, and they followed after hym, & caught hym, and cut of hys thombes and hys greate toen. Then Adonibezek sayde: there were .lxx. kynges hauynge their thombes & greate toen cut of, gathered their meate vnder my table: lyke as I haue done so, God hath done to me agayne. And they brought hym to Jerusalem and there he dyed.

The children of Juda fought agaynst Jerusalē, and toke it, & smote it with the edge of the swerde, and set the cyte on fyre. And after that the chyldren of Juda went euen to fyghte agaynst the Cananites & dwelt in the mountayne, in the southe, & in the lowe countreye. And Juda went vnto the Cananites & dwelt in Hebron, whiche before tyme was called Kiriath Arbe. And slewe Sesai, Ahiman and Thalmai. And from thence they went to the inhabyters of Dabir, whose name in olde tyme was called Kiriath Sepher.

And Caleb sayde: he that smyteth Kiriath Sepher, & taketh it, to hym will I geue Achsah my doughter to wyfe. And Othoniel & sonne of Kenez Calebs younger brother toke it: to whome he gaue Achsah hys doughter to wyfe and as they went she counceled hym to aske of her father a felde. And then she lyghted of her asse: and Caleb sayde vnto her: What ayleth the? She sayde vnto hym: geue me a blessynge: for thou hast geuen me a Southwarde & dry land, geue me also springes of water. And Caleb gaue her springe bothe aboue & beneth. And the chyldren of the kynrede Moses father in lawe went vp out of & cyte of palme trees, with the chyldren of Juda into the wylderneße of Juda that lyeth in the Southe of Arad, and dwelte among the people.

And Juda went & Simeō with him, & they slewe the Cananytes that enhabyted Zephah, and vtterly destroyed it, and called the name of the cyte Hormah. And Juda toke Azah with the coastes therof, and Askalon with the coastes therof, and Akaron with the coastes therof. And the Lorde was with Juda that he conquered the mountaynes, but they coulde not dryue oute the enhabyters of the valeys, because they had charettes of yron. And they gaue Hebron vnto Caleb as Moses sayde. And he expelled thence the thre sonnes of Enoch.

And the chyldren of Ben Jamin dyd not caste oute the Jebusites that enhabyted Jerusalem, but the Jebusites dwell with the chyldren of Ben Jamin in Jerusalem, vnto this day.

And in lyke maner the house of Joseph went vp to Bethell and the Lorde with them and the house of Joseph serched out Bethell which before tyme was called Luz. And the spyes

And he shewed them the waye into the cytye, and they smote it with the edge of the swerde, but let the man and all hys houshold go free. And the man wente into the lande of the Hethites, and buylt a cytye and called the name therof Luz which is the name therof vnto thys daye.

Neyther dyd Manasses expelle Bethsan with her townes, neither Tanaach with her townes, neyther the enhabytoures of Dor with her townes, neyther the enhabytours of Jebla am with her townes, neyther the enhabytours of Magedo with her townes, and so the Cananites went to and dwelt in the same lande. But as sone as Israell was waxed mighty they put the Cananites to tribute: But expelled them not.

In lyke maner Ephraim expelled not the Cananites that dwelt in Gazer, but the Cananites dwelt styll in Gazer among them.

Neyther dyd Zabulon expell the enhabytoures of Hetron, neyther the enhabytours of Naholol: But the Cananites dwelt amonge them, and became tributaryes.

Neyther dyd Aser cast out the enhabytours of Acho, neyther the enhabytours of Zidon, of Ahalab, Aczib, Chalbah, Aphek, nor of Rohob, but the Aserytes dwelte amonge the Cananites the enhabytours of the lande, for drane them not out.

Neyther dyd Nephthalim dryue oute the enhabytoures of Bethsames, nor the enhabytoures of Bethanath, but dwelte amongest the Cananites the enhabytours of the lande. Nevertheles the enhabytours of Bethsames & of Bethanath became tributaryes vnto the.

And the Amorites kept the chyldre of Dan in the mountaynes, and suffered them not to come downe to the valeys. And so the Amorites went to and dwelled in mount Heres in Saalon and in Galahim. Nevertheles the hand of Joseph waxed greate vpō the, so that they became tributaryes. And the costes of the Amorites was frō the going vp to Acrabim, and from the roche vpwarde.

The.ii.Chapter.

¶ The Angell rebuketh the people because they had made peace with the Cananites. Inheritaunce are prouyded, but yet stoute yet they remayne. God sendeth them wild geese to deuoure them.

AND the angell of the Lorde came vp from Galgall to Bocim, and sayde, I brought you oute of Egypt and haue brought you vnto the lande whiche I sware vnto your fathers. And I sayde that I wolde neuer breake myne appointment with you, but ye shulde haue made no couenaunt with the enhabytours of thys lande, ye shuld haue brokē downe their aulters: But ye haue not obeyed my voyce, why haue ye thus done? Wherfore I haue sayde wyse determined that I wyll not cast them out before you: but they shalbe in the sydes of you, and their Goddes shalbe snares vnto you. And when the Angell of the Lorde had spoken these wordes vnto all the chyldren of Israell, the people cryed oute & wepte. And called the name of the same place, Bocim and offered there vnto the Lorde.

And when Josua had sente the people awaye the chyldren of Israell wente euery man into hys enheritaunce to possesse the lād. And the people serued the Lorde all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of the elders that oute lyued Josua, and had sene all the great workes of the Lorde that he dyd to Israel. And Josua the sonne of Nun the seruaunte of the Lorde dyed when he was an hundred & ten yeares olde: whome they buried in the coastes of hys enherytaunce: euen in Thamnath hares in mount Ephraim on the northside of the hyll Gaas. And euen so all that generacyon were put vnto their fathers, & there arose another generacyon after them which neither knewe the Lord, nor yet the workes which he dyd vnto Israel.

And then the chyldren of Israel dyd wyckedlye in the syght of the Lorde, and serued Baalim, i.b. forsoke the Lorde God of their fathers, why che brought them out of the land of Egypt, and followed straunge Goddes, euen of the Goddes of the nacyons that were rounde about them, and bowed them selues vnto them, and angred the Lorde. And so they forsoke the Lorde, and serued Baal and Astharoth. Wherfore the Lorde waxed angry with Israel, & delyuered them into the hādes of rauners to spoyle them, and solde them into the hādes of their enemyes rounde about them, so that they had no power any longer to stande before their enemyes. But vnto whatsoeuer thynge they went, the hand of the Lorde was vpon them with cyll luche, euen as the Lord promysed them, and as he sware vnto them. And they were sore vexed.

Neuertheles the Lord rayled vp Judges which delyuered them oute of the handes of their oppressers, and yet for all that they wold not harken vnto their Judges: But wente a whorynge after straunge Goddes & bowed them selues vnto them, and turned quickly oute of the waye which their fathers walked in obeynge the cōmaundementes of the Lord and dyd not so.

And when the Lorde rayled them vp Judges, he was with the Judge, and delyuered them out of the hādes of their enemyes all the dayes of the Judge: for the Lorde had compassyon ouer their sorowynges whiche they had by the reason of them that oppressed them and vexed them: yet for all that as sone as the Judge was dead they turned and dyd worse then their fathers in folowing straunge goddes, and in seruynge them, and ceased not frō their imuencyons nor from their malepeuyse wayes.

Wherfore the Lorde was angry with Israel and sayde: because thys people hath trāsgressed

And so the Lord lefte those nacyons alone, and drone the not oute ynone dyatlye, neyther delyuered them into the handes of Iosua.

The.iii.Chapter.

¶ Certen nacyons are lefte amonge the Israelytes to the entent to bete and afflict them. Othoniell destroyeth Israel, Ahud slayeth kyng Eglon, Samgar vanquisheth the Philystynes.

THese are the nacyons whiche the Lord lefte to kepe Israell: euen as many of Israel as had not knowen all the warres of Canaan. Onelye for the learnyng of the generacyon of the children of Israel: which before knewe nothyng of warre, he lefte the kynr Lordes of the Philistines, & all the Cananites, the Sidonites, the Heuites that dwelt in mount Libanon: euen frō mōte Baal Hermon and Hemath. Those remayned to proue Israel by, to wete whether they wolde herken vnto the cōmaundementes of the Lorde, whiche he commaunded theyr fathers by the hand of Moses.

And as the children of Israel dwelt amōg the Cananites hethytes, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuytes, and Iebusytes, they toke the doughters of them to be theyr wyues, & gaue theyr owne doughters to theyr sonnes, & serued theyr Goddes. And so the chyldren of Israell dyd wyckednesse in the syght of the Lord and forgate the Lorde theyr God and serued Baalim & Aschoth. Therfore the Lorde was angrye wyth Israel, and delyuered them into the handes of Chusan Rasathaim kynge of *Mesopotamia. So that the chyldren of Israel serued Chusan Rasathaim viii. yeares.

And then the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde. And the Lord stirred the vp a sauer, a. Othoniell the sonne of Cenez, Calebs younger brother. And the spirite of the Lorde came vpon hym. And he iudged Israell, and wente oute to warre. And the Lorde *solde Chusan Rasathaim kynge of Mesopotamia in hys hande. So that his hād preuayled ouer Chusan Rasathaim. And there was rest in the lande fourtye yeares. And Othoniell the sonne of Kenez dyed. And then the children of Israel went to agayne, & committed wyckednesse in the syght of the Lorde. And then the Lord hardened Eglon the kynge of Moabytes, agaynst the chyldren of Israel, because they had committed wyckednesse before the Lorde. And this Eglō gathered vnto him the chyldren of Ammon, and the Amalekites & went & smote the chyldren of Israel, & conquered the cytye of paulme trees. And the chyldren of Israell serued Eglō the king of Moabytes, xviii. yeares. And then they cryed vnto the Lorde. And the Lord stirred the vp a sauer, Ahud the sonne of Gera the sonne of Iemini, a man which could do nothyng handsomly with his ryghte hande.

And when he had presented the present, he sent the people that bare it awaye, but he hym selfe turned agayne from the Idolles by b. Galgal, and sayde. I haue a secret vnto the O kynge: and the kynge commaunded hym to holde his peace vntyl all that stode about hym, were gone out from hym.

b. Galgal, the place where the people were accustomed & where they had reuued theyr covenaūt with god had kyng Eglon delyted wyth Idolles.

And Ahud came in vnto hym into a former parler, whyche he had seuerall vnto hym selfe alone, and sayde: I haue a. c. message vnto the frō God. And he arose out of hys seate. And Ahud put forth hys lefte hande and toke the dagger from hys ryght thyghe and thrust it into hys belye, so that the hafte went in after the blade. And the hafte stopped in the fatte, for he drue not the dagger out of hys belye. And the dyrt came out. But Ahud gat hym oute at a posterne dore, and shutte the doores of the parler vpon hym and locked them.

c. To do thys sete was Ahud apoynted of God, and therfore had a message to hī frō god. Eglō D was fatte & strong, and had his garde at hand. Ahud lyfthanded & vnaapt for sighting. But yet goeth boldely vnto his chamber to hym, knowing perfectly & God wold strengthen hym and help him, and persoume hys worde vnto hym.

When he was gone out, hys seruauntes came and loked. And beholde, the doores of the parler were locked. And they sayde. A, he is a doynge of hys easement in hys somer chāber. And when they had taried tyl they were ashamed, for noman dyd the doores of the parler open: then they toke a kepe and opened them. And beholde their Lorde was fallen downe dead, vnto the earth. But Ahud eschaped whyle they tarped & was gone beyōde the Idolles and eschaped into Seirath.

And when he was come he blew a trompette in mount Ephraim. And the chyldren of Israell went downe wyth him of the hylle and he before the. And he sayd vnto them, folowe me, for the Lord hath delyuered your enemies, the Moabytes into your handes. And they descended after hym and toke the *passages of Iordan from the Moabites, & suffered not a man to passe ouer. And they slew of the Moabites the same tyme vpon a ten thousande men, all fatte, & men of myght: for there escaped not a man. And so the Moabytes were subdued that daie vnder the handes of Israell, and the land had rest. lxxx. yeares.

And

AAnd the chyldren of Israel begā agayne to do wickednes in ſ̄ ſight of the Lorde, when Ahud was dead. And the Lorde* solde them into ſ̄ handes of Jabin kynge of Canaan, that raygned in Hazor, whose capitayne of warre was Sisara, which dwelt in Haroseth of the gentyles. And the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde: for he had nyne hundred charettes of yron, he oppressed ſ̄ chyldren of Israel wyth power. xx. yeares.

*That is delyuered (as a-boue. iii.b.

And Debora a Prophetysse, the wyfe of Lapidoth iudged Israell the same tyme, and dwelt vnder the paulme tree of Debora, betwene Ramath & Bethell, in mount Ephraim. And the chyldren of Israel came to her for iudgement. And she sent and called Barak ſ̄ sonne of Abinoam, out of Cedes Nephtalim, and sayde vnto hym.

The Lorde God of Israel commaundeth the, that thou go and drawe to mount Thabor, and take wyth the ten thousande men, of the chyldren of Nephtalim and of the chyldren of Zabulon. And I wyll bynge vnto ſ̄ ryuer Kyson Sisara, the captayne of warre vnto Jabin, wyth hys charettes, and hys people, and wyll delyuer them into thyne hādes. And Barak sayde vnto her, yf thou wylt go wyth me, I wyll go: But & yf thou wylt not go wyth me, then I wyll not go. And she answered, I wyll surely go wyth the, but then the prayse shall not be thyne, in the waye whyche thou goest, for the Lorde shall delyuer Sisara into the handes of a woman. And she arose and went wyth Barak to Cedes. And Barak called Zabulon and Nephthalim to Cedes. And he went vp a foote wyth ten thousande men: and Debora went wyth hym.

But Hober the kenyte was removed oute of Em, which was of the chyldren of* Hobab the father in lawe of Moyses, and pytched hys tente vntyll he was come to the Oke of Zaanaim, by Cedes.

And then it was shewed vnto Sisara how that Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone vp to mount Thabor. And Sisara called for all hys charettes, euen. ix. hundred charettes of yron, and for all the people that he had, frō Haroseth of the gentyles vnto the ryuer of Kyson. Then sayde Debora vnto Barak: vp for this is the daye in whyche the Lorde hath delyuered Sisara, into thyne handes: for the Lorde is gone out before the. And so Barak went downe from mount Thabor, and ten thousande men after hym.

But the Lorde troubled Sisara and all his charettes and all hys hoste wyth the edge of the swerde, before Barak. And Sisara lyghted downe of hys charet and fled afoot. But Barak folowed after the charettes and after the hoste, euen vnto Haroseth of the Gentyles. And all the hoste of Sisara fell vpon the edge of the swerde, that there was not a man lefte. Howbeit Sisara fled a fote to the tent of Jael the wyfe of Hober the kenyte: for there was peace betwene Jabin the kynge of Hazor, and the housholde of Hober the kenyte.

And Jael went oute agaynst Sisara and sayde vnto hym, turne in my Lorde, turne vnto her into her tente: and she couered him with a mantell. And he sayde vnto her, geue me a lyttell water to drynke, for I am thyrsty. And she opened a bottel of mylke, & gaue him drynke, and couered hym. And he sayde vnto her: stande in the dore of thy tente, & yf ayne man come, and aske the, or enquyre of the whether there be any man here, saye naye.

Then Jael Hobers wyfe toke a naple of the tente, and an hamer in her hande, & went softely vnto hym, and smote the naple thorow the tēples of his head into the grounde, as he slombered beyng wery. And so he dyed.

And beholde as Barak folowed after Sisara, Jael came oute agaynst hym, and sayd vnto him: come and I wyll shewe the the man whō thou seekest. And when he came into her tente: Beholde, Sisara laye dead & the naple thorow his tēples. And so God broughte Jaben the kyng of Canaan into subiection vpon that daye, before the chyldren of Israel. And the hande of the chyldren of Israel prospered and was sore vpon Jaben the kyng of Canaan, vntyll they had broughte hym to naught.

¶ The songe and manches geuyng of Debora & Barak after the victorye.

THen Debora & Barak the sonne of Abinoam sange the same daye: Saying. *Prayse the Lorde in the ſ̄ were wyllyng whyle other lyte spille in Israel. Heare kynges hath ouer Lordes, I wyll synge, and geue prayse vnto the Lorde God of Israell.

Lorde when thou departedest out of Seir & yerth trembled, and the heauē rayned, & ſ̄ cloudes selues wolde dropped water: the mountaynes melted before the Lorde, euen mount Sinai before the the Lorde God of Israel.

In the dayes of Samgar the sonne of Anath and in the dayes of Jael, the hye wayes were vnoccupyed. And a. they that walked by pathes, went by wayes that set cōpases about. The vyllages were vnenhabyted in Israell, were vnenhabyted, vntyll I Debora arose vntyll I arose a mother in Israell.

a. The meaning is, Sisara had done so great iniurye vnto Israelites, that the wayes were not occupyed: & they that walked in pathes went by wayes that set cōpases about, leste they shulde be espyed of their enemyes.

God chose new lawdyes of warre, for whē they had warre at their gates: there was not seene amonge fourtye thousande, eyther shyld or spere in Israel. The. vi. Chapter.

Jsrael is oppressed of the Madianites, because he returned agayne into idolatrye. Gedeon is true of god to be true beleuers. The aultre of Baal is ouerthrowen.

AND the children of Jsrael comitted wickednesse in the sight of ỹ Lord. And ỹ Lord delyuered the into the handes of the Madianites seuē yeres. And whē ỹ hand of ỹ Madianites was sore vpon Jsrael, ỹ chyldre of Jsrael made them denes in ỹ mountayns & caues & strong holdes. For when Jsrael had sowē, then came the Madianites ỹ Amalechites, & they of the east cōtreye vpon them & pitched their tētes agapust thē & destroyed the encreace of the earth euē vnto Azah, & left no substaunce in Jsrael, neyther shepe, oxe or asse. For they came with theyr cattell & housholdes euē as grehoppers in multitude: so that both they & also theyr camels were wythoute nombre. And they entrede the land to destroy it. And so was Jsrael sore empouerished by the Madianites & cryed vnto ỹ Lord.

And when the chyldren of Jsrael cryed vnto the Lorde because of the Madianites, ỹ Lorde sent a Prophete vnto them, & sayde vnto thē: Thus sayth the Lorde God of Jsrael: I sette you from Egipt & brought you out of ỹ house of bondage, and I ryd you out of the hand of the Egyptians & out of the handes of all ỹ oppressed you, and cast them out before you, & gaue you theyr landes. And I said vnto you: I am the Lorde your God, & therfore fear not the Goddes of the Amorytes, in whose lande you dwel. But you haue not obeyed my voice.

And the Angel of the Lorde came and sate vnder an Oche in Ephrah, that pertayned vnto Joas the father of the Esrytes. And his sonne Gedeon pursled out whete out of the eares in a pursle, for to flee frō the Madianites. And ỹ angel of the Lord apeared vnto him, & sayde: ỹ Lorde is with the, thou mā of myght. And Gedeon answered him: Oh my Lorde, yf ỹ Lord be with vs, why is al this come vpon vs: ye & where be hys myracles whiche oure fathers tolde vs of & sayde, the Lorde brought vs out of Egypte. But now the Lorde hath forsaken vs, & delyuered vs into the handes of the Madianites. And the Lorde lokyd vpon hym, and sayde: Go hence in thys thy myght & delyuer Jsrael out of the hādes of the Madianites: Behold I haue sent the: And he answered hym: Oh Lord wherewith shuld I saue Jsrael? Behold my kynred is the poorest in Manasses, & I am the least in my fathers house. Vnto him ỹ Lord sayd vnto him: I wil be with the: & thou shalt smyte the Madianites, as they were but one mā. And he answered him, yf I haue found grace in thy sight, then shew me a sygne, that thou art the Lorde that talkest with me. Depart not hence, vntil I come agayne vnto ỹ & bring myne offrynge, & laye it before the.

And he sayde I will tarye vntyll thou come agayne. And Gedeon went & made redy a kydde, & vnleuened cakes of an Epha of floure,

And

& put the fleshe in a basket, & the broth in a pot & brought it oute vnto hym vnder the Oke, & presented it. And the angell of God sayd vn to hym: take the fleshe and the swete kakes, & put them vpon thys rocke, & powre oute the broth. And he dyd so. Then the angell of the Lord put forth the ende of the staffe that was in his hãd & touched the fleshe & the kakes. And there arose vp fyre out of the rocke & cõsumed the fleshe and the kakes. And the angel of the Lord vanished out of his sight. And whẽ Gedeon perceyued that it was an angel, he sayde: Alas my Lorde Jehouah, that I haue sene an angell of the Lord face to face. And the Lorde sayde vnto him: peace be with the & feare not, for thou shalte not dye. Then Gedeõ made an aultar there vnto the Lorde & called it* Jehouah Salom, which vnto thys daye is yet in Ephrath that pertayneth vnto the father of ỹ Ezerites. And that same nyght the Lord sayd vnto him, take an ore of thy fathers & another of .vii. yeares olde & destroye the aultare of Baal that Gedeõ geth vnto thy father, and cutte downe the groue ỹ is about it, & make an aultare vnto the Lord thy God vpõ the toppe of this rocke & fayre wyll it. And take the seconde ore & offer burnt sacrifice vp the wood of the groue which thou shalt haue cut downe. Then Gedeõ toke ten men of his seruauntes & did as the Lorde had bydde hym. But because he durst not do it by day for feare of his fathers houshold and of the men of the cite, he did it by nyght.

When the men of the cite were vp erlie in the mornynge, beholde the aultare of Baal was broke, & the groue that stode about it cut downe. And the seconde ore offered vpon the aultar that was made. And they sayd one to another, who hath done this thyng, and they enquyred & asked. And it was tolde them that Gedeon the sonne of Joas had done it. Then the men of the cite sayde vnto Joas, bringe out thy sonne that he maye dye, because he hath broken the aultare of Baal, & cut downe the groue that was about it. And Joas sayde vnto all that stode by hym, wyll ye fyghte for Baal, or wyll ye be his defenders: he that stryueth for hym, shall dye this mornyng. If he be a God, let him stryue with him that caste downe his aulter. And he called Gedeon Jerobaal the same tyme, saying: let Baal stryue vp hym because he hath broken downe his aulter.

Then all the Madianytes, the Amalekites and they of the east, were gathered together, & had gone and pitched in the valeye of Jezrael: the spyrte of the Lorde entered into Gedeon. And he blew a trompette, & called* Abiezer to folowe hym, & sent messengers thorow out all Manasses, & called them vp to folowe hym also. And he sent messengers vnto Aser, Zabulon and Nephtalim, which came also to mete hym.

And Gedeon sayd vnto God: yf thou wilt saue Israel by my hande as thou hast sayde: Beholde I wyll put a fleece of wolle in the threshyng place. And yf the dewe be on the fleece onelye, and drye vpon all the earth beside then I shalbe sure that thou wilt saue Israell by my hande, as thou saydest. And it came so to passe. And he rose vp erlye on the morowe, and he thrulle the fleece together and wronge the dewe therout, and filled a boole of water. And Gedeon sayde vnto God: be not angrye with me ỹ *I speake once more, let me proue once agayne with the fleece. Let it be drye onelye vpon the fleece, and dewe vpon all the ground about. And God dyd so that same nyght: so that it was drye vpon the fleece only and on all the grounde aboute, dewe.

The.viii.Chapter.

¶ The soudyers that shulde go with Gedeõ to battel are proued by takyng the by water. Gedeon with .iij. hundreth men ouercometh the Madianites. Oreb and Zeb are slayne.

Then Jerobaal otherwyse called Gedeon rose erlye & all the people that were with hym, & pytched beside the well of Harad, so that the hoste of the Madianites were in a valeye on the northside of the hyll Hamoreh. And the Lorde sayde vnto Gedeõ: the people that are with the, are to many for me to geue the Madianites into their handes, lest Israel make their bawnte to my dishonoure & saye, our owne hande hath saued vs. Now therfor make a proclamacyon in the eares of the people & saye: *yf any mã dreade or be afrayde, let hym returne and get hym sone from mounte Galaad. And there departed and returned of the people .xxij. thousand, and there abode ten thousande.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Gedeõ, the people are yet to many, bringe them downe vnto the water, and I wyll trye them vnto the there. And of whom I saye vnto the, this shall go with the, the same shal go with the. And who soeuer I saye vnto the, this shall not go with the, the same shall not go. And when he had brought downe the people vnto ỹ water, The Lorde sayde vnto Gedeon: as many as lappe the water with their tounges, as dogges do them put by them selues, and so do them that knele downe vpon their knees to drynke. And the nombre of the that put their handes to their mouthes and lapped, were .iij. hundred men. And all the remnaunt of the people kneled downe vpon their knees to drynke water. And the Lorde sayde vnto Gedeon: with the three hundred men that lapped wyll I saue you, and delyuer the Madianites into thyne hande. And all the other people shall go euery man vnto his owne whome.

And they toke vytayles with them for the folke, & their trompettes. And he sente all the reste of Israel, euery man vnto his tente, and kepte the three hundred with hym. And ỹ hoste of Madiã was beneth hym in a valeye. And the same nyght the Lorde sayde vnto hym, vp & go downe vnto the hoste, for I haue delyuered it into thyne hande. But and yf thou feare to go downe, then go thou downe vnto the hoste & Pharah thy lade, & herken what they say,

and

and so shal thyne handes be strong, and then thou shalt go doune vnto the hoste.

Then he went doune to Pharah his ladde euen harde vnto the men of armes that were in the hoste. And the Madianites, the Amalekites, and all they of the east, lape a long in the valeye, lyke vnto grashoppers in multitude & theyr camelles were without nombre, euen as the sande by the sea syde in multitude. And when Gedeon was come: Behold, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto his felowe & sayde: Beholde I dreamed a dreame, and me thoughte that a barleye loofe of barley bread tombled into the hoste of Madian, and came vnto a tente & smote it that it fell, and ouerturned it, that the tente lape a longe. And his felowe answered, & sayde, this is nothynge elles saue the swerde of Gedeon the sonne of Joas a man of Israel, into whose hande the Lord hath delyuered Madian & all the hoste.

When Gedeon hearde the tellynge of the dreame & the interpretacyon of the same, he bowed hym selfe to the earth & returned vnto the hoste of Israel, and sayde: vp for the Lord hath delyuered into youre handes the hoste of the Madianites. And he deuyded the thre hundred men into thre companyes, & gaue euerye man a trompet in his hand, with an emptye pitcher & lampes therin, and sayd vnto them: loke on me & do lykewyse: & beholde, when I come to the syde of the hoste, euen as I do, so do you. And when I blow with a trompet and all that are with me, blowe ye with trompettes also on euerye syde the hoste and saye: here be the Lorde and Gedeon.

And so Gedeon & the thre hundred men that were with him, came vnto the syde of the hoste in the begynnynge of the middell watche, euen as they by the watche men. And they blewe the trompettes & brake the pytchers that were in their handes. And all thre companyes blew the trompettes & brake the pitchers, & held the lampes in their left handes, & the trompettes in their right, to blowe withall. And they cryed the swerd of the Lord & of Gedeon. And they stode stille, euerye man in his place rounde about the hoste. And all the hoste ranne & cryed & fled. And as the thre hundreth blew with trompettes, the Lorde set euerye mannes swerde vpon his neyghboure, throughout all the hoste. And the hoste fled vntyll they came to Bethsitah, to Zererath, & to the edge of Abelmeholah besyde Tabath. And the men of Israel gathered together of the tribe of Nephtalim, of Aser, & of all Manasses, & followed after the Madianites. For Gedeon had sent messengers throughout all mount Ephraim sayinge: come doune against the Madianites & take vnto the waters both of Bethbarath and also of Jordan. Then all the men of Ephraim gathered together, & came doune & toke the waters bothe of Bethbarath & also of Jordan. And they take two captaynes of the Madianites, Oreb and Zeb, & slew Oreb vpon the roche Oreb, and Zeb at the presse Zeb, and followed after Madian And brought the heades of Oreb & Zeb to Gedeon on the other syde Jordan.

The.viii.Chapter.

Ephraim grudgeth vnthankefully against Gedeon, but is soone pacified. The inhabiters of Socoth refuse to giue Gedeon & his armye breade. The power Pharaoh is destroyed. Gedeon is ordayned ruler ouer the Israelites. He hath two sonnes. He dyeth.

AND the men of Ephraim sayd vnto him. Why haste thou serued vs thus, that thou calledst vs not, when thou wentest to fyght with the Madianites. And they chode with him a good. And he sayde vnto them: What deed haue I done lyke vnto yours? are not the gleanynges of Ephraim better then the vyntage of Abiezer? God hath delyuered into your handes the princes of Madian, Oreb & Zeb. And what was I able to do lyke as you? then coulde I not haue done. And then their spyrites abated from him, when he had sayde that. And then Gedeon came to Jordan & passed ouer, he & the thre hundred men that were with him, verye faynte & yet followed the chace. And he sayde vnto the men of Socoth: geue I praye you bread vnto the people that followe me: for they be faynte, that I maye followe after Zebah and Zalmona kinges of Madian. And the princes of Socoth sayde: are the handes of Zebah & Zalmona now in your handes that we shulde geue bread vnto thy company? And Gedeon sayde, therfore when the Lorde hath delyuered Zebah and Zalmona into myne hand I wyll teare your flesh with thornes & with brieres. And he went vp thence to Phanuel, & spake vnto them lykewyse. And the men of Phanuel answered him, as they of Socoth had answered. And he sayde also vnto the men of Phanuel, when I come again in peace, I wyll breake doune this toure. Zebah and Zalmona were in Karkar & their hoste with them, vpon a.xv. thousand, whiche were all that were lefte of all the hostes of the children of the East. And they that were slayne were a hundred & twentye thousand men that drewe swerdes.

And Gedeon went vp by the way that dwell in tabernacles on the east syde of Nobah and Jebahah, & smote the hoste: for the hoste had no perelles. Zebah and Zalmona fledde. But he followed after them, and toke the two kynges of the Madianites, Zebah and Zalmona and discomforted all the hoste.

And Gedeon the sonne of Joas returned from battel, the sonne beyng yet vp, & caught a ladde of the men of Socoth, and enquered of him. And he wrote him of the Lordes & Elders of Socoth. lxxvij. men. Then he came vnto the men of Socoth and sayde: Beholde Zebah and Zalmona with whiche ye calte me in the teth, sayinge: are the handes of Zebah & Zalmona all redye in your hande, that we shulde geue bread vnto thy fayntе men. And he take the elders of the cyte, and thornes of the wylderneſſe & brieres, and al to tare them therwith. And he brake doune the toure of Phamel, and slewe the men of the cytye.

And then sayde vnto Zebah and Zalmona, what maner men were they whyche ye slew at Thabor? and they answered, † lyke vnto the † the is all one. euen after the fashyon of the chyldren of a kyng. And he sayd: they were my brethē, euen my mothers chyldren, & as truly as the Lorde lyueth, yf ye had saued them alyue, I wolde not slepe you. And he sayd vnto Jether hys eldest sonne, vp, and slee them. But the ladde drew not hys swerde, for he feared, because he was yet yonge. Then Zebah and Zalmona sayde. Aryse thou & fall vpon vs, for as the man is so is hys strength. And Gedeon arose & slewe them: & he take awaye the Chaynes that were on theyr camels neckes.

Then the mē of Israel sayde vnto Gedeon Raygne ouer vs, both thou, thy sonne and thy sonnes sonne, for thou hast delyuered vs oute of the handes of † Madianites. And Gedeon sayd vnto thē, I wyll not raygne ouer you, neyther shall my chyldren raygne ouer you, but the Lorde shall raygne ouer you.

Neuertheles Gedeon sayde vnto them: I wolde desyre a certayne requeste of you euen that you wolde gyue me euerye man the earynges of hys praye. For they had golden earynges, because they were Ismaelites. And they sayd: we will do it. And they spred a mantell, and dyd cast there into euerye man the earynges of hys praye. And the wreyght of the golden earynges was a thousande & seuē hundred sycles of golde, besydes broches, owches and garmentes of skarlet that were of the kynges of Madiā, & besyde the chaynes, that were about theyr camels neckes. And Gedeō made an Ephod therof, & put it in hys cytye Ephrah. And all Israell wēt a whorying after hym there, whyche thyng was the ruyne of Gedeons house. Thus were the Madianites brought lowe before the chyldren of Israel, so that they lift vp theyr heades no more. And the contreye was in quyetnesse fourtye yeares in the dayes of Gedeon.

And Jerobaal the sonne of Joas went and dwelte in hys owne house. And Gedeon had lxx. sonnes of hys lodye begotten, for he had many wyues. And hys concubyne yͭ dwelt in Sichem bare him a sonne also, whose name he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the sonne of Joas dyed, when he was of a good age, & was buryed in the buryall of Joas hys father euē in Ephrah that pertayned vnto the father of the Ezrytes.

But as sone as Gedeon was dead, † chyldren of Israel turned awaye, and went a whorying after Baal, and made Baal berith theyr God, & thought not on the Lorde theyr God which had delyuered them out of the handes of all theyr enemyes on euery syde. Neyther shewed they mercy on the house of Jerobaal, whych was called Gedeō, according to all the goodnesse which he shewed them.

The.ix.Chapter.

Abimelech is ordeyned a kynge after he had killed his lyuyng brethren. He vpbraydeth the cytye of Sichem when he besyged it before. The parables of Joathan concernynge hys brother Abimelech.

And Abimelech the sonne of Jerobaal went to Sichem, vnto hys mothers brethren, & commuyned with them, & with all hys mothers, fathers kynred sayenge: say I pray you, in the eares of all the enhabytoures of the chem: whether is better for you that all the sonnes of Jerobaal whiche are lxx. personnes raygne ouer you, eyther that one raygne ouer you. And remembre therto, that I am youre bones and youre flesh. And his mothers brethren rehersed of hym in the audience of all the Citezyns of Sichem, all these wordes, & moued theyr harte to folowe Abimelech, in that they sayd how he was theyr brother. And they gaue hym lxx. peces of syluer out of the house of Baal Berith, with whyche Abimelech hyred Jebel, and lyght persons which wēt with hym. And they went vnto his fathers house at Ephrah, & slewe all his brethren, the sonnes of Jerobaal, euen lxx. personnes * with one stone. Notwithstandynge yet Joathā the youngest sonne of Jerobaal escaped: for he hyd hym selfe. And all the citezyns of Sichē gathered together with all the house of Melo, & went and made Abimelech kynge * at a tre by the ache that was by Sichem.

And when it was told Joathan, he went & stode in the toppe of mount Garizim, & lyfte vp hys voyce & called, & sayd vnto thē: Herke vnto me you citezyns of Sichē, that God may herken vnto you. The trees went to anoynt a kynge ouer them, & sayde vnto the olyue tree raygne ouer vs. But the olyue tree sayd vnto them: Should I leaue my fatnesse wherby both God & man prayseth in me, and go to be promoted ouer the trees. Then sayde the trees to the fygge tree, come thou and be kyng ouer vs. And the fygge tree answered thē, Should I forsake my sweetnes & my good fruyte, & should go to be promoted ouer the trees. Then sayde the trees vnto the vyne, come thou & be kyng ouer vs. And the vyne answered, Should I leaue my wyne that cheareth both God & mā & go to be promoted ouer the trees. Then sayd all the trees vnto the * fyre bushe come thou and raygne ouer vs. And the fyre bushe sayd vnto the trees: yf it be true that ye wyll anoynt me kynge ouer you, then come and trust vnder my shadowe, & ye shall se that a fyre shall come out of the fyre bushe, & waste the Cyprer trees of Lybanon.

But yf you haue not dealte truelye, then I praye God a fyre maye come oute of Abimelech & cōsume the cytezens of Sichem and the house of Mello. And yt there come a fyre out of the cytezens of Sichem, and oute of the house of Mello, and cōsume Abimelech. And Joatham ranne awaye and fledde & went to Beer, & dwelte there, for feare of Abimelech hys brother. When Abimelech had raygned thre yeres God sent an hate betwene Abymelech & the cytezens of Sichem. And the cytezens of Sichem rayled vpon Abimelech, and wyshed that the wyckednes done to the .lxx. sonnes of Jerobaal myght come on hym, and layde the blonde of thē vnto Abimelech their brother which slewe them, & vnto yt other cytezens of Sichem whiche ayded hym in the kyllyng of his brethren. D And Gaal the sonne of Abed & his brethre went & gat them to Sichem. And the men of Sichē put their confidence in hym. And they went out into ye feldes, & gathered in their grapes & treade thē, & made merye: and went into the house of their God, & dyd eate & drynke & cursed Abimelech. And Gaal the sonne of Abed sayde: what is Abimelech? and what is Sichē that we should serue him, is he not the sonne of Jerobaal? and Zebul is his officer? serue suche as come of Hemor the father of Sichē, for what reason is it that we shulde serue him? would God this people were vnder my hande, then I wolde take Abimelech oute of the waye. And one sayd vnto Abimelech: make thyne hoste greater and go oute. And whē Zebul the ruler of the cytye hearde the wordes of Gaal the sonne of Abed he was wroth and sent messengers vnto Abimelech priuely saying: Beholde Gaal the sonne of Abed and hys brethren be come to Sichem: and beholde they set the cytye agaynste the. Now therfore vp by nyght, bothe thou and all the people that is wyth the, and lye in wayte in the feldes. And rise early in the mornynge as sone as the sunne is vp, and come vpon the cytye. And whē he & the people that is with him come out agaynst the, do to him whatt yur hādes shalbe able. And Abimelech rose vp, & all the people that were with him, by nyght. And they layde awaye to the cytye in foure cōpanyes. And Gaal the sonne of Abed went oute & stode in the entrynge of the gate of the cytye. And Abimelech rose vp & the folcke ye were with hym, from laying awaye. And whē Gaal sawe the people, he sayd to Zebul: Beholde there come people downe fro the toppe of the mountaynes. And Zebul sayde vnto him: the shadow of the hylles seme men vnto the. And Gaal answered agayne & sayde: there come folcke downe by the myddle of the land, & another cōpanye come a longe by the charmars Oche. Then sayde Zebul vnto hym: where is now thy mouthe that sayde, what felow is Abimelech, that we shulde serue him. These are the people that thou so despysedest. Go oute now a felowlyppe & fyght with thē. And Gaal went out before the cytezens of Sichem, & fought with Abimelech. And Abimelech chased him that he fled before him & manye were ouerthrowen and slayne, euen vntyll they came vnto the enterynge of the gate. And thē Abimelech wēt & dwelt at Arumah. And thē Zebul thrust out Gaal & his brethē, & wolde not suffer them to dwelle in Sichem. And on the morowe ye people wēt out into the felde. And it was tolde Abimelech. And he toke his people & deuyded thē into thre cōpanies, and laye awaye in the feldes. And whē he sawe that ye people were comē out of the cytye, he ranne vpon them and layde vpon them.

And Abimelech and the cōpanyes ye were in him, ranne & stode in the entrynge of the gate of the cytie. And the two other cōpanyes ranne vpon all the people ye were in the feldes & slue thē. And then Abimelech fought agaynste the cytye all that daye, & toke it, & slew the people that was therin, & destroyed the cytye & sa. Se sowed lted salt in the place. But there was a strong toure in the myddes of the cytye, & thyther ranne al the men & wemen, & all the cytezens of ye cytye & shut it to them, and gate them vp vpon the toppe of the toure. Then Abimelech called hastelye vnto the yonge man that bare hys harnes, and sayde vnto him: drawe thy swerde and slee me, that men saye not of me, a woman slewe him. And hys ladde thrust him thorowe, and he dyed.

The Thola and Jair iudges of Israel. Israel sinneth & after repenteth on God his reuocation.

A After Abimelech there arose, to defende Israel, one Thola, the sonne of Phuah, the sōne of Dodo, a mā of Jssacar, which dwelt in Samir in mounte Ephraim. And he iudged Jsrael.xxiii. yere, & then dyed & was buryed in Samir. And after him arose Jair a Galaadyte, which iudged Jsrael. xxii. yeare. And he had.xxx. sonnes that * rode on xxx. asse colts, & had.xxx. cyties for them, which are called the townes of Jair vnto this daye, & are in the lande of Galaad. * And the chyldren of Jsrael wrought wyckednesse yet agayne, in the syght of the Lorde & serued Baalim & Astharoth, & the Goddes of Syria, & the Goddes of Sidon, & Goddes of Moab, the Goddes of the chyldren of Ammon, & the Goddes of the Philystines, & forsoke the Lord & serued him not. And the Lord was wroth with Jsrael, & solde thē into the handes of the Philistines, and into the handes of the chyldē of Ammō: which vexed & oppressed the chyldren of Jsrael in those dayes. xviii. yeare, all that were on the other syde Jordā in the lande of the Amorytes in Galaad. Moreouer the chyldē of Ammon wēt ouer Jordan to fyghte agaynste Juda, Beniamin, and the house of Ephraim: so that Jsrael was sore cōbred. Then the chyldren of Jsrael cryed vnto the Lorde, sayng: we haue synned agaynste the: for we haue forsaken oure owne God, and haue serued Baalim. And the Lorde sayde vnto the chyldē of Jsrael: dyd not the Egyptians, the Amorytes, the chyldē of Ammō, the Philystynes, the Sidonites, the Amalekytes, & the Maonites, oppressed you? And ye cryed to me, & I delyuered you out of theyr handes. And for all that ye haue forsaken me, and serue straunge Goddes, wherfore I wyl helpe you no more. But go, and crye vnto the Goddes which ye haue chosen, and let thē saue you in the tyme of youre tribulacyon.

But the chyldren of Jsrael sayde vnto the Lorde we haue synned: do thou vnto vs what soeuer pleaseth the, & delyuer vs onelye at thys tyme. And they put away the straunge Goddes from them, and serued the Lorde. And the mysery of Jsrael greued hys soule.

Then the chyldren of Ammon gathered together, & pitched in Galaad. And the chyldē of Jsrael gathered them together & pytched in Maspha. And the cōpanye of the Lordes of Galaad sayde eche to other, whosoeuer wyl begynne the battel agaynst the chyldē of Ammon, the same shalbe head ouer all the inhabiters of Galaad.

The.xi. Chapter.

Jephthah the sonne of a harlot deliuereth Israel from the Ammonytes after they vexed him.

A Nd there was one Jephthah a Galaadite, a strong man, which was the sonne of an harlot. Now be it Galaad begatte Jephthah. But Galaades wyfe bare hym sonnes, which when they were come to age, thrust out of Jephthah, & sayd vnto him: thou shalt not enherete in our fathers house, for thou art the sonne of a straunge womā. Then Jephthah fledde frō hys brethrē, & dwelt in the lande of Tob. And there gathered vile people to Jephthah, & went out with him. But it chaunced in processe of tyme, that the chyldē of Ammon made warre agaynst Jsrael, then the elders of Galaad went & set Jephthah out of the lande of Tob, & sayd vnto hym: come & be oure captayne, & let vs fyght with the chyldren of Ammon. And Jephthah sayd vnto the elders of Galaad. Dyd not ye hate me, & expell me out of my fathers house: how happeneth it thē that you come vnto me now in tyme of your tribulacyō? And the elders of Galaad answered Jephthah. Therfore we turne agayne to the now, that thou go with vs, & fyght agaynst the chyldren of Ammō, & be oure head ouer al the enhabiters of Galaad. And Jephthah sayd vnto the elders of Galaad: If ye bryng me home agayne to fyght with the chyldren of Ammon then yf the Lord delyuer thē before me, I shalbe your head. And the elders of Galaad sayde to Jephthah, the Lorde be witnesse betwene vs, yf we do not accordynge to thy wordes. Then Jephthah wēt with the elders of Galaad, and the people made hym heade and ruler ouer thē. And Jephthah rehersed all hys wordes in Maspha.

Then Jephthah sent messengers vnto the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon, sayinge: what ayleth the with me that thou comest vpō me to fyght agaynst my lande? And the kyng of the chyldren of Ammon answered vnto the messengers of Jephthah, because Jsrael toke away my land, when they came out of Egipt: from Arnon vnto Jabok, & frō thence vnto Jordan. Now therfore restore those landes agayne with fayre meanes. And Jephthah sent messengers agayne vnto the chyldren of Ammon, & sayde vnto hym: thus sayth Jephthah. Jsrael toke not away the lande of Moab, nor the land of the chyldē of Ammō. But when Jsrael came out of Egypt, they walked thrōw the wyldernesse, euen vnto the red sea & came to Cades, & sente messengers vnto the kynge of Edō sayinge: let vs we praye the go thrōw thy lande. But the kynge of Edō wolde not agree therto. And in lyke maner they sente vnto the kynge of Moab, but he wolde not consent. And so Jsrael abode styll in Cades. And then they went a longe thrōwe the wyldernesse, and compased the lande of Edom, & the lande of Moab, and came a longe by the east syde of the land of Moab, and pitched on the the otherside the riuer of Arnō, and came not within the coastes of the Moabites: for Arnon was their vtmost border. And then Israel sent messengers vnto Sehon, kynge of the D Amorites, and kynge of Hesbon, and said vnto him: Let vs passe thorow thy land vntoour owne countrey. But Sehon trusted not Israel, to go thorow hys coastes, but gathered all his people together and pytched in Jazah, and fought with Israell. But the Lord God of Israel delyuered Sehon and al his folcke into the handes of Israel. And so Israel smote them and conquered al the lande of the Amorites, the enhabiters of the sayde countrey. And they conquered al the coastes of the Amorites, from Arnon vnto Jabok, and from the wyldernesse vnto Jordan. So now seyng the Lorde God of Israel hath cast out the Amorites before his people, shouldeste thou possesse the land? Nay, but what people Camos thy God dryueth out, that land possesse thou. But whatsoeuer nacyons the Lorde oure God expelleth, that land ought we to enioye. And therto art thou better then Balach the sonne of Zephor kynge of Moab? dyd he stryue with Israell or fought against them? all the while Israell dwelte in Hesbon and her tou-

E nes, and in Aroer and her tounes, and in all the cytyes that be a longe by the coastes of Arnon iii. hūdred yeres: why dyddest thou not recouer the in all that space, wherfore I haue not spoyled against the. But thou doest me wronge, to warre against me. The Lorde therfore be iudge this daye, betwene the chyldren of Israel, and the children of Ammon. How be it the kynge of the children of Ammon harkened not vnto the wordes of Jephthah, which he sent him.

Then the spirite of the Lorde came vpon Jephthah. And he passed ouer Galaad & Manasses, & came to Maspha that lyeth in Galaad, and from thence vnto the childē of Ammon. And Jephthah vowed a vowe vnto the Lorde and sayd: If thou shalt deliuer the children of Ammon into my handes, then that
F thinge & cometh out of the doores of my house against me, when I come home in peace, frō the children of Ammon, shalbe the Lordes, and I wil offer it vp a burntoffering. And so Jephthah went vnto the children of Ammon to fyght with them. And the Lord deliuered them into his handes. And he smote them frō Aroer vnto Mynith, xx. cytyes. And so forth to the plaine of the vineyardes, and made an exceding great slaughter. And thus the chyldren of Ammon were brought vnder, before the chyldren of Israel.

G Then Jephthah came to Maspha vnto hys house. And se, his doughter came oute against hym, with tymbrelles & daunses, which was his onely child, so that beside her, he had nether sonne nor doughter. And whe he sawe her, he rente his clothes, & said: Alas my doughter, thou hast *made me stoupe and art one of them, that trouble me, for *I haue opened my mouth vnto the Lorde, & can not go backe. And she sayd vnto him: my father, yf thou haue opened thy mouth vnto the Lord, then do with me according to that proceded out of thy mouthe, for as muche as the Lorde hath auenged the of thyne enemyes the chyldren of Ammon. And she sayde vnto her father, do this muche for me: let me alone two monethes, that I may go downe to the mountaines, and bewaile my virginite with my felowes. And he sayde: go, and so he sente her away two monethes. And she went with her companyons, and lamented her maydenhead vpon the mountaines. And after the two monethes, she turned againe vnto her father, which dyd with her according to his vowe, which he had vowed, & so she knewe no man. And it became an ordinaunce in Israell pere by pere, that the doughters of Israel shoulde go and lamente the doughter of Jephthah the Galaadite, foure dayes in a yere.

A The battel of Jephthah against Ephraim. After the death of Jephthah iudged Ebsā. After Ebā Abā.

AND the men of Ephraim gathered themselues together, & were A northwarde, and sayde vnto Jephthah: Wherfore wentest thou to fyght with the children of Ammon, & dyddest not cal vs to go wt the? we wil therfore burne thine house vpon the, with fyre. And Jephthah sayde vnto them: I & my people were at greate stryfe with the children of Ammon. And I called you. But ye delyuered me not out of their hādes. And whē I sawe that ye delyuered me not, I * put my lyfe in my handes & went vpon the chyldren of Ammon, And the Lorde delyuered them into my handes. And Jephthah gathered together all the B men of Galaad, and fought with the Ephraites. And the mē of Galaad smote the Ephraites, because they sayd: Ye Galaadites are but runneagates of Ephraim among the Ephraites, and the Manassites. Moreouer the men of Galaad tooke the passages of Jordan from the Ephraites. And when those Ephraites, that were escaped, sayde: let vs go ouer. Then the men of Galaad sayde vnto them: Ye are Ephraites, and they sayde nay. Then C the other answered: then saye * Scybboleth. And they sayde Scyboleth, and could not so pronounce, where vpon the other toke them, and slewe them at the passages of Jordan. The Israell beynge in subiection is oppressed of the Philistimes. The birth of Samson. The discipline of Samsons father.

AND the childre of Israell began agayn to committe wickednesse in the syght of the Lorde. And the Lorde delyuered them into the handes of the Philistynes fourtye yere. And there was a man in Zaraah of the lynred of the Dannites, named Manoah, whose wyfe was barren and bare not. And the Angel of the Lord appeared vnto hys wyfe and sayd vnto her: Beholde, thou art barren and beareſt not: But thou shalt conceyue and beare a sonne. And nowe beware, and drynke no wyne, nor strong drynche, neyther eate any vncleane thynge for ly, thou shalt conceyue and beare a sonne. And there maye* no rasour cherre vpon hys heade: For y lad shalbe an abstayner vnto God euen from the tyme of his byrth. And he shal begynne to deliuer Israel out of the handes of the Philistynes. * 1. Reg. 1. b.

Then the wyfe wente and tolde her husbande sayinge a man of God came vnto me, and the fashion of hym was lyke the fashyon of an Angel of God, exceading fearful. But I asked hym not whence he was, neyther told he me hys name. And he sayd vnto me: * beholde thou shalt be with chylde and beare a sonne, and nowe drynche no wyne nor strong drynche, neyther eate any vncleane thynge: for the lad shalbe an abstayner to God euen fro hys byrth to the daye of his death. * Gene.xvi.c. Luce.i.a

Then Manoah made intercession to the Lorde, and sayde: I praye the my Lorde let the man of God, which thou sendeſt come ouer more vnto vs and teache vs, what we shal do vnto the lad whyche is borne. And God heard the voice of Manoah, and the angel of God came agayne vnto the wyfe, as she sat in the felde: But Manoah her husbande was not with her. Then the wyfe made haste and ranne and shewed her husbande and sayde to hym: Beholde the man apeared vnto me that came the other daye vnto me.

And Manoah arose and wente after hys wyfe, and came to the man and sayde vnto hym: Art thou the man that spakeſt vnto my wyfe? And he sayd, yt. Then Manoah sayde, now when thy saying is come to passe, what shalbe the maner of the chylde, and what shal he do? And the Angel of the Lorde sayd vnto Manoah: thy wife must abstayne from al that I sayde vnto her: she maye eate of nothynge, that cometh of the vyne tree, nor drinche wine or stronge drynche, nor eate anye vncleane thynge: But must obserue all that I bad her. Then sayde Manoah vnto the Angell of the Lord, graunte vs to tarye vntil we haue made redye a kyd and haue set it before the. And the angel of ỹ Lorde sayd vnto Manoah: though thou make me abyde, I will not eate of thy meate. And moreouer, yf thou wylt prepare a burntoffryng, that thou must offer vnto the Lord. For Manoah wist not that it was an angel of the Lorde. And Manoah sayd vnto the angel of the Lord: what is thy name, that when thy sayinge is come to passe, we maye do the some worshippe? And the angell of the Lorde sayde vnto him: why askeſt thou after my name? when it is maruelouse.

And Manoah toke a kydde with a meate offering, and offered it vpon a roche vnto the Lord. And the angel dyd wonderslye, Manoah and his wyfe lokyng vpon. For when the flame came vp out of the aultare, the angel of the Lord ascended vp in the flame of the aultare. And Manoah and hys wyfe loked vpō and fell flat on their faces vnto the grounde: But the angel of ỹ Lord dyd no more apeare vnto Manoah and hys wyfe. And then Manoah knewe yt it was an angel of the Lord, and sayd vnto hys wyfe: we shal surelye dye, because we haue seene God. But his wyfe sayd vnto him: yf the Lorde woulde kyll vs, he woulde not haue receyued a burntoffryng & a meat offryng of our handes, neyther would he haue shewed vs all these thynges, nor would haue tolde vs as he hath of thinges to come. And the wyfe bare a sonne, and called his name Samson. And the lad grewe, and ỹ Lord blessed him. And the spirite of the Lorde began sprite to be with the house of Dan, betwene Zaraah and Esthaol.

The.xiiij. Chapter.

The marriage of Samson. He killeth a lion. He propounded a riddle. He killeth xxx. men. His wife betrayeth him and taketh another.

SAmson wente downe to Thamnath, & sawe a woman in Thamnath of the doughters of ỹ Philistimes, and came vp and tolde hys father and his mother, and sayde: I haue seene a woman in Thamnath of the doughters of the Philistimes. And nowe gyue her me to wyfe. Then hys father and mother sayde vnto him, is there neuer a woman of the doughters of thy brethren, among all my people, but that thou muste go and fetche a wyfe of the vncircumcised Philistimes? And Samson sayd vnto hys father, gyue me thys woman for she pleaseth me well. But hys father and mother wist not that it was the Lordes doing, and that he sought an occasion of the Philistimes, which at that tyme raigned ouer Israel.

Then

Then went Samson and his father and B hys mother doune to Thamnath. And when they came to the vynepardes of Thamnath:
beholde a young Lyon roared vpon hym. And the spirite of the Lorde came vpon hym. And he tare hym, as a man woulde rent a Kydde,
and yet had nothing in his hande. Neuerthe-later he tolde not his father & mother, what he had done. And he went doune and talked with the woman, whiche semed well fauored
in the sight of Samson.

And within a thorte space after, as he went thether againe to take her to wyfe, he turned out of the waye, to se the carkaffe of the Lion.
And beholde there was a swarme of bees in the carkaffe of the Lyon, and honye. And he tobe of the honye in his handes and went eatyng, and came to his father and mother and gaue them also. And they did eate. But he tolde not them, that he had taken the houy
out of the carkaffe of the Lyon.

C And when his father was come vnto the woman, Samson made there a feaste, for so vsed the younge men to do. And when her frendes sawe hym, they brought xxx companyons to beare felowshippe. And Samson sayde vnto them: I will put forthe a ryddle vnto you. And yf you can declare it within vii. dayes of the feaste and fynde it out, I will geue you thyrtye sheetes, and thyrtye chaunge of garmentes: But and yf you can not declare
it me, then shall ye geue me thyrtye sheetes & thyrtye chaunge of garmentes. And they answered him, put forth thy ryddle and let vs heare it. And he sayde vnto them. Out of the eater came meate, and out of the stronge came swetnesse. And they could not in thre dayes expounde the ryddle. And whē the seuenth day was come, they sayde vnto Samsons wyfe.
Flatter with thyne husbande, that he maye
declare vs the ryddle, or elles we will burne
the and thy fathers house with fyre, haue ye D called vs to make vs beggers or no? Then Samsons wyfe wepte vnto him and he sayd,
it can not be, but that thou hatest me & louest
me not: for thou hast put forth a ryddle vnto
the children of my folke, and wylt not tell me what it meaneth. And he sayde: Beholde, I haue not tolde it my father nor my mother, &
shoulde I tell it the?

And she wepte vnto him. vii. dayes, while the feaste lasted. And the seuenth day he told her, because she laye so sore vpō him. And she tolde it the children of her folke. And the men of the cytye sayde vnto him the seuenth daye

slewe thyrtye men of them, and spoyled the,
and gaue their garmentes vnto them whiche expounded the ryddle. And he was wroth and went vp to his fathers house. But Samsons wyfe was geuen to one of his companyons
that bare him companye.

The xv. Chapter.

Samson frets his beastes in her wyfes, & lets forth the in among into the corne of the Philistines, to be auē-ged on them that take his wyfe from him. With the rib bone of an Asse, he slayeth a thousand mē. Out of a greue in the rib bone God geueth him water,
to refreshe his mouth.

But it chaunced within a while after, euen in the tyme of wheate harueste, that Samson visited his wyfe with a kydde. And when he supposed to haue gone
in vnto his wife into the chamber, her father woulde not suffer him to go in: But sayde: I thought that thou haddest hated her, & therefore gaue I her vnto one of thy companions.
Howbeit, her younger sister is fayrer then
she. Take her in steade of the other. Then sayd Samson vnto them: Nowe I am blamelesse concerninge the Philistines, though I do them euill.

And Samson went out and caught thre hundred foxes, and tobe firebrandes, and fastened taple to taple, and put a firebrande in the middes, betwene two taples. And he set the firebrandes on fyre, and put them into the corne of the Philistines, and burnte vp both the reped corne and also the standinge, with bowes and olyues. Then the Philistines axked, who had done that? And it was tolde them, that Samson the sonne in law of the Thamnite, because he had taken his wyfe, and geuen her to one of his companions. And the Philistines came and burnte her and her father with fyre.

And Samson sayde vnto them: Thoulde ye do so? I will surely be auenged of you, and then I will cease. And he smote them * lygge and thygh with a mighty plage. And then he went and dwelte in the caue of the roche Etam.

Then the Philistines came vp and pyt-ched against Juda and laye in Lehi. And the men of Juda sayde, why are ye come against vs? And they answered: to binde Samson are we come, euen to do him as he hath done to vs. Then thre thousande men of Juda went doune to the caue of the roche Etam, and sayd to Samson: woteste thou not that the Philistines are rulers ouer vs? Wherfore why hast thou serued vs thus? And he answered the, as they serued me, so haue I serued them.

And they sayde vnto him, we are come to binde the and to deliuer the into the handes
of the Philistines. And Samson sayde vnto them: sweare vnto me, that ye shall not fall me E poure selues. And they sayde we will not hurte the, saue onelye binde the and deliuer
the into their handes: But we will not slee
the. And so they bounde him with two newe cordes and brought him vp from the roche.
And when he came to Lehi, the Philistines shouted against him. And the spirite of the Lorde came vpō him, and the cordes that were

D And Samson sayde: wyth the Jawe of an asse, haue I made heapes: wyth the Jawe of an asse haue I slayne a thousande men. And when he had left speakyng, he cast awaye the Jawe oute of hys hande and called the place * Ramath Lehi. And he was sore athyrste, & called on the Lorde and sayde: Thou Lorde hast geuen this greate victorye, thorowe the hand of thy seruaunt. And now I muste dye for thyrst, and falle into the handes of the vncircumcised. But God brake a greate tothe, that was in the Jawe, and there came water therout. And when he had dronche, his spirite came againe, and he was refreshed, wherfore the name therof was called, * the welle of the caller on, which is in Lehi vnto this day. And he iudged Israel in the dayes of the Philistines twentye yeres.

The xvi. Chapter.

Samson plaieth by the Gates of Gaza, & carieth them vp into the mountayne. He was betrayed by Dalilah and made blynde. He pulleth downe the house vpon the Philistines and dyed with them.

A Then went Samson to Gaza, & sawe there an whore, and wente in vnto her. And it was told the Gazites, that Samson was come thether. And they wente about and layde awayte for him all nyght in the gate of the cyte, but were styll at ꝑ nyght tyme: They sayde the morning that it be day, and then wyll we slee him. And Samson toke his rest vntyll midnyght, and arose at midnight and toke the dores of the gate of the cyte, and the two syde postes, and cast the of, barres and all, and put them vpon his shoulders, and caryed them vp to the toppe of an hyll that lyeth before Hebron.

And after that he loued a woman, vpon the ryuer of Sorek, called Dalilah, vnto whō came the Lordes of the Philistines, and sayd vnto her: Flatter wyth him and se wherin his greate strength lyeth, and by what meane we may haue power ouer him, that we may bynde him, to bringe him vnder, and we wyll geue euerye man eleuen hundred syluerlynges.

B And Dalilah sayde to Samson. Oh, tell me where thy great strenght lyeth, & wyth what thou were bounde, wherwith men might constraine the. And Samson sayde vnto her. If men bounde me wyth seuen grene wythes that were neuer dryed, I should be weake and as another man. And then the Lordes of ꝑ Philistines brought her seuen wythes ꝑ were yet grene and neuer dried, and she bound him therwyth. Nat wythstandynge she had men lyenge in waite wyth her in the chamber. And she sayde vnto him, the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he brake the cordes as a strynge of towe breaketh, when it feeleth fyre. And so his strength was not knowen.

Then sayde Dalilah to Samson: Se thou hast mocked me and tolde me lyes. Nowe yet tell me I praye the, wherwyth thou mightest be bounde. And he sayde: If I were bounde wyth newe ropes that neuer were occupyed, then shoulde I be weake, and as another mā. And Dalilah toke newe ropes and bounde him therwyth, and sayde vnto him: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And there were lyers of wayte in the chamber, and he brake them from hys armes, as they had bene but a threde. And Dalilah sayde vnto Samson, hetherto thou hast begyled me and tolde me lyes: I praye the yet tell me wherwyth men maye bynde the. And he sayde vnto her. If thou plattedest the seuē lockes of my head wyth an heare lace and fastenedest them wyth a naple. And she sayde vnto him, the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awaked out of hys slepe, and plucked and went awaye wyth the naple, that was in the plattyng and wyth the heare lace. Then she sayd vnto him: How canst thou say that thou louest me, whē thyne hert is not with me: for thou hast mocked me this three tymes, and halte not tolde, D wherin thy great strength lyeth. And as she laye vpon him with her wordes, contynually vexinge of him, his soule was encombred euen vnto the death. And he tolde her all his herte, and sayde vnto her: there neuer came rasor vpon myne head, for I haue bene an abstayner to God euen from my mothers wombe. If myne heare were cut of, my strength would go from me, and I should waxe & be lyke all other men. And when Dalilah sawe that he had tolde her all his herte, she sent for the Philistynes, sayinge: come vp yet thys ones, for he hath shewed me all his herte.

Then the Lordes of the Philistines came, and brought the mouey in their handes. And she made him slepe vpon her lappe, and sent E for a man, and cut of the seuen lockes of his head, and began to vexe him. But his strength was gone from him. And she sayd the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awoke out of his slepe, and thought to go oute as at other tymes before and shake him selfe, and wiste not that the Lord was departed from him. But the Philistines toke him and put out his eyes, and brought him bounde to Gaza, and bounde him wyth fetters. And he was made to grynde in the prison house, how be it thy heare of his head began to growe agayn, after that he was shorne.

Then the Lordes of the Philistines gathered them together, for to offre a solempne offringe vnto Dagon their God, and to reioice; F for they sayd, our God hath deliuered Samson oure enemie into oure handes. And when the people sawe him, they praised their God: for they sayd oure God hath deliuered into oure handes oure enemye, that destroied oure countrye and slue many of vs. And when they were hertes were merpe, they sayd: sende for Samson, and let hym playe for vs. And they fette Samson out of the prisonhouse, and he played before them, and they set him betwene the pilers. And Samson sayde vnto the lad, that ledd him by the hande: set me that I maye touche the pyllers that the house stand vpon, and that I maye leane to the. And the house was ful of men and women. And there was all the Lordes of the Philistines. And there were vpon the roufe a thre thousand men and women, that beheld how Samson played.

And Samson called vnto the Lorde, and sayde: my Lorde Jehouah thynke vpon me, and strengthen me, at this tyme only o God, that I maye be auenged of the Philistines for my two eyen. And Samson caught the two middel pyllers, on which the house stode and on which it was borne by, the one in his right hande, and the other in his lefte, and sayde: my soule dye with the Philistines, and bowed them with myght. And the house fell vpon the Lordes, and vpon all the people that were therin. And so the dead which he slewe at his death, were mo the they, which he slew in his lyfe. And then his brethren and all the house of his father came downe and tobe him by, and brought him & buried him betwene Zarah and Eschaol, in the burying place of Manoah his father. And he iudged Israell twenty yere.

The xvii. Chapter.

Of Micah which moder made him an Idoll of siluer. Of the young prieste of the tribe of Leui of Bethlehem.

There was a man out of Ephraim, named Micah, which sayde vnto his mother, the eleuen hundred syluerlinges that were take from the, about which thou curssedst and saydest in myne eares: Beholde the syluer is with me for I take it awaye. Then sayd his mother: blessed be thou my sonne, in the Lord. And so he restored the eleuen hundred syluerlinges to his mother agayne. And his mother sayde: I vowed the syluer vnto the Lord of myne hande for my sonne to make a grauē ymage and an ymage of mettall. Now therfore I geue it the agayne. And he restored the money agayne vnto his mother. Then his mother take two hundred syluerlinges, & put them to a goldsmith, to make therof a grauen ymage and a ymage of metal, which remayned in the house of Micah. And the man Micah had a chapel of Gods, and made an Ephod and Imagres, & fylled the hand of one of his sonnes, which became his preest. For in those dayes there was no kyng in Israel, but euery man dyd what thought hym best.

And there was a young man out of Bethlehem Juda, and out of the kinreden of Juda: which young man was a Leuite and sourned there. And the man departed out of the cyty of Bethlehem Juda, to go dwell where he could fynde a * place. And he came to mount Ephraim, & to the house of Micah as he iourneyed. And Micah sayde vnto him, whence comeste thou? and the Leuite answered him: I am of Bethlehem Juda, & go to dwell where I may fynde a place. And Micah sayde vnto him: dwel with me, and be vnto me a father and a preest. And I will geue the ten syluerlynges by yere and rayment of al sortes, and thy meate and dyspche.

And the Leuite went and began to dwel with the man, and was vnto him as dere, as one of his owne sonnes. And Micah fylled ỹ hande of the Leuite, and the younge man became his preest, and continued in the house of Micah. Then sayd Micah, now I assure that the Lorde wylbe good vnto me, seynge, I haue a Leuite to my preest.

The.xviii. Chapter.

The children of Dan take the Goddes and the preest of Micah away. They destroye Lais, and after builde it agayne.

In those dayes there was no kynge in Israell. And in those dayes the tribe of Dan sought them an enheritaunce to dwell in, for vnto that tyme there fell none enheritaunce vnto the amonge the tribe of Israel. And the childre of Dan sent of their kynreden fyue men of actiuite, oute of their coastes, euen out of Zarah and Eschaol, to serue the Lorde and searche it out, and sayd vnto them: go & searche out the lande. And they came to mount Ephraim, euen to the house of Micah & lodged there. And when they were come vnto the house of Micah, they knew the voice of the young man the Leuite, & turned in thether, and sayde vnto hym: who brought ỹ hether? and what makest thou in this place? & what hast thou here. And he said vnto them thus and thus dealeth Micah with me, and hath hyred me to be his preest. And they sayd vnto him: Aske of God I praye the, that we maye know, whether the way which we go, shalbe prosperous or no. And the preest sayde vnto them go in peace, for the waye wherin ye go is before the Lorde.

Then the fyue men departed and came to Lais, and sawe the people that were therin, how they dwelt carefully, and after the maner of the Sidons, stylle and without callyng of parelles, & that no man made any trouble in the the lande vsurped any dominion, and how they were farre from the Sidons, and had no busines with any nacion. And they came vnto their brethren, to Zarah, & Eshaol. And their brethren sayde vnto them: what tydynges bring ye?

2 Num.xiii.d And they sayde: vp and let vs go vnto the, * for we have sene the lande, that it is verye good. Saue therfore and be not slouthfull to departe, and to go & conquere the land. Whē ye be come, ye shall come vnto a people that calleth no patelles, and vnto a large coastrey: for God hath geuen into youre handes a place, wherin is no lacke of any thinge that is in the worlde.

And there departed thence of the kynrede of the Danites, out of Zarah and Eshaol sixe hundred men apoynted with theyr instrumentes of warre. And they wente and pytched in Kiriath Jarim in Juda. Wherfore the place D is called Mahanah Dan vnto this daye, which is on the backside of Kiriath Jarim. And they went thence vnto mount Ephraim, and came to the house of Micah. Then answered the foure men that wente to spye oute the countrey of Lais, and sayde vnto their brethren: wote ye not that there is in these houses an Ephod and Images, and a grauē Image of metall? Nowe therfore consyder what ye have to do.

And they turned thether warde and came to the house of the younge man the Leuite in the house of Micah, and saluted him peaceably. And the sixe hundred men gyrded with weapons of warre, which were of the children of Dan stode in the entrynge of the E gate. And the foure men that wente to spye oute the land, wente in thether & toke the grauē Image, and the Ephod the grauē Image, and the Image of metall. And the priest stode in the entrynge of the gate with the sixe hundred men that were armed vnto battel. While the other went in Micahs house, and fet the grauē Image, the Ephod, & grauē Image and the Image of metall. Then sayd the priest vnto them: what do ye? and they answered him, holde thy peace, and * put thyne hande vpon thy mouth, and come with vs, and be vnto vs a father and a priest, whether is it better for the to be a priest vnto the house of one man, or to be priest vnto a tribe or a hundred in Israell? And the priest was glad, and toke the Ephod and the Images, and the grauē Image, and wente with the people. And they turned and departed, and put the children, the catel and their substance before them.

When they were a good waye from the F house of Micah, the men that were in the houses that were by Micahs house, made an outcrye, and followed after the children of Dan & called vnto them. And they turned their faces & sayde vnto Micah, what aylyth the, y thou makest an outcrye? And he sayde, ye have taken away my Goddes which I made and also the priest, and go youre wayes with the: And what have I more, how then saye ye vnto me, what aylyth the? And the children of Dan sayde vnto him, let not thy voyce be heard among vs, leste angrye felowes runne vpon the, and thou lose thy lyfe, with the lyues of all thyne housholde to. And so the children of Dan went their wayes. And when Micah sawe that they were to stronge for him, he turned & wente backe vnto his house agayne.

And they toke the thinges whiche Micah G had made, and the priest whiche he had, and went vnto Lais, vnto a people that were at reast and without mistrust, and smote the with the edge of the swerde, and burnte the cytye with fyre. And there was no man to helpe, because it was farre from Sydon, and they had no medelynge with any other nacion. And the cytye stode in the valeye that lye by Bethrehob. And they builte the cytye and dwelt therin. * And called it Dan, after * Josue.xix.i the name of Dan their father, which was borne vnto Israell. Howbeit in very deade the name of the cytye was Lais at the begynninge.

And the children of Dan, set them vp the grauen Image. And Jonathan the sonne of Gerson, the sonne of Manasses & his sonnes were the priestes vnto the tribe of the Danites, vntyl they were caried awaye oute of the lande captyue. And they set them vp the hewen Image which Micah made, al the whyle that the house of God was in Silo.

The xix. Chapter.

A Of the Leuite whose wyfe was villenously hurted in Gibeah. She is deuyded into xij. portions & sent to euery tribe of Israel to warre.

IN those dayes, whē A there was no kynge in Israell, that a certain Leuite dwellyng on the syde of mount Ephraim, toke to wyfe a concubyne out of Bethlehem Juda: whyche concubyne playde the whore in his house, and went away from him, vnto her fathers house to Bethlehem Juda, and there continued foure monethes. And her husband arose & went after her, to speake frendelye vnto her, and to bringe her home agayne, and his lad with him and a couple of Asses. And she brought him vnto her fathers house, and when the father of the damoselle sawe him, he reioyced of his comynge. And his father in lawe the damoselles father kepte him, that he abode with him thre dayes, and so they ate and dranke and lodged there.

The fourth daye they arose erlye in the B morninge, and the man stode vp to departe. But the damoselles father sayde vnto his sonne in lawe, coforte thyne herte with a morsel of bread, and the go youre waye. And they sate downe and dyd eate and drynke both of them together. Then sayde the damoselles father vnto the man, goto I praye the and tarye all nyghte, and let thyne hert be merye. Howbeit the man stode vp to departe: but

hys father in lawe compelled hym to tarne agayne and to tarye all nyght there. And he rose vp erlye the fyft daye to departe. Then sayde the damoselles father, comforte thyne herte and so made hym tarye vntyl after mydnoone. And they dyd eate both of them together.

And then the man arose to departe with hys concubine and hys lad. But hys father in Law the damoselles father sayde vnto hym: beholde the day goeth fast awaye, & draweth towarde euen, tarye all nyght: at the laste way tarye thys day here and let thyne herte be merye. And to morow get you erlye vpon your waye and get the to the tente. Neuertheles the man would not tarye, but arose and departed and came as ferre as Jebus, which is Jerusalem, and his two asses laden, and hys .a. concubyne and his lad with hym. And when they were fast by Jebus, the daye was fore spente and the younge man sayde vnto hys master, come I pray the and let vs turne in, into thys cytye of the Jebusites and lodge all nyght there. But hys master sayd vnto hym, we will not turne into a straunge cytye that are not of the children of Israel: we will go forth to Gabaah. And he sayde vnto hys lad: go forwarde, and we shal come to one place or other, & shal lodge al nyght in Gabaah or in Ramah. And they went forwarde vpon their waye, and the sonne went downe vpon them, when they were fast by Gabaah, which is in Beniamin: And they turned thether warde to go and lodge al nyght in Gabaah. And when they came in, they sat them downe in a streat of the cytye, for there was no man take them into lodge. But beholde, there came an olde man from hys worke, out of the feldes at euen, whyche was also of mount Ephraim: and was a straunger in Gabaah for the men of the place were of the children of Jemini. And when he had lyft vp his eyes, and sawe a waye faring man in the streates of the cytye he sayde: whether goest thou? And whence comest thou? And the other answered hym, we come from Bethlehem Juda towarde the syde of mount Ephraim: from thence am I, and went to Bethlehem Juda and go nowe to the house of the Lorde. But there is no man that receyueth me to house: & yet I haue straw and prouender for our asses, and bread and wyne for me and thy handmaide, and thy lad that are with thy seruaunt, and lacke nothing.

The olde man sayde: peace be with the, al that thou lackest shall thou fynde with me: onlye abyde not in the streates all nyght, and he brought hym into hys house, and gaue ouer vnto hys asses. And they washed their fete, and dyd eate and drynke. And as they were making their hertes merye, the men of the cytye, whyche were wycked, let the house roundabout, and thrust at the dore, and spake to the man of the house, the olde man saying: bringe forthe the man that came into thyne house, that we may knowe hym.

But the man of the house went out to them and sayde vnto them, Oh, naye my brethren, do not so wyckedlye I praye: that thys man is come into myne house: do not thys folye. Beholde my doughter a mayden and thys mannes concubyne, them I will bringe out vnto you, and * humble them, and do with them what semeth you good: but vnto thys man, do not thys folye. But the men wolde not herken to hym. Neuertheles the man take hys concubine and brought her out vnto them, & they had to do with her, and entreated her shamefullye, all the nyght euen vnto the morninge. And when the daye beganne to springe, they let her go.

And then came the woman in the dawning of the daye, and fell downe at the dore of the mannes house, where her Lorde was, and there she laye tyll daye. And her Lorde arose vp in the morninge and opened the doores of the house, and went out to go hys way. And beholde hys concubine laye alonge before the dore of the house, and her hand vpon the treshold. And he sayde vnto her: vp and let vs be goinge. But she answered not. Then he toke her vp vpon an asse & rode vp, & gat him vnto his owne home. And when he was come vnto hys house, he toke a dagger knife, and caught his concubine & deuided her throwout hys bones into twelue peces, and sent her into all quarters of Israel. And al that sawe it sayde: there was no such deade done or sene since the children of Israel came out of Egypt vnto thys day, consyder the matter, geue counsel and saye youre mynde.

The. xx. Chapter.

¶ The hoste of all the Israelites agaynste the tribe of Beniamin for the Lordes wyll beynge.

Then all the children of Israel went out and there gathered al congregacyon together * as it had bene but one man, euen from Dan to Berseba, and out of the lande of Galaad, vnto the lande of Mizpah, and there stode folke out of all quarters of al the tribes of Israell, in the congregacyon of the people of God, foure hundred thousande foote men that dyd we swerdes. And the children of Beniamin heard that the children of Israel were gone vp to Mizpah.

Then sayde the children of Israel: tell vs, how thys wickednesse happened. And the Leuyte the womans husbande that was slayne, answered and sayde: I came into Gabaah that is in Beniamin with my concubyne to lodge al nyght. And the cytezens of Gabaah rose agaynste me, and set the house roundeabout vpon me by nyght, and thought to haue slayne me: and raughte my concubyne and forced her, that she dyed. And I toke my concubyne, and cut her in peces, and sent her thorow out al the landes of the enheritaunce of Israel. For they haue committed abhomyna-

Then all the people arose, as it had bene one man sayinge: there shal not a man of vs go to his tente, neither turne into his house. And now this is it that we wil do to Gabaah and cast lottes against it. And we wyll take ten men of the hundred thorow out al the tribes of Israel, and an hundred of the thousand, and a thousand out of the ten thousand, to fet vitaple for the people to make that they maye go against Gabaah Beniamin, accordyng to all the folye, that they haue wrought in Israel. And so all the men of Israel gathered together, vnto Gabaah, knyt together as it had bene but one man. And the tribe of the tribes of Israel sent men thorow al the tribe of Beniamin sayinge: what wyckednesse is this that is happened among you: Now therfore delyuer vs the men, those wycked wretches of Gabaah that we maye slay them, and put away euyl from Israel.

Neuertheles the children of Beniamin wolde not herken vnto the voice of their bretheren the children of Israell: but gathered the selues together out of the cytyes vnto Gabaah, to come out in battayle against the children of Israel. And the children of Beniamin were numbred at that tyme, out of the cytyes xxvi. thousande men that drew swerdes beside the enhabiters of Gabaah, which were numbred seuen hundred chosen men. And among al these folke were seuen hundred lefte handed men, which euery one could sling stones at an heer breadth, & not mysse. And the children of Israel besyde the children of Beniamin, were numbred foure hundred thousande men that dre wl swerdes, and al men of warre.

And the children of Israel arose & went vp to * Bethel, and asked of God, who shoulde begynne to battel against the children of Beniamin, and the Lorde sayd: Juda shal begynne. And the children of Israel rose vp early and besieged Gabaah. And the men of Israel went out to battel against Beniamin, & put them selues in araye against the, to fight against Gabaah. And the children of Beniamin came out of Gabaah and destroyed in Israell that daye, xxii. thousande men, and brought them to the earth.

And the folke of the children of Israell pluckes vp their herte, and went to againe, and made battel in the same place where they had the fyrst daye: but they went fyrste vp & wept before the Lord vnto euen, and asked of the Lorde saying: shal we go againe to battel against the children of Beniamin our brethren? And the Lord sayde: go vnto them: and when the children of Israel were come to the children of Beniamin the second day, the children of Beniamin went against the out of Gabaah, the second day, & destroyed to the earth of the children of Israel ones again. xviii. M. men that drew swerdes euery man of them.

Then the children of Israell and all the people went vp and came vnto Bethel, and wepte and sat there before the Lorde, & fasted the same daye vnto euen, and offered burntofferinges and peace offeringes before the Lorde. And they asked the Lorde: for there was the arche of the appointment of God, in * Which after the Hebrues synt that hundred yeres. Of whome also Numer. xxv. those dayes. And * Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron waytyng vpon it at that time, & they sayd: shal we go outcamp more to battel against the children of Beniamin our brethren, or shal we cease? And the Lord sayd vnto them: go: for to morowe I wil deliuer the into your handes. And Israell set layers awayte against Gabaah rounde about. And the children of Israel went against the children of Beniamin the thirde tyme, and put the selues in araye against Gabaah, as twise before. Then came the children of Beniamin against the people, tyll they were drawen a great way from the cytye. And they beganne to smyte of the people dead (as twyse before) in two hye wayes of which one goeth vp to Bethel, and the other to Gabaah thorow the felde) vpon a thyrty men of Israel. For the children of Beniamin thought that the other had ben beaten before them, as at the fyrste tyme. But the children of Israell sayd: let vs flee and pluckes them awaye from the cyty, vnto the hye wayes.

And then al the men of Israel rose vp out of their standinge, and put them selues in aray at Baal Thamar. And lyke wyse the layers in wayte of Israel came forth out of their places, euen out of the medowes of Gabaah, and came before Gabaah: ten thousand chosen men out of all Israell, and there was sore battel. But the other wiste not that euyll was so nye them. And the Lord plaged Beniamin before Israell, so that the children of Israel destroyed in Beniamin the same daye xxv. thousande and a hundred men, that drue swerdes euerye one of them. It semed the children of Beniamin, that the other had bene put to the woorse. For the men of Israell gaue rome to Beniamin, because they trusted vnto the layers in wayte, which they had layde against Gabaah. And the layers in wayte hasted and came vpon Gabaah, and went and smote al the cytye with the edge of the swerde. And the appointment of the men of Israell with the layers in wayte to come vpon Beniamin with the swerde, was when they shoulde make the smoke rise vp out of the cytye. And the men of Israell fled in the battel. And Beniamin began to smyte dead of the children of Israell, about a thyrtye persones, for they supposed that the other had bene put to the woorse before them, as in the fyrste battel. Then began to aryse out of the cytye a pyller of smoke. And the Beniamytes loked backe: and beholde the wasproge of the hole cytye began to ascende vp to heauen.

The.xxi.Chapter.

¶ The tribe of Beniamin beinge vtterly deſtroyed for their fornication with the Leuytes wyfe: is reſtored agayne.

A Nd the men of Iſraell ſware in Maſphah ſayinge: there ſhall none of vs geue his doughter vnto any of Beniamin to wife.

And the people came to Bethel and abode there till euen, before God & lifte vp their voyces and wept ſore and ſayd: O Lord God of Iſrael, why is this chaunced in Iſrael? that there ſhoulde be this daye one tribe lacking in Iſrael? And on the morow ſ people roſe vp by tyme, and made there an altare, and offred burntoffringes and peace offringes.

And the children of Iſrael aſked, who are they among all the tribes of Iſrael that came not with the congregacion vnto the Lorde?
B for they had made a greate othe concerninge them that came not vp to the Lorde to Maſphah ſayinge: that they ſhould ſurely dye. And the children of Iſrael had pytie on Beniamin their brethren, and ſayd: there is one tribe cut of from Iſrael this daye: what ſhal we do vnto the remnaunt of them, for to get them wyues, for as muche as we haue ſworne by the Lorde, that we wyll not geue them of oure doughters to wyues, Then they ſayde, what are they of the tribes of Iſrael, that came not vp to Maſphah to the Lorde. And beholde there came none of the inhabitoures of Jabes Galaad vnto the congregacio. And whē the people were tolde: beholde there were none of ſ inhabitores of Jabes Galaad there. And the congregacion ſente thether. xii. thouſand men of the ſtrongeſt of them, and commaunded them ſayinge: go and ſmyte the inhabiters of Jabes Galaad with the edge of the ſwerde both wemen & children.* And this is

And the hole congregacion ſente and ſpake

But they ſo fulfilled them not. And the people had compaſſion on Beniamin becauſe that God had* made a gappe in the tribes of Iſrael. And then the elders of the congregacion ſayde: what ſhal we do to the remnaunt of them, to get them wiues ſeing al the wiues of Beniamin are deſtroyed? And they ſayde: there muſt be an enheritaunce for them that be eſcaped of Beniamin, that a tribe be not deſtroied out of Iſrael: how be it we may not geue them wiues of oure doughters. For the children of Iſrael had made an adiuracion ſayinge: a. curſed be he that geueth a wyfe

Then they ſayde: beholde there is a feaſte
D of the Lorde yerlye in Silo, which is on the northſyde of Bethell, and on the eaſt ſyde of the way that goeth from Bethel to Sichem, and ſouth from Libanon. And they commaunded the children of Beniamin ſayinge: go and lye in wayte in the vynegardes. And when ye ſe that the doughters of Silo come out to daunce in a rowe, then come ye out of the vynegardes, and catche you euery man a wyfe of the doughters of Silo, & get you vnto the lande of Beniamin. And yf their fathers or brethren come vnto vs to complaine, we wyl ſaye vnto them: haue pytie on them, becauſe we reſerued not to eche man his wife in time of warre, and therto becauſe that ye gaue them none in due tyme, ye were to blame.

And the children of Beniamin dyd euen ſo: and toke them wyues accordynge to the number of them of the daunces, whyche they caught. And then they went and returned vnto their enheritaunce, and buylt there cytyes and dwelt in them.

And the children of Iſraell departed there at that tyme and euery man to his tribe, and to his kynred, and went out from thence euery man to his enheritaunce. In thoſe dayes there was no kyng in Iſrael: but euery man dyd what ſemed hym ryght.

The boke of Ruth.

The fyrst Chapter.

Elimelec goeth with his wyfe and children in to the lande of Moab. After his death Noemi returneth again into her countrey, & hath her Ruth her daughter in lawe.

IN the tyme when the Iudges iudged, there felle a darth in the lãd. Wherfore a certayn man of Bethlehem Iuda went for to soiourne in the countrey of Moab with his wyfe and two sonnes. The name of the man was Elymelec, and his wyfe Noemi, and the names of his two sonnes were, Mahalon and Chilion and they were Ephrates, out of Bethlehem Iuda. And when they came into the lande of Moab, they continued there. And Elemelec Noemies husbande died, and she remayned with her two sonnes, which toke them wyues of the nacions of the Moabites: the ones name Orpha and the others Ruth.

And when they had dwelleth there about ten yere, Mahalon and Chilion died also euen both two of them, so that the wyfe was lefte desolate of her two sonnes & of her husbande therto. Then she rose vp with her doughters in lawe and returned from the countrey of Moab: for she had heard saye, howe in the countrey of Moab, howe that the Lorde had visited his people and geuen them fode.

Wherfore she departed out of the place where she was and her two doughters with her. And as they went by the waye returning vnto the lande of Iuda, Noemi sayd vnto her two doughters in lawe: go and returne eche of you vnto youre mothers house: the Lorde deale as kyndely with you, as ye haue dealt with the dead & with me. And the Lord geue you, that you maye finde rest eyther of you in the house of her husbande: so she kyssed them.

Then they cryed & wepte & sayd vnto her: we wil go with the vnto thy folke. But Noemi sayd, turne again my doughters: for what cause would you go with me? Are there yet any more children in my bowelles, to be youre husbãdes? Turne again my doughters & go: for I am to olde to haue an husband. Yf I sayde I haue hope, also yf I toke a man this night, ye, and though I had after c dye borne sonnes: would ye tarry after them, tyl they were of age? or would ye for them so long refrayne from takynge of husbandes? Not so my doughters: for it grieueth me much for youre sakes, that the hande of the Lord is gone out against me.

Then with they cryed and wepte agayne how be it Orpha kissed her mother in lawe but Ruth abode still by her, then she sayd: se, thy sister in lawe is gone backe againe vnto her people & vnto her God: returne thou after her. But Ruth sayde: entreate me not to leaue the, and to returne from after the, for whether thou goest, I will go, & where thou dwellest, there I wil dwelle: thy people are my people, and thy God is my God. Where thou dyest, I wil dye, and there wilbe buried. d The Lorde do to and so to me, excepte that death onlye departe the and me a sonder.

When she saw that she would nedes go with her, she left speakinge vnto her. And so they went both together vntyll they came to Bethlehem. And when they were come to Bethlehem, it was noysed throwow al the cyte and the women sayde: is not this Noemi? But she sayd vnto them, calle me not * Noemi: call me * Mara, for the almighty hath made me very bitter. I went out full: but the Lorde hath brought me home empty. Why should ye then calle me Noemi: seyng † Lord hath humbled me, & the almighty hath brought me vnto aduersite? The .ii. Chapter.

Ruth leaueth come in the feldes of Booz and fyndeth fauour in his syght.

AND Noemi had a kynsman of her husbãdes, a man of myght, of the kynred of Elymelec, named Booz. And Ruth the Moabitesse sayd vnto Noemi, let me go to the felde and laste and gather eares, after whom soeuer I fynde grace in his syght. And she sayde vnto her: go my doughter. And she went and came and gathered after the harueste men, and her chaunce was that parte of the felde pertayned vnto Booz whyche was of the kynred of Elymelec. And beholde, Booz came from Bethlehem, and sayde vnto the harueste men: the Lorde be with you. And they answered him, the Lord blesse the. Then sayde Booz vnto the younge man that had the ouersyght of the harueste men: Whose damosel is this? And the young man, that was set to ouer se the harueste men answered and sayde: it is the Moabitish damosel, that came with Noemi out of the countrey of Moab, and she sayde, let me

Then sayd Booz vnto Ruth: heareste thou my doughter, go to no nother felde together, neither go from hence: but abyde by my maydens. Thyne eyes are on a felde that shalbe reped: go after ỹ maydens therfore, for I have charged the young men, that they touche the not. Then she sayd vnto him: let me finde fauoure in thy sighte my Lorde, for thou hast comforted me, & hast spoke lyttely vnto thy maide, which yet can not be like vnto one of thy maides. And Booz when the tyme of refection was come, sayde vnto her: come hether & eate of the bread, & dippe thy soppe in the vinagre. And she sat downe by ỹ

And lette pul out of the sheues for her, & let it lie, that she maye gather it vp, & rebuke her not.
D And so she gathered vntill euen & then thresshed that she had gathered, & it was vpon an Epha of barlye. And she tooke it vp & went to the citie, & shewed her mother in law what she had gathered. And thereto she plucked oute, & gaue to her that she had reserued whē she had eate ynough. Then sayd her mother in lawe vnto her, where gatherest thou to daye? and where wroughtest thou? blessed be he that knewe the. And she shewed her mother in law

And Noemi sayd vnto her: ỹ man is nye vnto vs, one of our next kinne. And Ruth ỹ Moabite sayd: he bad me also, ỹ I should cōmen with his young men, vntil they had ended al ỹ harvest he hath. Then sayd Noemi vnto Ruth her doughter in law, it is best my doughter that thou go oute with his maidens, and that no man mete the in any other felde. And so she kept her by the maydens of Booz, together vnto ỹ ende of barley harvest & of whete harvest all: and* dwelt with her mother in law. * Some translate it, ¶ Ruth sleepeth at Booz fete, and is knowen by hys owne woman.

For now this Booz our kynsman with whose maydens thou waste, winnoweth his barley to nyght in the threshinge floure, washe thy selfe therfore & anoynte the, & put thy rayment vpon the, and get the to the threshinge floure. But let not the man beware of the, vntil he have left eatyng and drinkyng. And when he goeth to slepe, marcke the place where he layeth him downe, and then go and lyfte vp the clothes that are on his fete, and laye the downe, and so shall he tell the what thou shalt do. And she answered herial ỹ thou bydest me I wyl do. And she went vnto the floure, and dyd accordynge to al that her mother in lawe bade her. And when Booz had

And at mydnyght the man was afrayd and groped. And beholde, a woman laye at his fete. Then he sayde: what art thou? And she answered, I am Ruth thyne handmayde, spreade thy mantell ouer thyne handmayde, for thou art the next of the kynne.

The iiii. Chapter.

¶ Booz taketh Ruth to wife, of whom he begetteth Obed.

THen went Booz vnto the a gate and sat him doune there: and beholde, the kinsman of whom Booz spake, came by. Vnto whom he sayde: come and sytte doune here, and called him by his name. And he turned in and sat doune. Then he toke ten men of the elders of the cyty and said, sytte ye doune here. And they sat doune. Then he sayde vnto the kynsman: Noemi that is come again out of the countrey of Moab, will selle a parcell of lande, which was ours brother Elimelechs. And I thought to do the to wete and bidde the bye it before the enhabitoures and elders of my people, yf thou be disposed to calenge it: but and yf thou wilt not purchase it, then tell me that I maye wete it. For there is none to calenge it saue thou, and I nexte the. And the other answered, I will purchase it.

a. The Gates in the scripture do oft times signifie the place where the people did commenly assemble, & where Judgementes were geuen & causes determined: for in old time were such thynges done in the Gates 2. Reg. xv. a.

Then sayde Booz, what daye thou byeste the feld of the hand of Noemi, thou must take also Ruth the Moabyte the wyfe of the deade to stere vp the name of the deed vpon his enheritaunce. Then sayde the kynsman: I can not purchase it for marring of myne own enheritaunce: take thou my ryghte to the, for I cannot purchase it. Now this was the maner of olde time in Israell concernynge purchese and chaungyng, for to stable the al thing: that a man muste plucke of his shoue and geue it his neyghboure, and this was a wytnesse in Israel.

And the kynsman sayde to Booz, bye it thou: and so drue of his shoue. Then sayde Booz vnto the elders, and vnto all the people: ye are witnesses this daye, that I haue bought al that was Elimelechs, and al that was Chelions & Mahelons, of the hand of Noemi. And moreouer Ruth the Moabite the wyfe of Mahelon, do I take vnto me to wife, to stere vp the name of the deed vpon his enheritaunce, that his name be not put out from amonge his brethren, and from the gate of his cyte: ye are wytnesses this daye.

And al the people that were in the gate, & the elders said: we are witnesses: the Lorde make the woman that is come into thine house lyke Rahel & Lea, which two dyd builde the house of Israel: that thy name * be vertuous in Ephrathah, & be famous in Bethlehem, and that thyne house be like the house of Pharez, whom Thamar bare vnto Juda, out of the seed, which the Lorde shall geue the of this yonge woman.

* That is, & the mayde liue well and honestly.

And so Booz tooke Ruth, and she was his wyfe. And he went in vnto her, and the Lord gaue that she conceyued and bare a sonne. And the women sayde vnto Noemi: blessed be the Lorde, the which hath not lefte the without an heyre this day * that shal haue a name in Israel, and that shal turne thy lyfe agayne and cherishe thyne olde age. For thy doughter in law, which loueth the, hath borne him that is better to the then seuen sonnes. And Noemi toke the childe and layed it in her lappe, & became nourse vnto it. And her neyghbours gaue it a name sayinge: there is a childe borne to Noemi, and called it Obed: he is the father of Jsai, the father of Dauid. This is the generacion of Pharez, Pharez begat Hezrō, Hezron begat Ram, Ram begat Ammadab, Amminadab begat Nahason, Nahason begat Salmon, Salmō begat Booz, Booz begat Obed, Obed begat Jsai, Jsai begat Dauid.

* That is, whose name shal remayne in Israel.

Thus endeth the boke of Ruth.

The fyrst boke of Samuel called the fyrst boke of the Kynges.

The fyrste Chapter.

¶ Elkanah hath two wyues, Hannah and Phenennah: Phenennah hath children, Hannah is chyldelesse. Hannah after prayer made to God, bringeth forth Samuel.

THere was a mā of Ramathaim Zophim, of mount Ephraim named Elkanah, the sonne of Jeroha, & sonne of Elihu, & sonne of Thohu, the sonne of Zuph an Ephratite: which had two wiues, the one called Hannah, & the other Phenennah. And Phenennah had children but Hannah had none. And & sayde mā went out of his cite euery fruitful day, to praye & to offer vnto the Lord of hostes: where the two sonnes of Eli (Hophni and Phinehes) were the Lordes priestes. And it fel on a day as Elkanah had offered that he gaue to Phenennah his wife & to al her sonnes & doughters portions. But vnto Hannah he gaue a * portiō with a heuy there, for he loued her, notwithstanding the Lorde had made her barren. And there her enemye Phenennah vexed her a good in casting her in the there, howe the Lorde had made her barren. And so did she yere by yere as oft as she went vp to the house of the Lord

And so chafed her, wherfore Hannah wepte and ate not. Then sayde Elkanah her husbād to her: Hannah why wepest thou? And why eatest thou not? & why is thyne herte so troubled? am not I better to the, then ten sonnes? Then Hannah rose up after that they had eaten and dronke in Silo. And Eli the preste sate upon a stole by one of the syde postes of the temple of the Lord. And she was troubled in her spirite, and prayed unto the Lorde, and wepte sore, and vowed a vowe and sayd: Lord of hostes, yf thou wylt take on the wretchednesse of thyne handmayde, and thynke upon me, and not forget thyne handmayde, & shalte geue unto thyne handmayde a manchylde I wyll geue him unto the Lord, all the dayes of his lyfe, & there shal neyther rasor ne sheres come upon his heade. And as she continued prayinge before the Lorde, Eli marked her mouth. For Hannah the spake in her herte, and her lippes dyd but moue onely, but her voyce was not heard. And therfore Eli toke her for dronke & sayd unto her: how log wilt thou be dronke? put away fro the, the wine y thou hast. Hannah answered & sayd: not so my Lorde, I am a woman sorowfull in myne herte, & have dronke neyther wyne nor any stronge dunck, but I have a poured out my soule before the Lorde. Counte not thyne handmayde to be lyke a doughter of unthankfulnes: for out of y aboundaunce of my meditacion, and greate sorowe I spoken hytherto.

a. To poure out her soule is, to shew al her herte & affectiō & declare her mynde ernestly, to pray ernestly & faythfully, to lyfte her whole herte and thought. psal. xlii.

Eli answered and sayde: Go in peace the God of Israel shall graunt the thy petycion that thou hast asked of hym. Then she sayd: let thyne handmayde fynde grace in thy sight. And so the woman went her waye, and dyd eate, and loked no more so sadde. And they rose up erlye, and bowed them selues before the Lorde, & then returned & went to theyr house to Ramath. And Elkanah lay by his wyfe Hannah, and the Lorde remembred her. And in processe of tyme she conceyued and bare a sonne, & called his name * Samuel: because she had asked him of the Lord. And Elkanah and all his house went up to offer unto the Lorde, bothe the offerynges due for the feaste and also his vowes: but Hannah went not up for she sayde unto her husbande: I wyl tarye but tyll the ladde be wened, & then I wil bring him, that he may appeare before the Lorde, & there abide for ever. And Elkanah her husbād sayde to her: do what semyth the best: tary but tyll thou hast wened him, onelye the Lorde make good his saying. And so the woman abode, and gaue her sonne sucke, but tyll he wened him. And then she toke him with her, when she had wened him, with three bullockes & an Epha of floure, & a bottel of wyne, & brought him unto the house of the Lorde in Silo: how be it the chylde was yet yonge. And they slew the bullockes, & brought in the ladde to Eli, & then she sayde: Oh my Lorde: as truly as thy soule liueth my Lorde: I am the woman that stode by the here, praying unto the Lorde, and for this ladde I prayed, & the Lorde hath graūted me my desyre which I asked of him. Therfore I also lend him y Lord, as log as he may be lent y Lorde. And so they prayed there unto y Lord.

The.ii.Chapter.

The songe of Hannah. The ruine of the house of Eli. Eli is reproued by the vnmercifulnesse of his children.

And Hannah prayed & sayde: myne herte reioyceth in the Lord, my horne is hye in the Lorde, & my mouthe is wyde open ouer mine enemyes, for I reioyce in thy saluacyon. There is none so holye as the Lorde: no there is none save thou. Neyther is there any strength like unto our God. Talke not so muche proudlye: let olde thynges departe out of your mouthes, for the Lorde is a God of knowledge, & iudgeth the thoughtes. The.a. bowes of the strong are broken, & the weake are endued with strēgth. They that were full, have hyred out their selues for breade, and they that were hongrye ceasse so to be: in so much y the barren hath borne seuen, & she that had many chyldren is waxed feble.

* Of these bowes is spoke Psalm.xc.

b. The Lorde kylleth and maketh a lyue, bringeth doune to hell & fetcheth up again. The Lorde maketh poore, and maketh riche, bringeth lowe, and heueth up on hye. He reyseth up the poore out of the dust, and lyfteth up the begger from the dong hyll: to set them among princes, and to enherete them with the seate of glorye. For the pyllers of the earth are the Lordes, and he hath set the rounde worlde upō them. He wil kepe the feete of his.a.sayntes, but the wicked shal kepe silence in darknesse. For in his own myghte shal no man be strōg. The Lordes aduersaryes shall be made to feare him: and out of heauen he shal thunder upon them. The iii. Chapter.

A After the Lorde had lefte to apeare by open vision in Silo for a long season he yet called Samuel vnto him, & declared hym what shulde be fal on Eli.

AND the child Samuel ministred vnto the Lord Eli: & the worde of the Lorde was precious in those dayes, for there was none open vision. And it chaunced at that tyme, that Eli laye in his place, & his eyes be gan to waxe dimme, that he could not se. And yet the* lamp of God went out. Samuel layd him downe to slepe, in the temple of the Lord, where the arche of God was. And the Lorde called Samuel: & he sayd: here am I, & he ran vnto Eli, & said: here am I, for thou calledest me. And he sayde I called the not: go agayne, & slepe. And he went and layde hym downe to slepe. And the Lord called once agayne: Samuel, and Samuel arose & went to Eli, and sayd: I am here, thou dyddest call me. And he answered: I called yt not my sonne. Go agayne & take thy rest: but it was yet Samuel knewe the Lord, & yet the worde of the Lorde was opened vnto hym. And the Lorde wente to & called Samuel the thyrde tyme. And he arose and wente to Eli, and sayde: I am here: for thou hast called me. Then Eli perceyued that the Lord had called the ladde. And said vnto him: go & lye downe: & yf he call the agayne, then say: speake on Lord, for thy seruaunt heareth. And Samuel went & layed him downe in hys place. The. iiii. Chapter.

¶ The battell of the Philistines. Israel flyeth. The Arche of the Lorde is taken. Elies children dye, and he dyeth also.

A Nd Samuel spake vnto all Israel. And Israel went out agaynst the Philistines to battell, & pytched besyde the *help stone. And ỹ Philistines pytched in Aphek. And put themselues in araye agaynst Israel. And in the ende of the battel Israel was put to the worse before the Philistines. And the Philistines slue in araye a long by the felues about a fourr thousand men.

*1. Reg. vii. c. Ebē xxi.

And when the people were come into theyr tentes, the elders of Israel sayde: wherfore hath the Lord beaten vs thys daye before the Philistines? let vs fetche the arche of the appoyntment of the Lorde, oute of Silo vnto vs, & let it come among vs, & saue vs out of ỹ handes of oure enemyes. And the people sent to Silo, and fet from thence the arche of the appoyntment of the Lorde of hostes whiche dwelleth betwene the Cherubyns. And there were the two sonnes of Eli, Hophni & Phinehes with the arche of the apoyntmēt of God. And when the arche of the appoyntment of ỹ Lord came into the host, all Israell shouted a myghty shout, so that the earth rang agayne.

B When the Philistines heard the noyse of ỹ shoute they sayde: what meaneth the sound of thys myghtye shout in the host of ỹ Ebrues? And they vnderstode how that the arche of ỹ Lorde was come into the host. And the Philistines were afrayd, whē it was tolde howe ỹ God was come into the host & sayd. Wo vnto vs, for it was neuer so before thys. Wo vnto vs, who shall delyuer vs out of ỹ hād of thys myghtye God? this is the God that smote ỹ Egyptians wt al maner of plages in the wyldernesse. Be stronge & quite youre selues lyke men, ye Philistines, that ye be not seruauntes vnto the Ebrues, as they haue bene to you. Be men therfore & fight. And the Philistines fought, and Israel was put to the worse and fledde, euery mā into his tent. And there was a myghty great slaughter, so that there were ouer thrwen of Israel, thyrtye thousande fotemen. And the arche of God was takē, and the two sonnes of Eli, Hophni & Phinehes were dead. And there ranne a mā of Beniamin out of the araye & came to Silo the same day with his clothes rent & earthe vpon his head. And when the man came in, Eli sate vpon a stole by the waye syde lokynge: for hys herte feared for the arche of God. And the mā came in & tolde it in the citie. And all the citie cryed.

When Eli heard the noyse of the cryeng, he asked what the noyse of ỹ rumor ment. And the man hasted & came in & tolde Eli. Eli was foure skore & eighten yere olde, & his eyes had fayled him ỹ he could not se. And the mā sayd vnto Eli: I am he ỹ came out of the araye and fled out of the hoste thys daye. And he sayde how is it fortuned, my sonne? And the messenger answered & sayd: Israel is fled before the Philistines, & there is a great slaughter chasted among the people, and thy two sonnes, Hophni & Phinehes are dead, & ouer that ỹ arch of God is taken. And when he made mencyō of the arche of God, Eli fell from of hys stole backwarde towarde the gate, and hys necke brake, & he dyed: for he was olde & vnweldye and he had iudged Israel fourtye yeares.

And his doughter in lawe Phinehes wife was wt chylde & nye the byrthe. And whē she hearde the tydynges of the taking of ỹ arche of God, & that her father in law, & her husbād were dead, she bowed her self & trauayled, for her paynes came vpon her. And about ỹ time of her death, the women that stode about her, sayd vnto her: feare not, for thou hast borne a sonne. But she answered not nor regarded it. And she named the child Ichabod, sayng: honoure is departed from Israel. Because the arche of God was taken, & her father in law and her husband were dead. And therfore she sayde, honoure is gone frō Israel, because the arche of God was taken.

The. v. Chapter.

¶ Dagon the God of the Philistines is cast downe before the arche. The Philistines are plaged in the seuer places. The ambassadours of Sharon counsell to restore the arche.

A Nd the Philistines tooke ỹ arche of God, & caried it frō *the helpe stone vnto Asdod, & brought it into the house of Dagon, & set it by Dagō. And whē they of Asdod were vp in the morning, behold, Dagon lay groueling vpon the earthe before the arche of the Lorde. And they toke Dagon & set him in his place agayne. And when they were vp erlye ỹ next morning, behold, Dagon lay groueling vpon the grounde before the arche of the Lorde, & hys head & hys two handes cut of vpon the treshold, that the body onely was lefte on hym. Wherfore neither the preestes of Dagō, neither any man that cometh into Dagons house myght treade on ỹ treshold of Dagō in Asdod, vnto this daye.

But the hand of the Lorde was heuye vpō the of Asdod, & he destroied the, & smote the in Emrodes, both Asdod & all the coastes there of. And when the men of Asdod sawe ỹ it was so, they sayd: the arche of the God of Israell shall not abyde here with vs, for his hand is sore vpon vs, & vpō Dagō our God. And so they sente and gathered all the Lordes of the Philistines vnto them, & sayd: what shall we do with the arche of the God of Israel? Then sayd they of Get: let the arche of the God of Israel be caryed about. And they caryed the arke of the God of Israel about. And when they

they had caried it about, the hand of the Lord was in the cytye with a myghty great plage, and he smote the men of the cytye both smal & great: and they were smytten in their secrete places, with the Emerodes. Then they sente the arche of God to Akaron. And as sone as the arche of God came to Akaron, the Akaronites cryed out saying: they haue brought the Arche of the God of Israel to vs: to slee vs & oure people.

Then they sent and sette all the Lordes of the Philistines vnto them, and sayde: sende awaye the arche of the God of Israel, and let it go home againe vnto hys owne place, that it slee vs not with our people. For there was a plage of death throughout all the cytye, and the hand of God was exceedyng sore there, in so much that they which dyed not, were smytē with the Emerodes: so that the cry of the cytye went vp to heauen.

The. vi. Chapter.

¶ The Philistines sende home the arche with rewardes. The Philistines were plaged after they had done this deede.

AND so when the arche of the Lord had bene in the countreye of the Philistines vii. moneths, the Philistines called for the priestes & the sothsayers, sayinge: what shall we do with the arche of the Lorde? tell vs wherwith we shall sende it home againe. They answered: yf you send the arche of the God of Israel home againe, send it not empty: But rewarde it with a trespasse offeryng: and then ye shalbe hole, and it shalbe knowen to you, why hys hand departeth not frō you.

Then sayde they: what shall the trespasse offeryng which we shall rewarde him with? And they answered: v. golden arses with Emerodes and v. golden myce, according to the nōbre of the Lordes of the Philistines. For it was one maner of plage yt was on you all, & on your Lordes. Wherfore ye shall make ymages lyke to your arses with Emerodes & ymages lyke to your mice that destroyed your lande, & shall geue glorye vnto the god of Israel: that he maye take his hand from of you, and from of youre Goddes, and from of your lande. Wherfore shulde ye harden your hertes as the Egyptians & Pharao hardened their hertes, which for all that (when he had played hys pageauntes with thē) were fayne to let the people go and departe.

Now therfore make a newe carte and take two mealche kyne, on whose neck neuer came yoche. And tye the kyne in the carte, & bringe the calues whome from them. But & yf he do not, then it is not hys hande that smote vs, but it was a chaūce that happened vs. And the men dyd euē so: they toke two kyne & gaue milche, & tyed them in the carte, and kepte the calues at home. & they layde the arche of the Lord vpon the carte, & the fourer with the myce of golde & the ymages of their arses with Emerodes. And the kyne toke the streyght waye to Bethsames, bothe one waye, and as they went, lowed, turnyng neither to the ryght hand nor to the lefte. And the Lordes of the Philistines went after them vntyll they came to the borders of Bethsames.

And they of Bethsames were reping their wheate harueste in the valeye. And they lyft vp their eyes and spyed the arche. And reioysed when they sawe it. And the carte came into yᵉ groue of one Iehosua a Bethsamite, and stode styll there. There was there also a greate stone. And they claue the wodde of the carte and offered the kyne a burnte offeryng vnto the Lorde. And the Leuites toke doune the arche of the Lorde, & the fourer that was therebye, wherein the Iuelles of golde were, & put the on the great stone. And the men of Bethsames sacrifyced burnte sacrifyce, & offered offeryngs that same daye vnto the Lorde. And whē the fyue Lordes of the Philistines had sene it, they returned to Akarō the same daye. These are the golden arses with Emerodes whiche the Philistines gaue to amēdes for a trespasse offeryng, to the Lord: for Asdod one: for Gaza one: for Askalon one: for Geth one: & for Akaron one. And the golden myce were according to the nombre of all the cytyes of the Philistines thorowe the fyue lordeshippes: both of walled townes & of townes vnwalled, euē vnto the great stone, whereon they set doune the arche of the Lorde: which stone remayneth vnto thys daye in the felde of Iehosua yᵉ Bethsamite. And he plaged the men of Bethsames, because they had sene the arche of the Lorde. And he slue of the people fyftye thousand and thre score & ten persones. And the people lamēted, because the Lorde had smytē so greate a slaughter of thē. And the men of Bethsames sayde: who is able to stand before the Lord so holy a God, & to whō shall he go frō vs. And they sent messengers to the inhabiters of Kariath Iarim, sayinge: The Philistines haue brought home againe the arche of the Lorde: come doune and fet it vp to you.

Now then let vs go thether, paraduenture he shall shewe vs what waye we may go. Then said Saul to his lad yf we go what shall we bryng the man? For our bread is all spent out of our hampers, and there is no nother present to bryng the man of God, what haue we? When Samuel saw Saule, the Lorde answered hym: se, this is the man whome I spake to the of. This same shall raygne ouer my people.

Then went Saul to Samuel in the myddle of the gate, & sayd: tell me, I praye the, where about the seares house is, and Samuel answered Saul and sayde: I am the sear, go vp before me vnto the hyll, for ye shall eate with me to daye. And Samuel toke Saul and his sadde and brought them into the parler, and made them sit in the chyefest place amōg them that were bidden: which were vpon a thyrtye persones. Then sayde Samuel vnto the cooke: bringe forth the porcyon which I gaue the: & of whiche I sayde kepe it wyth the. And the cooke tooke vp the shoulder and broughte it, and set it before Saul. ¶ The Philistynes are smytten of Saul & Ionathas, Saul bewyggeth wyckedly: he geueth commaundement to them of Dauid that he shall not raygne.

A Saul was as a chyld of a yeare old, when he began to raigne. And when he had raygned.ii. yeares ouer Israel, he chose hi thre thousand men out of Israel. Two thousand were with Saul in Machmas & mount Bethel, & a thousande with Ionathas in Gabaah Beniamin. And the rest of the people he sent, euery mā to hys owne house. But Saul was yet in Galgal, and al the people þ folowed hym, were astonyed. And he tarved seuen dayes, as Samuel *had appoynted.

But Samuel came not to Galgal, & þ people scattered from hym. Wherfore Saule sayde: bryng burnt sacrifyce to me & peace offerynges. And he offered burnt sacrifice. And as sone as he had made an ende of offeryng burnt offerynges, behold, Samuel came. And Saul went agaynste hym to salute him. Then sayde Samuel to Saul: what hast thou done? And Saule sayd: because I saw that the people shattered frō me, & that thou camest not at with in the dayes apoynted & that the Philistines gathered them selues together to Machmas: thē sayd I: the Philistines shall come doune vpō me to Galgal, yet I have made supplicacyon vnto the Lorde. And therfore I toke a courage with me, and offered burnt offerynges. Thē sayde Samuel to Saul, thou hast done folysh ly & hast not kept the commaundement of the Lorde thy God whiche he commaunded the. For at thys tyme wolde the Lord have stablished thy kyngdom vpon Israel for euer. But nowe thy kyngedome shall not continue. And Saul & Jonathas his sonne & the people that were founde with them, had theyr abydyng in Gabaah Beniamin. But the Philistines had pytched in Machmas. And there came out of the hoste of the Philistines thre cōpanyes to destroye out of the tentes. One compayne turned vnto the waye that leadeth to Ephrah vnto the land of Sual. And another compayne turned the way to Bethoron. And the thyrd company turned to the waye of the coste that turneth to þ dalepe of Zeboim toward the wildernesse. But there was no smyth throughout al the lande of Israel. For the Philistines thought that them the Ebrues myght make theyr swerdes or speres. And therfore all Israel godoune to þ Philistines, to mende euery man his share, hys mattok, his axe, or hys pykeaxe ofte as þ edges of the speares mattockes, dounge forckes, & axes were blunte, and also to mende theyr goodes. And so in tyme of battell there was neither swerde nor spere founde in the handes of anyo of the people that were with Saule & Jonathas: saue for Saule and Jonathas hys sonne was there fom what founde. ¶ Jonathas ascended with his harnesbearer vnto the Philistines to fight. He taketh the hauye, wyth his father, before he go to fyght, he desyreth the whole hoste. He maketh therfore no semblaūt, but the people beleaue him.

IT fell on a daye, that Jonathas the sonne of Saul sayd vnto A to hys young man that bare his harnesse: come & let vs go ouer to the watche men of the Philistines that are pounder on the other syde, & told not his father. But Saul tarved in the vtmost parte of Gabaah vnder a pomegarnet tree, þ was in Magron, & the people that were with hym were vpon a fyre hundred men. And Ahiah the sonne of Ahitob Jehabodes brother, the sonne of Phinehes, the sonne of Eli, was the Lordes preest in Silo & bare an Ephod. But the people wyst not that Jonathas was gone.

And in the way ouer by whiche Jonathan sought to go ouer vnto the garyson of þ Philistines, were there two sharpe roches, euē one on the one syde, & the other on the other syde: þ one called Boses, & the other Seneh. And þ one leaneth northwarde toward Machmas, B & the other southwarde toward Gabaah. The sayd Jonathas to the young man þ bare hys harnesse: come & let vs go ouer vnto the standynge of these vncyrcumcysed, paraduenture the Lorde wyl worke with vs: for the Lorde is free to saue with many or with few. And his harnesbearer sayde vnto hym: do all þ is in thyne hert: set the forwarde: & se I am with the, as thyne hert lusteth. Then sayde Jonathas: behold, when we go ouer vnto the men, & shewe ourselues vnto them: yf they say on thys wyse to vs: tarye vntyl we come to you, then we wyl stand styl where we be & not go vp vnto them. Then sayd Jonathas vnto hys harnesbearer: come vp after me, for the Lord hath delyuered them into the handes of Israel. And Jonathas clame vpon handes & fete, & hys harnesbearer after him. Then they fel before C Jonathas, & his harnesbearer slue thē after him. And that fyrst slaughter which Jonathas and hys harnesbearer made was vpon a twētye men, within the compasse as it were about an halfe aker of land. And there was a fear in the hoste that was in the felde, & among all the people: in so much that they that kept the holdes and they that were goue to robbe, were afrayde also, and the earthe trembled, and there was a feare sente of God. And the watche men of Saule in Gabaah Beniamin sawe. And beholde, the people shattered and ranne hyther and thyther. And whyle Saule talked vnto the preſt, the people yͭ were in the hoſt of the Philiſtines, rane more & more. And Saul ſayd vnto the preſt: withdraw thyne hand. And Saul cryed & all the people that were with him, and went to battel. And beholde euery mãs ſwerd was agaynſt hys felowe, wt a mygthy great ſlaughter. Moreouer the Ebrues that were with the Philiſtines before that tyme, & were come with them in al partes of the hoſte, they turned to Iſrael that was with Saul & Jonathas. And they alſo whiche had hydde thẽ ſelues in mount Ephraim, as ſone as they heard how that the Philiſtines were fledde, they followed after them in battell. And ſo God holp Iſrael that daye. Thẽ ſpake one of the people & ſayd: thy father adiured the people ſaying: Curſed be that mã that eateth any ſuſtinaunce this daye, and yet the people were fayntye. Then ſayde Jonathas: my father hath troubled the land: for ſe, myne eyes hath receyued ſyghte, becauſe I taſted a lytle of thys houye: how then yͤ all the people had eaten of the ſpoyle of theyr enemyes, which they founde had there not ben then a muche greater ſlaughter amonge the Philiſtines? But no man anſwered hym of all the people.

Then he ſaid vnto all Iſrael: be ye on one ſyde, & I & Jonathas my ſonne wylbe on another. And the people ſayde vnto Saule: what thou thynkeſt beſt that do. And Saule ſayde vnto the Lorde God of Iſrael: geue perfecte knoweledge. And Saule and Jonathas were caught, & the people ſhaped free. Then ſayde Saul, caſt lotes betwene me & Jonathas my ſonne. The.xv. Chapter.

*Samuel ſo commaundeth to ſlee Amalech. He ſo doth, beſeuen to the boyes of God. & ſauyth the beſte of euery ſorte. The Lorde ſo wrothe the Saule ordeyneth a nother kyng agayn. Samuel mourneth for Saule.

Then

A THen sayde Samuel vnto Saul: ℔ Lorde sent me to anoynt ℔ kyng ouer his people Israel. Nowther fore obeye thou the voyce of the wordes of the Lorde. Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes: I haue called to remembraunce that whiche Amalech dyd to Israel *how they layed in wayte for them in the way as they came out of Egypte. Now therfore go & smyte the Amalechites, & vtterly destroy ye all that pertayneth vnto them, & se thou haue no compassion on them. But slay both mã & woman, infant & suchlyng, & oxe, shepe, camell & Asse. And Saul tolde it the people, & nombred them in Telaim two hundred thousand foote men, & ten thousand mẽ of Juda. And Saule came vnto a city of the Amalechites, & layed in a valeye. But Saul sayde vnto the Kenites go & departe, & get ye downe frõ amonge the Amalechytes, lest I destroy you with them for ye shewed mercye with Israell when they came out of Egypt. And the kenites departed from amonge the Amalechites.

*Exod. xvij. c.

B And Saul slue the Amalechites from Hevila to Sur that lyeth before Egypte, & tooke Agag the kyng of the Amalechites a lyue, & vtterly destroyed all the people with the edge of the swerde. But Saule and the people spared Agag, and they left of the shepe and of the oxen and *fat thynges and the lambes and all best beastes & that was good, and wolde not destroy them. But all that was naught & worthy an Aggage, that they destroyed vtterlye. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Samuel, sayinge: it repenteth me that I haue made Saul kyng. For he is turned from me, & hath not performed my commaundementes, wherfore Samuel was euyll angry & cryed vnto the Lorde all nyght. And Samuel rose early, to mete the kyng. And Saul in the morninge. And it was tolde Samuel afterwarde that Saule was come to Carmell, and set vp a pyller of victorye. And was lately gone turned and departed and gone to Galgall.

*That is, the best beastes and fattest.

a The repentaunce of God ymply the chaunging of his mynde.

And when Samuel was come to Saule, Saule sayde vnto him: Blessed be thou in the Lorde. I haue done the commaundemente of the Lorde. And Samuel answered: what meaneth then the bleatynge of the shepe in myne eares, & the noyse of the oxen whyche I here? And Saule sayde: they haue brought them from the Amalechytes. For the people spared the best of the shepe and of the oxen, to offer sacrifyce vnto the Lorde thy God. And the residue of the remnaunt we haue destroyed.

b attribute to God, that Saule spake truth & scripture.

But Samuel sayde to Saule: cease and let me tell the what the Lorde hath sayde to me in nyght. And he sayde vnto him: speke on. Samuel spake. And Samuel sayde: when thou waste little in thyne owne sight, wast thou not made the hed of the tribes of Israell? And the Lorde anoynted the kynge ouer Israel. And the Lorde sent the on a iourneye, & sayde vnto the, go & slee that wicked people the Amalechites & fyght against them vntil ye haue vtterly destroyed them. And wherefore hast thou not obeyed the voyce of ℔ Lorde. But hast turned to the praye & hast wrought wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde.

c To obey, what thynge is more worthy? The mynes treasures of traditions? Nay verely: But Gods holye word & his blessed commaundements & to obeye

And Saule sayde vnto Samuel: I haue obeyed the voyce of the Lorde, and went the waye which the Lord sent me, & haue brought Agag the kynge of the Amalechites. And haue vtterlye destroyed the Amalechites. And ℔ people toke of the spoyle, shepe, oxen, and the chefest of the thynges which should haue ben destroyed, to offer vnto the Lorde thy God in Galgal. Then sayde Samuel: hath the Lorde as great pleasure in burnt sacrifyces & offerynges, as he hath that thou shouldest obeye his voyce? Beholde, to obeye is better then offerynge, and to geue heade is better then the fat of rammes. For rebellyousnesse is as the synne of witchcrafte, & stubburnesse is wyched nesse and Idolatrye. Because therfore thou hast cast away the worde of the Lorde, therfore hath the Lorde cast away the also, from beynge kynge.

d It is better then to offer sacrifice when the pet mas ordeyned and appointed of God himself. How much better then is it then ourselfemynges what ever are inuented thine any Gods worde or any mixyng therof made ℔ whole scrip

Then sayde Saul to Samuel: I haue sinned, for I haue trespaced the mouthe of the Lorde, and thy wordes, because I feared the people and obeyed their voyce. But now take away my synne, & turne agayne with me, that I maye worshippe the Lord. Then sayde Samuel vnto Saul: I will not returne with the: for thou hast cast away the byddyng of God, & therfore the Lorde hath cast away the also, that thou shalt not be kyng ouer Israel. And as Samuel turned to go away, he caught the lappe of his cote, and it rente. Then Samuel sayde: the Lorde hath rente the kyngdome of Israel from the this daye, and hath geuen it to a neyghboure of thine, that is better then thou. And therto he that geueth victorye to Israel, will not begyle nor repente: for he is not a man, that can repente.

e Iosephe de antiq. lib. vi. cap. xi. expresseth Samuels saying in like maner. But hys wordes are to long to rehers.

Then he sayde: I haue synned. But yet honoure me before the elders of my people, and before Israel, and turne agayne with me, that I maye praye vnto the Lorde thy God. And Samuell turned agayne, and followed Saule. And Saul prayed vnto the Lord. Then sayde Samuel: Bring ye hyther to me Agag the kynge of the Amalechytes. And Agag came vnto him *delycately. And Agag sayde: truly the bytternesse of death cometh on. And Samuel sayde: As thy swerde hath made women childelesse, so is all thy mother be childelesse among other women. And so Samuell hewed Agag in peces before the Lord in Galgal. And then Samuell departed to Ramath. And Saul went home to his house to Gabaah Saule. But Samuel came no more to se Saule vntyll the day of his death. Neuertheless Samuel mourned for Saule, because the Lorde repented that he had made him kyng ouer Israel.

f To be take away frõ the Lorde, to be displeased & to displease of ℔ Lorde of God. Psal. 9 Dispayred sayde not feared not.

The.xvi. Chapter.

1 AND then the Lorde sayde vnto Samuel: How longe wilt thou mourne for Saul, seing I have cast him away from raygning ouer Israel? fyll an horne with oyntment, and come: I wil sende the to Jesse Bethlehemite, for I have spyed me a king amonge his sonnes. But Samuel answered: how shall I go? for Saul shall heare it and wyll kyll me. And the Lorde sayde: Take an heyfer with the, and saye thou goest to offer to the Lorde. And call Jesse to the offeringe, and I wil shewe the what thou shalt do. And thou shalt anoynt hym whom I saye vnto the. And Samuel dyd as the Lorde bad him. And when he came to Bethlehem, the elders of the towne were astonyed at his comming, and sayde: Betokeneth thy comynge peace? and he sayde, ye, for I am come to offer vnto the Lorde. * Cleanse your selues and come with me to the offeringe. And he purified Jesse and his sonnes, and bad them to the offeringe. And when they were come, he loked on Eliab and sayde: the Lordes anoynted is before hym. But the Lorde sayde vnto Samuel: loke not on his fayre shape or on the height of his stature, for I have refused hym. For it is not as man seyth. For man loketh on the outward appearance, but the Lorde beholdeth the harte. Then Jesse called Abinadab and made hym come before Samuel. And he sayde: neither per hath the Lord chosen hym. Then Jesse made Samah come, and he sayde: neither per hath the Lord chosen hym. Thus made Jesse seuen of his sonnes come before Samuel. And Samuel sayd, the Lord hath chosen none of these.

L Then sayde Samuel to Jesse: are here all thy children, and he sayde: the youngest is yet behynde: Beholde, he keepeth the shepe. Then Samuel sayd vnto Jesse: sende and fet hym for we wyl not sytte downe, til he be come hyther. And he sent and brought hym in. And he was of a wel lyke coloured grene, and well fauored in syght. And then the Lord sayd vp and anoynt hym: for this is he. And Samuel tooke the horne with the oyntment and anoynted hym in the presence of his brethren. And the spirite of the Lord came vpon Dauid, from that daye forwarde. And Samuel rose vp and went to Ramath.

But the spirite of the Lord departed fro b. This euyll Saul and b. an euyll spirite sent of the lord vexed him. Then sayde his seruauntes vnto him wyl was hym. Beholde, an euyll spirite sent of god the spirite of vexeth the, let oure Lord therfore commaūd oure and of his seruauntes to seke a man that is a cunning player vpon an harpe. And then whē the fyt of the euyll spirite sent of God, cometh vpon the, that he may playe with his hande, and thou shalt be eased. And Saul sayde vnto his seruauntes: seke me a man that can well playe, and bringe hym to me. Then answered one and agayne of his seruauntes and sayde. Beholde, I have sene a sonne of Jesse the Bethlehemite, that can playe vpon instrumentes, and is an actyue felowe and a man of warre and pardē and well made, and the Lorde is with hym, wherupon Saul sent messengers vnto Jesse, and sayde, sende me Dauid thy sonne which is with the shepe. And Jesse tooke an asse lade with bread, and a flacket of wyne, & a kidde and sent them by Dauid his sonne vnto Saul. And Dauid went to Saul, and came before hym, and he loued hym very well, so that he was made his harnesbearer. And Saul sent to Jesse saying, let Dauid remaine with me, for he hath founde fauour in my syght. And when the spirite of God came vpon Saul, Dauid tooke an harpe and played with his hand, and so Saul was refreshed, and dyd a nend and the euyll spirit departed from him.

spyed to be blithe the bridegroom to him selfe, whyche thing because he could not bring to passe he was filled with anger, and vexed with woodnesse. Genes. xxxiv. c. God suffered him thus to be vexed, because he had forsaken the Lorde, and transgressed his commaundements.

¶ The.xvij. Chapter.

¶ The battel of the Philistines against Israel. xl. vij. Dauid ouercometh great Goliath.

THE Philistines gathered their hoste to battel, and came together to Socoh in Juda, and pitched betwene Socoh and Azekah, in the ende of Dommim. And Saul and the men of Israel came and pytched in Ochedale, and put them selues in araye, to fyght against the Philistines. And the Philistines stode on an hyll on the one syde, and Israel stode on a hyll on the other syde, and a valeye betwene them. And there came a man and stode in the myddes, out of the tentes of the Philistines named Goliath of Geth syxe cubytes and an handbreadeth longe, and had an helmet of braſſe vpon his head, and a coote of mayle about him. And the weyght of his coote of mayle was syxe thousande Sycles of braſſe. And he had harnesse of braſſe vpon his legges, and a shilde of braſſe vpon his shoulders. And the shaft of his speare was like a weauers beame. And his speare heade weyed syx hundred sykles of yron. And one bearynge a shylde went before him.

And he stode and called vnto the hoste of Israel, and sayde vnto them: what meaneth that ye stande come out in araye to battell? Am not I a Philistine, and you seruauntes to Saul, chose you a man, and let him come downe to me, yf he be able to fyght with me, and to beate me, then we wyll be youre seruauntes. But yf I can ouercome him and beate him, then ye shalbe oure seruauntes and serue vs. And the Philistine said: I have defyed the hoste of Israel this daye, geue me a man and let vs fyght together. Whē Saul and all Israell hearde those wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged & greatly afraied. And this Dauid was the sonne of an Ephrathite of Bethlehem Juda, named Jesse, whyche Jesse had eyght sonnes. And was an olde man in the daies of Saul amōg the people. And the thre eldest sonnes of Jesse went and folowed Saul to battell. And the names names of his thre sonnes that went to battel were Eliab the eldest, and the next to hym Abinadab, and the third Samah, and Dauid was the youngest. And when the thre eldest were gone after Saul, Dauid went and departed from Saul, to fede hys fathers shepe at Bethlehem. And the Philistine came forth euery morning and euening, and cõpmed fourtye dayes.

And Jsai sayde vnto Dauid hys sonne: take for thy brethren this Epha of parched corne, and these ten loues, and runne to the hoste, to thy brethren. And carye these ten fresshe cheses vnto the capitayne, and loke how thy brethre fare, and *fet out their pledges. And Saul and they and all the men of Jsraell were in oche halfe fyghtynge wyth the Philistines. And Dauid rose vp erlye in the morninge and lefte the shepe wyth a herdar there per, and toke and went, as Jsai had commanded hym, and came where the hoste laye. And as Dauid the hoste was goyng out in araye, and shoutted in the battell: for Jsrael and the Philistines had put them selues in araye, the one agaynst the other. Then Dauid put the panier from hym, vnto the handes of the keper of the vessels, and ranne vnto the hoste, and came and saluted hys brethren. And as he talketh with them, beholde, there stode a man in the myddes, Goliath the Philistine by name, of Geth, whyche came out of the araye of the Philistines, and spake of the same maner aboue rehersed, that Dauid hearde it. And all the men of Jsraell, when they sawe the man, ranne awaye from hym, and were sore afrayed. And euery man of Jsrael sayde: Se ye this man that is come forthe, ryse vp to reuile Jsrael he is come. And to hym that beateth hym wyll the kynge geue great ryches, and wyll geue hym hys daughter therto, ye and make hys fathers house free in Jsrael.

Then spake Dauid to the men that stode by and sayde: What shalbe done to the man that beateth thys Philistine, and taketh awaye the shame from Jsrael: for what is this vncircumcysed Philystyne, that he shulde reuyle the hoste of the lyuynge God? And the people answered as it is rehersed sayinge: so shal it be done to the man that beateth hym. And Eliab his eldest brother hearde when he spake vnto the men and was angry with Dauid and sayde: Why camest thou awaye and wyth whom hast thou lefte those fewe shepe in the wyldernesse? I knowe thy pryde and the malyce of thyne herte, that thou art come to se the battell. And Dauid answered what haue I now done? is there also more cause a worde? And departed frõ hym vnto an other ryght, & spake of the same maner, and the people answered hym agayne as before.

And they that hearde the wordes whyche Dauid spake, rehersed them before Saul, whyche caused hym to be sett. And Dauid sayde to Saul: Let no mannes herte faple him because of hym. Thy seruaunt wyll go and fyght wyth this Philistine. And Saul sayde to Dauid agayn, thou art not able to go vnto thys Philistine, to fyght wyth hym. For thou art but a lad, and he hath bene a man of warre euen from hys youth. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saul, as thy seruaunt kept his fathers shepe, there came a Lyon and lykewyse a Beare, and toke a shepe out of the flocke. And I went out after hym and smote hym, and toke it out of hys mouth. And whē he arose agaynst me, I caught hym by the bearde and smote hym and slue hym. For bothe a Lyon and also a Beare hath thy seruaunt slayne. And this vncircumcysed Philistine shalbe as one of them, for hys railing on the hoste of the lyuyng God. And Dauid spake moreouer, the Lorde that delyuered me out of the handes of the Lyon and out of the handes of the Beare, he shall delyuer me also oute of the handes of the Philistine.

Then sayde Saul to Dauid: go, and the Lorde be wyth the. And Saul put hys rayment vpon Dauid, and put an helmet of brasse vpon his head, and put a coote of mail vpon hym, and gyrde Dauid with hys owne sweorde vpon hys rayment. And he assayed to go, for he neuer proued it. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saul: I can not go in these, for I haue not bene vsed therto, and put them of hym and toke hys staffe in hys hande, and chose hym fyue smothestones out of a broke and put them in a shepardes bagge whyche he had, and in a poche, and hys sling in hys hande, and went to the Philistine.

And the Philistine came and drue nere to Dauid, wyth the man that bare a shylde before hym. And whē the Philistine loked and sawe Dauid, he disdayned hym, for he was but a lad, roudye and goodly to loke vpon. And the Philistine sayde vnto Dauid: am I a dogge, that thou comest to me with a staffe? and he cursed Dauid in the name of hys Goddes. And he sayde to Dauid: come to me, I wyll geue thy fleshe vnto the fowles of the ayre, and to the beastes of the felde. Then sayd Dauid to the Philistine: thou comest to me with a sworde, a speare, & a shylde, but I come to the in the name of the Lorde of hoostes, the God of the hoste of Jsraell whom thou hast rayled vpon. This day shal the Lorde delyuer the into my hande, and I shall smyte the and take thyne head from the, and I will geue the karcases of the hoste of the Philistines this day vnto the foules of the ayre and to the beastes of the earth, and al the worlde shal knowe, that there is a God in Jsrael. And al this congregacyō shal know, that the Lorde saueth not wyth the swerde and speare. For the battel is the Lordes, and he shal geue you into oure handes.

And when the Philistine arose and came and drue nye vnto Dauid, Dauid hasted and ranne in ordre euen ageinste the Philistine. And Dauid put hys hande in hys poke and tooke out a stone and slange it, and smote the Philistine in hys forhead, that the stone sonke into hys forhead, and he felle grouelyng to the earth. And so Dauid ouercame the Philistine wyth a slyng and a stone, & smote the Philistine and slue hym. And because Dauid had no swerde in his hand, he ranne and stode vpon the Philistine, and tooke his swerd and drue it oute of his shethe, and slue hym & cut of his head therwyth. And when the Philistines sawe that their champyon was dead, they fled. And the men of Jsrael and of Juda arose and shouted and folowed after the Philistines, vntyl they came to the valey and vnto the gates of Akaron. And the Philistines fell downe dead by the waye, euen vnto Geth and Akaron. And then the children of Jsrael returned from chasyng after the Philistines and robbed their tentes. And Dauid tooke the head of the Philistine and brought it to Jerusalem: But he put his armoure in hys tente.

When Saul sawe Dauid go forth ageinst the Philistine, he sayde vnto Abner the captayne of his hoste: Abner, whose sonne is this lad? And Abner answered, as truely as thy soule liueth, O kynge, I can not tell. Then sayde the kynge: Enquere thou, whose sonne the younglyng is. And so when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner tooke him and brought him before Saul, wyth the head of the Philistine in hys hande. And Saul said to him: whose sonne art thou, thou lad? And Dauid answered: I sonne of thy seruaunt Jsai the Bethlehemite.

The.xbiij. Chapter.

Jhe. The bonde betwene Dauid and Jonathas. Saul geueth ouer to fle Dauid. Dauid marryed Michol the doughter of Saul.

AND when he had made an ende of speaking vnto Saul, the soule of Jonathas was knit wyth the soule of Dauid. In so much that he loued hym as hys *owne soule. And Saul tooke him that daye & wolde let hym go no more home to hys fathers house. And Jonathas and Dauid bounde the selues the one to the other, for Jonathas loued hym as hys owne soule. And Jonathan put of his owne coote that was vpon hym, & gaue it Dauid, and therto hys mantel, hys swerde, his bowe and hys gyrdle.

And Dauid went oute to al that Saul sente hym, and behaued hym selfe wyselye. And whē Saul hath set him ouer his mē of warre, he pleased al the people, and Sauls seruaūtes therto.

And it happened as they went, when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, that wemen came out of al cytyes of Jsrael synging and daunsyng, agaynste Saul, wyth tymbrelles, wyth ioye, and wyth ydolles. And the wemen that played sange therto, & sayde: Saul hath slayne his thousand & Dauid hys ten thousand. Then was Saul exceding wroth & the sayinge displeased him, and he sayde: they haue alcrybed vnto Dauid ten thousand, and to me but a thousande, & what can he more haue saue the kyngdome? wherfore Saul loked on syde of Dauid from that daye forward. And it happened on the morow, that the.a.euyll spirite sente of God came vpō Saul, so that he prophesyed in the myddes of the house. And Dauid played on the instrumente wyth hys hande as he was daylye wont. And Saul had a speare in hys hand, and hurlde it entendyng to haue nayled Dauid to the walle. But Dauid auoyded out of hys presence two times. For Saul was afrayde of Dauid, because the Lorde was wyth hym, and was departed from Saul. And then Saul put Dauid from him and made hym a captayne ouer a thousand, and he went oute and in before the people. And Dauid was wyse in al that he toke in hande, and the Lorde was wyth hym. Wherfore when Saul sawe that he was so exceding wyse, he was afrayd of him. But al Jsrael and Juda loued Dauid because he went.b.oute and in before them. Then sayd Saul to Dauid. Beholde my eldest doughter Merob, her I wyll geue the to wyfe: Onely play the man and fyghte the Lordes battelles. For Saul thoughte myne hande shal not be vpon hym, but the hande of the Philistines. And Dauid answered Saul: *What am I? and what is my lyfe or the kynred of my father in Jsrael, that I shoulde be sonne in lawe to the kynge? So be it when the time was come that Merob Sauls doughter shoulde haue bene geuen to Dauid, she was geuen vnto Adriel a Meholathite, to wyfe. How be it Michol Sauls doughter loued Dauid. And when it was shewed Saul, the thinge pleased hym well. And he sayde: I wyll geue hym her that she maye be a snare to hym, to bringe the hande of the Philistines vpon hym. And Saul sayde to Dauid: thou shalt thys daye be my sonne in lawe agayne. And Saul commaunded hys seruaunte, to comen wyth Dauid secretely and saye: Beholde the kynge hath a fauoure to the, and all hys seruauntes loue the, be therfore the kinges sonne in lawe.

And Sauls seruauntes spake these wordes in the eares of Dauid. But Dauid answered: semeth it to you a light thing to be the kinges sonne in lawe, when I am a poore man and of smalle reputacyon? And Sauls seruauntes tolde

Then sayde Saul: this wyse sayst to Dauid: the kinge careth for no nother dowry but for an hundred foreskynnes of the Philistines, to be auenged of the kynges enemies. For Saul thought to make Dauid fall into the handes of the Philistines. Then hys seruauntes tolde Dauid these wordes, and it G pleased Dauid well to be the kynges sonne in lawe. And shortlye after Dauid arose wyth his men, and went, and slue of the Philistines two hundred men, and brought there foreskynnes, and satisfyed the kynge therof to be his 1.Reg.ii.c. sonne in lawe. * And so Saul gaue hym Michol hys doughters to wyfe. And when Saul sawe and vnderstode, how that the Lord was with Dauid, and that Michol hys doughter loued hym, he was the more afraied of Dauid, and became Dauids enemie for euer. And when the Philistines went out to warre, Dauid behaued hym selfe wyselyer then all the seruauntes of Saul: so that hys name was moche set bye.

The.xix.Chapter.

A Saul commaundeth vpon Dauid. Michol hys wife sauyth hym by a prety feate, vnderstandyng her father. Saul is amonge the prophetes.

THen Saul commed with Jonathas hys sonne, and with al his seruauntes that they should kyl Dauid* But Jonathas Sauls sonne had a great fauoure to 1.Reg.xviii.a Dauid, and tolde Dauid sayinge: Saul my father goeth about to slee the. Now therefore take hede to thy selfe by tymes and abyde in some secret place and hyd thy selfe. And I wil go out and stande by my father in the felde, where thou art, and wyll comen wyth my father of the, and yf I can perceyue ought I wil tell the.

And Jonathas spake the best of Dauid vnto Saul hys father and sayde vnto hym: lette not the kyng synne agaynst hys seruaunt Dauid, for he hath not synned agaynst the, and hys workes are to the warde very good. For he dyd put hys lyfe *in hys handes and slue ‡ Philistine, and the Lorde gaue a great victorye to all Israell. And thou sawest it, & thou B reioysedest, wherfore then shouldest thou sinne agaynst innocent bloude, and slee Dauid for nought? And Saul harkened vnto ‡ voice of Jonathas and sware: as truly as the Lorde liueth, he shall not dye. Then Jonathas called Dauid, and shewed hym all those wordes and brought hym to Saul. And he was in his presens all in tymes past.

*That is, in danger.

And the warre began agayne, and Dauid went out and fought with the Philistines and slue a great slaughter, and put them to flight. And the euyll spyryte of the Lorde was vpon Saul as he sat in his house hauing a Jauelyng in hys handes, and Dauid played wyth hys handes. And Saul entended to nayle Dauid to the walle wyth the Jauelynge: But Dauid vyded hym selfe out of Sauls presens, and he smote the speare into the walle. But Dauid fled and saued him selfe that same nyght. The Saul sent messengers vnto Dauids house, to watche hym and to slay hym in the morning. But Michol his wife tolde it hym sayinge. If thou saue not thy selfe thys nyght, to morow thou art a dead man. And so Michol let Da- L uid downe thorow a wyndow, and he went & fled and saued him selfe. And then she toke an Jmage and layed it in the bed, and put an pilow stuffed with goates heare vnder the head of it, and couered it wyth a clothe. And when Saul sent messengers to fetch Dauid, she said that he was sicke. Then Saul sent the messengers to se Dauid sayinge: bringe hym to me, bed and all, that he maye be slayne. And whe the messengers were comme in, beholde there laye an Jmage in the bed, wyth a pyllowe of goates heare vnder the head of it. Then sayd Saul to Michol: why hast thou mocked me so, and sent awaye myne enemy that he is escaped? And Michol answered Saul: he bade vnto me, let me go, or elles J wil kyl the. And so Dauid fled and escaped and went to Samuel to Ramath and tolde hym all that Saul had done to hym. And he, and Samuel went and dwelt in Naioth.

And it was tolde Saul sayinge: Beholde, Dauid is at Naioth in Ramath, then Saul D sent messengers to fet Dauid. And whe they sawe a compange of prophetes. a. prophesying & Samuel standing fast by the, the spyryt of God fell vpon the messengers of Saul, and they prophesyed to. And when it was tolde Saul, he sent other messengers, and they prophesyed lyke wyse. And Saul sent messengers yet agayne the third tyme whych prophesyed also. Then went he hym selfe to Ramath, and when he came to a great welle that is in Sochoh, he asked and sayde: where are Samuell & Dauid? And they sayde: lo they be at Naioth in Ramath, and as he went thither to Naioth in Ramath, the spyryte of God came vpo hym also, and he went prophesying, vntyl he came to Naioth in Ramath. The.xx.Chapter.

Dauid brynge in suspyte of hys wife complayneth vnto Jonathas. Jonathas knowth how euyll an hert Saul hath, and bethynketh him a prouyde policy howe he myght know, he wherfor Dauid shoulde desyre the ruyne of Saul, and yet Jonathas be blameles.

ANd Dauid fled from Naioth in Ramath and went and sayde before Jonathas: What haue J done? wherin am J faultie? what is the synne that J haue committed before thy father that he seketh my lyfe? And Jonathas answered hym: God forbyd, thou shalt not dye. For se my father wyll do nothyng ether great or small, but that he wyll shew it me. For why shoulde my father hyde thys thynge from me? there shalbe no suche thynge thinge. And Dauid swate agayne and sayde: thy father knoweth † I have founde a. grace in thyne eyes and therfore he thinketh, Jonathas shall not knowe it, lest he be sorye. ffor in verey dede, sure as truely as the Lorde lyueth and as truely as thy soule lyueth, there is but a steppe betwene me and death. Then sayde Jonathas vnto Dauid, whatsoeuer thy soule desyreth that I wyll do vnto the. And Dauid sayde vnto Jonathas: Beholde, to morow is the * fyrst daye of the moneth, & I shoulde syt wyth the kynge at meate. But let me go that I may hyde my selfe in the fyldes vnto thys daye thre dayes at euen. ¶ If thy father mysse me, then saye: Dauid asked leaue of me, that he myght go to Bethlehem to hys owne cytye, for there is holden a yeerely feast for all his kinne. And yf thy father saye thus: it is well done, then thy seruaunt shall haue peace. But and yf he be angry: then be sure that wickednesse is vtterly concluded of him. And then thou shalt b. shewe mercye vnto thy seruaunt, for thou hast made wyth me thy seruaunte a bonde in the Lorde. Notwythstandinge yf there be in me any trespace, then slay me thy selfe, for what needeth the to bring me to thy father.

And Jonathas answered: God kepe the from the, that I shoulde knowe, that wickednesse were concluded of my father, to come vpon the: and shoulde not tell it the. Then sayd Dauid, who shal tell me, yf thy father answer cruelly? Then sayde Jonathas to Dauid, come and let vs go out into the fyldes. And they went out both of them into the fyldes.

And Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid: O Lorde god of Jsrael, whē I haue groped my fathers mynde, one tyme or other wythin thys thre dayes, that it stand well wyth Dauid, and I then sende not vnto the and shewe it the, the Lorde do so, and so vnto Jonathas. And in lyke maner, yf euyl to the warde please my father, I wyll shewe the and sende the awaye, that thou mayest go in peace. And the Lorde be wyth the as he hath bene wyth my father. And thou shalt perfourme vnto me the mercy of the Lord, not onely whyle I lyue but euen when I am dead, pluche not thy mercy awaye from my * house for euer: No not when the Lorde hath destroyed the enemies of Dauid euery one from the face of the earth.

And so Jonathas made a bonde wyth the house of Dauid, desyryng that the Lorde shoulde seke out of the handes of Dauids enemyes the vngodlynesse. And with other words Jonathas adiured Dauid, because he loued hym. ffor as hys owne soule he loued hym.

Then sayd Jonathas to Dauid: to morow shalbe the fyrst daye of the moone. And then shalt be myssed, because the place shall appere emptye. But thys day thre dayes come in any wyse vnto the place where thou shalt hyde thy selfe, when it is workedaye: euen by the stone Ezell. And I wyll shote thre arowes by the one syde therof, as though I shot at a marke, and wyll sende after a lodde, and bid hym go seke the arowes. yf I saye vnto the lad, se the arowes are on thys side the, bryng them: then come thou, for it is peace and nothyng to do, as sure as the Lorde lyueth. But and yf I saye thus vnto the young felow, beholde, the Arowes are beyonde the, then go, for the Lord hath sent the awaye. And of this wyghte thou and I haue spoke: beholde, the Lord is witnesse betwene the and me for euer. And so Dauid hyd him selfe in the feld. And when the new moone was come, the kynge sat downe at meate, for to eate. And the kyng sat him doune after the old maner, in his seate by † wall. And Jonathas arose, & Abner sate by Sauls syde, and Dauids place was emptye. Neuertheles yet Saul sayd nothyng at all † day. ffor he thought some thynge had chaunced hym that he is not cleane. But on the morow whyche was the second daye of the moone when Dauids place appered emptye, Saul sayde vnto Jonathas hys sonne: wherfore cometh not the sonne of Jsai to meate, nether yesterdaye nor to day. And Jonathas answered vnto Saul. Dauid asked leaue of me to go to Bethlehem sayinge: let me go, I praye the, for our kynrede holde an offeryng in the cyte, and my brother hath sent for me. Nowe therfore yf I haue found fauour in thyne eyes let me go, and se my brother. And therefore he cometh not vnto the table of the kynge. Then was Saul angry with Jonathas and sayde vnto hym: O frowarde and rebellyous, thou helt thou I knowe not howe thou hast chosen the sonne of Jsai vnto thine owne rebuke, and vnto the rebuke & shame of thy mother. ffor as longe as the sonne of Jsai lyueth vpon the earth, thou shalt not be stablyshed, nor yet thy kyngdome, wherfore now sende and fet him vnto me, * for he is the child of the death.

But Jonathas answered Saul hys father and sayde to hym: wherefore shoulde he dye? what hath he done? Then Saul cast a speare at hym to hyt hym, wherby Jonathas wyst well, that it was vtterlye determined of hys father, to slay Dauid. And so Jonathas arose from the table in a great anger and dyd eate no meate the seconde daye of the moneth, for he was sory for Dauid, because hys father had done hym shame. ¶ The next morowe Jonathas went out into the felde, at the tyme appointed wyth Dauid, and a litle lad with him. And he sayd vnto the boye: runne and fynde out myne arowes whyche I shote. And as the boye ran, he shote an arow beyonde hym. And when the lad was come to the place whe ther Jonathas had shot the arow, Jonathas cryed after hym and sayde, the arow is beyōd the. And he cryed after the lad: haste, make spede and stande not styll. And Jonathas lad gathered vp hys arowe and came to his master. But the lad wist nothyng of the matter: Only Jonathas and Dauid wist it. Then Jonathas gaue hys weapons vnto the lad and sayde vnto Dauid flieth vnto Nob to Ahimelech the preest, & getteth of him fyue breed to susteyne his hunger, and that with a thinge conuicted lye. After he fleeth to Achis, and there fayneth him selfe to be madde.

The.xxii.Chapter.

Dauid flieth vnto the cave Odollam. After that come Dauid to the kyng of Moab. And chaseth out Doeg. Doeg betrayeth Dauid. Remembreth of a vowe of reuēge and slayeth, and smyteth with the sworde because they receyued Dauid. And so destroyeth of Saul. Sendeth here to Dauid.

Dauid departed thence and
1 escaped, and came vnto the cave Odollam. When hys brethren and all his fathers house herde it, they went thyther to hym.
2 And there gathered vnto hym all men that were in combraunce and in det and troubled in their hertes, and he became a captayne ouer them. And there were with hym bi a fewe hundred men. And Dauid went thence to Maspheh in the lande of Moab, and sayde vnto the kynge of Moab: Let my father and mother I praye the, haue their abidinge with you, tyll I knowe what God wil do with me.
3 And he left the with the kyng of Moab, and they dwelt with hym all the whyle that Dauid kept him selfe in holdes. And the prophet Gad sayde vnto Dauid: Abyde not in castelles, but departe and go to the land of Iuda. Then Dauid departed and came into the forest Hareth. And Saul herde of it: for Dauid was knowen and also the men that were with him. And as Saul sat in Gabaah vnder
4 a grene vpon a hye bancke with hys speare in his hande, and all hys men about him, he sayde vnto hys seruauntes that stode about him. Heare I praye you, ye sonnes of Jemini: wyl the sonne of Jai also geue euery one of you fieldes and vineyardes, and make you all captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes: that ye haue all conspyred agaynst me? so that there is none of you that* openeth mine

Then answered Doeg the Edomite, which had the ouer sight of the seruauntes of Saul and sayde: I sawe the sonne of Jai, where he came to Nob, to Ahimelech the sonne of Ahitub, whyche asked counsel of the lorde for hym and gaue him vitayles, and the sworde of Goliath the Philistine also. Then the king sent to calle Ahimelech the preest the sonne of Ahitub, and all hys fathers house, that were

Then sayde Saul to hym: why haue ye conspyred against me, thou and the sonne of Jsai, in so muche that thou hast geuen hym bitayle and a swerde, and hast asked counsell of God for hym, that he shoulde aryse against me, and lye awayte as it is come to passe this daye. And Ahymelech answered the kynge & sayde: who is so faythfull amonge all thy seruauntes as Dauid? therto the kinges sonne in lawe, and goeth at thy bidding, and is had in honoure in thyne house? haue I thys daye begonne spell to aske counsell of God for hym? God forbyd that from me: let not the kynge put suche a thynge vnto hys seruaunt and on all the house of my father. For thy seruaunt knoweth nothinge of all thys, ether litle or moze.

But for all that the kynge sayd: thou shalt surely dye Ahymelech, bothe thou and all thy fathers house. Then sayde the kynge vnto hys foote men that stode about hym: turne and slay the pryestes of the Lorde, bothe because their hand is with Dauid, and because they knewe when Dauid fled & shewed it not to me. But the seruauntes of the kynge wolde not moue their handes, to runne vpon the pryestes of the Lorde. Then sayde the kynge to Doeg: turne thou and smyte the pryestes. And Nob the cite of the pryestes he smote with the edge of the swerde, bothe man and woman, chylde and sucke lynge, with oxe asse and sheepe.

But yet one of the sonnes of Ahymelech the sonne of Ahitob, named Abiathar, escaped & fled to Dauid, and he shewed Dauid, how Saul had slaine the Lordes pryestes. And Dauid sayde vnto Abiathar: I wist at the same daye, that Doeg the Edomite whyche was there would tell it Saul. And I am cause of y death of all the soules of thy fathers house. Abyde with me and feare not: he that seketh thy soule, shall seke myne, and with me thou shalt be in saueguarde.

The.xxiij. Chapter.

David deliuereth Keilah. He flieth into the wylderneses of Ziph. He is comforted of Jonathan. The Ziphims wolde haue betrayed hym, but he escapeth.

Then men tolde Dauid sayinge: Beholde the Philistines fyght against Keilah, and spoyle the barnes. Then Dauid asked the Lordes counsayle sayinge: shall I go and smyte the Philistines? And the Lorde sayde vnto Dauid: go and smyte the Philistines and saue Keilah. Then sayde Dauids men vnto hym: se we be afrayed here in Juda. What shal we then be, when we come to Keilah, to the hoost of the Philistines. Then Dauid asked the Lorde agayne. And the Lorde answered hym and sayde: vp and go to Keilah, for I will delyuer the Philistines into thyne handes.

And so Dauid and hys men went to Keilah and fought with the Philistines, and droue awaye their cattel and slue a great slaughter of them. And so Dauid saued the enhabyters of Keilah. And it chaunced when Abiathar the sonne of Ahymelech fled to Dauid to Keilah, that he brought an Ephod in hys hande.

And it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was come to Keilah. Then sayde Saul: God hath delyuered hym into my hand. For he is shut in, that he is come into a towne with gates & barres. And Saul called al the people to warre, for to go to Keilah, to besege Dauid and his men. But Dauid had knowledge that Saul ymagened myschefe against hym, and sayd therefore to Abiathar the pryest: * Bring the Ephod. Then sayde Dauid, O lord God of Jsrael, thy seruaunt heareth that Saul is about to come to Keilah to destroye the cyte for my sake: wyll the men of Keilah delyuer me into hys hand? or wyll Saul come as thy seruaunt heareth saye? Lorde God of Jsrael tel thy seruaunt. And the Lorde sayde: he wyll come. Then sayd Dauid: wyl the men of Keilah delyuer me and my men into the hande of Saul? and the Lorde sayde: they wyll deliuer you.

Then Dauid and hys men whyche were vpon .vi. hundred, arose and departed out of Keilah, and went whether chaunce draue the. And whe it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was fled fro Keilah, he let the iourney alone. And Dauid abode in the wylderneselle in stronge holdes, and in mountayne in the wylderneselle of Ziph. And Saul sought hym all hys lyfe, but God delyuered hym not into hys hande. And Dauid sawe that Saul was come out, to seke hys lyfe, while Dauid was in the wilderneselle of Ziph in a thycket. And Jonathas Sauls sonne arose and went to Dauid to the thycket, and strengthed him in God, and sayd vnto hym: feare not, for the hand of Saul my father shall not fynde the, and thou shalt be kynge ouer Jsrael, and I must be next vnto the. And Saul my father therto knoweth that it shalbe so. And they * made a bonde bothe of them together before the Lorde. And Dauid tarryed stil in the thycket, and Jonathas went to hys house.

Then came the Ziphites to Saul, to Gabaah sayinge: Dauid hydeth hym selfe fast by vs in stronge holdes that are in a thycket in the hyl of Hachilah on the ryght syde of the wylderneselle. Now therfore syr kynge, come downe with all the lust that thy soule hath to come. And ours parte shalbe to delyuer hym into the handes of the kynge. Then sayd Saul: Blessed are ye in the Lorde: for ye haue compassion on me. Go, I praye you and marke more dyligently, and knowe and se hys hasit where hys foote hath bene, and who hath sene hym there: for it is told me that he is very subtel. Se therfore and knowe al the lurkynge places, places where he lourketh, and come againe to me with the certentye, and I wil go with you. And then yf he be in the lande, I wil hūt him out with all the thousandes of Juda.

And they arose and went to Ziph before Saul. But Dauid and his men were in the wyldernesse of Maon, in the wylde felde, on the ryght hand of the wildernesse. For when Saul was gone with his men to seke, it was tolde Dauid. And therfore he went vnto a Rock and dwelt in the wildernesse of Maon. And whē Saul hearde that, he folowed after Dauid into the wyldernesse of Maon. And Saul and his mē went on the one syde of the mountayne, and Dauid and his men on the other. And Dauid as a mā amased, made hast to get from Saul, for Saul and his men had compased Dauid and his men rounde about take them.

Samuel dyeth. Dauid flieth into the wyldernesse of Pharan. He is angry with Nabal, but is pacified by the wysedome of Abigail. Nabal dyeth and Dauid marryeth Abigail.

Q.Parabola.

Ed then Samuel dyed, and all Israel gathered together and lamented him and buryed him in his owne house at Ramath.

And Dauid arose and gat A him vnto the wildernesse of Pharan. And there was a man in Maon, whose cattel was in Carmell, and the man was verye mighty, and had thre thousand shepe and a thousande goates. And he was shearing his shepe in Carmel. The name of the man was Nabal, and the name of his wife was Abigail, and was a woman of good wyt & beautyful. But the man was churlyshe and of euyll condicions, and was a Calebite. And when Dauid hearde in the wildernesse, that Nabal sheare his shepe, he sent out ten of his young men, and sayde vnto them: get you vp to Carmell,

And Dauids yongemen came ¶ tolde Nabal all these wordes in the name of Dauid ¶ then stopped. And Nabal answered Dauids seruauntes ¶ sayd: What is Dauid, and what is the sonne of Iesse there is nowe a dayes, that breake awaye euery man from his maister. And Dauids seruauntes turned their waye and went againe, and came and tolde him all that Nabal had answered them. Then Dauid sayd vnto his men: gird euery man his sworde about him. And they girded euery man his sworde on, and Dauid therto girde on his sworde. And there folowed Dauid vpon a foure hundred men, and two hundred abode by the fardell.

But one of the ladders tolde Abigail Nabals wyfe sayinge: Dauid sent messengers vnto oure maister out of the wildernesse to salute him, and he railed on them. And yet the men were very good vnto vs and dyd vs no displeasure, neither missed we any thynge, as longe as we were conuersant with them, whē we were in the feldes. Nowe take hede and se what thou hast to do, for it is concluded to do mischefe vnto our maister, and to al his household. And he is so graceyous to speake to. Then Abigail made haste and toke two hundred loues and two bottelles of wine, and fiue sheepe redy dressed and foure measures of parched corne, and an hundred bondelles of resinges, and two hundred fragles of figges, and layed them on asses, ¶ sayde vnto her younge men: go before me, ¶ se. I come after you, and tolde her husbande Nabal nothing therof: and as she rode on her asse and was comming downe in a slade of the hyll, Dauid and his men came downe against her and she met them.

And Dauid sayde: in vayne haue I kept all that this felowe had in the wildernesse, so that nought was myssed that pertaineth vnto him, for he hath quyte me with euyll for good. God and so do God vnto the enemies of Dauid, as I will not leaue of all that pertaine to him, by the dawnynge of the daye, ought *that pisseth against the wall.

When Abigail sawe Dauid, she hasted ¶ light of her asse, and fell before Dauid on her face, and bowed her selfe to the grounde, and fel at his fete and sayde: Let thys vnhappye deade be counted myne, my lord, and let thine handmaid speake in thine audience, and heare the wordes of thy handmayde. Let not my Lorde regarde thys vnthryfty man Nabal, for as hys name is, so is he. * Nabal is his name, and folye is with him. But I thine handmayde sawe not the younge men of my lorde whiche thou sendest.

And nowe my lord as sure as the lorde liueth and as thy soule liueth, the Lorde hathe withholden the from comming to shede bloud and from auenging thy self with thine own hande. Furthermore I praye God that thyne enemies and they that entende to do my Lord euyll, may be as Nabal. And now this a blessing, whiche thine handmaide hath brought, let it be geuen vnto the younge men that folowe my Lorde. Forgeue the trespace of thine handmaide that the Lorde may make my lord a sure house, because my Lorde fyghteth the battelles of the Lorde, and there coulde none euill be founde in thee all thy lyfe. And yf any man rise to persecute the and to seke thy soule, the soule of my Lorde be bounde in a bondel of lyfe with the Lorde thy God. And thy soules of thy enemies be slong in the middle of a slynge. And moreouer when the Lorde shall haue done to my Lord all the good that he hath promysed the, and shal haue made the ruler ouer Israel: then shall it be no grudge of conscience vnto the ne discourage of herte vnto my Lorde, that thou shedest bloud causelesse and reuengest thy selfe.

And moreouer when the Lorde shall haue dealt wel with my Lorde, thynck on thine handmayde. Then sayde Dauid to Abigail: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel which sent the this daie to meete me. And blessed be thy behauioure, and blessed be thou whyche hast kept me this daye from comming to shed bloud and from auenging my selfe with mine owne hande. For in very dede as sure as the Lorde God of Israel liueth whyche hath kept me backe from hurting the, except thou haddest hasted and met me, there hath not bene lefte Nabal by the dawninge of the daye, a pysser against the wall. And so Dauid receyued of her hand that she brought hym, and sayde to her: go in peace to thine house. And se I haue obeyed thy voyce, and haue receyued the to grace.

And when Abigail came to Nabal: behold he helde a feaste in his house like the feast of a kynge, and Nabals herte was merye within him, and he was dronke a good. Wherfore she tolde him nought neither lyttle nor muche, vntil the morow daye. But in the morninge, when the wyne was gone out of Nabal, his wyfe tolde him these wordes, and his herte dyed within him, and he became as a stone, and vpon ten dayes after the Lorde smote

Nabal

Nabal, that he dyed. And whē Dauid heard that Nabal was dead, he sayde: Blessed be the Lorde that hath iudged the cause of my re buke of the hande of Nabal, and hath kept his seruaunt from euil, and hath turned the wickednesse of Nabal again vpon his owne head. And Dauid sent to comen with Abigail, to thentent to take her to his wyfe. And when the seruauntes of Dauid were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake vnto her sayinge: Dauid sent vs to the, to take the to his wyfe. And she arose and bowed her selfe on her face to the earth and sayd: Beholde thy handmaid to be a seruaunt to.c. washe the fete of thy seruauntes of my Lorde. And Abigail hasted & arose, and gat her vp vpon an asse, with fyue damoselles of hers that went at her fete, and went after the messengers of Dauid & was his wyfe. Dauid also toke Ahinoam of Jesrahel, and they were bothe his wyues. But Saul gaue Michol his doughter Dauids wyfe to Phalty the sonne of Lais of Gallim.

The.xxiiij.Chapter.

¶ Saul departeth in his rest. And Dauid taketh away his speare and a cruse of water, that stode at his heade.

AFter that came the Ziphites vnto Saul to Gabaah sayinge: Dauid hydeth hym selfe in the hil of Hachilah euen before the wildernesse. Then Saul arose & went to A the wildernesse of Ziph and thre thousande chosen men of Israel with hym, for to seke Dauid in the wildernesse of Ziph. And Saul pitched in the hyl of Hachilah which lieth before the wildernesse, by the wayes side. But Dauid dwelt in the wildernesse. And whē he saw that Saul came after him into the wildernesse he sent out spyes and vnderstode that Saul was come of certeyne.

Wherfore Dauid arose and went to the place where Saul had pytched, and beheld the place where Saul lay & Abner the sonne of Ner his chefe captaine. ffor Saul lay with in a rounde banche, and the people pytched rounde about him. Then answered Dauid & spake to Ahimelech the Hethite and to Abisai the sonne of Zeruiah and brother to Joab sayinge: who wyl go downe with me to Saul B to the hoste? and Abisai sayde: I wyl go downe with the.

And so Dauid and Abisai came to the people by night. And beholde, Saul lay slepynge within a rounde banche and his speare pytched in the ground at his head, Abner and the people lyeng round about hym. Then sayde Abisai to Dauid: God hath closed in thine ene my into thyne handes this day. Now therfore let me smyte hym a felowshippe with my speare to the earth, euen one stroke, and I wil not smyte hym the seconde tyme. But Dauid sayde to Abisai: destroye him not, for who C shall laye his hand on the Lordes anoynted and be giltelesse? And Dauid sayde furthermore: as the Lorde liueth, the Lord shall smyte hym, or his daye shal come to dye, or he shall descende into battel and there perysshe: but the Lorde kepe me from layinge myne hand vpon the Lordes anoynted. Now then take a fleshe hippe the speare that is at his heade, and the cruse of water, and let vs go. And Dauid toke the speare and the cruse of water that were at Sauls head, and they gat them away and neuil sawe or wist it or awoke. For they were all a slepe, because the Lorde had sent a slomber vpon them. Then Dauid went ouer to the other syde and stode on the toppe of an hyl a farre of (a great spacy beyng betwene them) and cryed to the people and to Abner the sonne of Ner sayinge: Answerest thou not Abner? and Abner answerde and sayd: What art thou that *cryest to the kyng? and Dauid sayd to Abner: art not thou a man, and who is like the in Israel? But wherefore hast thou not kept thy Lord the kynge? for there came one of the folke to destroy the kyng thy lord. It is not good that thou hast done. As truely as the Lorde liueth, ye are worthy to dye, because ye haue not better kept the Lordes anoynted. And now se where the kynges speare is and the cruse of water that were at his heade.

Then Saul knewe Dauids voyce and sayde: Is this thy voyce my sonne Dauid? and Dauid sayde: it is my voyce my Lord kyng. And he sayde therto: wherfore doth my Lorde persecute his seruaunt? for what haue I done? or what euil is in myne hande. Now heare therfore (my lord kyng) the wordes of thy seruaut. If the lorde haue stered the vp against me, he *That is, he shal *smel the sauoure of sacrifyce. But & yf they be the children of men, cursed be they before the Lorde. For they haue cast me out frō fellowshyp to abyding in the enheritaunce of the Lorde, say ing: serue & go serue other Gods. And yet am I hope my bloude shal not fal to the earth before the face of the Lorde, though the kyng of Israel be come out to hunt a flee, as men hunt the partriges in the mountaynes. Then sayd Saul: I haue synned, come again my sonne Dauid, for I will do the no more harme, because my soul was precious in thine eyes this daye. Beholde, I haue played the fole & haue erred exceding much. And Dauid answered and sayde: Beholde the kynges speare, let one of the young men come ouer and fet it. The Lorde rewarde euery mannes righteousnesse and fayth: for the Lorde delyuered the into my hande this daye, but I wolde not laye myne hande vpon the Lordes anoynted. And as thy life was made set by in the eyes of me on myne eyes, so be my life in the eyes of the Lorde, that he deliuer me out of all tribulacyon. And Saul sayde to Dauid: Blessed art thou my sonne Dauid, for thou * shalt be a doer and also able to bringe to an ende. And so Dauid went his waye, and Saul turned to his place agayne.

There is no better for me, the to flee into the lande of the Philistines, that Saul of very dispaire to finde me, may cease to seke me any more in all the coastes of Israhel: for so I maye escape his handes. And Dauid arose, and he and the syxe hundred men that were with him went vnto Achis, the sonne of Maoch, kynge of Geth. And Dauid dwelt with Achis at Geth, both he & his men, euery man with his houshold, and Dauid with his two wyues: Ahinoam the Jesrahelite and Abigail Nabals wyfe of Carmel. And when it was tolde Saul that Dauid was fled to Geth, he sought no more for him. The.xxviii. Chapter.

A The Philistines make warre against Saul and the Israelites. Saul enquyreth counsell of God but hath no answere, and then seketh after an enchaunter, whome he expelled from vp the begyn of Samuel.

A AND it chaunced in those dayes, that the Philistines gathered their hoste together to warre, entendyng to fyght with Israel. And Achis sayde to Dauid: Be sure, thou shalt goe out with me in the hoste, and thy men also. And Dauid sayd agayne to Achis: then thou shalt knowe, what thy seruaunt can do. And Achis sayde to Dauid: Then I will make the a keper of my head for euer. Samuel was then deade, and all Israel had lamented him & buryed him in Ramath his owne cyte, whych cyte, And Saul had put the women that had spyrytes of prophesye & the Sorcerers out of the lande. And the Philistines gathered together and came and pytched in Sunam. And Saule and al Israell gathered together and pytched in Gelbor. And when Saul sawe the hoste of the Philistines, he was afrayed, and his hert was sore astonied. And Saul asked counsell of the Lorde: But the Lord answered him not, neither by dreame nor by Vrim, nor yet by Prophetes.

Then sayde Saul vnto his seruauntes: seke me a woman that is maistres of a spyrit of prophesye, that I may go to her and aske of her. And his seruauntes said to him: se, there is a wyfe & she hath a spyrit of prophesy in her possession at Endor. And Saul chaunged his clothes & put on other rayment, & the went he and two men with him, & they came to the wyfe by nyght. And he sayde: prophesye vnto me by the spyrit, & bring me him vp whō I shal name vnto the. And the wyfe sayde vnto him: Beholde, thou knowest what Saul hath done how he hath destroyed the women that had prophesynge spirites, & the Sorcerers out of the lande. Wherfore then* layest thou a nette for my soule to kyll me? And Saul swore to her by the Lorde sayenge: As surely as the Lord lyueth, there shall no harme chaunce the for this thynge. Then sayde the wyfe: whom shall I fetche vp vnto the? and he sayde: Bringe me vp Samuel. When the woman saw Samuell, she cryed with a loude voice & spake to Saul sayenge: why hast thou mocked me for thou art Saul? And the kynge sayde vnto her, be not afrayd. But what seyst thou. And the wyfe sayde vnto Saul; I see a God ascendynge vp out of the earth. And he sayd: what fashyon is he of? And the woman sayde: there cometh vp an olde man with a mantel vpon him. And Saul perceyued that it was e. Samuel, and bowed with his face to the ground and bowed him selfe. And Samuel sayde to Saul: why hast thou vnquyeted me, to make me be brought vp? And Saul answered: I am sore vexed. For the Philistines make warre against me & God is departed from me & answered me no more, neither by prophetes, neither by dreames. And therfore I haue called the, to tell me what I shall do. Then said Samuel: wherfore doest thou aske of me? while the lorde is gone from the & is thyne enemye, the lorde wyll do to the as he sayde by my handes. For the lorde wyll rent the kyngdom out of thyne hand, & geue it thy neyghboure Dauid, breause thou obeydst not the voyce of the Lorde, nor executest his feruce wrath vpon the Amalekites. Therfore hath the lord done this vnto the this daye. And moreouer the Lorde wyll deliuer Israel with the, into the handes of the Philistines. And to morow shalt thou and thy sonnes be with me, and the Lorde shall geue the hoste of Israel into the handes of the Philistines. Then Saul fell streyght wayes flatte on the earth as longe as he was, and was sore astonied of the wordes of Samuel.

Now therefore harken thou also vnto the voyce of thyne handmayde, and let me set a morsel of bread before the, and eat and get the strenght to go thy iourney. The.xxix.Chapter.

¶ Dauid goyng with kyng Achus.xxvi. goe against Saul to fyght against hym by the meanes of the Lordes of the Philistines.

THe Philistines gathered all their hostes together vnto Aphec. And Israell pitched by a fountayne in Jesrahel. And the Lordes of the Philistines wet forthe by the hundredes & by the thousandes. But Dauid & hys men came behynde with Achus. Then said the lordes of the Philistines: what are these Ebrues? And Achus said vnto the lordes of the Philistines: Is not this Dauid seruaunt of Saul the king of Israell, whyche hath bene with me daies or yeres, & I haue found no fault in him sence he fled vnto me vnto this daie. Neuertheles the lordes of the Philistines were wroth with him & said vnto him: make this felow returne, & let him go again to his place which thou hast appointed hym. For he shall not go with vs to battel, lest he be an aduersary vnto vs in the battel. For wherwith could he better obtaine the fauoure of hys master, then vpon the heades of oure men. Is this not Dauid to whom they singe in daunces: Saul slue his thousand, but Dauid his ten thousande? Then Achus called Dauid and sayde vnto hym. As sure as the Lorde lyueth thou art honest, and it pleaseth me well that thou shouldest accompanye me in the host, for I haue founde none euyl with the sence thou camest to me vnto this daye. Neuertheles the Lordes of the Philistines fauoure the not wherefore returne and go in peace, that thou displease not the Lordes of the Philistines. And Dauid said again to Achis: Why? what haue I done? and what hast thou found in thy seruaunt as long as I haue bene with the vnto this day? that I may not go fyght against the enemies of my Lorde the kynge.

Achus answered & sayde to Dauid: I wote well thou pleasest me, as it were an Angell of God. Notwithstandyng the Lordes of the Philistines haue sayde, that thou shalt not go with them to battell. Therfore ryse vp erlye in the mornynge with thy masters seruauntes that are come with the. And when ye be vp erly as soone as ye haue light, departe. And so Dauid and hys men rose erlye to departe in the mornynge, and to returne into the land of the Philistines. And the Philistines went vp to Jesrahell.

The.xxx.Chapter.

¶ Dauid returneth ye from kyng Achus frowarn Ziklag burnt. He pursueth after the Amalekites and ouercometh the people.

BVt per Dauid and hys men were come to Ziklag the third day, the Amalekites had runne in a rannynge vpon the south and vpon Ziklag, and had smiten Ziklag, and burnt with fyre and had taken the women that were there in prysoners, both small and great: but slewe not a man, saue caryed them with them and went their wayes. When Dauid and his men came to the cite, behold, it was burnt with fyre, and their wyues, their sonnes and their doughters were take prisoners. The Dauid & the people yt was with hym lyfte vp their voyces and wept, vntyl they couldo wepe no more. And Dauids two wyues were taken prisoners also. Ahinoam the Jesrahelyte and Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite. And Dauid was in a sharpe temptacion: for the people entended to stone hym because the hartes of all the people were vexed for their sonnes and their doughters.

But Dauid tooke a good courage to hym in the lord hys God & sayde to Abiathar ye preest Ahimelechs sonne: I pray me the Ephod. And Abiathar brought the Ephod to Dauid. And Dauid asked the lorde sayinge: shall I folowe after this company? and shall I ouer take the? And he sayde to hym: folowe, for thou shalte ouertake them and recouer the praye.

And he went and the fyue hundred men that were with him, & they came to the ryuer Besor, where a part of the abode. But Dauid and foure hundred men folowed. But two hundred abode behynde being to werye to go ouer ye ryuer Besor. Then they founde an Egyptian in the felde, and brought hym to Dauid and gaue hym breade to eate and water to drynche, and gaue hym a fyue figges, and two clusters of reysynges. And when he had eaten, hys spyrite came again to hym: for he had eaten no breade nor dronke no water in three dayes and three nyghtes. The Dauid sayde vnto hym: to whom belongest thou and whence art thou? and the lad answered: I am an Egyptian, and seruaunt to an Amalechite: and my master left me behynde

because it is thre dayes a gone that I fell sycke:
we came a roupnge vpō the south of Cerethi and vpon them of Juda and on the south of Caleb. And we burnt Ziklag with fyre. And David sayde to him: canst thou bynge me to thys company? And he sayde: swere by my vnto God, that thou wilt neither kyll me, nor delyuer me into the handes of my master, and I wyll bynge the vnto them. And when he had brought hym, se, they lay shattered all abroade vpon the earth, eatyng and drynckyng and triumphyng ouer all the great pray that they had carped awaye out of the lande of the Philistines, and out of the Land of Juda.

And David layde vpon them from the twylyght vntyll the euen on the morow: so that there escaped not a man, saue foure hundre a yonge men, whyche roddе awaye vpon cameles and fledde. And David recouered all that the Amalechites had carped awaye, and his two wyues, so that there was no persone lackynge smal or great, sonne or doughter, or of the spoyle of all that they had take awaye, David brought all againe. And David toke all the shepe, and the oxen. And they droue the cattel before, and sayde: this is Dauids pray.
And when David came to the two hundred men that were to wery for to folowe David,
whych they made to abyde at the ryuer Besor.
And they came to mete David and the people that were with hym. And when David came to the people, he saluted them. Then answered all the wycked and the vnthryfty of the men that went with David, and sayde: because they went not with vs, therfore shall none of the pray that we haue recouered, be geuen vnto them, saue to every man his wyfe and his children: wyche let them carp awaye and be walkynge.

Then sayde David: ye shall not do so (my brethren) with that the Lorde hath geuen vs,
and hath preserued vs, & delyuered the company that came against vs, into oure han-des. For who shulde herken vnto you in this matter? But as his parte is, that goeth to fyght so good shal his parte be, that tarpeth by the stuffe, they shall part it a lyke. And so from that daye forwarde was that made a law and a custome in Israel, and dureth to this day. Whē David came to Ziklag, he sent of his pray
vnto the elders of Juda and to his frendes saying: se there a* blessinge for you, of the spoyle of the enemies of the Lorde: he sent to them of Bethel: to them of south Ramath
to them of Gether: to them of Aroer: to them of Sephamoth: to the of Esthamo: to them of Rachal: to them of the cytyes of the Jerhame elites: to them of the cities of the Kenites: to them of Hormah: to them of Bonsan: to them of Athach: to them of Hebron, and to all places where David and his men were wont to haunt.

¶ The battel betwixt the Philistines and Israel. Saul beyng hys felle, and hys children are slayne in the battell.

Vd as the Philistines fought against Israel, the men of Isra
ell fledd awaye from the Philstines, and fell doune deade
in mount Gelboe. And the Phi listines folowed after Saul and hys sonnes,
and slewe Jonathas, Abinadab and Melchisua Sauls sonnes. And the battel wēt sore against Saul, in so much that the archers ouerhoūs had founde hym, & he was sore wounded of the shotters. Then sayde Saul vnto his har nesbearer: * drawe out thy swerde and thrust
me thorow therwyth lest these vncircumcised
come thrust me throughe and make me a mockynge stocke of me. But his harnesbearer wolde not, for he was sore afraied. Wherefore Saul toke a swerde and fell vpon it. And when his harnesbearer sawe that Saul was dead, he fell lykewyse vpon his swerde and died with hym. And so Saul died and his thre sonnes and his harnesbearer, and therto
all his men, that same daye together.

When the men of Israel that were in the other syde the valeye, and they of the other syde Jordan, heard that the men of Israell were put to flyghte, and that Saul and his sonnes were deade, they left the cytyes, & ran awaye, and the Philistines came and dwelt in them. * On the morow when the Philistines were come to stripe the that were slayne,
they founde Saul and his thre sonnes lyinge
in mount Gelboe. And they cut of his head, and strypped him out of his harnesse, & sent into the land of the Philistines euery where,
to publysshe in the houses of their Goddes &
to the people. And they hanged vp his harnesse in the house of Astaroth, but they hanged vp his carkase on the walles of Bethsan.
When the inhabiters of Jabes in Galaad heard therof, what the Philistines had done to Saul, they arose as manye as were men of warre and went all nyght and toke the carkasse of Saul & the carkases of his sonnes from the walles of Bethsan & brought them to Jabes and * burnt them
there and toke their bones &
buryed them vnder a

Fter the death of Saule, when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Amalechites, & had bē two dayes in Ziseleg: Beholde, there came a mā the thirde daye out of the hoste from Saul wyth his clothes rent & earth vpon hys head. And whē he came to Dauid, he fell to the earthe, & dyd obeysaunce. To whome Dauid sayd whence comest thou? And the other answered hym: Out of the hoste of Israel am I escaped. And Dauid sayd to him agayne: How hath it chaunced? tell me. And he sayde: the people fleed frō the battell: & many of the people are ouerthrowen & dead: and Saul and Jonathas hys sōne are dead therto.

B And Dauid sayde vnto the young mā that tolde hym: how knowest thou that Saul and Jonathas hys sonne be dead? and the younge man that tolde hym, sayde: I was by chaunce in mount Gelboe. And se, Saul leaned vpon hys speare, and the charrettes and horsemen followed him at the heles. And Saul loked back and called me. And I answered: here am I. And he sayde vnto me: what arte thou? and I sayde vnto hym: I am an Amalechite. And he sayde vnto me: come on me & slee me: for angwyshe is come vpon me, and my lyfe is yet all in me. And I went on hym & slue hym: for I was sure that he coulde not lyue, after that he was fallē. And I toke the croune that was vpon hys head and the bracelet that was on hys arme, and haue brought them vnto my Lorde hyther.

C Then Dauid toke hys clothes and a. rente them, and so dyd all the men that were wyth hym. And they mourned, wepte & fasted vntyll euen, for Saul and Jonathas hys sonne, & for the people of the Lorde, and for the house of Israel, because they were ouerthrowē wyth the swerde.

Then sayde Dauid vnto the younge man that brought hym tydynges. Whence arte thou? And he sayde: I am the sonne of an alyaunt, an Amalechite. And Dauid sayde vnto hym: How is it that thou wast not afrayed to laye thyne hande on the Lordes annoynted, to destroy hym? And Dauid called one of hys young men & sayde: Go to and runne vpon hym. And he smote hym that he dyed. Then sayde Dauid vnto hym: thy blonde vpon thyne owne head. For thyne owne mouth hath testyfyed agaynste the sayinge: I haue slayne the Lordes annoynted.

b The maner of lyeng of the Iewes, for that we saye: thy māslaughter that came the be of the righteous. The glorye of Israell is to be slayne vpon thy hye hylles: Oh how were the said princes of mynghtye ouerthrowen. Tell it not in Gethe, *Sonerthnot nor publysshe it in the stretes of Aschalō: lest the that the false doughters of the Philistines reioyse, and that remaineth not other sacrifice but the vncircumcysed triumphe therof. Ye mountaynes of Gelboe, lyke vnto me vnderstand he neither drewe nor sayne, nor seldes where by the holy haue offrynges come. For there the shyldes of the myghtye were cast from them: the shyld of Saul as though he had not ben anoynted wyth oyle. The bowe of Jonathas and the swerde of Saule turned neuer backe agayne emptye, from the bloude of the wounded and from the fatte of the myghtye warryours. Saul and Jonathas louely and pleasaunte in theyr lyues, were in theyr deethes not deuyded, men swifter then Egles and stronger the Lyons. Ye doughters of Israel, wepe ouer Saule, whiche clothed you in purple and gaue ornatures of pleasure, and *hondered youre rayment wyth ornamentes of goulde. How were the myghtye slayne in battell? Jonathas on thy hye hylles was wounded to death. Woo is me for the my brother Jonathas delectable to me wast thou exceedyng. Thy loue to me was wonderfull, passyng the loue of women. How were thy myghtye ouerthrowen, & how were the weapons of warre forlorn.

When it was tolde Dauid, howe the men of Jabes in Galaad had buryed Saule, he sent messengers vnto them & sayd vnto them: blessed are ye vnto the Lorde, that ye haue shewed suche kyndenesse vnto youre Lorde Saule, and haue buryed hym. Therfore the Lorde shewe you mercye and truthe agayne. And I wil do you good also, because ye haue done thys thynge. And Isboseth Saules sonne was fourtye yeare olde when he began to raygne ouer Israel, and raygned two yeare. But the house of Juda onely folowed David. *And the tyme whiche David raygned in Hebron ouer the house of Juda, was, vii. yere & syxe monethes. And Abner the sonne of Ner & the seruauntes of Isboseth the sonne of Saul went out of Mahanaim, to Gabaon. And Joab the sonne of Zaruiah and the seruauntes of David went out, and mette them by the Pole of Gabaon. And they sat doune, the one part on the one syde the Pole & the other on the other syde. And Abner sayde to Joab: let the young men aryse and playe before vs. And Joab answered: be it. Then there arose and went ouer, twelue of Beniamin by nombre which pertayned to Isboseth the sonne of Saul, and twelue of the seruauntes of David. And they caught eche hym fo1awe that came against hym, by þ head and thrust hys swerde in hys syde, and so fell doune al at once. Wherfore the place was called * Helath Zurim which is in Gabaon. But Asahel wolde not de part from hym. And Abner sayde agayne to Asahel: turne fro me, for I were lothe to smyte the to the ground. And when they were come to the hyll Amah that lyeth before Giah in the waye that goeth thorow the wyldernesse of Gabaon, the chyldren of Beniamin gathered them selues together after Abner on a plumpe, and stode styll on the toppe of an hyll. Then Abner called to Joab, and sayde: shal the swerd deuoure with out ende? knowest thou not that bytternesse is wont to come in the latter ende? howe longe shall it be, per thou bydde the people returne from folowynge their brethren? And Joab answered: as truely as God lyueth, yf thou haddest so sayde, then euen in the mornynge had the people departed, eche from folowing hys brother. And therwyth a Joab blewe a tre pet, and all the people stode styll & pursued after Israel no more nor fought no more. ¶ Abner reuolteth to David. & bringeth hym his wyfe Michol. Joab hateth Abner. David bewayleth hys death, and curseth Joab.

THere was long stryfe betwene the house of Saul and the house of David. But David waxed stronger and stronger, and the house of Saul waxed weaker & weaker. *And David had chyldren borne hi in Hebron: hys eldest sonne was Ammon of Ahinoam the Jesrahelyte: the seconde Chileab of Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelyte: the thyrd Absalon the sonne of Maachah the doughter of Tholmai the kyng of Gessur the fourth Adonijah the sonne of Hagith: the fyfte Saphatiah the sonne of Abital: the syxte Jethraam by Egla Dauids wyfe. These were borne to David in Hebron. And as long as there was battell betwene the house of Saule and the house of David, Abner helde vp the house of Saul. And Saule had a * concubyne named Rizpah the doughter of Aiah. And Isboseth sayde to Abner. Wherfore wylt thou with my fathers concubyne? Then was Abner very wrothe for the wordes of Isboseth, and sayde: Am I not a *dogges head, which agaynste Juda haue shewed mercye this day vnto the house of Saule thy father, and to his brethren and frendes, and haue not delyuered them into the hande of David: seynge thou fyndest a faulte in me thys daye for a woman? *So do God to Abner, and so thereto: except that as the Lorde hath swome to David, I so do to hym, and bryng the kyngdom from the house of Saule, and set vp the throne of David ouer Israel and ouer Juda, euen fro Dan to Berseba. And David sent messengers to Jsboseth Saules sonne, sayenge: delyuer me my wyfe Michol whyche I maryed wyth an hundred foreskynnes of the Philistines. And Jsboseth sent and toke her from the husbande Phaltiel the sonne of Lais. And her husbād went wyth her, and came wepinge behynde her, tyll they came to Bahurim. Then sayde Abner vnto hym: go and returne. And he returned. And Abner had communycacyon wyth the elders of Jsrael sayenge: ye haue log gone about that David shulde be kyng ouer you. Nowe then do it: for the Lorde hath sayde of David, by the hande of my seruaunt David, I wyll saue my people Jsrael out of the yȝdes of the Philistines, and oute of the hande of al theyr enemyes. And lyke wordes had he wyth Benjamin, and then went to tell in the eares of David in Hebron all that Jsrael was content wyth and the whole house of Benjamin. And whē Abner was come to David to Hebron wyth twenty men wyth hym, David made hym, & the men that were wyth hym a feast. And so David let Abner depart and he went in peace.

And se, the seruauntes of David & Joab came from chasyng robbers and brought a great praye wyth them. But Abner was not wyth David in Hebron: for he had sent hym awaye to departe in peace. Whē Joab and al the host that was wyth hym were come, men tolde Joab sayenge: Abner the sonne of Ner came to the kyng, & he hath sente hym awaye that he is gone in peace. Then Joab went to the kynge & sayde: what hast thou done? Se, Abner came vnto the, why hast thou sent hym awaye, that he shulde shape quyte? Thou myghtest knowe Abner the sonne of Ner, that he came to flatter wyth the, and to knowe thy conuersacyon and behauoure, and to knowe all that thou doest. And whē Joab was come out from the kynge, he sent messengers after Abner which brought hym agayne from the wel of Sirah vnwetyng to David. And whē Abner was come agayne to Hebron, Joab toke hym a syde in the gate, to speake wyth hym gyleful'y, & there smote hym vnder the fyfte rybbe that he dyed, for the blaud of Asahel his brother. And when it afterward came to Dauids eare, he sayde: I and my kyngdō are gyltelesse before the Lorde for euer, ouer-agaynst the blaude of Abner the sonne of Ner. It fal therfore on the head of Joab and on al his fathers house: that the house of Joab be neuer wythoute one or other that hath runnyng yssues or wythout lepres and goers on crouches, and that fal on the swerde, and that lacke bread. And the cause why Joab & Abisai slue Abner was, that Abner had slayne their brother Asahel at Gibeon in batel. And David sayde to Joab & to all the people that were wyth hym, rent youre clothes and a. put on sacke clothe and mourne before Abner. And kyng David hym selfe folowed the bere. And when they had buryed Abner in Hebron, the kyng lyfte vp his voyce and wepte ouer the sepulchre of Abner, and so dyd all the people. And the kynge lamented ouer Abner and sayd: Abner dyed not as a wanton dyeth. Thy handes were not manacled nor thy fete bounde gyuen into gyues: but as men fall before wycked children, so fellest thou. And all the people wept yet more ouer hym.

And these Berothites fled to Gethaim and soiourned there vntil the same tyme. And Jonathas Saules sonne had a sonne that was lame on his fete: fyue yeare olde was he when the tydynges came of Saul and Jonathas out of Jesrahel. And his nource toke hym vp and fled awaye. And as she made hast to flee and was amased, the chylde fell and became halte and was called Mephiboseth. And these sonnes of Remon the Berothite, Rechab and Baanah went, & came in the heat of the daye to the house of Jsboseth as he slept on a bed at noone. And behold they came into the house as thoughe they wold haue bought* wheate, & smote hym vnder y fyfte rybbe, and fled. And Dauid answered Rechab and Baanah his brother, the sonnes of Remon the Berothite, and sayde vnto them: * as surely as the Lorde liueth whiche hath delyuered my soule out of all aduersities: hym yt told me howe that Saul was dead, thynkyng to haue brought me good tydynges, I caught & slewe in Ziceleg, to gene hym a rewarde for his tydynges bringing. After that, Dauid chose out all y cheke yonge men in Jsrael to the nombre of thyrtythousand, & arose and went and all the folcke that were with hym of the men of Juda, to fet awaye the arche of GOD vpon which is called the name of the Lord of hostes that sytteth betwene the cherubym. And they put the arche of God vpon a newe carte, and brought it out of the house of Abinadab that dwelt at Gabaah. And Oza & Ahio the sonnes of Abinadab drane the newe carte. And when they brought it out of the house of Abinadab that dwelt at Gabaah vp the arche of God, Aho went before the arch. And Dauid and all the house of Jsrael playde before the Lorde with all maner instrumentes of fyr wood, with harpes, psalteryes, tymbrelles, fedyles, and cymbals.

And when they came to Nachons threshyng floure

And the Lorde was wroth with Oza and God smote hym in the same place for hys fawte, & there he dyed by the arche of God. And Dauid was displeased because the Lorde had smit Oza. And the name of the place was called Perez Oza vnto thys daye. And Dauid was then afeaped of the Lord, and sayd: how shulde the arche of the Lord come to my house And so Dauid wolde not bring the arche of the Lord with hym into the cytye of Dauid. But caryed it into the house of Obed Edoma Gethite. And the arche of the Lorde continued in the house of Obed Edom the Gethite, thre monethes, and the Lorde blessed Obed Edom and all hys housholde. And when it was told kynge Dauid howe that the Lorde had blessed the house of Obed Edom and all that pertayned vnto hym, because of the arch of God he went and brought the arche of God from the house of Obed Edom vnto the cytye of Dauid with gladnes. And Dauid & all the house of Israel brought the arche of the Lorde with shoutyng & trompet blowyng.

And as the arche of the Lorde came into the cytye of Dauid, Michol Sauls doughter lokyd thorowe a wyndowe, and saw kynge Dauid lepyng and daunsle before the Lord, & therfore dispysed hym in her hert. And when they had brought in the arche of the Lorde, & had set it euen in hys place, euen in the tabernacle that Dauid had prepared for it: Dauid offered burntoffrynges and peaceoffrynges before the Lorde, and as sone as Dauid had made an ende of offrynge burntoffrynges and peaceoffrynges he blessed the people in the name of the Lorde of Hostes, & gaue amonge all the folcke, euen amonge the hole multytude of Israel, as well to the women as vnto euerye one a cake of bread, and a pece of fle he and a flacket of wyne. Then Dauid returned to salute hys housholde. And Michol the doughter of Saul came out agaynst hym, and sayde: Oh howe glorious was the kynge of Israel to day, which stripte hym selfe to daye before the eyes of ỳ maydens of hys seruauntes, as a lyght buffoon fellowe is wont to stripe hym selfe. But Dauid sayd agayne to Michol, I will make sporte before the Lorde which chose me before thy father & before all hys house, to ordayne me to be ruler ouer all hys people Israel. And I will yet more vyle then so, & will be more in myne owne syght: and shall for all that of the wenches same in whose presence thou spekest of, be had in honoure. *Dauid ouercometh the Philistines and maketh them to be stout tributaries. He ouercõmeth & spoyleth also Adarezer.

After that, Dauid bette the Philistines and subdued them and toke the bridell of bondage oute of theyr handes. And he bette the Moabytes, and a measured them with a lyne, & made them lye a longe on the earth, and thenne measured the length of .ij. lynes to slay, and the length of one lyne to saue a lyue. And so became the Moabites Dauids seruauntes & payde tribute. Dauid smote also Adarezer the sonne of Rehob kynge of Zobah as he went to make the ende of hys coastes at the ryuer Euphrates. And Dauid toke a thousande and seuen hundred horsemen of hys, and twenty thousand fote men & destroyed all hys charettes reseruynge one hundred of them. Then came the Syrians of Damascon to succour Adarezer kynge of Zobah. And Dauid slue of them two and twenty thousande men and put soudyoures in Syria Damascon. And the Syrians became seruauntes to Dauid, payeng tribute. And thus the Lord saued Dauid in all that he went to. And Dauid toke the shyldes of golde that were vpon the seruauntes of Adarezer and brought the to Jerusalem. And thence out of Betah & Berathai cyties of Adarezer he brought exceadynge great aboundaunce of brasse.

And them also kynge Dauid dyd dedicate vnto the Lorde with the syluer and gold that he consecrated of all nacyons whiche he subdued: of the Syrians, the Moabytes, the children of Ammõ the Philistines, the Amalechites, and of the spoyle of Adarezer sonne of Rehob kynge of Zobah. *Dauid remembreth all the tribes of God, to Miphiboseth the sonne of Jonathas.

Then sayde Dauid: is there yet any man lefte of the house of Saul, that I maye shew him mercye for Jonathas sake? And there was of the house of Saul a seruaunt named Ziba which was called vnto Dauid. And the kynge sayde vnto him: art thou Ziba? And he sayde: thy seruaunt is the man. Then sayd the kynge: is there not yet a ny man of the kynred of Saul, whom I may shewe the mercye of God vpon? And Ziba sayde vnto the kynge: Jonathas hath yet a sonne which is lame on both fete. And the kynge sayde vnto him: where is he? And Ziba sayde vnto the kynge: beholde, he is in the house of Machir, the sonne of Ammiel in Lodaber. Then kynge Dauid sent & fet him out of the house of Machir the sonne of Ammiel out of Lodaber. Nowe when Miphiboseth the sonne of Jonathas the sonne of Saul was come vnto Dauid, he bowed him selfe, and fel on hys face. Then sayde Dauid: Miphiboseth? And he answered: Behold thy seruaute. Then the kyng called vnto Ziba Saules

Se therfore that thou & thy sonnes and thy seruauntes tyll the lande for him, and bring in, that thy maysters sonne maye haue fode to eate. ffor Miphiboseth thy maysters sonne shall eate meate alwaye vpon my table. ffor this Ziba had xv. sonnes and twentye seruauntes. Then sayde Ziba vnto the kynge: all that my Lorde hathe sayd vnto his seruaunt, thy seruaunt shall do. ffor (sayde the kyng) Miphiboseth muste eate vpō my table, as one of the kynges sonnes. Thys Miphiboseth had a sonne that was yonge named Micha, and all that dwelled in the house of Ziba were seruauntes vnto Miphiboseth. And Miphiboseth dwelt in Jerusalem, for he ate euer at the kynges table, and was therto halt on both legges.

The.x Chapter.

A The messengers of Dauid are sorefully & vnmanerly entreated of the kyng of Ammon: wherof Dauid auengeth.

IT happened after this, that the
A kyng of the children of Ammō dyed, & Hanon his sonne raygned in his stede. Then sayde Dauid: I wyll shew kyndnesse vnto Hanon the sonne of Nahas, as his father shewed kyndnesse vnto me. And therupō Dauid sente to comfort him by the hande of his seruauntes ouer the death of his father. Now when Dauids seruauntes were come into the lande of the children of Ammon: the Lordes of the children of Ammon sayde vnto Hanon their Lorde: thynkest thou that Dauid doth honoure thy father, because he hath sent to comfort the? Nay, he hath rather sent his seruauntes vnto the, to searche the cyte and to spye out, euen to ouerthrow it.

Wherfore Hanon toke Dauids seruauntes and shaued of the one halfe of euerye mannes bearde & cut of their garmentes euen in
B the middle, euen harde by the buttockes of them and sent them awaye. When it was tolde Dauid he sent against them (for they were men exceedyng ashamed) & sayde: tarye at Jericho vntyll your beardes be growen, & then returne. And when the children of Ammon sawe that they stanke vnto Dauid they sent & hyred the sonnes of Bethrehob & of the Syrians of Zobah. xx. thousande fote men & of kyng Maacah a thousande men, & of Jsrob twelue thousande men. And when Dauid heard of it, he sent Joab & all the hoste of strong men. And the children of Ammon came out & waged battell before the gate & the Syrians of Zobah, of Rehob, Jsrob and Maacah were by themselues in the feldes.

When Joab sawe that the front of the battell was before and after, he chose of all the best of Jsrael & put them in araye against the Syrians. And the rest of the people he betrayed into the hand of Abisai his brother, which put them in araye against the children of Ammon. And he sayd: if the Syrians ouercome
C me, then succoure me. But yf the children of Ammon be to good for the, I wyll come and succoure the, quyte the like a man, and let vs fyght lustely for our people, & for the cytyes of our God. And the Lorde do what semyth best in his eyes. And forthwyth Joab proceded & the people that was with him into battell against the Syrians, which fled before him. And when the children of Ammō sawe that the Syrians were fled, then fled they also before Abisai, and entred into the cytye. And so Joab returned from the children of Ammō & came to Jerusalem. And when the Syrians sawe that they were put to the worse before Jsrael, they gathered them together. And Hadadezer sente & brought out the Syrians that were beyonde the ryuer. And the host of them came, & Sobah the captayne of the host of Hadadezer before the. And when it was shewed Dauid, he gathered all Jsrael, and passed ouer Jordā and D came to Helam: where the Syrians put them selues in araye against Dauid and fought with him: howbe it the Syrians fled before Jsrael. And Dauid destroyed seuen hundred charettes of the and fourtye thousand horsmē and smote Sobah the captayne of his hoste, that he there dyed. And when all the kynges that were seruauntes to Hadadezer sawe that they were put to the worse before Jsrael, they made peace with them, & serued them. And so the Syrians feared to helpe the children of Ammon any more.

The.xi Chapter.

A The vnquietes of Dauid with Bethsabe the wife of Vrias. Dauid to gyue alle layse. After that Dauid taketh Bethsabe to wyfe.

ANd it came to passe in the begyn
ning of a newe yeare, in the tymes A wh̄e kinges are wōt to go forth 1.Para.xx.a to battell, that Dauid sent Joab & his seruauntes with him & all Jsrael. And they destroyed the children of Ammō, & besieged Rabah. But Dauid tarryed styll at Jerusalē. And it chaunged in an euentyde that Dauid arose frō his couche & walked vpō

the roufe of the kynges palace, & frō the roufe sawe a very bewtifull woman washing her selfe. And he sente to enquyre what woman it shulde be. And it was answered agayne, & she was Bethsabe the doughter of Eliam and wyfe to Vrias the Hethite. And Dauid sente messengers and fet her, and she came vnto hym, & he lay with her. And she was straight waye purified from her vncleanesse, & returned vnto her house. And when the woman had perceyued that she had conceyued, she sēt & tolde Dauid, and sayde, I am with childe.
Then Dauid sent to Joab, to sende vnto hym Vrias the Hethite. And Joab sent Vrias to Dauid. And when Vrias was come vnto him he demaunded how Joab dyd, and howe the people fared, and howe the warre prospered.
And Dauid sayd vnto Vrias: go downe
vnto thyne house and wasshe thy fete. And Vrias departed out of the kynges palace, & there followed hym a seruyce from the kynges table. But Vrias slept at the dore of the kynges palace with all the seruauntes of the Lord, and went not downe to his house. Then they tolde Dauid, saying: Vrias descended not vn-
to his house. Then sayd Dauid vnto Vrias: Sayest that thou art come from iourneying,
why doest thou not go downe vnto thine house? And Vrias sayd vnto Dauid: the arck and Israel & Juda dwell in pauilions: & my Lord Joab and the seruauntes of my Lorde lye in tentes vpon the flat earthe: and shulde I then go into myne house, to eate and to drynche & to lye with my wyfe? *By thy lyfe and as sure as thy soule liueth, I will not do that thyng. Then sayde Dauid vnto Vrias: *tar-rye here this daye also, and to morowe I will let the departe. And so Vrias abode in Jerusalem that daye, and on the morowe. And Da-uid called hym, and he ate and dranke before hym, & he made hym dronck. And at euen
he went out to lye on his couche with the seruauntes of the Lorde, and went not downe to his house. Wherfore on the morowe Dauid wrote a letter to Joab, and sente it by Vrias.
And he wrote in the letter, saying: put Vrias
in the fore front of the battel where it is moste strong, and come backe from hym that he may be smytten to death. And as Joab besieged the cytye, he assigned Vrias vnto a place where he wist & stronge men were. And the men of the cytye came out & fought with Joab. And there were eleuen out of the people and of the seruauntes of Dauid, and Vrias
the Hethite dyed also.

Then Joab sent and tolde Dauid all the processe of the warre, and charged the messengers, saying: when thou hast made an end of telling the fourme of the warre vnto the king & he begynne to fume & saye vnto the: wherefore approched ye so nye vnto the cytye to fight? wist ye not that men wold hourle and shote from the walles? who smote Abimelech
the sonne of Jerobesth? dyd not a woman caste a peece of a milstone vpon hym from of the walles, that he dyed in Thebes? why the wēt ye so nye vpon the walles, then saye thou: thy seruaūt Vrias the Hethite is dead also.

And the messengers went and came & shewed Dauid all that Joab had sent hym with, and sayde vnto Dauid: the men prouayled against vs, and came out vnto vs into the feld, & we stacke vnto them, euen vnto the entering of the gate. And the shooters shotte from the walles, and some of the seruauntes of the king be dead. And thy seruaunt Vrias the Hethite is dead also. Then sayde Dauid vnto the messenger, thus wyfe saye vnto Joab, let not the thyng trouble the. For the swerde deuoureth one as well as another: make thy battell more stronge against the cytye, and destroye it, & se that thou courage Joab. And when the wife of Vrias heard that her husbande was dead, she mourned for hym, & as sone as the mourning was ended, Dauid sente and set her to his house, and she was his wyfe & bare hym a sonne. But the deade that Dauid had committed, displased the Lorde.

The.xii. Chapter.

Dauid is reproued for the slaughter of Vrias, and then repenteth. The childe conceyued in aduoutrye, dyed. After it to Salomon borne.

AND the Lorde sent Nathan vnto A Dauid. And he came vnto hym & sayde vnto hym: there were two men in one cytye, a ryche and a poore. And the ryche had excedyng great aboundaunce of shepe and oxen.
But the poore had nothynge saue one lytle lāb which he bought & norysshed vp. And it grew vp with hym and his children, and dyd eate
of his owne meate and dranke of his owne
cuppe, and slept in his bosome, & was as dere vnto hym as his doughter. And there came a straunger vnto the ryche man. And he couldē not spare in his herte to take of his owne shepe nor of his beastes to dresse for the straū-ger that was come vnto hym. But toke & poore mannes lambe, and dressed it for the man that was come to hym. And Dauid was exceding wroth with the man, and sayde to Nathan: as surely as the Lorde lyueth the felowe & hathe B done this thynge, *is the childe of death and * That is, by shall restore the lambe foure folde, because he worshypfull dyd this thynge, and because he had no pitie.
Then Nathan sayd to Dauid: thou arte the man. Thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: I annointed the kynge ouer Israel, & rydde the out of the handes of Saule. And I geue the thy masters house and thy masters wyues into thy bosome, and gaue the the house of Israel and of Juda, and wolde yf that had bene
to lytle, haue geuen the twyse so muche more.
Wherfore hast thou despised the commaunde ment of the Lorde, to do wickednesse in his sight? thou hast slayne Vrias the hethite with the swerde, and hast taken his wyfe to thy wyfe, & hast slayne hym with the swerde of the children of Ammon.

Now therfore the swerd shal neuer depart
from thyne house, because (sayth the Lorde)
thou

thou hast despysed me, and taken the wyfe of Vrias the Hethite, to be thy wyfe. Thus saith the Lorde: beholde I wyl stere vp evyl against the even of thyne owne house, & wyll take thy wyues before thyne eyes, and geue them vnto thy neyghboure, which shal lepe with the *in the syght of the sonne. And thou diddest it secretely, yet wyll I do this thinge before all Israel and in the open sonne syght.

That is, in his high dape, or euenlye.

Then sayde Dauid vnto Nathan: I haue synned against the Lorde. And Nathan sayde against to Dauid: the Lorde hath put awaye thy synne, thou shalt not dye. Howe be it because in doynge this deede thou hast geuen y enemyes of the Lorde a cause to raple, y child that is borne the shall dye surelye. And Nathan departed vnto hys house. And the Lorde strake the childe that Vrias wyfe bare Dauid and it sickened. And Dauid besought god for the boye and fasted and wente & laye all nyght vpon the earthe. And the elders of hys house arose and wente to him to take him vp frō the earthe. But he wolde not, neyther eat meat with them.

And it happened the seuenth daye that the childe dyed. But the seruauntes of Dauid durst not tell hym that the childe was dead. For they said, se while the child was yet alyue, we spake vnto hym, and he wolde not herken vnto oure voyce. How much more then wil he vexe hym selfe yf we tell hym that the childe is dead? But Dauid sawe hys seruauntes whysperyng and therby perceyued that the childe was dead, and sayde vnto hys seruauntes: is the childe dead. And they sayd ye. Then Dauid arose from the earth, & washed & anoynted hym self & chaunged his apparell, & went into the house of the Lorde & prayed, & after came to hys owne house & bade y they shulde set meate before hym, and he dyd eate. Then sayd hys seruauntes vnto hym: what is this that thou hast done? Thou fastedest and wepest for thy childe whyle it was alyue, and as sone as it was dead thou diddest ryse vp, and diddest eate meate. And he answered: while the childe was alyue, I fasted and wept. For I thus thought: who can tel whether God wil haue mercye on me that the childe may lyue. But now seynge it is dead, wherfore shulde I fast? can I bringe hym agayne any more? I shall go to hym: but he shall not come agayne to me. And Dauid comforted Bethsabe hys wyfe, & went in vnto her & laye with her, and she bare a sonne whose name was called * Salomon, and the Lorde loued hym. And he sent by the hand of Nathan the Prophete & called his name * Jedidiah, of the Lordes behalfe.

Now therfore gather the reste of the people together, and come and besege the cyte and take it: lest yf I take it, the honour be ascribed to me. And Dauid gathered all the people together, and went to Rabah and assauted it and got it. * And brake the kynges crowne from of hys heade whiche weyed an hundred waygh of golde, and was set with precious stoures. And Dauid wore it on hys head. And he brought out the spoyle of the cyte in exceadyng great aboundaunce. And he brought oute the people that was therein and sawed them and drue harowes of yron vpon them, and dyed some of them with dyuerse kyndes of yron, & thrust some into fornaces. And so he serued all the cytyes of the children of Ammon. And then Dauid and all the people returned vnto Jerusalem.

The. xiij. Chapter.

¶ Amnō Dauids sonne defyleth his sister Thamar. Absalom reuengeth hys sister Thamar, and after hopeth to haue the kyngdome.

And it chaunced that Absalom Dauids sonne had a fayre sister named Thamar, who afterwarde Amnon another sonne of Dauid loued. And this Amnō was so vexed that he fell sicke for the loue of his sister Thamar: for it thought him harde to come by his purpose of her, seyng she was yet a virgyn. But Amnon had a companyon called Jonadab the sonne of Samah the brother of Dauid: which Jonadab was a very wyse man. And he said vnto him: howe commeth it y thou beynge the kynges sonne arte thus sicke euery mornynge? wouldest thou not tell it me? And Amnon answered him: I loue Thamar my brother Absalomes sister. Then sayde Jonadab vnto him: lye on thy bedde & fayne thy selfe sicke. And when thy father is come to se the, saye vnto hym: let my sister Thamar come & geue me meate, & dresse it in my sight, that I maye se it and eate it of her hande.

And Amnon laye downe & made hym selfe sicke. And when the kyng was come to se hym Amnō said vnto him: let Thamar my sister come & make me a couple of sopettes in my syght, that I maye eat of her hande. And Dauid sent home to Thamar sayenge: go to thy brother Amnons house and dresse him meate. When Thamar came to her brother Amnons house he laye. And she toke flour & made past & made sopettes in hys sight, & dyd bake them, & take a platter & powred the out before hym. And Amnon wolde not eate, but commaunded to haue out all men from hym. And they went all out from hym. Then sayde Amnon vnto Thamar: bryng the meat into the chamber y I maye eate of thyne hand. And Thamar toke y sopettes which she had made, & brought them into the chamber to Amnon her brother & set them before hym to eate. And he take her & said vnto her: come lye by me my sister. And she answered him: naye, my brother do not force me, for it ought not to be so in Israel to vse this folye. * For whether shal I go with my shame? And thou shalt be as one of the fooles in Israel. Gen.xxxviij.a Leuit.xviij.a Howe be it he wolde not herken vnto her voyce, but was to stroge for her & forced her & lay with her. And then Amnon hated her exceadyngly: so þ the hate wherewith he hated her, was greater then the love with which he before loued her. And he sayd vnto her: vp & away. Then she sayde vnto him: this greate cruelnesse that thou puttest me awaye, passeth the other that thou dyddest vnto me. Neuertheles he wolde not heare her, but called his lad that wayted vpon him, & said: put her out at the doores fro me & bolt the dore after her. And she had a kirtell of diuerse colours vpō her: for with such were the kynges doughters that were virgins apparelled, made strayt vn to thē. Then his seruaunt brought her out at the doores, & locked the doores after her. And Thamar put ashes on her head and rent her gay kyrtell that was on her, & put her hande on her head & so went, & as she went, cryed. Thē Absalom her brother sayd vnto her: hath Amnon thy brother bene with the? Now thē be styll my sister: for he is thy brother. And let not this thynge greue thyne herte. And so Thamar remayned discomforted in her brother Absalōs house. And kyng Dauid heard of all these thynges, & was very wroth. And Absalom spake vnto his brother Amnon ney ther good nor bad. Howe be it Absalom hated Amnon, because he had forced his sister Thamar.

And it happened two yeare after that Absalō had a shepeherdyng in Baal Hazor besydes the tribe of Ephraim, & had all þ kynges sonnes, & he came to the kinge & sayde: beholde thy seruaunt hath a shepeherdyng, let þ kyng & his seruauntes come with thy seruaūt. And the kyng sayd vnto Absalō: Ah nay my sōne, let vs not go euerye one of vs that we be not chargeable vnto the. And Absalom laye sore vpon him: howe be it he wolde not go, but blessed him. Then sayd Absalom: then let my brother Amnon go with vs. And the kynge answered what nedeth it that he go with the? But Absalom made such instaunce that he let Amnon go with him, & all the kynges children.

Then Absalom commaunded his younge men sayinge: marke when Amnons herte is merye with wyne, & when I byd you smyte Amnon then kyll him: feare not, for it is I þ byd you, be bolde therfore, & playe the lustye blouddes. And the young men of Absalom serued Amnon euen as Absalom commaunded them. And all the kynges sonnes arose & toke eche man his Mule & fled. And whyle they were yet in the waye, tydynges came to Dauid that Absalom had slayne all the kynges sonnes, so þ none was left a lyue. Thē þ kyng arose, & tare his garmentes, & laye a longe on the earth: & all his seruauntes stode by with their clothes rēt. Then Jonadab the sonne of Samah Dauids brother answered & sayd: let not my Lorde suppose that they haue slayne all the younge men the kynges sonnes, saue Amnon onelye is dead. For that hath be euer in Absaloms mouthe sence he forced his sister Thamar. Now therfore let not my Lorde the kynge take the thyng so greuously to thinck that all the kynges sonnes were deade, when Amnon onelye is dead.

But Absalom fled. And the younge man þ kepe the watche, lyfte vp his eyes and loked aboute. And beholde there came much people by a waye that was behynde his backe a lōg by an hylles syde. Then sayd Jonadab vnto the kynge: beholde, the kynges sonnes are come, and as thy seruaunt sayde, so it is. And as sone as he had lefte speakyng: beholde, the kinges sonnes came and lyfte vp their voyces, & wept. And therto the kynge and all his seruauntes wept exceadyngly. But Absalom escaped and went to Tholmai the sonne of Amiud kynge of Gesur. And the kynge moorned for his sonne contynually. And so Absalom escaped and went to Gesur, & was there thre yeares. And by that tyme the kynge turned his mynde from pursuynge Absalom. For he had lefte mournyng for the death of Amnon.

The.xiiij.Chapter.

Then Joab the sonne of Zarui ah perceyued that the kynges herte was turned against Absalom, he sent to Thekoa, and set thence a wyse woman, and sayde vnto her: fayne thy selfe to be a mourner, and put on mournyng apparell. And anoynt not thy selfe with oyle. But be as a woman that had long tyme mourned for þ death of some bodye. And go to the kynge & speake of this maner vnto him. And so Joab taught her what she shulde saye.

And when the wyse of Thekoa was come to speake with the kynge, she fell on her face to the grounde & dyd obeysaunce & sayd: helpe me O kynge. And the kynge sayde vnto her: what ayleth the? & she answered, I am a wydow, and myne husbande is deade. And thy handmayde had two sonnes which fought in the feldes where was no man to go betwene the, & the one slewe the other. trouble the. Then sayde the kynge remember hys Lorde God, that the next of the bloude gather not on heapes together to destroye, and that they slaye not my sonne. And he sayde: as sure as the Lorde lyueth, there shall not one heare of thy sonnes head fal to the earthe.

Then the woman sayde: let thyne handmaid speake one worde more vnto my Lorde the kynge: & he sayde: saye on. And the woman sayde: wherfore then hast thou determined on thys same maner agaynst the people of God? that the kyng should speake thys thyng and be sautye therein, so that the kynge shulde not fet home agayne hys banyshed. For we must nedes dye and perish as water spylt on ye grounde whiche cannot be gathered vp agayne: & God wyl not take awaye the lyfe but fynde ye meanes that the banyshed be not vtterly expelled from hym. And nowe concernynge that I am come to speake of thys thinge vnto the kinge my Lorde in the presence of the people: thy handmayde thought: I wyll speake vnto the kynge, paraduenture the kynge wyl here the requeste of his handmayde. And the kyng shal heare his handmayde & deliuer her oute of the hand of the man that wolde haue destroied me & my sonne also oute of the enheritaunce of God. Then thine handmaid sayde: I praye God that the worde of my Lorde the kinge maye be *immutable. For my Lord the kynge is as an angell of God, in hearinge of good or bad: and therfore the Lorde thy God be with the.

*Immutable. vnchaunge able.

Then the kyng answered & sayde vnto the woman: hyde not frō me I praye the the thyng that I shall aske the. And the woman sayde: let my Lorde the kyng saye on. Then sayd ye kyng: Is not the *hand of Joab with the in all this matter? And the woman answered and sayde: as sure as thy soule liueth my Lorde kinge, it is *neyther on the right hande nor on ye lefte, that my Lorde the kinge hath spoken. For thy seruaunt Joab he bad me, and he put all these wordes euen in the mouthe of thyne handemaide. And the turnynge of my talke another waye, that made thy seruaunte Joab. And to fet that my Lorde is wise euen as an Angell of God, to vnderstande all thinges that are in the earth. Then sayd the kinge to Joab, behold I am content to do this thynge. Go ther fore fet home the lad Absalom. And Joab fell to the grounde on his face, & bowed him selfe and *blessed the kinge and sayde: now thy seruaunt knoweth that I haue founde grace in the sight of my Lorde the kyng in that he hath fulfylled the requeste of his seruaunt. And so Joab arose & went to Gesur & broughte Absalom to Jerusalem. Then sayde the kinge: let hym turne to hys owne house, but se that he come not in my presence. And so Absalō went to his owne house, but came not in the kinges presence.

*This is the answere. *This is my lorde kyng spekynge to mockte, but when ye ye thyng as Nathan, &c. *Bless, pray for kyng as we say.

Moreouer in all Jsrael there was not so goodlye a man as Absalō, so greatly praysed, frō the soole of hys fote to the toppe of his head there was no blemish in him. And whē he shaued hys head (for at euery yeres ende he shaued it, because it was heuye on hym,) ye heare therof waged. ij. hundred sicles weyght of the kynges weight. And thre Absalom had thre sonnes borne hym & one doughter named Thamar, whiche was a fayre woman to loke vpon. When Absalom had dwelt two yeare in Jerusalem wythoute comyng into the kynges presence he sente for Joab, to haue sente hym to the kynge. But he wolde not come to hym. And he sent agayne, & for all that he wolde not come. Then he sayd vnto hys seruauntes: behold, Joab hath a parcell of lande fast by myne, & hath barley there in. Go and set it on fyre. And Absaloms seruauntes went and set it on fyre.

Then Joab arose & came to Absalō vnto hys house, & sayde vnto hym: wherfore haue thy seruauntes burnt my feld with fyre? And Absalom said to Joab: beholde, I sente for the desyringe the to come, because I wolde haue sente the to the kinge, for to saye: Wherfore am I come from Gesur: It had ben as good for me to haue bydde there styll. Now therfore let me come to the kynges presence, & yf there be any trespace in me, kyll me. And Joab wente to the kyng & tolde him. And he sent for Absalom, whiche when he was come, fell to the grounde on hys face before the kynge. And the kynge kissed him.

The.xiv. Chapter.

¶ Absalom maketh insurrection agaynst hys father. & sayd he is the fyre of hym.

After thys Absalom gat him charettes & horses & fyfty men to runne before him. And therto he vsed to ryse vp early in the morninges & to stande by the wayes side that led to the gate of the cyty. And all ye men of Jsrael ye had cōplaynte & came to the kynge for Judgement, he called vnto hym & sayde: of what cyty arte thou? And whē he other answered: thy seruaunte is of suche a tribe of Jsrael. Then sayde Absalom vnto hym: se, thy matter is good and rygh treous, & yet no man is deputed of the kynge to heare the. Then Absalom sayd moreouer: Oh, that I were a Judge in the lande, and that all me whiche haue pleyes and matter in the lawe, shulde come to me. For I wold do the iustice. And also when any mā came nye to hym to do hym obeysaunce, he put forth his hand & toke him to him & kyssed hym. And on this maner dyd Absalom to all Jsrael that came to the kynge for iudgement, & therwyth * stale the hertes of the men of Jsrael. And at fourtye yeres ende Absalom sayde vnto the kynge: let me go I praye the to Hebron, & paye my vowe which I haue vowed, vnto the Lorde: for thy seruaunt vowed a vowe when I was in Gesur in the land of Syria sayenge: yf the Lord shall bringe me agayne to Jerusalem, I wyl serue the Lorde. And the kynge sayd: go in peace.

*That is, he dyd pretende of iustice take awaye the hertes, & wan the they wist not how: and so deceyued the, that they consented to him & dyscouered hys ryght.

peace. And so he arose and went to Hebron.

Then Absalom sent spyes thorow out all ꝑ trybes of Israel sayinge: as sone as ye heare the voyce of the trompet blowe, saye: Absalō raygneth kynge in Hebron. And wyth Absalom went .ii. hundred men out of Jerusalē that were called. And they went with pure hertes & wist nothyng of ꝑ matter. And Absalō sente also for Ahithophel the Gilonite Dauids counseller, and fet hym out of his cite Giloh, when he sacrifyed sacrifyces. And there was wrought strong treason. And the people drue to Absalō in great multytude. And there came a messinger to Dauid & sayd: the hertes of ꝑ men of Israel are to folow Absalom. Then sayd Dauid vnto all hys seruauntes ꝑ were wyth hym at Jerusalē: vp & let vs flee, for we shall not ellis escape from Absalom: Make spede to departe: lest he come sodenly & catche vs, & bryng some mysche[illegible] vpon vs, & smyte the cyte with the edge of the swerde. And the kynges seruauntes sayde to hym: beholde thy seruauntes are ready to whatsoeuer my Lord the kynge shall appoynte.

And the kyng and all hys housholde departed a fote. And he left behynde hym tē wiues that were hys .x. concubynes, to kepe ꝑ house. And so the kyng & al the people went out a fote, & tarped farre from the house. And all hys seruauntes went by hys syde. And al the Cerethites & all the Phelethites, and al ꝑ Gethites euen .vi. hundred men which were come a fote from Geth, went before the kyng. Then sayd the kyng to Ethai the Gethite, wherfore shuldest thou go wyth vs also. Returne and abyde wyth the kynge, for thou art a straunger, and arte remoued from thyne owne place. Thou camest but yester daye, and shulde I vnquyet the to daye to go wyth vs? I wyl go whether I go. But returne thou and carye a gayne thy brethren: Mercy and truth be with the. And Ethai answered the kyng & sayd: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, & as surely as my Lorde the kynge lyueth, in what place my Lorde the kyng shalbe, whether in deathe or lyfe, euen there wyll thy seruaunt be. Then sayde the kynge to Ethai, come & go forward. And Ethai the Gethite went forthe, & all hys men, and all the chyldren that were wyth hi. And all the countrey wept wyth a loud voice. And all the people went forwarde ꝑ straight waye to the wyldernesse. And beholde, Sadoch and all the Leuytes were wyth him and bare the arche of the appoyntmente of God. And when they had set doune the arch of god Abiathar came vp, vntyll the people were all come ouer, oute of the cytye. Then sayde the kynge vnto Sadoch. Carye the arche of God agayne into the cytye. If I shall fynde fauour in the eyes of the Lorde, he wyll bryng me agayne, and shewe me both it and the tabernacle therof also. But and yf the Lorde thus saye: I haue no lust vnto the. Beholde, here am I, let hym do wyth me what semeth best in hys eyes.

The kynge sayde also vnto Sadoch the ꝑ priest: thou arte a sear. Returne therfore into the cytye in peace. And take youre two sōnes wyth you: Ahimaaz thy sonne, and Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar. And se, I wyll tarye in the feldes of the wyldernesse vntyll there come some worde from you to be tolde me. And so Sadoch and Abiathar caryed the arche of God agayne to Jerusalem, and they tarped there. And Dauid went vp on mount Oliuet & wepte as he wente, and had hys head couered & went therto barefote. And all the people that was wyth him, had euery man hys head couered, and as they went wepte also. And one tolde Dauid saying: Ahithophel is one of them that haue conspyred wyth Absalō. Then sayde Dauid: O Lorde, turne the counsell of Ahithophel into folysshnes.

When Dauid was come to the toppe of ꝑ mount, & had bowed hym self vnto God: beholde, Husai the Arachite came agaynst hym with hys coote torne and earth vpō his head. Vnto whom Dauid sayde: yf thou go wyth me thou shalt be a burthen vnto me. And yf ꝑ returne to the cytye: then shalt thou saye vnto Absalō: I wyl be thy seruaunt O kyng: thus long haue I ben thy fathers seruaunt, & now I am thyne. And destrope me the counsell of Ahithophel. And thou hast there with ꝑ Sadoch & Abiathar the priestes, vnto whych thou shalt shew all that thou canst heare out of the kynges house. And behold, ye haue there with you their two sonnes: Ahimaaz Sadockes sōne, & Jonathas Abiathars sonne, by whiche ye shall sende me all that ye can heare. And so Husai Dauids frende gat hym to the cytye. And Absalom also entred into Jerusalem.

The.xvi.Chapter.

Ziba bryngeth presentes to Dauid, beyng falsely enuyed vpō Miphiboseth. Semey curseth Dauid & throweth stones at hym. Absalom by the counsell of Ahithophell lyeth with his fathers concubynes.

And when Dauid was a lytle past the toppe of the hyll: behold Ziba the seruaunt of Miphiboseth came agaynste hym with a couple of Asses saddeled, & vpon them two hundred loues and one hūdred bonches of Resynges, and an hundred fraples of dryed frygges, & a bottell of wyne. Che sayde the kynge to Ziba: what hast thou there? And Ziba sayde: Asses for the kynges housholde to ryde on, and bread & frute for the young men to eate, and wyne to drynche, yf any mā faynte in the wyldernesse. Then sayde the kynge: where is thy masters sonne? and Ziba sayd vnto the kyng: beholde, he tarpeth styll at Jerusalem. For he sayde: thys daye shall the house of Israell restore me the kyngdome of my father. Then sayd the kynge to Ziba: beholde, thyne are all that pertayned vnto Miphiboseth. And Ziba answered: I beseche the that I maye fynde grace in thy syghte my Lorde Kynge.

And when Kynge Dauid came to Bahurim: beholde, there came out a man of the kin-

rede of the house of Saul named Semei, the sonne of Gera, and he came out cursyng. And therto he cast stones at Dauid and at all the seruauntes of kynge Dauid, all the people &
all the men of warre goyng part on his right hand, and part on hys lefte. And thus sayde thys Semei as he cursed: come forthe, come forthe thou bloudesheder and thou vnthryfte man. The lord hath brought vpon the all the bloude of the house of Saul, in whose stede
thou hast raygned, and he hathe delyuered
the kyngedome into the hand of Absalom thy sonne. And thou art wrapped aboute wt thyne owne mysheue, because thou arte a bloude-sheder.

Then sayde Abisai the sonne of Zeruiah
vnto the kynge: why dothe this deade dogge curse my Lorde the kyng? let me go and take of the head of hym. And the kyng sayde: what haue I to do with you ye sonnes of Zeruiah?
let him curse: for the Lorde hath bydden him curse Dauid. And who dare presume to saye wherfore dothe he so? And Dauid sayde to Abisai, and to all his seruauntes: beholde, my sonne whyche came out of mine owne bowelles seketh my life. How muche more then may thys sonne of Jemini do it? Suffer hym therefore to curse, for the Lorde hath bidden hym:
happlye the Lorde wyll loke on my wretched-nesse, and do me good for hys cursynge thys daye. And thus as Dauid and hys men went by the waye, Semei went a longe on the hylles syde ouer against hym, and cursed as he went, and threwe stones at him, and cast dust.
And the kynge and all that were wyth hym,
came wery, and refreshed them selues there.

And Absalom and al the people of the men of Israel came to Jerusalem and Ahithophel with hym. And as sone as he was come, Hu-sai the Arachite went vnto Absalom and said
vnto hym: God saue the kynge, God saue the kynge. And Absalom sayde agayne to Husai:
is thys the kyndnesse thou owest to thy frende?
Why wentest thou not with him? And Husai said vnto Absalom: naye not so, but whom Lorde and thys people and al the men of Israel chose, his will I be, and wyth hym wil I dwel. And furthermore vnto whome shall I do seruice, but vnto his sonne? And as I was seruaunt before wyth thy father, euen so shall I be with the. Then spake Absalom to Ahitho-phel: geue counsel, what is best for vs to do?
And Ahithophell sayde vnto Absalom: get in vnto thy fathers * concubines, whiche he hath lefte to kepe the house. For when all Israell shall heare, that thou hast made thy father to stynke, then shall the handes of all that are with the, be stronge. And so they pitched Absalom a tent vpon the * toppe of the house. And he went in vnto his fathers concu-bynes in the syght of al Israel.

And the counsell of Ahithophel whiche he counceled in those dayes, was a man had ak-hed counsel of God: euen so was al the counsel of Ahithophel, both vnto Dauid and vnto Absalom.

The. xvij. Chapter.

¶ Ahithophel seyng hys counsel is hindred of Absalom and his fathers, hangeth him selfe.

THen Ahithophel sayd vnto Absalom: let me chose out, I pray the, twelue thousand me. And I will vp and folowe after Dauid by night. And I wil come vpo hym whyle he is werye and weake handed, and will feare hym, that all the people that are wt
hym shal flee. And so wyl I smyte the kinge onlye, and wyl bynge agayne all the people vnto the. And when al these men whyche thou seketh, are turned to the, and al the people shal
haue rest. And the sayinge pleaseth Absalom well and all the elders of Israel. Then sayde Absalom: cal also Husai the Arachite and lete vs heare hys sentence. When Husai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake vnto him saying:
Ahithophel hathe geuen suche counsel: whether it be best, we do after his saying or not,
tell thou.

Then sayde Husai to Absalom: the counsel that Ahithophel hath geue, is not good at this tyme. For (sayd Husai) thou knowest thy father, & the me that are with him, how y they be strong men. And they be chafed in their mindes, euen as a * beare robbed of her whel-
pes. And thy father is a man practised in warre and wyll not lye a nyghes amonge the co-men people. Beholde he lurketh now in some caue or in som other place. And therto though some of hys men be ouerthrowen at the fyrst
braut, yet they that heare it wil thynck the peo ple that foloweth Absalō be put to the woorse.
Of the reason wherof the best men thou hast
whose hertes are as the hertes of Lyons, shal stynke therat. For all Israel knoweth that thy father is a man, and that they whyche is
with hym be children of actoute.

But my counsel is, that all Israel be gathered vnto the, from Dan to Berlabe, as the sande of the sea in nōbre, and that thou go to bataple in thyne owne person. And we wyll come vpon him in one place or other, where we shall spede hym, and we wyl pitche a feld against hym, euen as thyche as the dew falleth on the grounde. And there shall not one of them be lefte, nether he or any of all that are wyth hym. Moreouer yf he take a towne then shall al the men of Israel * bynge ropes to that cytye, and we wil drawe it into the ryuer, vntyl there be not one stone found vpon
another. And Absalom & al the men of Israel said: y the counsel of Husai the Arachite was better then the counsel of Ahithophel. For it was euen the lordes determinacion to destroy the * counsel of Ahithophel: whych was good that the Lorde myght bynge euyl vpon Absalom. Then sayd * Husai vnto Sadoch and Abiathar the preestes: of thys and that maner
dyd Ahithophel and the elders of Israel coun sel Absalom. And thus and thus haue I counseled. Nowe therfore send quyckelye and shew

David sayinge: tarye not al the night in the fyldes of the wildernesse, but get the ouer, lest the kinge be deuoured, and al the people that are with him. Now Jonathas and Ahimaaz abode by the wel rogel: for they might not be sene to come into the cyte. And a wenche wēt and tolde them. And they to go and shewed kynge David.

Neuerthelesse there was a lad sawe them whyche tolde it to Absalom. But they went bothe of them awaie quickely and came to a mannes house in Bahurim, which had a well in his yarde, into whiche they went doune. And the wyfe toke and spred a courtiet on the toppe of the wel and strawed theron stray ped barleye to drie. And the thinge was not spyed. And when Absaloms seruauntes came to the wyfe to the house and asked where our Ahimaaz and Jonathas were, the wyfe sayde vnto them: they be gone ouer the lyttel broche of water. And when they had sought them, & coulde not fynde them, then they returned to Jerusalem. And as sone as they were departed, the other came out of the wel, and went and tolde kynge David and sayde vnto him: vp and get you quickely ouer the water for such counsel hath Ahithophel geuen. Then David arose and al the people that were with him, & they were come ouer Jordan be that it was daye, that there lacked not one of them, that was not come ouer Jordan. And when Ahithophel saw that his counsel was not followed, he saddelleth his asse, and arose, & gate hym home to his owne house and to his own cyte, and put his houlholde in order and handled him selfe and dyed, and was buryed in the sepulchre of his father.

Then David came to Mahanaim. And Absalom passed ouer Jordan, both he and all the men of Israel with him. And Absalom made Amasa captayne of the hoste in stede of Joab, whyche Amasa was a mannes sonne named Jethra a Jesraelite that went into Abigal the doughter of Naah syster to Zaruiah Joabs mother. And Israell and Absalom pytched in the lande of Galaad. And when David was come to Mahanaim, Sobi the sonne of Naah out of Rabath the cyte of the children of Ammon, and Machir the sonne of Ammiell out of Lodabar and Berzelai the Galaadite out of Rogelim, brought beddes, basens, and earthen vessellen: and also corne, barly, floure & parched corne, beanes & pyer hony, butter, sheepe and cheese of kine, for David & all the people that were with him to eate. For they supposed that the people shoulde be hongrye, faintye, and thurstye in the wildernesse.

The .xvij. Chapter.

¶ Absalom is ouercome in battel. He hangeth by the heare on an Oke. He is killed. & put in a pytte. David is lamented for the death of Absalom against reason.

And the kynge nombred the people that were with him, and set captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes ouer them. And he sent ouer parte of them with Joab and another parte with Abisai the sonne of Zaruiah Joabs brother, and the thyrde parte with Ethai the Gethite. And the kynge sayde vnto the people: thal I go with you? And the people answered: naye, for yf we flie, our aduersaryes will not care for vs, neither though be halfe of vs were slaine, thal they regarde vs. But thou were worth ten thousand of vs. And therto it is better, that thou be ready to succoure vs out of the cyte. Then sayd the kinge: what semeth you best, that wil I do.

And the kynge stode by the gates syde, & all the people came out by hundredes and by thousandes. And the kynge commaunded Joab, Abisai, and Ethai sayinge: intreate me gently my sonne Absalom. And all the people hearde when the kynge gaue all the captaynes charge ouer Absalom. And the people went out into the felde against Israel, and the battel was in the wode of Ephraim. Where the people of Israel were put to the worse before the seruauntes of David, and there was a great slaughter that daye, euen of twēty thousand men. And the felde was foughte in diuerse places, al abroade vpon the earthe. And the wodes deuoured mo people that day then dyd the swerde. And it chaunced Absalom to come before the seruauntes of David ryding vpon a Mule whiche carried him vnder the thycke bowes of a great Oke. And his heade caught in the Oke, and he was left betwene heauen and earth, and the Mule that was vnder him, went his waye. And one that sawe it tolde Joab sayinge: behold, I saw Absalom hangen in an Oke: And Joab sayd vnto him that tolde him: lo, sawest thou him? And why diddest not thou there smyte him to the ground, that I shoulde haue geuen the ten sicles of syluer and a soudyoures girdle.

And the man answered Joab: thoughe I had a thousand sycles of syluer tolde in my hande yet woulde I not stretche out myne hande against the kynges sonne: for we hearde with oure eares when the kinge charged the, Abisai and Ethai sayinge: spare me the lad Absalom. Moreouer though I had ieoparded my lyfe and done faillye therto, yet coulde nought of al the matter haue bene hyd from the kynge: ye and thou thy selfe wouldest be against me. Then sayde Joab * I may not stand tarying with the.

And therwith he toke thre speares in his hand and thrust them into the hart of Absalō, whyle he was yet a lyue on the bodye of the tree. And ten seruauntes that bare Joabs weapons, turned and smote Absalom and slue him. Then Joab blewe a trompet, and the people returned from folowing Israel: for Joab spared the people. And they toke Absalom & cast him into a great pit that was in the wood and cast a myghty great heape of stones vpō him. And al Israel fled euery man to his tent. And this Absalom yet in his life time, toke and reared vp a pyller, whyche is yet in kynges dale. For he sayd: I haue no male chylde.

And

* That is, it is not best I tarye with the, & take it thou thy selfe go hyd hym.

And therfore to kepe my name in remembraunce do I it. And he called the piller after his owne name. And it is called vnto this daye, Absaloms piller.

Then sayd Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadoch: let my runne I praye the, and beare the kynge tydynges, how that the lord hath iudged him quyte of the handes of all hys enemies. And Joab said vnto him: thou art no man to beare tydinges to daye: thou shalt beare tydynges a nother tyme: but to daye thou shalt beare none, because the kynges sonne is dead. Then said Joab to Chusi: go and tel the kyng what thou hast sene. And Chusi bowed him selfe vnto Joab, and ranne. Then saide Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadoch agayn to Joab: come what come will, let me run I praye the after Chusi. And Joab sayde: wherfore shouldest thou runne my sonne? for and thou runne, thou gettest no rewarde: well come, what wyll let me runne. And he sayde vnto hym: runne. Then Ahimaaz ranne by the playne and ouerranne Chusi.

And David sat betwene the two gates. And the watcheman went vp to the rouffe ouer the gate vnto the walle, and lyfte vp his eyes and sawe: and beholde, there came a man runnynge alone. And the watcheman called, and tolde the kynge. And the kynge sayde: yf he come alone, there is tidinges in his mouth. And he came and drewe nye. And the watcheman saw another man runnynge, and called vnto the porter and sayd: behold there cometh another runnyng alone. And the kyng answerede: he is also a tydynges bringer. And the watcheman saide: me thynketh, the runnynge of the formost is lyke the runnynge of Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadoch. And the kyng said: he is a good man, and cometh with good tydynges. And Ahimaaz called and sayde to the kynge: good tydynges, and bowed hym selfe to the earthe vpon hys face before the kynge and sayde: blessed be the Lord thy god whyche hath *shut vp all the men that lyft vp their handes agaynst my Lorde the kynge. And the kynge saide: is the lad Absalom safe? And Ahimaaz answered: I sawe a great a do when the kynges seruaunt Joab sent me thy seruaunt. But I wote not what it was. And the kynge sayde: turne and stande here. And he turned and stode.

*That is, cut them.

And behold Chusi came and sayde: tydynges my lord the king, the Lorde hathe quyte the this daye out of the handes of all that rose agaynst the. And the kyng said to Chusi: is the lad Absalo safe? And Chusi answered: the enemies of my Lorde the kynge and all that ryse agaynst the, to hurte the, be as thy lad is. And the kynge was moued and went vp to a chambre ouer the gate and wept. And as he went, thus he sayde: my sonne Absalom my sonne, my sonne, my sonne Absalom, wolde to God I had dyed for thy Absalom, my sonne, my sonne.

The. xix. Chapter.

¶ Dauid is to retourne to his kingdome and taryeth agaynst to Jerusalem.

AND it was tolde Joab, how that the kyng wepte and mourned for Absalom. And the victory was turned that daye into mourning vnto all the people. For the people heard saye that daye, how the kynge sorowed for his sonne, and the people went stalynge into the cyte, as people confounted whe awaye, when they flee in battel. And the kynge hyd hys face and cryed with a loude voyce: my sonne Absalom, Absalom my sonne, my sonne.

And Joab went into the house to the king and sayde: thou hast shamed thys daye the faces of all thy seruaunts, whyche thys daye haue saued thy lyfe, and the lyues of thy sonnes and daughters, and the lyues of thy wyues and concubines, in that thou louest thyne enemies and hatest thy frendes. Thou hast declared thys daye that thou regardest neyther for thy Lordes nor seruaunts. For thys daye I do perceyue, yf Absalom had lyued, and all we dyed this daye, that then it had pleased the wel. Now therfore vp and come out, and speake frendely vnto thy seruaunts. I sweare by the Lorde except thou come out, there wil not tarye one man with the this nyght. And that wilbe worse vnto the, then all the euyl that fel on the from thyne youth vnto this houre. Then the kinge arose and sat downe in the Gate. And it was tolde vnto all the people, how the kynge sat in the Gate. And then all the people came before the kynge. But Israel fled euery man to his tent.

And all the people were at strife throughout all the tribes of Israel sayinge: the kinge deliuered vs out of the hand of oure enemies. And he delyuered vs out of the hand of the Philistines. And nowe he is fled out of the land for Absalom. For Absalom whom we anoynted ouer vs is dead in battel. Now therfore why are ye so styl, that ye bringe not the kynge agayne. And kinge David sent to Sadoch & Abiathar the prieste sayinge: speake vnto the elders of Juda and saye: why shoulde ye be the last that shoulde bringe agayne the kynge to his house, seynge that the tydynges is come from all Israel vnto the kynge vnto his house? ye are my brethern, my bones and my flesche: wherfore then shoulde ye be the last that shoulde come to bringe the kinge home agayne? And saye to Amasa: art thou not my bone and my flesche. And god do so to me and so therto: except thou be captayne of the hoste to me for euer in the roume of Joab. And he bowed the hertes of all the men of Juda, as a man woulde bowe the hert of one man: so that they sent worde to the kynge, that he shoulde returne with all his seruaunts. And the kynge returned and came to Jordan. And Juda came to Galgal for to go agaynst the kynge to conueye him ouer Jordan. And Semei *the sonne of Gera the sonne of Jemini, whiche was of Bahurim, hasted and came with the men of Juda against king Dauid, and a thousande men of Beniamin with hym, and Siba the seruaunt of the house of Saul and his .xv. sonnes and twentye seruauntes with him. And they whypte ouer Jordan before the kyng. And there went ouer a Botte to carye ouer the kynges housholde and to do hym pleasure.

2.Reg.xvi.a.

And Semei the sonne of Gera fell before the kinge, as he was come ouer Jordan and saide vnto hym: let not my Lord impute wickednesse vnto me, nor let him not remember the wickednesse that thy seruaunt dyd, when my Lorde the kynge departed out of Jerusalem that the kynge should take it to herte. For thy seruaunt doth knowe how that I haue done amysse. And therfore beholde, I am the first this daye of all the house of Joseph that am come to mete my Lorde the kinge. But Abisai the sonne of Saruiah answered and said: shall Semei not dye for that cause, whyche cursed the Lordes anoynted. And the kynge sayd: what matter is betwene you and me ye sonnes of Saruiah, that ye shoulde this daye be aduersaries vnto me? There shall no man dye this daye in Israel: for I know that I am this daye kinge ouer Israel. And the kynge sayde vnto Semei: thou shalt not dye, I swere vnto hym.

And Miphiboseth the sonne of Saul came also to mete the kinge, and hath neither dressed his fete nor shauen his beard nor washed his clothes from the tyme the kyng departed, vntyl he came again in peace. And when he was come to Jerusalem towarde the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto hym: wherfore wentest not thou with me Miphiboseth? And he saide: my Lorde kinge, my seruaunt deceyued me. For thy seruaunt sayde: that I wolde haue mine Asse sadled to ride theron, for to go to the king because thy seruaunt is lame. And he hathe therto complayned on thy seruaunt vnto my Lorde the kynge. But my Lord the kynge is as an angel of God: do therfore what semeth best in thyne eyen. For all my fathers house were but deadmen vnto my Lorde the kyng: and yet dyddest thou put me amonge them y eate at thyne owne table. What ryght therfore haue I yet, to crye any more vnto y king? And the kynge sayde: it needeth the not to speake any more, for I haue sayd, that thou & Siba shall deuyde the landes betwene you. And Miphiboseth sayde vnto the kynge: ye let hym take all: for so moche as my Lorde the kynge is come in peace vnto his owne house.

And Berselai the Galeadite came from Rogelim and went ouer Jorda with the king, to accompanye hym ouer Jordan, which Berselai was a very aged man, euen foure score yeares olde, and had prouyded the kynge of sustenaunce whyle he laye at Mahanaim: for he was a man of verye great substaunce. And the kinge sayd vnto Berselai: come thou with me, that I may fede the with me in Jerusalē.

But Berselai sayde vnto the kynge: of what age am I of, that I shoulde go with the king in Jerusalem? I am this day foure score yeare olde, and therfore cānot decerne sauery from vnsauery, neither hath thy seruaunt pleasure in that he eateth or drynketh: nor yet delecte vpon in the songes of men or women. It is no nede that thy seruaunt be a burthen vnto my Lorde the kynge: let thy seruaunt go a lytle waye ouer Jordan with the kynge: for why shoulde the kynge render me suche a reward? But let thy seruaunt turne back agayne, that I maye dye in mine owne cyte, by the graue of my father and mother. But lo here is thy seruaunt Chamaam: let hym go with my Lorde the kynge, and to do hym, what shall please the.

And the kynge answered: Chamaam shal go with me. And I will do to him that thou shalt be content with. And therto whatsoeuer thou shalt require of me, that same will I do for the. And al the people went ouer Jordan. And when the kynge was come ouer Jordan he kissed Berselai and toke his leaue of him, and he went backe agayne vnto hys owne place. And then the kynge went to Galgal, and Chamaam went with hym. Nowe all the men of Juda were at the kyngepoge ouer of the kynge, and but halfe the men of Israel.

Wherfore all the men of Israel came to the kinge and sayde vnto hym: why haue our brethren the men of Juda stolen the awaye, & haue brought the kinge and his housholde & al Dauids men with him ouer Jordan. And al the men of Juda answered the men of Israel: for the kinge is nere of kinne to vs: wherfore be ye angry for that matter? thynche ye that we eate of the kingescoll, or that the king geueth vs any gyftes? And the men of Israel answered the men of Juda & said: we haue ten partes in the kynge, and haue therto more ryght to Dauid then ye. Why then did ye despise vs, that oure aduyse had not bene spoke had in reducyng oure kinge agayne? And the wordes of the men of Juda were fearcer then the wordes of the men of Israel.

Sheba the sonne of Bochri reuolteth from Dauid against whom Joab hyreth Amasa traytorously. The death of Sheba is reuenged to Joab. Dauids officers are numbred.

And there happened to be an vnthryfte fellow named Sheba the sonne of Bochri a man of Gemini whyche blewe a trompet and sayde: we haue no parte in Dauid, nor inheritaunce in the sonne of Jesse, o Israel, let vs departe therfore euery man to hys tent. And al Israel went from Dauid and folowed Sheba the sonne of Bochri. But the men of Juda claue fast vnto the kyng, frō Jordan to Jerusalem.

And when Dauid was come to his house to Jerusalem, he toke the ten wyues hys concubynes that he had left behinde him to kepe the house, & put them inwarde and ministred all thynges vnto them: but laye no more with them. And so they were enclosed vnto the day of the death of them, and lyueth a wydowes lyfe.

B Then sayde the kynge to Amasa: call me the men of Juda together with in thre dayes and present thy selfe here. And Amasa went together, the men of Juda together: but tarred longer then the tyme whiche was appointed him. Wherfore the kinge sayde to Abisai: now shal Seba the sonne of Bochri be worse to vs then Absalom. Take thou therfore thy *Lordes seruauntes and folowe after him: lest he get him walled cyties and escape vs. And there went out after him Joabs men and the Cerethites and the Phelethites and the men of myght. And they departed out of Jerusalē to folow after Seuet the sonne of Bochri. And when they were come to the great stone in Gabaon, Amasa met them. And Joab had his garment that he had about him, gyrde vnto him, and had gyrde theron a knyfe wyued fast to his lopnes, in soche a sh. the that as he C went it fell some tymes out. And Joab sayde to Amasa: are all thynges in rest and peace my brother? And Joab toke Amasa vp the chynne with the ryghthande, as thoughe he pmy.dili.a woulde haue *kyssed hym. And Amasa toke no hede to the knyfe that was in Joabs hād, with which Joab smote hym in the throte rybbes & shed out hys bowelles to the grounde and smote him but one stroke, and he dyed.

D And then Joab and Abisai his brother folowed after Seba the sonne of Bochri. And one of Joabs men that stode by hym sayde: what is he that he wolde be as Joab, & what is he that he wolde be vnto Dauid in stede of Joab? And Amasa lay walowyng in bloud in the middes of the waye. And there was a 2.Reg.ij.c. man, that sawe al the people stande styl. E And he went thorow all the tribes of Israel vnto Abel, Bethmaacah and al Barim. And the people gathered vnto him and went also after him. And they came & besieged him in Abel Bethmaacah. And they cast vp a bāk against the cyte. And it was besieged. Al the people that was with Joab, labored busely to ouerthrow the wal. Then cryed a wyse woman out of the cyte, harke harke, byd I praye you Joab that he come hyther, that I maye speake with him. When Joab was come, the F woman sayd: art thou Joab? And Joab answered: I am. And he said to him: heare the wordes of thy handmayd: And he sayde: I am Debrest and ready to heare. Abel is one of the quietest and faithfullest cities that are in Israel. And thou goest about to destroye a cyte that is as a mother in Israel. Why deuourest thou the enheritaūce of the Lorde.

And Joab answered and sayde: God forbid, God forbid it me, that I should eyther deuoure or destroye it. The matter is not so: But there is a man of mount Ephraim, Seba the sonne of Bochri by name, whiche hath *lyfte vp his hand against king Dauid. Delyuer vs him only, and I will departe frō the cyte. And the woman sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, his head shalbe throwen thorow the walle to the. And then the woman went vnto all the people *in her wyse. And they smote of the heade of Seba the sonne of Bochri, & cast it to Joab. And he blewe a trompet, and they departed from the cyte, euery man to his tet. And Joab returned to Jerusalem vnto the kynge.

Saul, because of the Lordes othe that was betwene them, that is to saye betwene Dauid, and Jonathas the sonne of Saul. But he toke the two sonnes of Rezphah the doughter of Aiah whiche she bare vnto Saul, Armoni and Mypphiboleth, and the fyue sonnes of Michol the doughter of Saul which she bare to Adriel the sonne of Berzelai the Molathite, and deliuered them vnto the handes of the Gabeonites, whiche hanged them in the hill before the Lorde. And they fell all seuen together in the first dayes of haruest, euen in the beginning of Barley haruest.

And Rezphah the doughter of Aiah toke sackecloth and spred it vnder her vpon the Rocke, euen fro the beginning of haruest vntyl rayne dropped vpo them out of heauen, & suffered neyther the birdes of the aire to fall on them by daye, nor beastes of the felde by nyght. And when it was told Dauid what Rezphah the doughter of Aiah the concubine of Saul had done, he went & toke the bones of Saul & of Jonathas his sonne, of the men of Jabes in Galaad, which they had stolen fro the strete of Bethsan, where the Philistines had hanged them in the dayes when the Philistiors had slayn Saul in Gelboe: & he brought thence the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathas his sonne, and they set awaye the bones of them that were hanged, and buried the with the bones of Saul and Jonathas his sonne in the countrey of Beniamin, in Zela, in the sepulchre of Cis his father. And whē they had performed all that the kynge commaunded, God was then at one with the lande.

And the Philistines had yet agayne warre with Israel. And Dauid went downe and his seruauntes with him, and fought with the Philistines. ¶ The Cauntle or songe of Dauid for the deliuerance from his enemies.

AND Dauid spake the wordes of this songe vnto the Lord, what tyme the Lorde delyuered hym out of the handes of al his enemies, & out of ỹ handes of Saul.

And he sayde: the Lordis my.a. rocke, my castel and my deliuerer. God is my strenght & in him will I trust: my shylde & the horne that defendeth me: mine hye holde and refuge: O my sauer, saue me from wronge.

I wil prayse and calle on the Lorde, and so shalbe saued from myne enemies. For the waues of death haue closed me aboute, and the flodes of Belial haue feared me. The cordes of hel haue compased me about, and the snares of death haue ouertake me. In my tribulacion I called to the Lorde, and cryed to my God. And he hearde my voyce out of his temple, and my crye entered into his eares. And the earth trembled and quoke, and the foundacions of heauen moued and shoke, because he was angry.

Smoke went vp out of his nostrelles, and consumynge fyre out of his mouth, that coles were kendled of him. And he bowed heuē and came downe, and darcknesse vnder ỹe his fete. And he rode vpon Cherub and flew: and appered vpon the wynges of the winde. And he made darknesse a tabernacle round about him, with water gathered together in thycke cloudes. Of the brightnesse, that was before him, coles were set on fyre.

The Lorde thundred from heauen, and the most hye put out his voyce. And he shotte arowes and shatered them, and hurled lyghtninge and turmopled th̄. And the bottome of the sea appeared, and the foundacyons of the worlde were seue, by the reason of the rebukinge of the Lord, and thorow the blastyng of the breath of his nostrelles. He sent from an hye & fet me, and plucked me out of mighty waters.

He deliuered me from my mighty enemy & from thē that hated me and were to strong for me. When they had compased me in the daye of my tribulacion, the Lorde kaped me vp And he brought me out into roumeth, and deliuered me, because he delyted me.

The Lorde rewarded me accordyng to my ryghteousnesse, & accordinge to the pureneſſe of my handes he dealt with me. For I kept the wayes of the lorde, and dyd no wyckednesse forsakynge my God. But I had all his lawes in my syght, and turned my face from none of his ordinaunces. But was pure vnto him ward, & kept my self frō wyckednesse.

And the Lorde dyd to me agayne, accordynge to my ryghteousnes, and after my pureneſſe that I had in his sight. With the holy thou shalt be holy, and with the man that is vncorrupt, thou shalte be vncorrupt. With the pure thou shalte be pure, and with the frowarde froward thou shalt be fewed also. And the people that are in aduersite, thou shalt helpe. And on the proude shalt thou cast thyne eyes. Thou art my light O Lorde, and the Lorde shall light my darcknesse.

With thy helpe I will runne thorow an hoste of men, and by the ayde of my God will springe ouer a walle. The* waye of God is vndefyled, and the worde of the Lorde fyned as golde, and he a shylde to all that trust in him.

*That is, the deades of God are pure and vncorrupt.

Who is a God saue the Lorde, and who mighty per saue our God? God is my strength in warre, and rydeth the waye cleare before me, & maketh my fete as swyfte as an hindes and setteth me fast vpon my hye holde.

And teacheth my handes to fyght, that a bowe of brasse is to weake for myne armes.

Thou hast saued me with thy shylde, and kepest me euer in meekenes. And thou madest me space to walke in, & my fete should not stomble. I followed myne enemyes and destroyed them, and turned not agayne vntil I had consumed them.

I wasted them and so clouted them, that they coulde not aryse: but fell vnder my fete.

And thou compassedest me about with might to battel, & madest them that rose agaynste me to stoupe vnder me.

And thou madest myne enemyes to *turne their backes to me, and them that hated me, I destroyed them. They loked for helpe: But none came to saue them: vnto the Lorde they cryed, but he heard them not.

*That is, and hyde the fautes of other.

And the aliens crouched vnto me, and obeyed me at a worde.

And delyuereth me from myne enemies, thou hast exalted me vp on hye from them that rose agaynst me, & delyuerest me fro the wycked man.

*That is, of suche as were hyd in their strong holden.

And therfore I will praise the O Lorde amonge the Gethen, and to thy name wyll synge vnto thee. For thy great & manyfolde sauing helpe is the of thy kyng, & shewynge mercy vnto thyne anoynted, euen to Dauid, & his seede for euer.

AGayne the Lorde was wrath against Israel, and stirred vp Dauid against thē saynge: go and nombre bothe Israel & Juda. And saith with the kyng vnto Joab the captayne of his host: go abroade I praye the, throwe out all the tribes of Israel euen from Dan to Berſabe and nombre the people that I may knowe the nombre of thē. And Joab sayde vnto the kynge: I beseche that the Lorde thy God make the people as many mo as they be yet an hundred tymes so many mo, and that the eyes of my Lorde the kynge maie se them. But howe it is that my Lorde the kyng hath a lust in this thyng? Notwithstandinge the kynges wordes preuayled agaynst Joab and against all the captaynes of the hoste.

Then Joab and the captaynes of the hoste went oute from the kynge, to nombre the people of Israell, and they passed ouer Jordan and pytched in Aroer on the ryght syde of the cytye that lyeth in the myddes of the valeye of Gad, and so forthe to Jazer. And then they went to Galaad, and to the nether lande of Hosrdi, and from thence to Dan Jaan, and aboute to Sidon, and came to the stronge towne of Tyre, and to all the cities of the Heuites and of the Cananites, and then went out to the South of Juda, euen to Berſabe. And so when they had bene abroade thorow oute all the lande, they returned to Jerusalem agayne at the ende of nyne monethes and twentye dayes. And then Joab delyuered vp B the rehersyng of the nombre of the people vnto the kynge. And there were founde in Israel nyne hundred thousande men of might that drewe swordes. And the men of Juda were fyue hundred thousande men.

And Dauids herte smote him after that he had nombred the people: And he sayde vnto the Lorde: I haue sinned exceedingly in that I haue done. And nowe Lorde take away the trespace of thy seruaunt: for I haue done folyshely. And when Dauid was vp in a morninge the worde of the Lorde came vnto the prophete Gad Dauids sear sayinge: go, and saye vnto Dauid, this sayeth the Lord: I offer the thre thinges, chose whyche of them I shal do to the.

And Gad came to Dauid and shewed him and sayde vnto hym: wyther wilt thou haue seuen yeares hunger in thy lande, or that thou flee thre monethes before thyne enemies, and they folowyng the, or that there be thre daies pestylence in thy lande. Now vnderstand and C se, what worde I shal bringe agayne to hym that sent me. Then sayd Dauid vnto Gad: I am in a maruelous straite. But let me falle I praye the, into the handes of the Lorde, for muche is hys mercy, and let me not fall into the handes of men.

And the Lorde sent a pestylence in Israell from the morninge vnto the ende of the tyme appointed. And there dyed of the people betwene Dan and Berſabe. lxx. thousand men. And when the Aungel stretched out his hand vnto Jerusalem to haue destroyed it, the Lord had compassion to do that euyl, and sayde to the Aungel that destroyed the people: it is suffycyent: let thyne hande cease. And the aungell was at the threshinge place of Araunah the Jebusite. Then spake Dauid vnto the Lorde, when he sawe the Aungel that smote the people, and sayde, lo, it is I that haue synned, and I that haue done wickedly. But these shepe what haue they done? let I praye thyne hande be on me, and on my fathers house.

And Gad came the same daye to Dauid, and sayde vnto him: go vp and reare an aultare vnto the Lorde in the threshinge floure of Araunah the Jebusite. And Dauid according to the sayinge of Gad went vp as the Lorde commaunded. And when Araunah loked and D sawe the kynge and his seruauntes comynge towarde him, he went out, and bowed hym selfe selfe to the kyng flat on hys face to the grounde and sayde: wherfore is my Lorde the kynge come to hys seruaunt? And Dauid sayde: to bye the threshinge floure of the, that to make an aultare vnto the Lorde, that the plage maye cease from the people.

And Areunah sayd vnto the kynge: let my Lorde the kynge take and offer what semyth hym good in his eyen: Behold, oxen for sacrifice and sleades and the other instrumentes of the oxen for wood. And Areunah the kynges frende gaue al to the kynge, and sayd moreouer vnto the kynge the Lorde: the Lorde God accept the. But the kynge sayde vnto Areunah: not so, but I wyll bye it of the at a price, and wyl not offer sacrifyce vnto the Lord my God that shal cost me nought. And so Dauid bought the threshinge floure, & the oxen for fyfty sycles of syluer, & Dauid buylt there an aultare vnto the Lord, and offered burnt sacrifices and peace offeringes And so the Lorde was agreed wyth the lande. And the plage ceased from Israel.

When kynge Dauid was waxen olde and stryken in yeares, thoughe they couered him with clothes yet he caught no heate. Wherfore hys seruauntes sayde vnto him: let there be sought for my lord the kynge a yonge mayden to wayte vpon him, and to cherysshe hym. And let her lye in thy bosome, that my Lorde the kynge maye get heate. And so they sought for a fayre damosell thorow all the coastes of Israel and founde one Abisag a Sunamite and brought her to the kynge. And the damosell was exceedynge fayre, and cherysshed the kynge and mynistred to hym. But the kynge knewe her not.

But Adoniah the sonne of Hagith exalted hym selfe sayinge: I wylbe kynge. And he gat hym a charet and horsemen and fyfty men to runne before hym. And hys father rebuked hym not at anye tyme nor sayde so muche to him, as why doest thou so? And he was therto a goodly man, and hys mother bare him next after Absalom. And he communed wyth Joab the sonne of Zaruiah and wyth Abiathar the prieste. And they holpe Adoniah. But Sadoch the prieste, Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada, Nathan the prophet, Semei and Rei and the men of myght whyche were with Dauid fauored not Adoniah. But Nathan the prophet and Banaiah and the myghtye men and Salomon hys brother he bad not.

Wherupon Nathan spake vnto Bethsabe the mother of Salomon sayinge: hast thou not heard how that Adoniah the sonne of Hagith doth raygne vnwetinge vnto our master Dauid? Nowe therfore come that I may geue the counsel, how to saue thyne owne lyfe and the life of thy sonne Salomon. And she answered and sayde: My Lorde thou sweareste by the Lorde thy God vnto thyne handmaide: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me and he shall sytte vpon my seate. But nowe se, Adoniah is kynge and thou my Lord kynge wottest it not. And he hath offered oxen, fatlynges & sheepe aboundantly, and hath called all the sonnes of the kynge, and Abiathar the prieste, and Joab the captayne of the hoste. And behold, whyle she yet talketh with the kynge, Nathan the prophet was come. And they tolde the kynge sayinge: here cometh Nathan the prophet. And when he was come before the kynge, he made obeysaunce vnto the kynge vpon hys face vnto the grounde, and sayde: My Lorde kynge, hast thou sayde Adoniah shall raygne after me, and he shall sytte

And se, they eate and drinck before hym, and saye: God saue kynge Adoniah. But me thy seruaunt and Sadoch the paynest and Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada, & thy seruaunt Salomon he hath not called. Then sayde kynge Dauid: call me Sadoch the priest and Nathan the prophet & Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada. And when they came before the kynge, the kinge sayde vnto them: take with you the seruauntes of youre Lorde, and set Salomon my sonne vpō myne owne mule and carye him doune to Gihon. And Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada answered the kynge and sayde: Amen, and so pray I God that the Lorde God of my Lorde the kynge saye so to. And as the Lorde hath bene with my Lorde the kynge, euen so, I praye God, be mayde be, with Salomon and that he make his seate gloryouser then the seate of my lorde kynge Dauid.

And Sadoch the paynest, and Nathan the prophet of Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada & the Cerethites and Phelethites went doune, and set Salomon vpon kinge Dauids Mule and led him to Gihon. For be thou sure of it, the daye thou goest out and passest ouer the ryuer of Cedron, thou shalt dye for it, and thy blood shalbe on thine owne heade. And Semei sayde vnto the kinge: it is wel sayd: as my Lorde the kinge hath sayed, so will thy seruaũt do. And Semei dwelt in Jerusalem many a daye. Semei the sonne of Mala had Beniamin: Gaber the sonne of Hur had the cōtrey of Galaad and the lande of Sehon kynge of the Amorites & of Og kyng of Basan, and was alone ouerpar in the lande. And Juda & Israel were manye euen as the sande of the sea in nombre, eatyng, dyrnckyng, & makynge myrye. And Salomon raygned ouer al kyngdomes from the ryuer thorowout al the land of the Philistines vnto the borders of Egipt and they brought presentes & serued Salomon all dayes of his lyfe.

a There was also another Semei which is named .iij. chapter before this of the sonne of Gera of Benjamin.

And Salomons fode was in one day thyrtye quarters of manchet floure and three score quarters of meale: ten stalled oxen, & twentye out of the pastures & an hundred sheepe and gootes, besydes, hertes, buckes and buballes & fat pultrye. For he ruled in all the regyons on the other syde Euphrates, from Thapsah to Gaza, and also ouer all the kynges on the other syde the sayd Euphrates. And he had peace with all his seruauntes on euery syde. And Juda and Israell dwelt without feare, euery man vnder his vyne & vnder his figge tre from Dan to Berlabe, all the dayes of Salomon.

And Salomon had fourtye thousand stalles of horses for charettes, & twelue thousand horsemen. And the forsayde generall receyuers made prouysyon for kyng Salomon and for all that came to kynge Salomons table, euery man his moneth, so that there lacked nothynge. And as for barleye and straw for the horses & beastes, they brought vnto ỳ places where the officers were, euery man in his office.

* And God gaue Salomon wisdome & vnderstandyng exceedyng much & a large hert euen as the sande a longe by the sea banche: so that Salomons wysdome exceded the wysdō of all chyldren of the east countrey & all the wysdome of the Egyptyans. And he excelled all men in wysdome, both Ethan the Ezrahite, & Heman, Chalcol and Darda the sonnes of Mahol. And his name spred abroade amōge all nacyons on euery syde. And Salomon wrote thre thousande prouerbes. And his songes were a thousande and fyue. And he disputed of trees, euen from the Cedar tree that groweth in Lybanon vnto the Isope that springeth out of the walle. And he disputed of beastes, foules, wormes and fyshes. And there came of all nacyons to heare the wysdome of Salomon, and from all kynges of the earthe which had heard of his wysdome.

¶ Hiram kynge of Tyre sendeth to Salomon, congratulating the kyngdō of his father. The preparacion of the workmen.

A So Hiram kynge of Tyre sente his seruauntes vnto Salomon, for he had hearde that they had anoynted him kyng in ỳ roume of his father. And therto Hiram was euer a louer of Dauid. * And Salomō sent agayne to Hiram, sayinge: thou knowest of Dauid my father, howe he could not builde an house vnto the name of the Lorde his god for warre which he had on euery syde, vntyll

the Lorde had put them vnder hys fote. But nowe the Lorde my God hath geuen me reste on euery syde, so that there is neyther aduersa
B rye nor any euyll plage. And therfore I am disposed to buylde an house vnto the name of the Lorde my God, as he promysed Dauid my father, sayeng: thy sonne which I wyll put vpon thy seate for the, he shal buylde an house vnto my name. Nowe therfore commaunde that they hewe me Cedar trees in Lybanon. And let my seruauntes be with thine, and I will geue the hire of thy seruauntes in all suche thynges as thou shalt appoynte, for thou knowest that there are not among vs that can skylfully hewe tymber lyke vnto the Sidonies.

When Hiram hearde the wordes of Salomon, he reioysed greatlye & sayde: Blessed be the Lorde this daye which hath set Dauid a wyse sonne ouer this myghtie people. And
C Hiram sent agayne to Salomon saying: I haue accepte the requeste whiche thou sentest to me for, & wyll satisfye all thy lust, concernynge tymber of Cedar trees & fyre. My seruauntes shall bryng them from Lybanon to the sea. And I wyll conueye the by shippe vnto the place that thou shalt sende me worde, & wyll cause them to be discharged there, that thou mayst receyue the. And thou shalt do me this pleasure agayne, to minister fode for myne house. And so Hiram gaue Salomon Cedar trees & fyre trees, as moche as he desyred. And Salomō gaue Hiram twentie thousand quarters of wheate to fede his houshold withal, & twētye butts of pure oyle. And so moch gaue Salomon to Hiram yere by yere.

D And the Lord gaue Salomon wisdome as he promysed hym. And there was peace betwene Hiram and Salomon and they were confederate together. And kynge Salomon arered a tribute throwe out al Israel. And the tribute was thirty thousand men, which he sent to Lybanon, ten thousand a moneth by course, so that they were one moneth in Lybanon, and two monethes at home.

And Adoniram was ouer the tribute. And Salomon had thre skore & ten thousande that bare burdens, & thre skore and ten thousande that hewed in the mountayns besides the Lordes he had, to ouer se the worke, & numbre thre thousande & thre hundred, whiche ruled people that wrought in the worke. And at the commaundement of the kynge, they brought great stones and costly stones, and hewed them to, to laye in the foundacyon of the house. And Salomons masons and the masons of Hiram dyd hew them, with them of the byblers. And so they prepared bothe tymber and stone to buylde the house.

The vi Chapter.

The frame and forme of the Temple Porch and Buttres of.

IN the yere of the fourehundreth and foure and foure skore yeare after the children of Israel were come out of the lande of Egypte, and the fourth yeare of the reigne of Salomon vpon Israell, and the seconde moneth called *Zif that he began to buylde the temple vnto the Lorde. And the house whiche Salomon buylt for the Lorde, was thre skore cubytes longe and twentye broade & thyrtye cubytes hye. And the porche that was before the bodye of the temple, was twentye cubites longe after the measure of the breadth of the house & .x. broade, euen at the very ende of the house. And he made vnto the house windowes to open and shut.

*That is, Apul or lyne about. Some wyll that it be Maye.

And vnder the walles of the house he made galaryes rounde aboute, bothe rounde aboute the temple and also the quere. And so made spares rounde aboute. And the neyther most galery was .v. cubytes broade & the myddle galery .vi. And the thyrd .vii. cubytes broad. For he made the walles without whereon the beames laye, euen thynner & thynner, so that they were not fastened in the walles of the house. And the house was buylt of stone made perfyte all redy per it was brought thyther, so that there was neyther hammer of axe eyther anye tole of yron heard in the house, whyle it was in buylduge.

And the doue of the myddle galery was in B
the ende of the house on the ryghte syde. And men went vp with wyndyng steares into the myddle galarye, and out of the myddle into the thyrde. And so he buylte the house & fynished it, and rouffe it with beames of Cedar tymber made holowe and ioyned together. And then he buylt chambers ouer all the temple of fyue cubytes heyght, and coupled the house together with beames of Cedar.

And the worde of the Lorde came to Salomon saying: concerning the house which thou arte in buyldynge, yf thou wylte walcke in myne ordynaunces and execute my lawes & kepe all my commaundementes, to walcke in them, then wyll I make good vnto the, my promes* whiche I promysed Dauid thy father. *And I wyll dwell amonge the chyldre of Israel, and wyll not forsake my people Israel. And so therfore Salomon buylt the house and fynished it, and syled the walles of the house within, with rybbes of Cedar tymber from the pauement vnto the rouffe dyd he syle it within, and bourded the floure of the house with planches of fyre. *3. Reg. viii. 2. Par. xxii.

And he syled twentye cubytes in the ende C of the temple both floure & walles with Cedar, and dressed it within to be the quere and place most holye. And the fyrste house, that is to saye, the bodye of the temple, was fourtye cubytes longe. And the Cedar of the house within was hewed with knoppes, & grauen with flowres, and all was Cedar tymber, so that no stone was seene. And the quere that was within the temple, he prepared so sit there the arcke of the appoyntuente of the Lorde. And the quere was twentye cubytes longe, and twentye in bredth & twentye in heyght. And he syled it with pure golde, & bourded the aultare with Cedar.

And

And Salomon spred the house within also with pure golde. And he made golden barres runne a longe the quere, which he had couered with golde. And the whole house he ouerlayde with golde vntyll he had ended it. And the aultar that was in the quere he ouerlayde with golde also.

Exod. xxv. b. And within the quere he made two * Cherubyns of olyue tree, ten cubytes hye a pece, and euery wynge fyue cubytes longe: so that from the vttermoste parte of the other were ten cubytes.

And the other Cherub was ten cubytes hye also: so that bothe the Cherubes were of one measure and one fyse. The heyghte of the one Cherub was ten cubytes, & so was it of the other. And he put the Cherubes in the mi-

And he ouerlayde the Cherubes with golde.

And all the walles of the house rounde aboute, he garnished with worke of Cherubes and palme trees and grauē floures, both within in the quere and without in the temple. And the floure of the house he couered with golde both within in the quere and also without in the temple. And in the entryng of the quere he made two doores of olyue tree, with the vpper and two syde postes fyue square. And the two doores of olyue tree, he graued with graūpynge of Cherubes, and Palme trees and graued floures, and couered them with golde, and layde golde ouer the Cherubes and also the Palme trees. And in lyke maner vnto the doore of the temple he made postes of olyue tre. iiij. square, and two doores of fyr tree, and ether dore with two foldynge leues and graued theron Cherubes Palme trees and floures, and couered them with golde made plaine vp a ruler.

And then he buylte the vnner courte with thre rowes of hewed stone and one rowe of Cedar wode.

*Lyke in the begynnynge of this chapt. that is Decembre and the wyl parte of October & so was he. viij. yeare in buyldyng of it.

In the fourth yere of his raygne was the foundacyon of the house of the Lorde layde, euen in the moneth* Zif, & in the. xi. yeare in the moneth* Bul which is the. viij. moneth, it was fynyshed in al that pertayned therto, and in al poynte fashioned as it shulde be. And he was. vij. yeare in buyldyng of it.

The. viij. Chapter.

The buyldynge of the house of Salomon. The house of Pharaos doughter. The fourme of the pilloes of Brasse, of the Brasen Sea. &c.

ALso Salomon buylt hys owne house in. xiij. yeare space and fulfynyshed it. And he buylte the house of the wood of Lybanon, an hundred cubytes long & fyfty broad, and thyrty hye, foure square with rowes of Cedar pylleres, and Cedar beames a longe vpon the pylleres. And the rouffe was Cedar aboue an hye vpō the beames that lay an hye on the pylleres, whiche pylleres were fourtye & fyue in nombre, fyftene on a rowe, and the spaces betwene the pylleres were one agaynste another thre folde. And all the doores with the syde postes were foure square one agaynste another thre folde.

And he made a porche of pylleres fyfty cubytes longe and thyrty cubytes broade: and yet a porche before that with pylleres, and a thycke pyller before that. Then he made a porche to syt and iudge in, syled with Cedar thorow out al the pauementes. And his owne house where he kepte residence in another courte without that porche was of the same worke. And then Salomon made an house

And all these thinges were of ryche stones hewed after a measure & sawed with sawes within & without, euen from the foundacyon vnto that wheron the beames were layed, & on the out syde therto toward the great courte. And the foundacyon was of ryche stones & the myghtye greate stones of ten cubytes and of eyght. And aboue were ryche stones hewed according to the same syse, and also with Cedar. And the great courte round about was with thre rowes of hewed stone and one rowe of Cedar planches. And lykewyse was it in the vnner courte of the house of the Lorde and of the porche of the temple. * And kyng Salo-
3. Par. ij. c mon sent & set one Hyram out of Tyre, a wedowes sonne of the tribe of Nephtalim, hys father beyng of Tyre. Which Hyram was a craftes man in brasse, & full of wysedome, vnderstandynge & connyng to worke all maner of worke in brasse. And he came to kyng Salomon and wrought all hys worke. He caste two pylleres of brasse of. xviij. cubytes a pece hye and a strynge of. xij. cubytes myght compase eyther of them aboute. And he made two head peces of molten brasse to set on the toppes of the pylleres, of fyue cubytes long a pece
C with garlandes of graued worke and wreathes of chayne worke for the heade peces that were on the pilleres, vij. for one and vij. for the other. And he made the pylleres, & for eyther of the head peces a garland with two rowes of pomegraunetes to couer them with al. And the head peces that were on the toppes of the pylleres were wrought with lylyes in the porche the space of foure cubytes of them. And the pomegraunetes aboue & beneth on the wreathen chapters that compased the myddle of the head peces were in nombre two hundred, on eyther heade pece. And he set vp the pylleres in the porche of the temple, and when he had
D set vp the right pyller, he called the name therof Jachin, & when he had set vp the left pyller he called the name therof Boaz. And the toppes of the pylleres were thus wrought with lylyes, and so was there workemanshyp fynyshed.

Then he caste a sea of brasse, ten cubytes wyde

wyde from brym to brym and rounde in com pase, & fyue cubytes hye. And a strynge of
xxx. cubytes myght compase it aboute, & vn-
der the brym of it as it were apples cōpased and embaised the sea of ten cubytes wyde in two rowes cast wyth it when it walle cast.
And it stode on twelue oten: of which the lo-wed North. thre West. thre South, & thre East
& the sea on hye vpon them, and all their hyn derpartes were inwarde. And it was an hād breadeth thycke, and the brym wroughte lyke
the brym of a cup wyth flowres of lylyes. And it contayned two thousande a. Bathes.

a Or, thre. b. Para. vi. a. Bath. is ye name of a certain vessel that contayned lyquor: vsed among the Hebrues at that tyme of what quantyte it was is now vncertayn.

And he made ten botomes of bralle, foure cubytes long & foure cubytes broade a pece, & thre hye. And the worke of the botomes was on this maner that the sydes were as it were flat bordes betwene the ledges. And on the flat bordes betwene the ledges were lyons, oxen & Cherubes. And vpon the ledges that were aboue & beneth the lyons and oxē, was ioyned pendant worke. And euery bottō had foure brasen wheles, whose axel trees were al so of bralle. And in the iiij. corners were vnder setters vnder the lauatorye castē eche ouer a-gaynst hys fellowe.

And the halche of the lauatorye was in the myddle of the bottome one cubyte hye, & a cu
byte & an halfe rounde, & it had knoppes there on in the bare places which were foure square
not rounde. And vnder the sydes were foure wheles and their axeltrees ioyned fast to the bottome. And the heyght of euery whele was a cubyte and an halfe. And the worthemanshyp of the wheles was lyke the worke of a charet whele. And the axeltrees, the naueles, spokes and shaftes were al molten. And the foure vndersetters in the foure corners were of the verye bottomes.

And vnder the halche of the lauatorye in the myddes of the bottome was there a rolde sete of halfe a cubyte hye. And thereon plane places and ledges of the selfe. And he graued in the playne and also on the ledges, Cherubes, lyons, and palmetrees, euery were rouñ aboute. And on thys maner he made ỳ ten bot tomes cast worthesall of one measure and one syse. Then he made ten lauers of bralle cōtaynynge fourtye Bathes a pece, and they were of foure cubytes a pece, for euerye one of the bottomes a lauer. And he put fyue of those bot tomes on the ryght corner of the temple, and other fyue on the lefte: And put the sea on the ryght corner of the temple Eastewarde & to warde the South.

And Hiram made pottes, shouelles and ba sons, and so fynyshed all the worke that he made kynge Salomon for the house of the Lorde: that is to saye, two pylleres & two chal
pes of the heades that were on the toppes of ỳ
two pylleres, and foure hundred pomegranates vpon two wrethes, two rowes on eyther
wrethe, to couer the two chalpes of the heades
that were on the toppes of the two pylleres:
And the ten bottomes of bralle wyth ten la-uers vpon them: & a sea with twelue dyen vnder it: & pottes, shouels & basens. And al these vessellys whiche Hiram made to kyng Salomon for the house of the Lorde were of bright bralle. And in the playne of Jordan dyd the kynge cast them in the clape of the earth
betwene Soroh and Zarthan. And Salomon left all the vessellys vnwayed, for the exceding
abundaunce of bralle that was in them.

And Salomon made all the vessellys that pertayned vnto the house of the Lord: the aul tare of goulde, and the table of goulde wher-
on the shewe bread was put: And fyue candel-stickes, for the ryghte syde, and as many for the left, before the quere, of pure goulde: wyth flowres, lampes, and snuffers of goulde: and Bolles, Psalteries, basons, spones and fyre
pannes of pure goulde: and hynges of gould bothe for the doores of the quere, the place most holye, and for the doores of the temple also.

And so was ended all the worke ỳ kynge
Salomon made for the house of the Lorde. b Para.b.
And then* Salomon brought in the thynges
which Dauid hys father had dedicated in syluer, goulde and other vessellys, & put them to the treasure of the house of the Lorde.

The.viij.Chapter.

A The Arche is borne into the temple. A cloude fylleth the temple. The temple is dedicated.

Then Salomon gathered the el-dere of Israel, all the heades of A
the tryues and aumpet Lordes
of the chyldren of Israel, vnto
him to Jerusalem, to bryng vp
the arche of the appoyntment of the Lord out of the cyte of Dauid which is Syon. And al
the men of Israel assembled vnto kynge Salomon to the feast that falleth in the moneth *Ethanim which is the seuenth moneth. And * That is, September.
when all the elders of Israel were come, the priestes tobe vp the Arche of the Lorde, and brought it, & also the tabernacle of witnesse & all the holye vessellys that were therein. And the priestes & the Leuites brought the vp. And kynge Salomon and all the congregacyon of Israell that were assembled, and were wyth
hym before the arche, dyd offre shepe & oxen
that coulde not be tolde nor nombred for multitude.

And so the priestes brought the arche of the B
appoyntment of the Lorde vnto hys place: vn-
to the quere of the temple, and place moste holy, vnder the wynges of ỳ Cherubes. For ỳ Cherubes stretched out their wynges ouer a. The rest the arche, and couered bothe it and also the sta ymghte be ues therof a hye vpon it. How be it the staues among the were so longe that the endes of them appered thurste oute of the holy place before the quere, but where the were not sene without. And there they be vnto of the this dayes. And there was.a. nothynge in lawe was the arche saue the two tables of stone whiche Moyses put there at Horeb, when the Lorde Reg. xvii. b made an appoyntment wyth the chyldren of c. Paral.
Israel after they were come out of Egypte. xxviij.d.

And

And when the preestes were come oute of the holye place, then a cloude fylled the house of the Lorde, that the preestes coulde not endure to mynister because of the cloud, for the glorye of the Lorde had filled the house of the Lorde. Then spake Salomon: the Lorde sayd, that he wolde dwell in darcknesse. I have built the an house to dwell in, & an habytacio for the to abyde in for ever. And the kig turned hys face, and blessed all the congregacyon of Israel, all the congregacyon standyng. And he sayde.

Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, which hath fulfylled wyth hys *hande, that he spake wyth hys mouthe vnto Dauid my father sayinge: from the daye I brought my people Israel out of Egypte, I chose no cytye amõg any of the tribes of Israel, to buylde an house, that my name myght be there: But I have chosen Dauid to be ruler ouer my people Israel.

* That is, by his power

And it was in the herte of Dauid my father, to buylde an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel. But the Lorde GOD sayde vnto Dauid my father: in that it was in thyne herte to buylde an house for my name, thou dyddest well, that thou wast so mynded. Neuertheles thou shalt not buylde the house, but thy sonne that shal come out of thy lopnes, he shal buylde an house for my name. And the Lorde hath made good hys worde that he spake. For I stode vp in the roume of Dauid my father, and sate on the seate of Israel, as the Lorde promysed, & have buylt an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel. And I have prepared therein a place for the arche wherein the couenaunt of the Lorde is, which he made with our fathers, after he had brought them out of the lande of Egypte. And Salomon stode before the aultare of the Lorde in the syght of all the congregacyon of Israel, and stretched oute hys handes to heauen & sayde: Lorde God of Israel, there is no God lyke the in heauen aboue or in the earthe beneth, that kepest appoyntment & mercye wyth thy seruaunts that walche before the wyth all their herte: which also hast kept wyth thy seruaũt Dauid my father, that thou promysedest hym. Thou spakest wyth thy mouthe & hast fulfylled with thyne hande, as it is come to passe this daye. And now Lorde God of Israel, kepe wyth thy seruaunte Dauid my father, that thou promysedest hym sayinge: thou shalt not be wythoute one or other before me, sittyng on the seat of Israel: So be it yf thy children shall take hede to their wayes that they walche before me, as thou hast walked before me. Now then O Lord God of Israel, let thy worde be stable whiche thou spakest vnto thy seruaunt Dauid my father.

But in deede can God dwell on the earthe? Beholde neyther heauen, nor heauen aboue all heauens are able to contayne the: howe muche lesse then this house that I have built? but lobe to the prayer of thy seruaunt and his supplicacyon O Lorde my God, to geue audyence vnto the voyce and prayer which thy seruaunt prayeth before the this daye, that thyne eyes maye be open vpon this house nyght & daye, & vpon the place, of whiche thou hast sayde, my name shalbe there: that thou herken vnto the prayer which thy seruaunt shal pray in this place. And herken vnto the supplicacyon of thy seruaunte and of thy people Israel whiche they shall praye in this place. And heare thou vp vnto heauen thy dwellynge place, and when thou hearest, haue mercye. And yf any man trespace agaynst his neyghboure, and his neyghboure * take an aduersacyon to aduise hym with all, and the aduisacy on come before thyne aultare at this house, then hearken thou vp to heauen, & worke and iudge thy seruaunters, that thou condemnist the wicked to bryng his waye vpon his head, & iustifye the ryghteous to geue hym accordynge to his ryghteousnesse. When thy people Israel be put to the worsse before their enemyes, because they haue synned agaynste the & afterwarde turne agayne to the, & praise thy name, & praye, and make supplicacion vnto the in this house: then heare thou vpon heauen, and be mercyfull vnto the synne of thy people Israel, and bryng them agayne vnto the lande whiche thou gauest vnto their fathers.

* That is, yf his neighboure cause hym to sweare

Yf heauen be shut vp, that there be no rayne, because they haue synned agaynst the: yet yf they praye in this place, and praise thy name, and turne from their synne, whenne thy scourgynge of them: then heare thou vp to heauen, and be mercyfull vnto the synne of thy seruaunte & of thy people Israel, that thou shewe them a good waye to walke in, & geue rayne vpon thy lande that thou hast geuen vnto thy people to enherit.

b. The house of the Lord was the place where he wold at that time be worshipped & serued, according as he had ordayned, and was a figure of the true temple of God, which is the herte of the faythfull: in which by faith he wyll be knowē to be the Lorde God. 1. Cor. iij. c.

Yf there chaunce dearth in the lande, pestylence, blastynge, or wythrynge of corne, or that the frutes be deuoured of Grashoppers or Caterpyllers, or yf their enemyes besege them in the lande & in their owne cytyes, or what sorowe plage or sickenesse chaunce: then heare thou vp to heauen thy dwelling place, all the prayers and supplicacyons that shalbe made of all men thorowout all thy people Israel, which shal knowe euery man the plage of his owne herte, and stretche forth his handes vnto this house, and be mercyfull, and worche, and geue euery man according to his wayes (seyng as thou onelye knowest eueryc mannes herte, for thou knowest the hertes of all the children of Adam) that they may feare the as long as they lyue vpon the earth which thou gauest vnto their fathers. And likewyse yf a straunger that is not of thy people Israel come oute of a farre countreye for thy names sake (for they shal heare of thy great name and of thy myghtye hande and stretched out Arme) and therfore yf he come & praye at this place, heare thou vp to heauen thy dwellyng place, and do accordynge to all that the straunger calleth to the for, that all nacyons of the erth maye knowe thy name, to feare the as do thy people Israel, and that it maye be knowē that this house which I have buylt is called after thy name.

And when they go out to battell agaynst their enemyes whether soeuer thou shalt send them, & shall praye vnto the Lorde to warde the cytie which thou hast chosen and to warde the house that I have buylt for thy name: heare thou their prayers and supplicacions, vp to heauen, and iudge their cause.

And finally when they shall have synned agaynst the (for there is no man that synneth not) & thou art angry with them and hast delyuered the to their enemyes, that they be caryed awaye prysoners vnto the land of their enemyes, whether farre or neare, yet yf they turne agayne vnto their hertes in the lande where they be in captiuite, and returne and praye vnto the in the lande of them that holde them captiue, sayinge: we have synned & have done wickedlye & have trespaced, & so turne agayne vnto the with all their hertes and all their soules in the lād of their enemyes which holde them captiue, and praye vnto the, towarde the land which thou gauest vnto their fathers, & to warde the cytie which thou hast chosen, and house which I have buylt for thy name: then heare thou their prayer & supplicacion vp to heauen thy dwelling place, & iudge their cause, and be mercyfull vnto thy people that have synned agaynst the, and vnto all their trespace that they have trespaced agaynst the, and gett the fauoure in the syght of them that hold them captiue that they may haue compassion on them. For they be thy people and thyne enheritaunce which thou broughtest oute of Egypte, from the fornace of yron. And let thyne eyes be open vnto the prayer of thy seruaunte, & vnto the prayer of thy people Israel, to hechen vnto them, in all that they call vnto the for. For thou dyddest seperate them, to be thyne enheritaunce, aboue all the nacyons of the earthe, as thou spakest by the hande of Moses thy seruaunte, when thou broughtest oute fathers oute of Egypte O Lorde Jehouah.

Deuter.xiij.c

And when Salomon had made an ende of prayinge all thys prayer & supplicacyon vnto the Lorde, he arose from before the aultare of the Lorde, & from knelyng on hys knees, and stretchynge of hys handes vp to heauen and stode, & blessed all the congregacion of Israel with a loud voyce, sayinge: Blessed be ye Lord that hath geuen reste vnto hys people Israel

4.Reg.viij.d according to all that he promysed, *so ye there is not one worde escaped of all the good promyses which he promysed by the hand of Moses hys seruaunte. And the Lorde oure God be with vs, as he was with our fathers, and forsake vs not nether leue vs, but that he bowe oure hertes vnto him, to walcke in all hys wayes, and to kepe hys commaundementes, ordinaunces and customes whiche he commaunded oure fathers. And these my wordes which I have prayed before the Lorde, be nye vnto the Lorde oure God daye and nyght, & he defende the cause of hys seruaunte and of hys people Israel euermore, that all nacyons of the earth maye knowe that the Lorde, he is God and none but he. And I praye God that youre hertes maye be sounde with the Lorde oure God, to walke in hys ordinaunces and to kepe hys lawes as we do thys daye.

And the kyng and al Israel with him, offered offerynges before the Lorde. *And the C peace offerynges that Salomon offered vnto 4.Par.vij.
the Lorde, were xxij. thousand oxen & an hundred and twentye thousande shepe. And so the kynge and al the chyldren of Israel dedicated the house of the Lorde. And the same daye the kynge halowed the myddle of the courte that is before the house of the Lord: for there he offered burntoffrynges & meatoffrynges, & the fat of the peaceoffrynges, because the brasen aultare that was before the Lord, was to lytle to receyue the burntoffrynges & meate offrynges, and the fat of the peaceoffrynges.

And Salomon helde that same tyme an hye feast & all Israell with hym, a myghtye congregacyon, euen from the coastes of Hemath vnto the ryuer of Egypte, before the Lorde oure God, seuen dayes & yet seuē dayes, that is xiiij. dayes. And the. viij. daye he sente the people awaye. And they blessed the kynge and went vnto their tentes ioyous & glad in herte for all the goodnesse that ye Lord had shewed vnto D. and hys seruaunt and to Israell hys people.

The.ix. Chapter.

¶ The Lorde apeereth the seconde tyme to Salomō. Salomō geueth townes to Hiram. The Cananites be come tributaryes. The Iewes shyppes for golde. The basshoth maye speeke.

And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: I have hearde thy prayer and intercessyon that thou madest before me, & have halowed thys house which thou hast buylt, to put my name there for euer, and myne eyes and myne herte shalbe there perpetuallye. And yf thou wylte walcke before me, as Dauid thy father walcked, in puretie of herte & playnesse, to do all that I have commaunded the, and shalt kepe myne ordynaunces & customes: then I will establyshe the seate of thy kyngdome vpon Israell for euer, as I promysed to Dauid thy father, sayinge: ✠ Thou shalt not be without 16.Reg.ij.a

which Salomon had buylte the two houses, ꝑ

pallayce: because Hyram the kynge of Tyre
had supported hym with Cedar, fyre & gould,
as much as he desyred: therfore Salomō ga-
ue Hyram .xx. cytyes in the lande of Galyle.
And when Hyram was come frō Tyre to se ꝑ cytyes which Salomon had geuen him, they pleased hym not. Wherfore he saye: what cytyes are these whiche thou hast geuen me, my brother? and he called them the land of Cabul
vnto this daye. This Hyram had sent ꝑ kyng an .c. fyftye hundred waight of gould. And this is the summe of the tribute, whiche kyng Sa lomon raysed, to buylde the house of the Lord and hys owne house, and Mello and ꝑ walles of Jerusalem and Hezer, and Magedo, and Gazer.

For Pharao kyng of Egypt went vp and toke Gazer, and burnte it with fyre, and slue
the Cananites that dwelt in the cytye, & gaue
it for a presente vnto hys doughter that was Salomons wyfe. And Salomon buylte Gazer and Beth Horon the nether: and Baalath & Thamar in the wyldernesse that is in ꝑ lande:
and all the stone cities that Salomō had, & cyti
es for hys charettes, & cytyes for his horsemen
& all that hys lyste was to buylde in Jerusalem and Lybanus, and in all the lande of hys kyngdome.

And all the people that were leste of the A-morites, Hethites, Pherezites, Heuytes and Jebusites, whiche were not of the chyldren of Israel, the chyldren of the sayde nacyons that were leste in the lande, because the chyldren of Israel were not able to destroy them, vpon Sa lomon make tyby stacyes vnto this day. And D of the chyldren of Israel vpon Salomon make no bond men. But they were men of warre & hys seruauntes, and hys lordes and Captaynes and rulers of hys charettes and of hys horsemen. And these manye lordes that ouersame the worcke had Salomon, fyue hundred and fyfty, which ruled the people ꝑ wrought
in the worcke.

And Pharaos doughter came vp oute of the cytye of David vnto the house which Salomon had buylt for her. And after that he buylt Mello. And thryse a yeare vpon Salomō offer burntoffrynges & peaceofferinges vpō
the aultare which he had buylt vnto ꝑ Lorde, to burne the fat thereon: whiche aultare is before the Lord. And when kyng Salomon had made the house perfecte, he made shyppes in Asion Gaber which is beside Eloth, on the bancke of the read sea, in the lande of Edom.
And Hyram sent by thyppe also of hys seruan
tes, that were shyppmen and expert in the sea, with the seruauntes of Salomon. And they went to Ophir, & fet from thence gould, to the summe of .cxx. hundred and .xxv. talentes, and brought it to Salomon.

The.x Chapter.

The Quene of Saba cometh from the vttermoste coastes of the land to heare & se the wysdome of Salomon. The gaye rewardes and rentes of Salomō. The throne, vestiture of goulde, Chayrtes, Hosseruice, and aboundaunce of syluer.

A Nd the quene of Saba heard of the wysdome of Salomon cōcer A

came to proue hym with tyde-

with a mighty great multitude of Camels
that bare swete odoures and goulde exceding much, & pretious stones. And when she was come to Salomon, she communed with hym of all that was in her hert. And Salomon expounded her all her questions, that there was not one thynge hyd from the kynge which he expounded her not.

And when the quene of Saba had seue all Salomons wysdome, & the house that he had buylt, & the meate of hys table, & the seruynge
of hys seruauntes, and the standynge of hys seruytours & their apparell, & hys butlers, &
hys sacrifyce that he offered in the house of ꝑ

kynge: the worde I heard in myne owne lād
of thy deedes and wysdome, is true. How be it
I beleued it not, tyll I came and sawe it with myne eyes. And se, the one halfe was not told me: for thy wysdome and goodnesse exceedeth
the fame which I heard. Happy are thy mē:
and happye are these thy seruauntes, whiche
stande euer before the, and heare thy wysdō.
And blessed be the Lorde thy God which had a luste to the, to set the on the seate of Israell, because the Lorde loued Israel for euer, and therfore made the kynge, to do equite & rygh-tuousnesse.

And she gaue the kynge an hundred and came neuer after such aboundaunce of swete o-

E The weyght of gould that came to Salomon in one yeare, was.vi.hundred threſcore and.vi.talentes of gould, beſydes that he had of chapmen and of merchauntes of Potpeares, and of all the kynges of Arabie and of the Lordes of the countrey. And kyng Salomon made two hundred bouckelers of beaten gould.vi.hundred ſicles of gould went to a boukeler. And he made three hundred ſhyldes of beaten gould, three pounde of gould going to a ſhyld, & put them in the houſe of the wood of Lybanon.

And the kynge made a great ſeat of Iuorie and couered it with precious golde. And the ſeate had ſixe ſteppes. And the toppe of ỹ ſeat was rounde behynde, hys backe with pomelles on either ſyde on the place where he ſatte, and two Lyons ſtanding beſyde ỹ pomelles. And there ſtode.xij. And all kynge Salomons drynckynge veſſelles were of gould, and all the D veſſelles of the houſe of the woode of Lybanon were of pure golde. And as for ſyluer it was nothynge worthe in the dayes of Salomon. For the ſea ſhyppes which the kynge had in the ſea, with the ſhyppes of Hiram, came ouer thyrde yeare laden with gould, ſyluer, Iuorie, apes and peacockes. * And ſo 1.Par.xxix. & ij. kynge Salomon exceaded all the kynges of ỹ earthe in richeſſe and wyſdome. And all the worlde reſorted to Salomon, to heare hys wyſdome, which God had put in hys herte. And brought hym euery man hys preſent hyr ſelles of ſyluer and of gonlde, and of raymēt, harneſſe, ſweete odoures, haſſles and Mules, yeare by yeare. And Salomon gathered toge ther charettes and horſemen: ſo that he had a thouſande, and.iiij. hundred charettes, and.xij. thouſand horſmen, whiche he beſtowed in the charet cyteyes and with the kynge at Ieruſalem.

2.Paral.i.b * And the kynge made ſyluer in Ieruſalem as pleutrous as ſtones, and Cedar as plentyouſe as the mulbery trees that growe in the valeys. And Salomons horſſes came oute of Egypte from Hewa: The marchauntes fet the from Hewa at a paice. A charet came oute of Egypt for.vi.hundred ſicles of ſyluer, and an horſſe for an hundred and fortye. And euen ſo by the handes of the ſayde marchauntes, horſſes were brought out for all the kynges of the Hethites and for the kynges of Syria.

The.xj. Chapter.

K Salomon hath ſeuē hundred Quenes and three hundred Concubynes, wherby kynge hym to Idolatrye. Hys aduerſaryes reyſed agaynſt hym. He ſpeaketh Ieroboam kynge of Iſrael ouer ten of hys Tribes.

A But kynge Salomon loued manye outlandyſh women: the doughter of Pharao: and of the Moabytes, Ammonites, Edomites, Zidonytes and Hethites, euen of nacyons of whiche the Lorde ſayde vnto the chyldren of Iſrael, Se ye come not at them, nor let them come to you: for ſurely they will turne youre hertes after theyr Goddes. Neuertheleſſe to hath Salomon claue and fell in loue with them. * And Cant.vi.c he had ſeuen hundred * iuery Quenes and three * After the hundred concubynes whiche turned away hys Chalde. herte. For when Salomon was olde, hys wyues turned hys herte after other Goddes: ſo ỹ hys herte was not perfecte with the Lorde hys God, as was the herte of Dauid hys father.

And Salomon folowed Aſtaroth the God B of the Zidons, & Melcō the abhommacyon of the Ammonytes. And Salomon wrought wickedneſſe in the ſyght of the Lorde, & continued not after the Lorde as dyd Dauid his father. After that Salomon bylt an autter for Chamos the abhominacyon of the Moabytes in the hyll that ſtandeth before Ieruſalem, & vnto Molech the abhominacyon of the chyldē of Ammon. And lykewyſe dyd he for all hys outlandyſhe wyues which burnte enſe, and offered vnto theyr Goddes. Then was the Lorde angrye with Salomon becauſe hys herte turned frō the Lord God of Iſrael which appered vnto him twyſe, & gaue him a charge of this thynge that he ſhulde not folowe other Goddes. But he kept not that which the Lord commaunded hym: wherevpon the Lord ſaid to Salomon: for as muche as thys is done of the, and thou haſte not kept myne appoyntement & myne ordinaunces which I haue commaunded the, therfore I will rent the kynge- C dome frō the, & wil geue it to thy ſeruaūt. Not withſtandynge in thy dayes I will not do it, becauſe of Dauid thy father: but wyll take it from thy ſonne. How be it I will not take awaye all: But will geue one tribe to thy ſonne, becauſe of Dauid my ſeruaunt and becauſe of Ieruſalem which I haue choſen.

And the Lord ſtered vp an aduerſary vnto Salomon, one Hadad an Edompte and of the 3.Reg.xiij.d kynges ſignage of Edō. For whē Dauid was in Edō, & Joab the captayne of the hoſte was gone vp to burye them that were ſlayne: and had ſlayne all the men children in Edom. For ſyx mouethes dyd Joab remayne there & al Iſrael, tyll he had deſtroyed all the men children in Edom. And the Hadad fled and certē other Edomites of hys fathers ſeruaūtes with him, to go to Egypt. Hadad beyng yet a lytle lad. And they arose oute of Madyan and went to D Pharan, and toke men with them out of Pharan, and came to Egypte vnto Pharao kyng Hierael, whiche gaue hym an houſe, & appoynted hym vytayles, and gaue hym landes.

And Hadad had great fauoure in the ſyght of Pharao, ſo that he gaue hym to wyfe the ſyſter of hys owne wyfe, the ſyſter of Thahaphnes the Quene. And the ſyſter of Taphahnes bare hym Genubath hys ſonne. And Thahaphnes wened hym in Pharaos houſe. And he was in Pharaos houſe amonge the ſonnes of Pharao. And when Hadad hearde ſaye saye in Egypt that Dauid was layde to slepe with hys fathers, and that Joab the capitayne of the host was dead also, he sayd to Pharao: let me departe, that I may go to myne owne countrey. Then sayd Pharao vnto him: what lacketh thou here with me, that thou woldest go to thyne owne countreye? And he sayde, nothyng: how be it let me go. And God stered vp another aduersarye, one Razon the sonne of Eliada, whiche fled from Hadadezer king of Zobah hys maister. Which Razon gathered men vnto hym, & became capitayne ouer the company, when Dauid slue them. And they went to Damasco, and dwelt therein, & raygned in Damasco. And he was an aduersarye to Israel all the dayes of Salomon, with the euyll that Hadad dyd, which abhorred Israel and raygned in Syria.

And Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat an Ephrathite of Zaredah (whose mother was called Zeruah & was a wydowe & he Salomons seruaunt) *lyfte vp hys hand agaynst the kynge. And hereof came it, that he lyft vp hys hande agaynste the kyng. Salomō built Mello and mended broken places in the cytye of Dauid hys father. And thus felowe Jeroboam was an actyue man. And when Salomon sawe the younge man, that he wrought so lustely in the worke, he made hym ruler ouer all the charges of the house of Joseph.

* That is, rebelled & became aduersarye

And it chaunged at that season, as Jeroboam was gone oute of Jerusalem, that the Prophet Ahiah the Shilonite met hym by the way hauyng a newe mantell on hym, and they two alone in the felde. And Ahiah caught the newe mantell that was on hym, & rent it in twelue peces, and sayde to Jeroboam: take ye ten peces. For thus sayth the Lord God of Israel: beholde, I wyll rent the kyngedome out of the handes of Salomon, and will geue ten trybes to the, and he shall haue one, for my seruaunt Dauids sake and for Jerusalem the cytye whiche I haue chosen out of all the trybes of Israel: because they haue forsaken me, and haue bowed them selues vnto Astaroth the God of the Zydons, and to Camos the God of the Moabytes, and to Milcom the god of the chyldren of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes, to do that pleaseth me, and myne ordynaunces and customes, as dyd Dauid hys father.

§ The Prophetes do oftentymes not expresly vse their wordes, but also their sygnes: as Hier. & Ezay. xxiij. Ezech. xxxvij. & xxxviij. Ezechiel. b

Howbeit I wyll take none of the kyngedome out of hys hand: but wyll make him the aldermā all his lyfe long, for Dauid my seruaūtes sake, which I chose: because he kept my commaundementes and ordinaunces. But I wyll take the kyngedome out of his sonnes hande and wyl geue vnto the ten trybes of it: & wyll geue hys sonne one, that Dauid my seruaūte maye haue a lyght alwaye before me in Jerusalem, the cytye whiche I haue chosen me, to put my name there. And I wyll take the, and thou shalt raygne vpon all that thy soule desyreth, and shalt be king ouer Israel. And yf thou shalte herken vnto al that I commaunde the, & shalte walke in my wayes, & do that is ryght in my sight, that thou kepe myne ordynaunces & cōmaundementes as Dauid my seruaunt dyd: then wil I be with the & buylde thē an house & shall continue, as I buylt for my seruaunt Dauid, & wil geue Israel vnto the. And therwith wil I vexe the seede of Dauid, but not for euer. And Salomon sought to kyll Jeroboam, wherfore Jeroboam arose & fled into Egypt vnto Sesak kynge of Egypte & continued there vntil the death of Salomon. And the rest of the actes of Salomon & all that he dyd, and hys wyssdome are writē in the *boke of the actes of Salomon. And the tyme that Salomon raygned in Jerusalem vpon all Israel, was fourtye yeare. And then he layd him to rest with hys fathers, and was buryed in the cytye of Dauid hys father, and Roboā hys sonne raygned in hys stede.

* This boke remayneth not.

The.xij. Chapter.

¶ The kyngdome is deuyded: and Roboā raygneth ouer xij trybes, and Jeroboam ouer x. Roboam is stoned. Jeroboam maketh golden calues.

ANd Rehoboam went to Sichem for all Israel were come to Sichem to make hym kynge. And when Jeroboā the sonne of Nabat herde of it beyng yet in Egypte: for he fled to Egypte for feare of Salomon, and dwelt in Egypte. And they sent & called hym: and so Jeroboam & all the congregacion of Israel came and spake vnto Rehoboam, sayenge: thy father made oure youke greuous, but nowe make thou the greuous seruyce of thy father & hys sore youke which he put vpon vs, lyghter, and so we wyl serue the. And he sayde vnto them: departe yet for ye space of thre dayes, and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.

And kynge Rehoboam toke counsell with the olde men that stode before Salomon hys father whyle he yet lyued, & sayd: what counsell geue ye to answere thys people with al? And they sayd vnto hym: If thou halt be a seruaunt vnto this people this daye and serue them, & answere the, & speake good wordes to the: they wyll be thy seruauntes for euer. But he lefte the counsell that the olde men had geuē hym, & coūseled with the young men ye were nourished vp with him, & had waited on him.

And he sayd vnto them: what counsell geue ye, to answere this people with all whiche haue commoned with me, sayenge: make the youke whiche thy father dyd put vpon vs, lighter? And the yong men that were brought vp with hym, answered hym, sayenge: thys people that haue spoke vnto the: thy father made our youke heuye, make thou it vs lighter: thus answere them. My lytle fynger shalbe waxyghtyer then my fathers loynes. And nowe where my father put a greuous youke vpon you, I wyll make it heuyer. For where my father corrected you with scourges, I wil chastyse you with scorpions. And when Jeroboam and all the people were come to Rehoboam the thirde daye, as the kynge answered them, saying: come to me agayn this daye thre dayes: the kynge answered the people churlyshlye, and lefte the counsell that olde men gaue hym: and spake to them after the counsell of the younge men, sayinge. My father made youre yoouche greuous, but I wyll make it greuouser. For where my father chastysed you with whyppes, I wyll chastyse you with scorpions. And they obeyed the worde of the Lorde, and returned & departed accordynge to the word of the Lord. Then Jeroboam buylte Sichem in mounte Ephraim, and dwelt therin. And went from thence and buylt Phanuel.

And Jeroboam thought in hys herte: now myght the kyngdome returne to the house of Dauid agayne. And Jeroboam made a feast the .xv. daye of the .viij. moneth, like vnto the feast that was in Juda, and offered on the aultare. And so dyd he in Bethell, to offer vnto the calues that he had made. And beholde, there came a man of God out of Juda with ye worde of God, to Bethel, as Jeroboam stode by the aulter to offer, and cryed agaynst the aultare at the commaundement of the Lorde, and sayde: aultare, aultare, thus sayth the Lorde. Beholde a chylde shall be borne of the house of Dauid, Josiah by name, which vpon the shall offer ye preestes of the hyll aultares that sacrifyce vpon the, & shall burne mennes bones vpon the. And he gaue them the same tyme a synge sayinge: this is the synge of that the Lorde hath promysed. Beholde the aultare shal rent and the ashes that are in it, shall fall out.

And when the kynge hearde the saying of the man of God which he cryed agaynste the aulter in Bethel, he stretched oute hys hande from the aultare, sayinge: holde him. And hys hande which he put forth towarde him, dryed vp, that he coulde not pull it in agayne to him, and the aulter clafe, and the ashes fell out of the aultar accordyng to the token which the man of God had geuen at the commaundemente of the Lorde. And the kyng answered and sayd vnto the man of God: Oh pray vnto the Lorde thy God, & make intercession for me, that my hand maye be restored me agayne. And the man of God besought ye Lord and hys hande came to him agayne as well as he fore.

Then sayd the kyng vnto the man of god: come home with me, and refreshe thy selfe, & I wyll geue the a rewarde. But the man of God answered the kynge: yf thou woldest geue me halfe thyne house, I wolde not go with thy neyther wold I eat meate or drynke water in this place. For so was it charged me, throw the worde of God & sayde to me: eate no bread nor drinke water nor turne agayne by the same waye thou wentest. And so he wente

another waye and returned not by the waye he came to Bethel. Ano there dwelt an olde Prophet in Bethel, whose sonnes came and tolde hym all the workes that the man of god had done that daye in Bethel, and the wordes which he spake vnto the kynge they told their father also. And their father sayde to them: what waye went he? for hys sonnes had seen what waye the man of God went which came from Juda. Then sayde he to his sonnes: saddle myne asse. And they saddled hym an asse. And he gat hym vp thereon, and went after the man of God, and founde hym sittynge vnder an Oke, and sayde vnto hym: arte thou the man of God that camest from Juda? And he sayde, yea.

D Then he sayde to hym: come home with me, and eate bread. And the other sayd again I maye not returne with the, to go with the, neyther maye I eate bread or drynke water with the in this place. For it was sayd to me by the commaundement of the Lorde, eate no bread nor drynke water in this place, nor turne again by the waye thou wentest. And the olde Prophet sayde vnto hym: I am a prophet as well as thou, and an angel spake vnto me with the worde of the Lorde sayinge: bringe hym again with the to thyne house, and let hym eate bread and drynke water. And so the other went again with hym and ate bread in his house and dranke water.

E And as they sate at the table, the worde of the Lorde came vnto the prophete that brought hym again. And he cryed vnto the man of God that came from Juda, sayinge: thus sayth the Lorde: because thou hast disobeyed the mouthe of the Lorde, and hast not kepte the commaundement which the Lorde thy God commaunded the, but camest backe again and hast eaten bread, and dronke water in the place in whiche he bade that thou shouldest eat no bread, nor drynke water: therfor thy carkasse shall not come vnto the sepulchre of thy fathers.

F And when he had eaten bread and dronke, he saddled an asse for the Prophete whiche he had brought again. And as he iomeyed vp on met hym by the waye, and slue hym, and his carkasse lay a longe in the waye, and the asse stode therby, and the lyon stode by the corse also. And men that passed by, sawe the carkasse lye a longe in the waye, and the lyon standyng therby, and went and tolde it in the towne where the olde Prophet dwelt. And when the Prophete that brought hym backe again from the waye, heard thereof, he sayde: it is the man of God whiche disobeyed the mouthe of the Lorde. And therfore the Lorde hath delyuered hym vnto the lyon whiche hath torne hym, and slayne hym, according to the worde of the Lorde, whiche he sayde to hym. And he sayde to his sonnes: saddle me an asse: and so they dyd. And he wente and founde the bodye cast alonge in the waye, and the asse and the lyon standynge therbye. And the lyon had not eaten the carkasse nor hurte the asse. And he tooke G vp the bodye of the man of God, and put it vpon the asse, and brought it again, and came to the cyte of the olde Prophete to lament hym, and to burye hym. And he layde his bodye in his owne grane, and lamented ouer hym, Oh my brother. * And when he had buryed hym, he spake to his sonnes sayinge: when I am dead, se that ye burye me in the sepulchre wherein the man of GOD is buryed and laye my bones by hys. For the sayinge which he cryed at the commynge of the Lorde agaynste the aultare in Bethell, and agaynste all the houses of hyemstaires which are in the cyties of Samarye, shall come to passe.

* Vnderstande sayinge.

Howbeit for all that, Jeroboam turned not fro his wicked waye: but turned a waye and made of the lowest of the people prestes of the hyll aultares. Whosoeuer wolde, he fylled their handes, and they became prestes of the hyemstaires. And this doynge was synne vnto the house of Jeroboam, euen to destroye it, and to put it away fro of the face of the earth.

lre. And there was warre betwene Ala and Baasa kynge of Jsrael al their dayes.

And Baasa king of Jsrael went vp against Juda & buylt Ramah, because that he wouide let none of Alas people kynge of Juda go in or out. Then Ala toke all the syluer and D gouide that was lefte in the treasure of the house of the Lorde, and al the treasure of the kynges house and delyuered it vnto his seruauntes, and sent them to Benhadad the sonne of Tabremon the soune of Hezion kynge of Syria, that dwelt at Damasco, saying: there is a bounde betwene the and me as was betwene thy father and myne. Therfore I sende the bothe golde and syluer for a gyfte, that thou go, & breake the appointment betwene F. And Baasa kinge of Jsrael, that he maye departe frō me. And Benhadad herkened vnto kynge Ala, and sent the captaynes of the hostes whiche he had against the cities of Jsrael E and smote Ahion, Dan, Abel called Beth Maacah and all Cenneroth with all the lande of Nephthali. And when Baasa hearde that he lefte buyldinge of Ramah and dwelt in Thersah. Then kyng Ala made a proclamacyon throughout all Juda, that none shoulde be excused. And they toke the stones of Ramah, & the tymber wherwyth Baasa had buylt, & kynge Ala buylt therwyth Gabaah in Beniamin and Maspha.

And the remnaunt of al the deades of Ala and of al his myght and of al that he did, and the cities whyche he buylt, are wrytten in the F chronicles of the actes done in the dayes of the kynges of Juda. Neuertheles in his olde age he was diseased in his fete. And Ala laid him to rest with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cytye of Dauid his father. And Jehosophat his sonne raygned in his roume. And Nadab the sonne of Jeroboā began to raygne vpon Jsrael the seconde yeare of Ala kyng of Juda, and raygned vpō Jsrael two yeare. And he dyd euyll in the syght of the Lorde and walked in the waye of his father & in his sinne wherwith he made Jsrael sinne. But Baasa the sonne of Ahiah of the house of Jssachar conspired against him, & slue him at Gebethō a citie of the Philistines for Nadab and all Jsrael laye at seage before Gebethon. And it was the third yeare of Ala kinge of Juda, when Baasa slue him, and raygned in his stede. And as sone as he was G kynge, he slue all the house of Jeroboam and lefte him naught that breatheth, but vtterly he had put him cleane out, according vnto the saynge of the Lorde whiche he spake by his seruaūte Ahiah the Silonite, for the synne of Jeroboā wherwith he synned and made Jsrael synne, and for his angeryage wherwyth he angred the Lorde God of Jsrael.

The reste of the deades of Nadab, and all he dyd, are written in the chronicles of the kynges of Jsrael. And there was warre betwene Ala and Baasa kynge of Jsraell all their dayes.

In the thirde yeare of Ala kynge of Juda, Baasa the sonne of Ahiah beganne to raygne ouer all Jsrael in Thersah, and continued xxiiij. yeare. And he did that which displeaseth the Lorde, for he walked in the waye of Jeroboam and in his synne wherwith he made Jsrael synne.

The.xvi. Chapter.

¶ Jehu prophesieth against Baasa, of whom he is slayne. Elah succeedeth Baasa. Zomri killeth his master Elah, and destroyeth the house of Baasa. He is ouercome, and Amri chosen. Zomri burneth vpon hym self, and his house. ¶ Whom Achab succeedeth Amri, and taketh to wyfe wicked Jezabel.

THen came the worde of the Lorde to Jehu the sonne of Hanani against Baasa saynge: for as muche as I exalted the out of the dust & made the captayne ouer my people Jsrael, and thou hast walked in the waye of Jeroboam, and hast made my people Jsraell synne, to angre me with their synne: therfore I wyll make cleane rydaunce of Baasa and of al his house, and wil make his house like the A house of Jeroboā the sonne of Nabat. And he & dieth of Baasa in the cite, him shall dogges eate, and him that dieth in the felde, shall the foules of the ayre eate. 1.Reg.xiij.c. and.xxi.f.

The reste of the deades of Baasa, & what he dyd, and his power, are wrytten in the boke of the histories of the kynges of Jsrael. And Baasa fell on slepe with his fathers & was buryed in Thersah. And Elah his sonne raygned in his stede. And thereto throughe the Prophete Jehu the sonne of Hanani, the word of the lorde came against Baasa & against his house, because of al the wyckednesse that he did in the sight of the lorde in angerynge hym with the workes of his handes, that he shoulde be lyke the house of Jeroboā, because he had kylled Nabat. B

The.xxvi. yeare of Ala king of Juda began Elah the sonne of Baasa to raygne ouer Jsrael in Thersah, and continued two year. And his seruaunt Zamri captayn of halfe his charettes, conspyred against him, as he was in Thersah drinckynge of stronge drynke, in the house of Arsa stuard of his house in Thersah. And Zamri came and smote hym and killed him the.xxvij. yeare of Ala kyng of Juda, and raygned in his stede. And as sone as he was kyng, and & sat on his seate, he slue al the house of Baasa and lefte not a pysser against a wall. C Exodi.xi.b. i.Reg.ij.b.

And thereto he slue all his kynne and frendes, and so Zamri destroyed all the house of Baasa, according to the worde of the Lorde whyche he spake to Baasa throughe Jehu the Prophet, for all the sinnes of Baasa and sinnes of Elah his sonne, wherwyth they sinned & made Jsraell synne, to angre the Lorde of Jsrael with their vanities. The rest of the deades of Elah and al he dyd, are wrytten in the chronicles of the kynges of Jsrael.

The xxvij. yeare of Ala kynge of Juda, Zamry raygned.vij. dayes in Thersah, the people besegynge Gebethon a citie of the Philistines. And when the people that laye in the stage, herde saie how Zamri had conspired, and how he had slayne the kinge also: then all Israell made Amri the capitaine of the men of warre kynge that same daie ouer Israel euen in the hoste. And Amri departed from Gebethon and al Israel with hym, and besieged Therzah. And when Zamri sawe that the cyte muste nedes be taken, he went into the palayse of the kinges house, and set the kinges house a fire vpon him selfe, and there died, for his synnes whiche he synned in doynge wyckednesse in the sight of the Lorde, and for walkynge in the waye of Jeroboam and in his synnes whiche he did and made Israell synne.

The rest of the Actes of Zamri and the treason that he wrought, are written in the boke of the chronicles of the kinges of Israel. Moreouer that same season was Israel deuided in twayn, for halfe the people folowed Thebni the sonne of Gnath, to make hym kynge. And the other halfe folowed Amri. But the people that folowed Amri, preuayled against the that folowed Thebni the sonne of Gnath. And so Thebni died and Amri raygned.

The xxxi. yeare of Asa kynge of Juda, beganne Amri to raygne ouer Israel. xij. yeare, and he ruled .vi. yeare in Therzah. And he bought the hyl of Samaria of one Semar for two hundred talentes of syluer, and buylt in the hyl, & called the name of the cyte which he had buylt Samaria after the name of Semar the Lorde of the hyll. And thus Amri wrought wyckednesse in the eyes of the Lord worse then all that were before him, and walked in all the wayes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, and in his synne wherewith he made Israell synne, to anger the Lorde God of Israel with their vanities. The rest of the actes of Amri which he did, and his power that he shed, are written in the chronicles of the kynges of of Israel. And Amri slapde hym to rest with his fathers, and was buryed in Samaria, & Ahab his sonne raygned in his stede.

The xxxviij. yeare of Asa kynge of Juda, beganne Ahab the sonne of Amri to raygne ouer Israel, and raygned in Samaria. xxij. yeare. And he displeased the Lord aboue all that were before him. For it semed him a light thinge to walke in the synne of Jeroboam. But tobe Jezabel the doughter of Ethbaal, kinge of the Sidonites to wyfe, and *went & serued Baal and bowed vnto him. And he reared an aultare to Baal in the house of Baal, whyche he had made in Samaria. And Ahab made a groue, and proceded further in angeringe the Lorde God of Israell, then all the kynges of Israel that were before him.

¶ Eliah is sent to Ahab. Abdiah hydeth an hundred Prophetes and feadeth them. Baal can not heare altho̅ugh the people crye very loude. Eliah mocketh all Baal's Prophetes, and after obteyneth rayne.

1 AFter at the last the worde of the Lorde came to Eliah the thirde yeare sayinge: go, shewe thy self vnto Ahab, that I may sende rayne vpon the earthe. And Eliah went to shewe him self vnto Ahab for there was a great famithement in Samaria. Wher fore Ahab called Abdiah the gouerner of hys house: whyche Abdiah feared God greatly: in so muche that when Jezabel destroyed the Prophetes of the Lorde, he tooke an hundred of the Prophetes and hyd them, fyfty in one caue, and fyfty in another, and prouyded bread and water for them. And Ahab sayde vnto Abdiah: walke thorow the lande, vnto all fountaynes of water and vnto all brokes, to se whether any grasse maye be founde, that we maye saue the horses and the Mules, that we destroye not the beastes. And they deuyded the lande betwene them to walke thorow it. Ahab went one way by him selfe, and Abdiah went another by him selfe.

2 And it chaunced as Abdiah went in the waye that Eliah met him. And Abdiah knewe him And fell on his face and sayde: arte not thou my Lorde Eliah. And he sayd vnto him: I am he. Go, and tel Ahab that Eliah is here. And the other answered: what haue I synned that thou wouldest deliuere me into the hande of Ahab, to slay me? As surely as the Lorde thy God liueth, there is no nacion or kyngedome, whether my Lord hath not sent, to seke the. And when they sayde thou wast not there he toke an othe of the kyngedome & nacion, because he founde the not. And now thou sayest: go and tell, thy Lord Eliah is here. And as sone as I am gone from the, the spirite of the Lorde shall carye the awaye, whether I shall not knowe, and then I haue gone and tolde Ahab, and then he can not fynde the, he shall slay me. And yet I thy seruaunt haue L feared the Lorde from my youthe age. Was it not tolde my Lorde, what I dyd, when Jezabel slue the Prophetes of the Lorde how I hydde an hundred of the Lordes Prophetes, fyfty in one caue and as many in another, & prouyded them of breade and water? And yet now thou sayest, go shewe thy Lorde, that Eliah is here, that he shoulde slay me.

Then Eliah sayde: as truly as the Lorde of Hoostes liueth, before whom I stande: I wil shewe my selfe vnto hym this day. And therupon Abdiah wente to Ahab and told him. And Ahab went agaynst Eliah. And when Ahab sawe Eliah, he sayd vnto him: art thou he that troubleth Israel? And he sayde: it is not I that trouble Israel, but thou and thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken the commaunde mentes of the Lord, and hast folowed Baal. But now sende and gather to me all Israel vnto mount Carmel and the Prophetes of Baal foure hundred and fyfty, and the Prophetes of the groues four hundred, which eate of Jezabels table. And Ahab sent for all the children of Israel and gathered the prophetes vnto mount Carmel. To forsake the commaundementes of God, & to trouble the people of God. D

And Eliah came vnto all the people and sayde: why halte ye betwene two opinions? yf the Lorde be very God, folowe him: yf Baal be he, then folowe hym. And the people answered him not one worde. Then sayde Eliah vnto the people: I only remayne of the Lordes Prophetes, & Baals Prophetes are foure hundred and fyfty. Let two oxen be geuen vs, and let them chose the one and cutte him in peces and lay him on wood, and put no fyre vnder. And I wyll dresse the other & put him on wood, and wil put no fyre vnder. And call ye on the name of youre God, and I wil cal on the name of the Lorde. And then the God that answereth by fyre, he is the very God. E

i. Reg. xx. f. and. xj. f.

* And al the people sayde: it is wel spoken. Then sayde Eliah vnto the Prophetes of Baal: chose you an oxe and dresse him fyrst (for ye are many) and call on the name of youre God, but put no fyre vnder. And they tooke yͤ oxe that was geuen them and dressed it, and called on the name of Baal from mourninge to none sayinge: O Baal heare vs. But there was no voyce nor answere. And they lepte about the aulter that they had made. And at none Eliah mocked them and sayde: call loud, (for he is a God: but he is talking or occupied or in the way, or happely he sleepeth) that he may awake. And they cryed loud, and cut them selues, as their maner was, with knyues & launcers, tyl the bloude folowed on them. And when middaye was paste, they prophesyed vntil it was time to offer. But there was nyther voyce nor answere nor any that regarded them. F

Then Eliah sayde to all the folke: come to me. And all the people came to him. And he mended the aulter of the Lorde that was broken. * And he toke .xii. stones accordynge to the nombre of the .xii. tribes of the sonnes of Jacob, vnto whom the worde of the lord came sayinge: * Israel shalbe thy name. And with Iosua. iiij. d. Gene. xxxij. f

the stones he made an aultare in the name of the Lord. And he made a gutter round about ỹ aulter, able to receyue two peckes of corne. And he put the wood in order, and hewed the ore in peces, and put hym on the wood, and sayde: fyll foure pottchers with water, and powre it on the sacrifice and on the wood. And he sayd: do so agayne. And they dyd so agayne. Then he sayde: do it the thyrde tyme. And they dyd so the thirde tyme. And the water ranne round about the aultare, and the gutter was full of water also.

And when offeringe time was come, Eliah the prophete went to and sayde: Lord God of Abraha, Jsaac and of Jsrael, let it be knowen thys daye, that thou art ỹ God in Jsrael, and that J am thy seruaunt, and that J do all these thynges at thy commaundement. Heare me O lorde, heare me, that this people may know, ỹ thou lord, art the God, and that thou hast turned their hertes backward. And there fell fire from the Lorde, and consumed the sacrifice ỹ the wood and the stones ỹ the dust, ỹ lycked vp ỹ water that was in the gutter. And when all the people sawe that, they fell on their faces ỹ sayde: the Lorde he is God, the lord he is God. Then sayd Eliah vnto thē: lay handes on the Prophetes of Baal, let not one of them escape. And when they had taken them, Eliah brought them doune vnto the broke of Felon, and slue them there.

Then Eliah sayde vnto Ahab, get the vp, and eate and drynche, for there is a sound of muche rayne. And when Ahab went vp to eate ỹ to drynche, Eliah went vp to the toppe of mount Carmel.* And bowed hym selfe to the earthe, ỹ put his face betweene his knees, and sayd to his seruaunt: go vp and loke toward the sea. And he went vp and loked, and sayde: there is nothing. And he sayd: go agayn vii. times. And the seuenth time he sayde: beholde, there ariseth a litle cloude out of the sea, lyke the palme of a mannes hande. Then he sayde: go and saye to Ahab, put the horses in the charet, and get the doune that the rayne stoppe the not. And within a lytle whyle, heauen was blacke with cloudes and winde, and there was a great rayne. And Ahab rode and went to Jezrahel. And the hande of the Lorde was on Eliah, and he gyrded vp his lynnes and ranne before Ahab, tyll they came to Jezrahel.

The xix. Chapter.

Eliah flyenge from Jezabel is ouercome of the Dangel of God. He complayneth that he is left alone and that they seke his life. He is commaunded to anoynte Hazael, Jehu and Eliseus.

AND Ahab tolde Jezabel, all that Eliah had done, and al together how he had slayne the Prophetes with the swerde. Then Jezabel sent a messenger vnto Eliah sayinge:* so do God to me and to thereto, except J make thy soule lyke one of theirs, by to morow this tyme: when he sawe that, he arose and went for his lyfe, and came to Bersabe in Juda, and left his lad there. And he went a dayes iourney into the wildernesse, and when he was come sat doune vnder a Gesper tree, and desyred for his soule, that he myght dye, and sayde, * it is nowe ynough O Lorde, take my soule, for J am no better then my fathers. Joan. xii. a.

And as he laye and slepte vnder the Gesper tree: beholde, there came an Aungell and touched him, and sayd vnto him: vp and eate. And he loked about him: and se, there was a lofte of broyled breade and a cruse of water at his heade. And he ate and dranche ỹ layde him doune agayne to slepe. And the Aungell of the Lorde came agayne the seconde tyme, and touched him, and sayde: vp and eate, for thou hast a longe iourney to go. And he arose B ỹ dyd eate and drinche and went in the strength of that meate fourtye dayes and fourtye nyghtes, vnto Horeb the mount of God, ỹ entred there into a caue ỹ lodged there al night.

And then the word of the lord came to him and sayde: what dooest thou here, Eliah? And he answered: J haue bene * thrawe angry for the Lorde God of hostes sake. For the children of Jsrael haue forsake thy couenaunt, ỹ haue broken doune thyne aultars and slayne the Prophetes with the swerde, and J onlye am lefte, and they seke my soule to haue it to. And he sayde: come out and stande before the Lorde. And beholde, the lorde went by and a myghty stronge wynde that rent the mountaynes, and brake the rockes before him. But the Lorde was not in the wynde. And after the wynde came an earthquake. But the lorde was not in the earthquake. And after ỹ earthquake, came fyre: but the Lord was not in the fyre. And after the fyre, came a smal stil voice. And when Eliah hearde it, he couered his face with his mantle, and went out an stode in the mouth of the caue. And se, there came a voice vnto him, and sayde: what dooest thou here Eliah? And he answered: J was gelouse for the Lorde God of hostes sake: because the children of Jsrael haue forsaken thine appointment and haue cast doune thyne aultars and slayne thy Prophetes with the swerde, and J only am lefte, and they seke my soule to haue it. Then the Lorde sayde vnto him: go and turne thy waye to the wyldernesse of Damasco, and go and annoynte Hazael to be kynge of Syria. And Jehu the sonne of Namsi, annoynte to be kinge ouer Jsrael. And Eliseus the sonne of Saphat of Abel Meholah annoynt to be Prophete in thy rowme. And who so escapeth the swerde of Hazael, him shall Jehu slaye: and yf any man scape the swerde of Jehu, him shall Eliseus slaye. And thetto J haue lefte me seuen thousande in Jsrael, of whyche neuer man bowed his knees vnto a. Baal, nor kissed him with his mouthe.

The. xx. Chapter.

The fourthe and the fyfthe tyme that Samaria was besieged of Benhadad kynge of Syria.

BEn Benhadad kynge of Syria gathered all his hoste together,
and. xxxij. kinges with him,
with horse and charet, and went vp and besieged Samaria, and warred agaynst it. And he sent messengers to Ahab kinge of Israel into the citie, and sayde
vnto him: thus sayth Benhadad: Thy siluer
and golde is myne, and the best of thy wiues, and the best of thy children be myne. And the kinge of Israel answered and sayde: my lorde
kinge according to thy sayinge: I am thyne
with all I haue.

And the messengers came agayne to Ahab
and sayde: thus sayth Benhadad: I haue therefore sent vnto the, sayinge: delyuer thy siluer and thy golde, and thy wiues, and thy children. Or elles I wyll sende my seruaun tes vnto the by to morowe this tyme: and they shall serche thyne house, and the houses of thy seruauntes, whiche shall take all that is glorious in thyne eyes, and bringe it awaye vn to them. Then the kynge of Israel sent for the el ders of the lande and sayed: take hede I pray
you, and se, howe this fellowe goeth about mischefe. For he sent vnto me, for my wiues and my children, for my siluer and my golde, and I denyed him nothinge of it. And all the elders of Israel and all the people sayde: here-
ken not to him, nor consent.

Wherevpon he sayde vnto the messengers of Benhadad: tell my Lorde the kinge, all that he sent vnto the first tyme, that I will do: but this requeste I maye not do. And the messengers departed and brought him worde. The Benhadad sent vnto him and sayd: thus do the Gods to me and so thereto, yf the dust of Samaria be enough for all the people that folow
me, that euery man maye haue an handfull.
And the kynge of Israel answered and sayd:
tell him, let not him that putteth on his harnesse boste him self, as he that putteth it of. And when Benhadad hearde that tidinges, as he and the kinges were dinckinge in the pauilions, he sayde vnto his seruauntes: put ye in araye. And they put them selues in araye against the cytye.

And beholde there came a Prophet vnto Ahab kynge of Israel, and sayde to him: thus sayth the Lorde: Seyst thou all this greate multitude? beholde, I will delyuer them into thyne hande this daye, that thou mayest know we that I am the Lorde. And Ahab sayde: by whome. And he sayde: thus sayeth the Lorde:
euen by the men of the gouernours of the shires. And Ahab sayde: who shall ordre bataple? And he sayde: thou. Then he nombred the men of the gouernours of the shires: and they were two hundred and. xxij. And after them he nombred all the people, and all the chil dren of Israel were seuen thousand. And they went out at none when Benhadad was dron-kynge stronge dronke in the pauilions with the two and thirtye kinges that holpe him.
And the men of the shires of the shires went out fyrste.

And Benhadad sent out, and they shewed
him sayinge: there came men out of Samaria.
And he sayde: yf they come out of fre peace, take the alyue. And also yf they come for warre take them yet alyue. And when these men of the shires of the shires were come out of the citie and the hoste after them, they slue euery
one of them his man. And the Syrians fled, and Israel followed after them. And Benha-dad the kinge of Syria escaped on a horse with his horsemen. And the kinge of Israel went out and smote horse and charet, and slue a great slaughter of the Syrians.

Then there came a Prophete to the kinge
of Israel, and sayde to him: go forth and play
the man, be wyse and take hede what thou doest
for when the yeare is about, the kinge of Syria will come against the agayne. Then sayde
the seruauntes of the kinges of Syria to him:
the Gods of the hylles are their Gods, and therfore they had the better of vs. But let vs fight with them in the playne, and for what we will, we shall haue the better of them. And this do take the kinges awaye euery man out of his place, and put dukes in their rowmes.
And thou nombre the an hoste, like the hoste that thou hast lost, and horse for horse, and charet for charet, and let vs fight with them in the plaine, and for a wager, we get the better of them. And the king hearkened vnto their voyce and did euen so.

And assone as the yeare was about, Be-hadad nombred the Syrians and went vp to Aphek to warre with Israel. And the childre of Israel were nombred and prouided of vic-tayle, and went against them, and pitched before them like two little flockes of kiddes: but the Syrians filled the countrey. Then there came a man of God and sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: thus sayeth the Lorde. Because the Syrians saye, the Lorde is but a God of the hylles, and not God of the valeys: therfore wyll I delyuer all this great multitude into thyne hande, that ye may know that I am the Lorde. And they pitched one euen against the other. xx. dayes, and the seuenth day vpon batayle. And the children of Israel slue of the Syrians an hundred thousande fote men in one daye. And the reste fled to Aphek into thousande of them that were lefte. And Benhadad fled and went into the cytye, frō chābre to chambre.

Then sayde hys seruauntes vnto hym: beholde, we haue heard e sayd, that the kynges of the house of Israel are mercifull kynges. Let vs put sackecloth about our lomes and ropes about oure heades, and go out to the kynge of Israel: happlye he will saue thy lyfe. And they gyrded sackecloth about theyr lomes, and put ropes about their heades, and f went oute to the kynge of Israel, and sayde: thy seruaunt Benhadad sayth: I praye the, let me lyue. And he sayde: is he yet alyue? what he is my brother. And they toke that word for good lucke and haskely caught it out of hys mouth and sayde: ye thy brother Benhadad. Then he sayde: go and fetche hym. And Benhadad came out to hym, and the other toke him vp into the charet. And Benhadad sayde: the cytyes whiche my father toke from thy father, I will restore agayne. And thou shalt make streates for the in Damasco, as my father dyd in Samaria. And I will make an appointment with the and sent the awaye. And so made an appointment with hym and sent hym awaye.

Then a certayne man of the children of the Prophetes sayd vnto his felow with the word of the Lorde, smyte me I praye the. And the man wouldē not smyte him. And he sayde, because thou hast not obeyed the voyce of the Lorde: beholde, assone as thou arte departed from me, a lyon shall slaye the. And assone
1.Reg.xiij.a. as he was departed from him, a lyon found him and slew him. Then he founde another man & sayd to him: smyte me I praye the. And the man gaue him a good stripe and wounded him. And the Prophete went forth & waited for the kynge by the waye, and put ashes vpō his eyes, and put him selfe out of knowledge. And when the kynge came by, he cryed vnto hym and sayde: thy seruaunt went out in the myddes in the battel. And se, there was one
g bycause vnto me and sayde: kepe this man. And yf he be myssed thy lyfe shall go for hys, or elles thou shalte paye a talent of syluer. And as thy seruaunt had here and there to do, he was gone. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto hym: euen so shall the iudgement be as thou hast determyned it thy selfe.

And he hasted and toke the ashes awaye frō his eyes, and the kynge of Israel knewe hym, that he was of the Prophetes. And he sayde vnto the kynge: thus sayeth the Lorde: because thou hast let go a man, that ought to haue dyed, thy lyfe shall go for his lyfe, and thy people for hys. And the kynge of Israell went to hys house wayward and heauy, and entred into Samaria.

The xxi. Chapter.

Jezabel procureth vnryghtuously to slee Naboth, for the vyneyarde that he refused to sell Ahab. Eliah reproueth Ahab. And he repenteth.

After these thynges were done, it chaunced that Naboth the Jezrahelite had a vyneyard in Jezrehel harde by the palace of A-A hab kynge of Samaria. And Ahab spake vnto Naboth sayinge: let me haue thy vineyard, to make me a garden of herbes therof, because it lieth so nye my house: and I will geue the a better vineyarde for it: or yf it please the, I will geue the the worth of it in syluer. But Naboth sayde to Ahab: the lorde forbyd that from me, that I shoulde geue the enheritaunce of my fathers vnto the. B

Then went Ahab vnto his house wayward and cast a parde, because of the wordes which Naboth the Jezrahelite had spoken to hym sayinge: I will not geue to the the enheritaūce of my fathers. And he layde him doune vpon hys bed and turned awaye his face, & wolde eate no meate. And then Jezabel his wyfe came to hym, and sayd vnto him: why art thou so frowarde, that thou eatest no meate. And he sayde vnto her: I spake vnto Naboth the Jezrahelite, and sayde vnto him: geue me thy vineyarde for syluer, or elles yf thou wilt, I will geue the another vyneyarde for it. And C he sayde: I will not geue the my vyneyarde.

Then sayde Jezabel hys wyfe vnto hym: what a goodly kingedome were thou able to make in Israel? vp and eate meate and sette thyne herte a rest, for I will geue the, the vineyarde of Naboth the Jezrahelite. And she wrote a letter in Ahabs name and sealed it wt hys seale, and sent it vnto the elders and chefe men of hys cyte that dwelt where Naboth dwelt. And she wrote in the letter sayinge: proclaime fastyng and set Naboth on hye amōg the people, and sette two buthusters before him: and let them testifye agaynst hym sayinge: thou dyddest curse bothe God and the kinge: & vpon that carie him out & stone him to death. D

And the elders and nobles of the cytie, whiche dwelt in hys citie, did as Jezabell had sent vnto them, and as it was written in the letter, whiche she had sent vnto them. They proclamed fastynge, and set Naboth on hye amonge the people, and there came in two vn thrifte persones and sate before him. And the two buthusty persones witnessed agaynst Naboth before the people sayinge: Naboth dyd curse God and the kinge. * And vpon Actuū.vij.g they caryed him out of the cytye and stoned him with stones to death. And then they sent to Jezabel sayinge: Naboth is stoned to death. And when Jezabel hearde that Naboth was stoned to deathe, she said to Ahab: vp and take possession of the vyneyarde of Naboth, the Jezrahelite, whyche he denyed to geue the for syluer, for Naboth is not a lyue, but dead. And when Ahab heard that Naboth was dead he stode vp to go doune to the vineyarde of Naboth the Jezrahelite, to take possession of it.

And the worde of the Lorde came vnto Eliah the Thesbite sayinge, vp and go doune to mete Ahab kynge of Israel whiche is in Sa-

both:

Samaria. Behold, he is in the vineiard of Naboth: for he is gone downe thither, to take possession of it. And saye vnto him: thus saith the Lorde, thou hast killed & therto gotten possession. And saie moreouer vnto him, thus sayth the lorde: in the place where dogges lapped the blonde of Naboth, shall dogges lappe euen thy blonde also. And Ahab sayd to Eliah: hast thou founde me thine enemy at any time? and he saide: ye, because thou art vtterly geuen to worche wyckednesse in the syghte of the lorde. Beholde, I will bringe euyll vpon the, & wyl make cleane rydd ance of the, and wil destroy vnto Ahab all that ppleth against the wal, and pf ought be preserued or forsaken in Israell: and will make thyne house, lyke the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, and lyke the house of Baasa the sonne of Ahiah, for the angerynge wherwith thou hast angered, and made Israel synne.

*Some read pssessiō. So we haue pt. And therto against Jezabel came the word of the lorde sayinge: dogges shall eate Jezabell, vnder the *walles of Jezrael. And he pt dyeth of Ahab in the towne, hym shal dogges eate: and he that dyeth in the felden, him shall the foules of pe ayre eate. For there was none at all lyke Ahab, that was so vtterly geuē to worche wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde, and that because Jezabel his wyfe pyched hym forwarde. And therfore he dyd exceding abhominable, in folowynge Idoles, in all thynges lyke as dyd the Ammonites whyche the Lord cast oute before pe chyldren of Israel.

When Ahab hearde those wordes, *he rent his clothes and put sackecloth about his flesh, and fasted, and laye in sack, and went comfortlesse. And the word of the lorde came to Eliah the Thesbite sayinge: seyst thou howe Ahab humbleth hym selfe before me? because he so submytteth hym selfe before me, I wil bringe that euyl in hys daies: but in his sonnes daies I wyll bringe euyll vpon his house.

Of false prophets the counsell Ahab and Jehosaphat to warre against Ramoth knowyng the truth prophesyed to the contrary, for whyche he is smytten and put in prison.

A And they continued three yeare wythout warre betwene Syria and Israel. * And the thyrd yeare Jehosaphat kynge of Juda came to the kyng of Israel. Then sayd the king of Israel vnto his seruauntes: know ye not that Ramoth in Galaad is ours, and we syt stylle and take it not out of the handes of the kinge of Syria? And he sayde vnto Jehosaphat: wylt thou go with me to battayle, to Ramoth in Galaad? And Jehosaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel, aske counsel I pray the of the Lorde to daye. And then the kynge of Israell gathered of the Prophetes together, vpon a foure hundred men, and sayde vnto them: shall I go to Ramoth in Galaad to battayle, or be stylle? And they saide: go, for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kynge. And Jehosaphat sayde: is there neuer a Prophet of the Lordes here more, that we myght enquyre of him? And the kynge of Israell sayde to Jehosaphat: there is yet one, by whome we maye aske counsel of the Lorde, one Micheah the sonne of Jemlah. But I hate hym: for he neuer prophesyeth good vnto me, but euyl. And Jehosaphat sayde: let not the kynge saye so. Then the kynge of Israel called vnto one of his chamberlaynes and sayde: fet Micheah the sonne of Jemlah hyther attonce.

And the kynge of Israell and Jehosaphat the kinge of Juda sat eyther in his seate and their apparell on them, in a voyde place besyde the entrynge of the gate of Samaria, & all the Prophetes prophesyinge before them. And Zedekiah the sonne of Canaanah made hornes of yron and sayde, thus sayth the lord: with these hornes thou shalt wynoure the Syrians vntyll thou haue made an ende of them. C And all the Prophetes prophesyed euen so sayinge: go to Ramoth in Galaad & prosper, for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kinge.

And the messenger that was gone to call Micheah, said vnto him: se, the wordes of the Prophetes speake good vnto the kynge with one mouth: let thy wordes I praye the, be lyke the wordes of one of them, and speake that is good. And Micheah sayde: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, what the Lorde putteth in my mouthe, that wil I speake. And when he was come to the kynge, the kynge sayde to hym: Micheah, shall we go to Ramoth in Galaad to battayle, or shall we be stylle? And he sayde vnto him: * go and prosper, the Lorde deliuer it into the handes of the kinge. And the kynge sayde vnto him, how often shall I adiure the, that thou tel me nothinge but truthe, in the name of the Lorde.

Then he sayde: I saw all Israell scattered vpon the hylles, as shepe that haue no shepardes. And the Lorde sayde: these haue no maister, let them returne, euery man to hys house in peace. Then sayde the kynge of Israel to Jehosaphat: dyd I not tell the, that he D woulde prophesye no good vnto me, but euyl? And Micheah sayde: heare therfore the worde of the Lorde. I saw the Lorde sytte on hys seate and all the company of heauen standinge about him, on his right hand and on his left. And the Lorde sayd: * who shal deceiue Ahab that he maye go and be slayne at Ramoth in Galaad, and one sayde on this maner and another on that. Then came forthe a spyryte & stode before the Lorde and sayde: I will deceiue him. And the Lorde saide: wherwyth? And he saide: I wil go out and be a false spirit in the mouthes of all his Prophetes. And the Lord sayde: thou shalt deceiue hym, and also preuayle, go forth and do euen so. Now therfore beholde, the Lord hath put a lyenge spirit in the mouth of all these thy Prophetes: whē in deed deade the Lorde hath spoken euyll towarde the.

Then Zedechiah ꝑ sonne of Canaanah went to and smote Micheah on the cheke, and sayde: how is the spyryte of the Lorde gone from me, to speake in ꝑ? And Micheah sayde: beholde thou shalt se in that daye, when thou shalt go from chambre to chambre to hyde the. And the kynge of Israel sayde: take Micheah, and cary him backe agayne vnto Amon the gouerner of the citie, and vnto Joab the kynges sonne, and saye: thus sayth the kinge. Put ye this felow in the prison house, and fede hym with breade and water straytlye, vntill I returne in peace. Then Micheah sayde: yf thou come safe agayne, the Lorde hath not spoken in me. And he sayde moreouer, herken to ye people euery one of you.

¶ And so the kynge of Israel and Jehosaphat the kinge of Juda went vp to Ramoth in Galaad. And the kinge of Israel sayde to Jehosaphat: *chaunge the and get the to warre: but put on thyne own apparell. And the kyng of Israel chaunged hym selfe, and went to battel also. But the kynge of Syria had commaunded the capitaynes of hys charettes of whych he had xxxij. sayinge: fight neyther with small nor greate, saue with the kinge of Israel onlye. And when the captaynes of the charettes sawe Jehosaphat, they thought he had bene ꝑ kinge of Israel, and therfore turned to him to fyght. But Jehosaphat cryed out. And when the captaynes of the charettes sawe that he was not the kinge of Israel, they turned backe from him.

* That is, disguise the.

* That is, at aduenture.

And a certayne man drew a bow* ignorantly and smote the kinge of Israel betweene the ribbes of his harnesse. Wherfore the kinge sayde vnto the driuer of his charet, turne thy hande and cary me out of the hoste, for I am throughout hurte. And the battel encreased that daye, and let the kinge. the kynge continued in hys charet before the Syrians and dyed at euen. And the bloude ranne out of the wounde into the botome of the charet. And there went a proclamacyon throughout the hoste, after the sunne was doune sayinge: euery man to his cyte and to hys own countrey. And when the kynge of Israel was dead, they came to Samaria and buryed hym there. And whyle they washed the charet in the pole of Samaria, the dogges licked vp hys bloude, and harlottes washed him accordynge vnto the worde of the Lorde whych he spake.

The rest of the deades of Ahab, and all he dyd, and the ywory house whyche he made, and the cyties that he buylt, are written in the boke of the chronicles of the kinges of Israel. And when Ahab was layde to rest with hys fathers, Ochoziah hys sonne raygned in hys stede.

Jehosaphat the sonne of Asa beganne to raygne vpon Juda, the fourth yeare of Ahab kyng of Israel, and was xxxv. yeare old whē he beganne to raygne, and raygned xxv. yeare in Jerusalem. And his mothers name was Azubah the doughter of Salahi. And he walked in all the wayes of Asa hys father, & bowed not therfrom. But dyd that was right in the eyes of the Lorde. Onlye he dyd not put the halaulters out of the waye: for the people offered, and burnt their sacrifices yet in the hyaulters. And he had peace wyth the kynge of Israel.

And the rest of the deades of Jehosaphat, and the myght that he shed, and how he warred, are wrytten in the boke of the chronicles of the kinges of Juda. And the remnaunt of the stues of the males, whyche remayned in the dayes of his father, he put cleane oute of the lande. There was then no kynge in Edō, the kynge was but a debite. And Jehosaphat made shyppes in the sea, to go to Ophir for gould, but they went not: for the shippes brake at Aziongaber. Then sayde Ochoziah the sonne of Ahab vnto Jehosaphat: let my seruaunte go with thine in the shyppes. But Jehosaphat wolde not. And Jehosaphat sayde him to slepe with hys fathers and was buryed with his fathers in ꝑ citie of David his father. And Jehoram hys sonne raygned in hys roume.

The fyrst Chapter.

Ochoziah falleth out at a wyndowe, and sendeth vnto Berzebub, whyche maye be may vnto be broken. The captaynes ouer fyftyes with their soudyers are burnt with fyre frō heauen, by the prayer of Helias. Ochoziah is reproued of Helias, and dyeth, and Jehoram hys brother succedeth hym.

¶ Ochoziah the sonne of Ahab beganne to raygne vpon Israel in Samaria, the xvij. yeare of Jehosaphat king of Juda, & was king ouer Israell two yeare, & dyd euyll in the syght of ꝑ Lorde, and walked in the waye of hys father and in the waye of his mother, and in the waye of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whyche made Israel synne. And he serued Baal, and bowed hym selfe to hym, & angred the Lorde God of Israel, in all thinge as dyd hys father. And the Moabites rebelled agayne Israel after the death of Ahab.

And

And Ohoziah fell thorowe a latteſe wyndowe out of an vpper chambre that he had in Samaria, & fell ſycke. Then he ſent meſſengers ſaynge vnto them: go & enquyre of .a. Beelzebub the God of Akaron, whether I ſhall recouer of this diſeaſe. But the Aungell of the Lorde ſpake vnto Eliah the Theſbite: vp and go agaynſt the meſſengers of the kinge of Samaria, and ſay vnto them: Is it becauſe there is no God in Iſrael, that ye go to aſke thorowe Beelzebub the God of Akaron. Therfor thus ſayth the Lorde: thou ſhalt not come doune from the bedde on which thou art gone vp, but ſhalt dye. And Eliah departed.

And the meſſengers turned backe agayne vnto him. And he ſayde vnto them: why are ye thus come agayne? And they ſayde vnto him: there came a mā againſt vs & ſayde vnto vs: go and turne agayne vnto the kynge that ſent you, & ſaye vnto him. Thus ſayth the lorde: Is it becauſe there is no God in Iſrael, that thou ſendeſt to enquyre thorowe Beelzebub the God of Akaron? Therfor thou ſhalt not come doune frō the bed on which thou art gone vp, but ſhalt ſurely dye. And he ſayde to the: what maner a man was that whiche met you, and tolde you theſe wordes? And they ſayde vnto hym: it was an hearry man and gyrde with a gyrdle of a ſkinne aboute hys loynes. And he ſaid vnto the: it is Eliah the Theſbite.

Then the kynge ſent vnto him a captayne, ouer fyfty with his fyfty. And when the captayne was come to him: beholde, he ſat on the toppe of an hyl. And the captayne ſayde vnto him: man of God, the kynge biddeth the come doune. And Eliah anſwered and ſayde to the captain ouer the fyfty: yf I be a man of God, fyre come doune from heauen and conſume the and thy fifty. And there came fyre doune from heauen, & deuoured hym & his fifty. And the kynge went agayne and ſent to hym another captayn ouer fyfty with his fyfty, which anſwered & ſayde vnto him: O man of God, thus ſayth the kyng, make haſt & come doune. And Eliah anſwered and ſayde vnto the: yf I be a man of God, then let fyre come doune frō heauē & conſume the & thy fifty. And there came fire doune from heauen, and conſumed hym, and hys fyfty.

And the kinge ſent agayne the third captayne ouer fyfty. And when the third captayne ouer fyfty was come vp to him, he fell on hys knees before Eliah and beſought hym & ſayde vnto him: O man of God, let my lyfe & the lyfe of theſe fyfty thy ſeruauntes be precious in thy ſyghte. Beholde, there came fyre doune from heauen & burnt vp the two fore captaynes ouer fifty with their fyfties. But let my lyfe nowe be precious in thy ſyghte. Then ſayde the Aungel of the Lorde vnto Eliah: go doune with him, and be not afrayd of him. And he went doune with him vnto the kinge.

And he ſayde vnto the kinge, thus ſayth the Lorde: for as muche as thou ſentteſt meſſengers to aſke thorowe Beelzebub the God of Akaron, as though there had bene no God in Iſrael to aſke thorow thy worde? therfore thou ſhalt not come of the bed on whyche thou art aſcended, but ſhalt ſurely dye. And ſo he dyed accordyng to the worde of the lord which Eliah ſpake, and Iehoram was made kyng in hys ſtede, the ſecond yeare of Iehoram ſonne of Iehoſaphat kynge of Juda, becauſe he had no ſonne. The reſt of the deades of Ohoziah whiche he did, are written in the chronicles of the kynges of Iſrael.

And Eliah ſaid to Eliſeus: tary here I pray the, for the Lorde hath ſent me to Bethel. But Eliſeus ſayde: as ſurely as the Lorde liueth, and as thy ſoule liueth, I wyl not leaue the. And when they came to Bethel, the children of the prophetes that were at Bethel, came out to Eliſeus, & ſayd to him: knoweſt thou not how that the Lord wil take awaye thy maiſter from the this day? And he ſaid: I know it to: holde youre peace.

Then ſayde Eliah to Eliſeus: tary here a fewe ſhyp, for the Lorde hath ſent me to Jericho. And he ſayde: as ſurely as the Lorde liueth, and as ſurely as thy ſoule liueth, I will not leaue the, and ſo they went to Jericho. And the children of the prophetes that were at Jericho came to Eliſeus, and ſayd vnto him: art thou not ware, that the Lorde will take awaye thy maiſter from the this day? And he anſwered: I know it alſo, holde youre peace. And Eliah ſayd to him: tary I pray the here, for the lord hath ſent me to Jordan. But he ſayde: as ſurely as the Lord liueth, and as thy ſoule liueth, I will not leaue the. And ſo they went bothe of them together. And fyfty men of the ſonnes of the Prophetes went and ſtode in ſight a farre of, as they two ſtode by Jordan.

And then Eliah tooke hys mantell & wrapte it together and ſmote the water, and it deuided it ſelfe, parte the one wape and parte the other, and they two went ouer on the drie lād. And as ſone as they were ouer, Eliah ſayde to Eliſeus, aſke what I ſhall do for the, ere I be taken awaye from the. And Eliſeus ſayde: let me I pray the, haue thy ſpirite * double in me. And then he toke vp the mantel of Eliah that fel from him, and went backe agayn and stode by Jordanes syde, and toke the mantel of Eliah, that fel from him, and smote the water and sayde: where is the Lorde God of Eliah, where is he? And when he had smytten the water, it drupped parte this wape and parte that wape. And Elizeus went ouer. And the children of the Prophetes of Jericho, which saw him from a farre, sayde: the spirite of Eliah doeth rest on Elizeus, and went against him, and bowed to the earth vnto him. And they saide vnto him: there be amonge thy seruauntes fyfty lustie men: let them go and seke thy master: happ'ye the spirit of the Lorde hathe taken him vp, & cast him vpon some mountain or in some valeye. And he saide: sende not. Nevertheles yet they laye vpon him, til he was ashamed, and saide: sende. And they sent fyfty men, whiche sought him thre dayes and thre nyghtes, but founde him not. And they came again to him, for he tarved at Jericho. And he sayde to them, byd I not saye vnto you, ye shoulde not go.

Then the men of Jericho sayd to Elizeus: behalde, the cite standeth pleasantly as my Lorde seyth, but the water is naughe and the grounde bared. And he sayde: bringe me a newe cruse and put salt therin. And they brought it to him. And he went vnto the spring of the water, and cast the thinge in thether, and sayde: thus saith the Lorde: I heale thys water, there shal not come henceforth ether death or barrennesse. And the water was holsome ever after accordyng to the saying of Elizeus whyche he spake.

And he went from thence vp to Bethel. And he was goynge vp in the wape, there came lytle laddes out of the cite and mocked him, and sayde to him: go vp thou bald head, go vp thou bald heade. And he turned backe and loked on them and cursed them in the name of the Lorde. And there came two Beares out of that wood, & tare. xlij. of the boves. And he went from thence to mount Carmel, & from thence went agayne to Samaria.

The.iij. Chapter.

a The kynges of Israel Juda & Edom lacke water when they should fyght against Moab, whiche they receave to ouer the power of Elizeus. The kyng of Moab refused tribute and after subdueth his kynne.

Ioram the sonne of Ahab began to raygne vpon Israell in Samaria the. xviij. yeare of Jehosaphat kyng of Juda, and continued twelue yeare. And wrought that was evyll in the syghte of the Lorde: but not lyke his father or his mother, for he put awaye the Image of Baal that his father had made: Neverthelesse he cleaved in the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat whyche made Israel synne, and stynke not there from.

And Mesa kynge of Moab whyche was riche of shepe (and was wont to render vnto the kinge of Israel an hundred thousand lambes, and as many rammes with the wolle) rebelled against the kinge of Israel after the death of Ahab. And kinge Jehoram went out of Samaria the same season, and nombred all Israel. And he went and sent to Jehosaphat kynge of Juda sayinge: the kinge of Moab hath rebelled against me, wylt thou go with me against the Moabites to battel? And he sayde: I wil go, and wylbe as thou, & my people shalbe as thyne, and my horses as thyne. And he sayde: what wape shall we go? And he other answered: the wap thorow the wildernesse of Edom.

And the kynge of Israel toke his iourneye with the kinge of Juda and the kinge of Edō. And when they had compased the wap seuen dayes, there was no water for the host nor for the cattel that they hath with them. Then sayd the kynge of Israel: Alasse, the Lorde hath called together these thre kynges to delyuer thē into the handes of the Moabites. But Jehosaphat sayde: is there here no prophete of the Lorde, that we may enquyre of the Lorde by him? And one of the kynge of Israels seruauntes answered and sayde: here is Elizeus the sonne of Saphat, whiche* powred water on the handes of Eliah. And Jehosaphat sayde: the worde of the Lorde is with him. And so the kinge of Israel, and Jehosaphat and the kynge of Edom went doune to him.

* That is, served him, wayted on him.

And Elizeus sayde to the kynge of Israel: what haue I to do with the? Get the to the prophetes of thy father and of thy mother. And the kyng of Israel sayd vnto him: Oh naye, but hath the lorde called these thre kynges to delyuer thē into the handes of the Moabites? And Elizeus sayde, as sure as the Lorde of Hostes liveth (in whose syght I stande) and it were not that I regarde the presence of Jehosaphat the kynge of Juda, I wouldē not loke toward the, nor se the. But now bringe my a mynstrel. And as the mynstrel played, the hand of the Lord was vpon him. And he said: thus biddeth the lorde: make thys broke full of dyches. For thus saith the Lorde: ye shall se neither wynde nor rayne, and yet this broke shalbe spilled with water, that ye maye drinck and youre beastes and youre cattel also. And this is yet but a small thinge, in the syght of the lorde. But he will geue the Moabites into youre handes also. And ye shall destroye all strange townes and all goodly cyties, and shall fal al pleasaunt trees and stoppe all the welles of water, & marre al good platies of grounde with stones. And in the mornynge about offeryng time: there came suche a water the wape from Edom, that the countrey was filled with water.

And when all the Moabites heard that the kinges were come to fight against them, they gathered together, from the youngest & was able to put on harnesse and so by warde, and wapted

wapted in the borders.

And they bepnge vp erly in the mornyng, the sonne arose and shone vpon the water. And when the Moabites sawe the water a farre of, as red as bloud, they sayde: it is bloud: the kinges have fought together & one slaine another. Now therfore ye Moabites get you to the spople. And when they came to the host of Israel, the Israelites stode vp, and layde on the Moabites, that they fled before them. And so they entred the land and destroyed the Moabites. And they ouerthrewe the cytyes, & on euery good parcel of lande, cast euery man his stone and ouercourred it, and stopte all the welles of water, and felde all the good trees. And as longe as the stones therof dyd remayne in the walles of* Byrche the kynges went vpon it and bette it.

*Some read of Hareseth.

And when the kynge of Moab sawe, that the battel was to stronge for hym, he toke to him seuen hundred men that durste the sweord to have broken vp vnto the kynge of Edom. But they coulde not. And then he toke his eldest sonne that shoulde raygned in his stede, and offered him for a burnt offerynge vpon the walles. And there came so greate wrathe vpon Israel, that they departed from hym & returned to their owne lande.

The.iiij. Chapter.

God geueth a certayn poor woman oyle a flagon by Heliseus. Heliseus obteyneth of God a childe for her. Which, whyche after sayde to her, chaseth to her. He raiseth vp the same childe.

THere cryed a certayn woman of the wyues of the chyldren of the Prophetes, vnto Elizeus saying: thy seruaunt my husband is deade, and thou knowest that thy seruaunt dyd feare the Lorde.

And the creditour is come to fet my two sonnes, to be his bondemen. And Elizeus said to her: What shall I do for the? Tell me, what hast thou in thyne house. And she sayd: thyne handmayd hath nothynge at in all her house, saue a pytcher wyth oyle. And he sayde: Go and borowe the in other places, of all thy neyghbours emptie vessells, and that not a fewe. And then go and shut the doze to the and to thy sonnes, and poure out into the all those vessells, and put the full away all syde.

And she went from hym, and shut the doze to her and to her sonnes. And they brought to her, and she powred out. And whē the vessells were full, she sayde to her sonne: bryng yet a vessel. And he sayde: there is no mo. And the the oyle ceased. Then she came and tolde the man of God. And he sayde: go and sell the oyle and paye thy creditor. And lyue thou and thy children of the resse.

And it fell on a daye, that Elizeus came to Sunam, where was a riche woman that toke him in to eate breade. And as ofte as he came that waye, he turned in thither to eate breade. And she sayd vnto her husbande: I perceyue that the man of God is perfecte, and cometh alwaye by vs. Let vs make hym a lytel chamber with a lytel walle, and let vs set him there a bed, a table, a stole and a candelstycke that he maye turne in thither, when he cometh to vs.

And it fortuned on a time that he came thyther and turned into the chamber & lay there. Then he sayde to Giezi his seruaunt: cal this Sunamite. And he called her, and she came before him. And Elizeus sayd to him: saye to her I pray the, thou hast made al this prouision for vs, what shall I do for the? wouldest thou be spoken for to the kinge or to the capitayne of the hoste? And she sayde* I dwel amonge myne owne people. Then he sayde: what is to be done for her? And Giezi sayd: Verely she hath no childe, and her husbande is olde. And he sayde: call her. And he called her. And she came and stode at the doze. Then he sayde: by suche a tyme, as soone as the fruite can lyue, thou shalt embrace a sonne, and she sayde: Oh naye my Lorde thou man of God, do not lye vnto thyne handmayde. And the wyfe conceyued and bare a sonne that same season that Elizeus had said vnto her, as soone as the fruite coulde haue lyfe.

*That is, I am content to that I haue.

And when the lad was greate, it fell on a day, that he went out to his father, to the harvestmen. And there he complayned to his father: my head, my head. And hys father sayd to a lad: carye him to his mother. And he toke him & brought him to his mother. And he sat on her knees tyl noone, and then dyed. And she tarped him vp and layde him on the bedde of the man of God, and shut the doze to him, and went out and came to her husbande & sayde: sende me one of the younge men and an Asse, that I may runne to the man of God. And he saide wherfore wilt thou go to him to daye, whyle it is neither newe mone nor Sabboth day. And she sayde: be content. Then she saddeled an Asse & saide to the lad: leade away & make me not cease ridinge, vntill I byd thy.

And so she went and came vnto the man of God to mount Carmel. And when the man of God sawe her a farre, he sayde to Giezi his seruaunt: se, where oure seruaunt cometh. Now runne against her, *and aske her, whether it be all well with her, and with her husbande and with the lad. And she sayde: all is well. Then she went to the man of God vp to the hyll and caught him by the fete. And Giezi went to her, to thrust her away. But the man of God sayde: let her alone, for her soule is vexed, and the Lorde hath hid it from me, and hath not tolde it me. Then she sayde: dyd I desyre a sonne of my Lorde? dyd I not say, that thou shouldest not bynge me in a false perswasyon?

*In the next Chap. b.

Then he saide to Giezi: gyrde vp thy loines, and take my staffe in thyne hande and away. If any man mete the, salute him not: and if any salute thy, answere him not again: And put my staffe vpon the bope. But wyth standynge the mother of the childe sayde:

iii.Re.xxviii.b *as sure as the Lorde liueth, and as thy soule liueth, I wil not leaue the. And then he arose and folowed her. Giezi went before them & put the sticke vpon the lad. But there was neyther voyce nor attendynge. And then he went againe agaynst his mayster and told hym sayinge: it hath not awaked the lad.

When Elizeus was come to the house: Beholde, the lad was dead and layd vpō his bed. And he went in and shut the doze to the lad & him, and prayed vnto the Lord. * And he went vp and laye vpon the lad, and put his mouth on his mouth, and his eyes on his eyes and the palme of his handes on the palme of his handes, and spred him selfe vpon the lad that the flesh of the child waxed warme. And wēt againe & walked once vp & downe in the house & then went vp and spred him selfe vpon him. And then the lad neesed seuen tymes & opened his eyes. And he called Giezi and sayd: Call for this Sunamite. And he called her. And when she was come to him, he sayd: * take thy sonne. Then she wēt & fell at his fete & bowed her selfe to the ground, & toke vp her sonne & went oute. When Elizeus was come to Gal gal againe, there was a darth in the lande, & the children of the prophetes dwelt with him. Then he sayde to his seruaunt, put on a great pot, and make pottage for the children of the prophetes. And one went oute into the felde, to gather herbes, & found as it were a wylde vyne, and gathered therof Coloquintidaes his lap full, & came & shred them into the potte of pottage, they vnwetynge. And they powred out for the men to eate. And when they had tasted of the pottage, they cryed out and sayd: there is death in the pot thou man of God, & coulde not eate therof. Then he sayde: bringe meale And he cast it into the pot and sayde: fyll for the people that they maye eate, and there was no harme in the pot.

There came a man from Baalsalisa, and brought the man of God breade of fyrste frutes, euen twenty loues of barley, & new corne in a clothe he had. And Elizeus bade put it before the people that they myght eate. Then his mynyster sayde: what shoulde I set thys before an hundred men? And he sayde: let it before the people and let them eate. For thus sayth the Lorde: they shall eate and leaue. And he set it before them, and they ate and left, according to the worde of the Lorde.

The. v. Chapter.

Naaman the Syrian is healed of his leprosie. Elizeus refuseth gyftes & rewardes, because the cure came by goddes power.

NAaman capitaine of the hoste to the kynge of Syria, was greate with his mayster and wel lyked: for thrugh him the Lorde saued Syria. And he was a stout man & yet a leper. And there had gone a company of Soudiours out of Syria a rouynge, and hath brought out of the countrey of Israell a lytle mayd, which was with Naamans wife. And the Damaskell sayde vnto her ladye: I wolde my master were with a prophet that is in Samaria, he wolde deliuer him of his leprosye. And he went and tolde her husbande sayinge thus and thus sayth she maide that is out of the lande of Israel. And the king of Syria sayde: gyue thy waye, and I will sende a letter vnto the kinge of Israel. And he wēt and toke with him ten talentes of syluer, and vi. thousand peces of gould, and then chaunge of rayment. And he brought the letter to the king of Israel conteyninge this tenour. Now when this letter is come vnto the: Behold, I haue sent Naamā my seruaunte to the, that thou shouldest reddre him out of his leprosye. And when the kinge of Israell had reade the letter, he rent his clothes & sayde: am I God to slay and to make aliue: that he should sende to me, for to deliuer a man from his leprosye. But consyder I praye you and se, howe he picked quarels with me. And when Elizeus the man of God, had hearde howe that the kinge of Israell had rent his clothes, he sent to the kinge sayinge: Wherfore hast thou rent thy clothes: let him come to me, that he may know that there is a prophet in Israel.

Deut.xxxii.

And Naaman came with his horses and his charet, and stode at the doze of Elizeus. Then Elizeus sent a messenger sayinge: go & washe the in Jordan seuen tymes, and thy flesshe shal come agayne to the as before, and thou shalt be cleane. And Naamā was wroth and went awaye, & sayde: Behold, I thought in my self, he would haue come out, & stand & cal on the name of the Lorde his God, and put his hande on the place of the disease, and so take awaye the leprosye. Are not Abanah and Pharphar, ryuers of Damasco, better then all the waters of Israell? myght it not rather washe in them and be cleane? And so he turned and departed in an angre. Then came his seruauntes and cōmuned with him, and sayde: father yf the prophete had byd the some great thinge, oughtest thou not to haue done it? How much rather then shouldest thou do it, whyle he sayth to the only, washe and be cleane. * Thē he went doune & washed seuen tymes in Jordan, as the man of God bade, and his flesh chaunged, lyke vnthe flesh of a lyttel boye, and he was cleane.

Luc.iiii.

Then he turned agayn to the man of God and al his company with him, and came and stode before him and sayde, Behold, I know that there is no God in all the worlde, but in Israel. And now I praye the take a blessynge of thy seruaunt. But he sayde: * as surely as the Lord liueth, before whome I stand, I wil receyue none. And the other would haue constrayned him to receyue: but he wolde not do it. And Naaman sayd, yf thou wilt not receyue I praye the, maye there not be geuen to thy seruaunt the burthen of two mules of earthe. For thy seruaunte will hereafter offer neyther burnt sacrifice nor offeryng vnto any other God, then to the Lorde. But herin he Lorde be mercifull to thy seruaunt, for when runne after hym, and take somewhat. And so Gehezi went after Naaman. And when Naacame downe of the charet agaynst hym & sayd:

iij.Reg.v.c. is all well? And he sayde: yea.

But my mayster hath sente me, sayinge: Se
there be two younge men come to me oute of Ephraim of the children of the Prophetes:
geue them I praye the, one talent of syluer, &

sayde: aduenture and take two talentes of sil-
uer in two bagges, with two goodlye garmẽ

darcke, and toke it of their: handes and bestow-

departed.

Then he went & stode before his mayster.
And Elizeus sayde to hym: whence commeth

The.vj. Chapter.

¶ Elizeus maketh room to receyue dwelle the matter. The Syrians besiege Israel, to their. ij. women agree together to eate their owne children.

A Then sayde the children of the prophetes vnto Elizeus: se, the place where we dwelle with ỹ, is to lytle for vs. Let vs there take euery mã a beame, & build vs a place there, to dwell in. And he sayde: go ye. And one sayde: beg yours I praye the, & go with thy seruauntes. And he sayde: I wyll, and so went with them.

And when they came to Iordan, they cut downe wodde. And as one was hewynge of a beame, the axe head fell into the water. And he D cryed oute & sayde: Alasse mayster, for it was lent me. And the man of God sayde: Where fell it? And he shewed hym the place. And he cut an helue, and cast it in thyther, and made the axe head swomme. And he sayde: take it vp to the. And the other stretched his hande and caught it.

And the kynge of Syrien fought agaynste
Israel, & toke counsell with his seruauntes, saying: In suche a place and in suche a place
wyll I pytche. And the man of God sent vnto the kynge of Israel, sayinge: Beware that thou go not by suche a place, for there are the Syrians gone downe. And the kynge of Israel sent to the place which the man of God tolde him and warned hym of, and saued hym selfe there more then once or twyse.

And the herte of the kynge of Syrien was troubled therwith, that he sent for his seruaũ tes, and sayde to them: * wyll ye not shewe me which of vs telleth the kynge of Israel. And i.Reg.xxii.b.
one of his seruauntes sayde: naye my Lorde
kynge. Elizeus the Prophet that is in Israell, he telleth the kynge of Israel the wordes that thou speakest in thy slepynge chambre. Then E he sayde: go and spye where he is, that I may sende and fet him. And one tolde the kyng, say inge: se, he is in Dothan. And he sent thyther horse and charettes & a great hoste. And they came thyther by nyghte, & compased ỹ towne about.

And when the seruaunt of the mã of God
rose vp early, and was gone out: Behold, there was an hoste rounde about the towne with horses and charettes. Then sayde his lad to hym: Alasse mayster, what shall we do? And F he sayde: feare not: there are mo with vs then with them. And Elizeus prayed & sayde: Lord
open the eyes of the younge man, & he sawe.
And beholde, the mountayne was ful of horses and charettes of fyre rounde about Eli-zeus. And when the soudyars came downe to him: Elizeus prayed vnto the Lorde & sayde.
Smyte this people with blyndnesse. And he smote them with blyndnesse accordyng to the desyre of Elizeus. Then Elizeus said vnto the
this is not the waye, nor this is not ỹ towne:
But folowe me, and I wyll bryng you to the man ye seke. And he led them to Samaria.

When they were come to Samaria, Eli- G
zeus sayde: Lorde, open these eyes & let the se.
And the Lorde opened their eyes that they sawe. And behold they were in the myddes of Samaria. And then sayde the kynge of Israel vnto Elizeus when he sawe them: *shall I i.Reg.xxi.f smyte them, shall I smyte them father? And he sayde: smyte the not. Wilt smyte them thou takest with thyne owne swerde, & with thyne owne bowe. Nay set bread and water before them, that they may eate and drincke, and go to their: master. And he made great ordinaunce H before them. And when they had eaten and dronke, sent them awaye, and they went to their: master. And ỹ the soudyars of Syrien came no more into the lande of Israel.

After this Benhadad kyng of Syrien gathered all his hoste, and went & besieged Sa- *Lab was maria. And there arose great dearthe in Sa- a certen measure maria: for they had besieged it, vntyll an asses lyke ỹ tyme
head was worth fourtye shekels of syluer, as we vse and the fourth part of a Cab of doues dong to call a worth fyue syclers. And as the kyng of Israel bushell or walked vpon the walles there cryed a woman a strike bylle to him, saying: helpe, my Lord kyng. And he sayde

sayde: Nay, the Lorde helpe the. But wherewith shulde I helpe the, with corne or wyne? Then sayde the kyng to her: what ayleth the? And she answered: this woman here sayde to me, bringe thy sonne, and let vs eate hym to day, and we will eate myne to morowe.
Deu. xxviii. f
Thre. xcix. b
* And so we dressed my sonne, and dyd eate hym. And I sayde to her another day, bringe thy sonne that we maye eate hym. But she had hyd her sonne. When the kyng heard the wordes of the women, he rent hys clothes (as he was walkyng on the walles. And when the people loked vpon hym: se, he was clothed in sacke vnder. Then he sayd: God do so and so to me, yf ỹ head of Elizeus the sonne of Saphat tarye on hym thys daye. And as Elizeus satte in hys house, and the elders wt hym, the kynge sente one from hym. But yer the messenger came at hym, he sayd to the elders: se you not howe the sonne of thys murtherer hath sent, to take of myne head? be circumspecte therfore when the messenger cometh, & shutte the doze, and thrust hym backe therwyth: for the sound of hys masters fete foloweth hym. And whyle he yet talked wyth them. Beholde the messenger was come vnto hym. And he sayd: behold thys euyll is of the Lorde, what more shall we loke for of the Lorde.

The. viij. Chapter.

¶ Eliseus prophesyeth plenteousnes of vitayles & other thynges to Samaria. The Syrie is vexed with sore warre. The kyng of Israel wyll not beleue the wordes of Heliseus & is troden to death.

Then Heliseus sayde: heare the worde of the Lorde, for thus sayth the Lorde: to morowe this tyme a bushell of fyne flour shalbe solde for a spele, & two bushelles of barley for another in the gates of Samaria. Then a great Lorde on whose hande the kyng leaned, answered the man of God and sayde, though the Lorde woulde make wyndowes in heaven, yet wolde not thys be. And he sayde agayne: Behold, thou shalt se it with thyne eyes and shalte not eate therof.

And there were foure lepers set without the gate of Samaria. And they sayde eche to hys companyon, what syt we here vntyll we dye? though we thoughte that we myght come into the cyte, yet is the derth so greate in the cyte, that we shall there dye. And yf we tarye here, we are but dead also. Now therfore come and let vs flee to the hoste of the Syrians: If they saue vs lyue, we shall lyue: And yf they kyll vs, then are we dead. And so they arose in the darcke to go to the hoste of the Syrians. And when they were come to ỹ syde of the hoste of Syria: se, there was no man there.

For the Lord had made the hoste of the Syrians heare a noyse of charettes & a noyse of horses, and the noyse of a great hoste. In so muche that they sayde one to another: se, the kynge of Israell hath hyred agaynste vs, the kynges of the Hethites & the kynges of Egypte, to come vpon vs. And vpon that they arose, and fled in the darcke, & left their tentes, their horses, their asses and the feld they had pytched euen as it was, and fled for their lyues. And when these lepers came to the edge of the hoste, they went into a tente, and dyd eate and drynche, and carped thence syluer, goulde and rayment, and went and hyde it, and came agayne, and entred into another, & carped thence also, and went, and hyde it.

Then they sayde one to another: it is not well that we do, for this day is a day to bring tydynges. And yf we holde oure peace, & tarye tyll it be day lyght, we shall fynde a myschefe. Now therfore come, let vs go and tell the kynges houshold. And so they went and called to the porter of the cyte and tolde them sayinge: we came to the pauylyons of the Syrians and se, there was no man there, neyther voyce of man, but horses and asses tyed, & the tentes euen as they were.

Then the porters called & tolde the kynges house wythin. And the kynge arose in ỹ night and sayde to hys seruauntes: I wyll shewe you, howe the Syrians haue serued vs. They know we that we are oppressed wyth hunger & therfore are gone out of the pauylyons to hyde them selues in the felde, sayinge: They wyll come out of the cyte, and then we shall catche them alyue and get into the cyte. And one of hys seruauntes answered, and sayde: Let men take fyue of the horses that remayne and are lefte in the cyte. Behold they are as good, as all the multitude that are lefte in the cyte: and as good as all the multytude of the cyte that are consumed, and let vs sende and se. And they toke two charettes of horses, and the kynge sente after the hoste of the Syrians sayinge: go and se. And they folowed after the euen vnto Jordan: and se, all the way was full of clothes and vesselles whych the Syrians had cast from them for haste.

And the messengers returned and tolde the kynge. And then the people went out & robbed the tentes of the Syrians. And so a bushel of flour was solde for a spele, and .ij. bushelles of barley for a spele, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde. And the kynge set the Lorde on whose hande he leaned, to kepe the gate. And the people troade hym in the gate, that he dyed, accordynge to the sayinge of the man of God whyche he sayde, when the kyng came downe to hym. And it came to passe accordyng to the word of the man of God to the kyng sayinge: two bushelles of barley for a spele & a bushell of barley for another shalbe to morowe this time in the gates of Samaria. And the Lorde answered the man of God & sayde: though the Lorde made wyndowes in heaven, yet wolde thys not be. And the other sayde: Behold, thou shalt se it with thyne eyes, and shalt not eate therof. And so it chaunged: for the people troade hym vnder fote in the gate, that he dyed.

The

The.viij.Chapter.

Elizeus prophecyeth vnto the Sunamite the barth of hir peare. After the death of Benhadad raigneth Hazael in Syria. Iehoram the sonne of Iosaphat raigneth in Iuda. Edom falleth from Iuda. Obadiah succeedeth Iehoram.

THen spake Elizeus vnto ꝑ woman whose sonne he had restored to lyfe agayne, sayinge: vp & go both thou and thyne house & sioourne where thou thinkeste best, for the Lorde wyll call a darthe whyche shall come on the lande seuen peare. And the woman arose and dyd after the saying of the man of God, & went both she & her household & sioourned in the lande of the Philistines seuen peare. And at the seuen peares end, when the woman was come agayne oute of the lãd of the Philistines she wente oute to speake to the kynge for her house, and for her land. And the kynge was talkynge with Gehezi the seruaunte of the man of God, sayinge, tell me I praye the, all the greate deades which Elizeus dyd. And it chaunged as he was tellynge the kynge howe he restored a dead bodye to lyfe agayne that the woman whose sonne he reuiued, cryed to the kynge for her house & lande. Then sayde Gehezi: My Lorde kynge, this is the woman and this is her sonne whiche Elizeus brought to lyfe agayne. And the kynge asked the woman, and she tolde him. And so the kynge sente with her one of his chamberlaynes sayinge: restore all that pertayneth to her, with all the fruites of the felde, sence the daye she lefte the lande, vnto this tyme.

After that Elizeus went to Damasco, Benhadab the kinge of Syria dyd kynge sycke. And one tolde the kynge, sayinge: The man of God is come hyther. Then sayde the kynge to Hazael: take a present with the and go agaynste 4.Re.viij.a. the man of God, and aske the Lorde by him whether I shal recouer of this my dysease or no. And Hazael went to mete him, & toke presentes with him, euen of al the good thinges of Damasco, as muche as fourtye Camelles coulde beare, and came and presented himselfe before him and sayde: thy sonne Benhadad kynge of Syria hath sent me to the, sayinge: shall I recouer of this my dysease.

And Elizeus sayde to him: go, and say to him: thou shalte recouer, howbeit the Lord hath shewed me that he shall surelye dye. And the man of God beganne *to loke earnestlye, in so muche that he was ashamed: and the man of God wept. And Hazael sayd: why weepeth my Lorde? And he answered: for I know the euyll that thou shalte do vnto the childrẽ of Israel: their stronge cytyes thou shalte set on fyre & their younge men thou shalte slaye with the swerde, and shalte dashe oute the braynes of their sucklynge children, and all to teare their wemen with childe.

*Or, to haue a sadde, and a-shamed.

And Hazael sayde: what is thy seruaunte which am but a dogge, that I shulde do this great thyng? And Elizeus sayde: for the Lord hath shewed me, that thou shalte be kynge of Syria. And so he departed from Elizeus and came to his master, whiche sayde to him. What sayde Elizeus to the? And he sayd: he tolde me that thou shuldest recouer. And on the morowe he toke a rough clothe and dypped it in the water and spredde it on his face, & he dyed, and Hazael raygned in his stede.

The fyfte peare of Iehoram sonne of Ahab kynge of Israel, Iehosaphat beynge yet kynge of Iuda. Iehoram the sonne of Iehosaphat, kynge of Iuda, beganne to raygne. xxxij. peare olde was he when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned viij. peare in Ierusalem. And he walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel, as dyd the house of Ahab for the doughter of Ahab was his wyfe, and he dyd that displeased the Lorde. Neuertheles the Lorde wold not destroye Iuda because of Dauid his seruaunt, as he promysed him to geue him a lyght in his chyldren alwaye.

And in his dayes Edom fell awaye from vnder the hande of Iuda, & made them a king of their owne. And Iehoram went to Sayr, & all his charettes with him. And he rose by nyght, & sayde on the Edomites, which compased him in, & the captaynes of his charet & the people fled into their tentes. And so the Edomites slipte awaye from vnder the hand of Iuda vnto this daye. And then Lobnah slipte awaye to, euen that same tyme.

The rest of ꝑ dedes of Iehoram and al he dyd, are writte in the chronicles of the kinges of Iuda. And Iehoram rested with his fathers & was buryed with his fathers in the cite of Dauid. And Ohoziah his sonne raygned in his stede. The.xij. peare of Iehoram sonne of Ahab, king of Israel, dyd Ohoziah the sonne of Iehoram kyng of Iuda begynne to raigne two and twetye peare old was Ohoziah whe he beganne to raygne, and raigned one peare in Ierusalem, his mothers name was Athaliah doughter of Amri kynge of Israel. And he walked in the waye of the house of Ahab: for he was a sonne in law to the house of Ahab.

And Iehoram the sonne of Ahab wente to warre with Hazael kynge of Syria, at Ramoth in Galaad, and the Syrians wounded him. Wherfore kynge Iehoram went backe agayne, to be healed in Iesrahel of the woundes whiche the Syrians had geuen him at Ramoth, when he fought with Hazael king of Syria. And Ohoziah the sonne of Iehoram kynge of Iuda went doune to se Iehoram sonne of Ahab in Iezrahell because he was sycke.

The.ix.Chapter.

Iehu is made kyng of Israel, and slayeth Iehoram the kynge himself, and Ohoziah kynge of Iuda also. A prophet sendeth to be cald Iehu. Iehu of a conspyracye becõmeth kynge.

get the to Ramoth in Galaad. And whē thou comest thether, thou shalt there se Iehu the sonne of Iehosaphat the sonne of Namsi, and go to hym, and make hym aryse vp from amonge hys brethren, and carye hym to a secret chambre. And take the boxe of oyle, and poure it on hys head, and saye: thus sayth the Lorde: I haue annoynted the to be kyng ouer Israel. And then open the doxe & flee, and tarye not. And the seruaunt of the Prophet get hym to Ramoth in Galaad, & when he came, the captaynes of the hoost were sittyng together. And he sayde: I haue an erande to the Spreadtaynr. And Iehu sayde, vnto which of all vs? And he sayde to the O captayn. And he arose and went into the house.

And the other poured the oyle on hys head and sayde to hym, thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: I haue annoynted the to be kynge ouer Israel the people of the Lorde, that thou slepe the houlholde of Ahab thy maysters. For I (sayth the Lorde) will auenge the bloud of my seruauntes the Prophetes, and the bloud of all the seruauntes of the Lorde, of the hand of Iezabel (for the whole house of Ahab shall be destroyed) and I will destroye vnto Ahab what pysseth against the wall, and so muche as the preserued or that is forsaken in Israel, & will make the house of Ahab lyke the house of Ieroboam sonne of Nabat, and lyke the house of Baasa the sonne of Ahiah. And as for Iezabel the dogges shall eate her in the feld of Iesrahel, and none shall burye her. And he opened the doxe and fled.

And when Iehu was come out to the seruauntes of hys Lord, they sayde to hym is all peace? Wherfore came this mad felowe to the? And he sayde to hym: ye know the person and hys communycacyon. And they sayde: it is not so. But tell vs a felowshyppe. And he sayde: thus and thus spake he to me, sayenge. Thus sayth the Lorde: I haue annoynted the to be kynge ouer Israel. And they hasted and toke euery man hys mantell, & put vnder hym on an hye benche at the toppe of steppes, & blew a trompet, and sayde: Iehu is kynge. And so Iehu the sonne of Iehosaphat the sonne of Namsi conspyred against Iehoram. And Iehoram had bene wayenge at Ramoth Galaad, and all Israell with hym, for feare of Hazael kyng of Syria, and was returned to be healed in Iesrahel of the woundes which the Syrians had geuen hym as he fought with Hazaell kynge of Syria.

Then sayde Iehu: If it be youre myndes, then let no man escape out of the cyte, to go and tell in Iesrahell. And Iehu rode & went to in Iesrahell: for Iehoram laye there, & Ohozias kyng of Iuda was come to Iehoram. And the watcheman that stode on the toure in Iesrahel, spyed the company of Iehu, as he came and sayde: I se a company. And Iehoram sayde: take an horseman and sende against them, and let hym aske whether it be peace. And there went one on horsbacke against hym and sayde: thus sayeth the kynge: is it peace? And Iehu answered: what hast thou to do with peace? turne & come after me. And the watchman tolde, sayenge: the messenger came to the but he cometh not agayne.

Then he sent oute another on horsbacke, which came to them & sayde, thus sayth the kyng: is it peace? And Iehu answered, what hast thou to do with peace? turne and come after me. And the watcheman tolde, sayenge: he came to the, but he cometh not agayne, and the dryuynge is lyke the dryuynge of Iehu the sonne of Namsi, for he driueth as he were madde.

Then sayde Iehoram, make redye. And they made redy his charret. And Iehoram kyng of Israel, & Ohozias kyng of Iuda went out eyther in hys charret against Iehu, and mette hym in the lurlonge of Naboth the Iezrahelite. And when Iehoram sawe Iehu, he sayde: is it peace Iehu? And he sayde, what peace shulde there be, so longe as the whoredomes of thy mother Iezabel, and her witchcrafte are so great? And Iehoram turned hys hande & fled, & sayde to Ohozias: there is falshed Ohozias. And Iehu toke a bowe in hys hande, & smote Iehoram betwene the shoulders, that the arowe came out at hys breast. And he fell downe in hys charret. Then he sayde to Badakar a lorde of hys, take and cast hym in the plat of grounde of Naboth the Iezrahelite. For I remembre as I & thou rode together after Ahab his father, how the Lord spake these wordes against hym: I haue sene yesterdaye the bloude of Naboth and of hys sonnes, sayde the Lord, and I will quyte hym in thys grounde, sayeth the Lorde. Now therfore take and cast hym in the plat of grounde accordynge to the worde of the Lorde. And when *Ohozias the kynge of Iuda sawe that he fled the waye to the *garden house. And Iehu followed after hym, and sayde: smite hym also. And they smote hym in his charret at the goynge vp to Sur by Iebleam, & he fled to Magedo, and there dyed. And hys seruauntes carped him to Ierusalem, and buryed him in hys sepulchre with hys fathers in the cyte of Dauid. And in the .xi. yeare of Iehoram sonne of Ahab, began Ohozias to raygne ouer Iuda. And when Iehu was come to Iesrahel, Iezabell herde of it, and starched her eyes, & tyred her head, & loked oute at a wyndowe. And as Iehu entred at the gate, she said had Zamri peace whiche slewe his master. And he lyfte vp hys eyes to the wyndowe & sayde: who is of my syde who? And there looked oute to hym two or three hoodes that were chamberlayers. And he sayde. Throw her downe. And they threw her downe. And he spylled of her bloude vpon the walles & on the horses, and treade her vnder foote.

And then when he was come in, & had eaten and dronke, he sayde: go & vyset I praye you, yonder cursed creature, & burye her, for she is a kynges daughter. And when they came burye her, they founde no more of her, then the shulle & the two fete and the two handes. And they came agayne, and told hym. And he said: it is the worde of the Lorde whiche he spake by the hande of his seruaunte Eliah the Thesbite, sayinge: * in the felde of Jezrahel shall dogges eate the flesshe of Jezabel, and the carkas of Jezabel shalbe donge vpon the earthe, in the felde of Jezrahell, the men shall not say this is Jezabel.

3.Reg.xxi.

The.x. Chapter.

Jehu causeth the lxx. sonnes of Ahab to be slayne. & after that. xlij. of his brethren. He hereby a meane ioyneth to hym all the prestes of Baal. After this he dealeth with the sonne of Rechab.

AHab had. lxx. sonnes in Samaria. And Jehu wrote letters, and sente to Samaria vnto the elders that were Lordes of Jezrahel, & vnto them that noursed vp Ahabs children sayinge: nowe at the coming of these letters to you, ye haue with you youre masters sonnes, and ye haue with you charettes & horses, & a strong citye & harnesse. Therfore chose the beste, & him that most pleaseth you of youre masters sonnes, & put him on his fathers seate, & fyght for youre lordes house. And they were exceding sore afrayde, & sayde: se, two kynges were not able to stande before hym, how shall we then stande? And the gouernet of the kynges house & of the cyte and of the elders, and the nourses sente to Jehu, sayinge: we are thy seruauntes & wyll do all that thou shalte bydde vs: we wyll make no kyng, but do thou what semeth good in thyne eyes. Then he wrote another letter to the sayinge: If ye be myne, & wil obey my voyce, the take the heades of youre masters sonnes and come to me to Jezrahell, by to morowe this tyme. And the kynges sonnes were. lxx. personnes with the great men of the cyte whiche nourysshed them. And when the letter came to them, they toke the kynges children and slue them in nombre. lxx. personnes, & put their heades in cophines, and sente them to hym to Jezrahell. Then the Lorde sayde to Jehu, because thou hast lustely done that pleaseth me, and haste done to the house of Ahab all that was 4ti. Reg. xv. c in myne herte, therfore shall* thy children in the fourthe generacyon sit on the seate of Israel. But Jehu cared not to walcke in ꝑ lawe of the Lorde God of Israel with all hys hert for he departed not from the synnes of Jero-
C boam whiche made Israel synne.

In those dayes the Lorde began to cut Israel shorte, for Hazael slue them in all the coastes of Israell, from Jordan Eastwarde: euen al the lande of Galaad, the Gadites, the Rubenites and the Manassites, from Aroer vpon the ryuer of Arnon, with Galaad and Basan. The rest of the actes of Jehu, and all he dyd, and all hys power are wrytten in the chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And when Jehu was layd to rest with hys fathers, they buryed hym in Samaria, and Jehoahaz hys sonne raygned in hys stede. And that tyme that Jehu raygned vpon Israel in Samaria, was .xxviii. yeare.

The. xi. Chapter.

Athaliah putteth to death all the kynges sonnes except Joas the sonne of Ohoziah, which is hydden & after her death is made kynge.

A Nd Athaliah the mother of Ohoziah, when she saw that her sonne was dead, she arose, and slew all the seede of the kingedome.
But Jehosaba the doughter of kynge Jehoram and syster of Ohoziah, toke Joas the sonne of Ohoziah, and stale hym from among the kynges sonnes that were slayne, and hys nourse with him, out of a stepp̄e chambre, and hyd hym from Athaliah, ꝑ he was not slayne. And he was with her, hyd in the house of the Lorde .vi. yeare. And Athaliah dyd raygne ouer the lande.

And the seuenth yeare Jehoiada sent & set the rulers ouer hundredes with the captaines & them of the garde, and toke them into hym into the house of the Lorde, and made a bonde with them, & toke an othe of them in the house of the Lorde, & shewed the the kynges sonne. And he commaunded them, sayinge: thys is that ye must do: one thyrde parte of you shall come on the Saboth daye, and kepe the watch of the kynges house: And another thyrd part shalbe at the gate Sur: and another thyrde parte shalbe at the gate behynde the gard chā bar, and so shall ye kepe the watche of ꝑ house
B *of Mesiah, & two porcions of you: that is, all that go oute the Saboth daye, shall kepe the destroyed. And whosoeuer cometh within the rāges shal dye for it. And se that ye be with the kinge as he goeth oute and in.

And the captaynes ouer the hundredes did all thynges as Jehoiada the preste commaūded, and toke euery man hys men, that is, thē that came in the Saboth daye with them that went out the Saboth day, & wēte to Jehoiada the preste. And the preste gaue to the captaynes ouer hundredes the speares & shyldes ꝑ were kynge Dauids, & had remayned in the temple. And the garde stode euery man with hys wepon in hys hand rounde about ꝑ king from the ryght corner of the temple to the left alonge by the aultare & the temple. And he
C brought the oute the sonne of the kynge, & put ꝑ croune vpon hym, & delyuered hym ꝑ *wytnesse, and made hym kynge, and annoynted hym. And they clapte theyr handes and sayd: God saue the kynge.

*that is, the lawe of god. Deut. xvii. d

And when Athaliah heard the noyse of ꝑ rumynge of the people, she came to the people into the house of the Lorde. And when she sawe the kynge stande by a pyller (as the maner was) & the syngers & the trompetters by ꝑ kynge, and all the people of the lande reioyse, and the blowing of the trompettes, she rente her clothes, and cryed: treason, treason. And Jehoiada the preest commaunded the captaynes of the hundredes that had the rule of the hoste, and sayde to them: haue her oute woute the ranges, and yf anye folowe her, let hym dye with the swerde: for the preste sayd: she maye not be slayne in the house of ꝑ Lord. And they layde handes on her, & she went the waye that the horses of the kynges went oute & was slayne there.

And Jehoiada made a bonde both betwene
D the Lorde and the kynge, & betwene the people and the Lorde, that they shulde be the Lordes people: & also betwene the kynge and the people. Then all the people of the land wente into the house of Baal, and destroyed hys aultares, and brake doune hys Images lustely, & slue Mathan the preste of Baal before the aultare And the preste set watche men in ꝑ house of the Lorde, & toke the rulers ouer hundredes and the captaynes, and the garde and all the people of the lande: And they brought ꝑ kinge from the house of the Lord, and went the waye of the gate of the garde of the kynges house. And he sat hym doune on the seate of the kynges. And all the people of the Lorde reioyced, and the cyte was in quyete. And they slue Athaliah with the swerde in the house of the kynge.

The. xii. Chapter.

Joas maketh prouysyon for the reparyng of the temple. He is holpen by .ii. of hys seruauntes, & Amasiah raygneth in hys stede.

Joas was seuen yeare olde when he was made kyng. And
A he beganne to raygne the seuēth yeare of Jehu, & raygned fourtye yeare in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Zebiah Berselabe. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde, as longe as Jehoiada the Preste enformed hym. But they toke not awaye the hyllaultares, for the people slue & offered styll in the hyllaultares.

And Joas sayde to the preest all the syluer that is dedicate & brought to the house of the Lorde in currauntmoney, that is to saye, the money that euery man, is set at, with all

what is, half the moneye that euerye manner herte geueth after a peece hym to bringe into the house of the Lord, let after ye lawe of the priestes take it to them, euery man of hys Moses. acquayntaunce, and let them repaire the broken places of the temple in all places where ought is founde decayed. Exod. xxx. b

Neuerthelater the priestes had not mended vnto the .xxiij. yeare of Iehoas, that was decayed in the temple. Then kynge Iehoas called for Iehoiada the priest, & for the other priestes also, and sayde to them: why repaire ye not the broken places of the temple? Now therfore se that ye receyue no more money of your acquayntaunce, but delyuer it to repaire the temple wythall. And the priestes consented to receyue no more moneye of the people: But that it shulde go to the mendynge of the temple.

Then Iehoiada the priest toke a cofer and bored an hoale in the lyd of it, & put it beside the aultare on the ryght syde as a man cometh into the house of the Lorde. And into that dyd the priestes that kepte the doores, put all the money that was brought into the house of ye lord. And when they sawe that there was muche 4. Re. xxij. a. money in the cofer * the kinges scribe, & ye hye priestе came, and kept vp the moneye ye was founde in the house of the Lorde, after they had tolde it.

And they gaue the moneye by sommes into the handes of the worcke men that had ye ouer syght of the house of the Lord: & they brought it oute to the carpenters & buylders ye wrought vpon the house of the Lorde, & to masons and hewers of stone, to bye tymbre & hewe stone, to repaire the decaye in the house of the Lorde, & all ye that needed repayringe in the house: howbe it there was not made in the house of the Lorde, bookes of syluer, shredyng knyues, basens trompetters or any other instrumentes of goulde or syluer, of that money that was brought for the house of the Lorde. For they gaue that to the workemen, to repaire there wyth the house of the Lorde. Moreouer they reckened not with the men, into whose handes they delyuered the money to be bestowed on workemen: But they dyd it euen of fidelitye. Howbe it terspace moneye and synne money ought not be brought into the house of the Lorde, for it was the priestes.

Then came Hazael kynge of Syria, and fought agaynste Geth, and toke it, & apoynted hym selfe to go vp to Ierusalem. But Iehoas kyng of Iuda toke all the dedicate thynges ye Iehosaphat Iehoram & Ohoziah his fathers kynges of Iuda, had dedicate, & ye hym selfe had dedicated, & al the gould ye coulde be fonde in the treasure of the house of the Lorde & of the kinges house, & sent it to Hazael kynge of Syria, and so he departed from Ierusalem.

The remnaunt of the actes of Iehoas & al he dyd, are written in the chronicles of the kinges of Iuda. And his owne seruauntes arose and wrought treason, and slue Iehoas in the house Mello, in the way doune to Sela. Iozabat the sonne of Semaath and Iehozabad the sonne of Somer hys seruauntes, smote hym, that he dyed. And they buryed hym wyth his fathers in the cytye of Dauid. And Amaziah hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

The. xiij. Chapter.

Iehoahaz the sonne of Iehu is delyuered into the handes of the Syryans, and dyeth. Ioas hys sonne raygned in hys steade. Eliseus dyed.

IN the .xxiij. yeare of Iehoas sonne of Ohoziah king of Iuda. Iehoahaz the sonne of Iehu was made kyng ouer Israel in Samaria, & continued .xvij. yeare And he wrought wickednesse in the syghte of the Lorde: for he folowed the synne of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat whyche made Israell synne, & departed not there from. Wherfore the Lorde was angrye wyth Israel, and delyuered them into the hande of Hazael kynge of Syria, and into the hande of Benhadad the sonne of Hazael all theyr dayes.

But Iehoahaz besought the Lorde, and the Lorde heard hym. For he had sene the oppressyon of Israel, how the kynge of Syria oppressed them. And therfore the Lorde gaue Israel a delyuerer, & they went oute from vnder the handes of the Syryans. And the chyldren of Israel dwelt in theyr tentes as before time. Neuertheles they departed not frō the synne of the house of Ieroboā which made Israel sinne but walked therein. And there remayned a grouе also in Samaria styll: But there were left of the people to Iehoahaz, but fyfty horsmen and ten charettes, & ten thousand fotemē, for the kynge of Syria had destroyed the and made them lyke thresshed chaffe. The rest of ye actes of Iehoahaz, & al he dyd & his power are written in the chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Iehoahaz rested wyth hys fathers, & they buryed hym in Samaria, & Ioas hys sonne raygned in hys steade. In the .xxxvij. yeare of Iehoas kynge of Iuda, began Ioas the sonne of Iehoahaz to raygne ouer Israell in Samaria, & continued .xvi. yeare, & dyd vnhappelye in the syghte of the Lorde, & departed in nothynge from the synnes of Ieroboā the sonne of Nabat that made Israell synne, but walked therein.

The remnaunt of the actes of Ioas & al he dyd, and his power, how he fought wt Amaziah kynge of Iuda, are written in the chronicle boke of the kynges of Israel. And when Ioas was layde to rest wyth his fathers, Ieroboam sat vpon his seate. And Ioas was buryed in Samaria amonge the kynges of Israel.

When Eliseus was fallen sicke of the sickenesse wherof he dyed, Ioas kynge of Israell came to him, and wepte to hym, & sayde: O father father the charet of Israel & the horsmen of the same. And Eliseus sayde vnto him, bringe bowe and arowes. And he brought to hym bowe & arowes. And he sayd to the king of Israel: put thyne handes vpon the bowe, & when he had put hys handes vpon the bowe,

Eliseus

Joas. Jehoas. Amaziah Azaziah.

Elizeus put hys handes vpon the kinges handes. Then he sayde: open a wyndowe Eastwarde, & he opened. And Elizeus sayde: shote & he shote. And he sayde: the arowe of helpe of the Lorde, and the arowe of helpe agaynst the Syrians, for thou shalt bete the Syrians in Aphek tyll thou haue consumed them.

Then he sayde: take arowes, and he toke. Then he sayde to the kyng of Israel: smyte ye ground, and he smote thryse & ceased. And the man of God was angry with hym, and sayde: thou shuldest haue smytten fyue or syx tymes, and then thou haddest smytten the Syrians tyll thou haddest consumed them: where now thou shalt bete them but thryse.

When Elizeus was dead, and buryed, the bandes of the Moabites came into the lande, the yeare folowyng. And Hazael oppressed Israel, all the dayes of Jehoahaz. But the Lorde had mercye on them & pitied them, & turned to them, because of hys appointment made with Abraham, Isaac & Jacob, & wolde not destroye them, ether caste them from hym as yet. And when Hazael kyng of Syria was dead, Benhadad hys sone raigned in hys steade. Then Ahaz sente messengers to Teglath Phalasar kyng of Assyria, saying: I am thy seruaunte and thy sonne, come & delyuer me oute of the hande of the kynge of Syria, and out of the hande of the kynge of Israel which are ryse agaynst me. And Ahaz toke the syluer and the goulde that was founde in the house of the LORDE and in the treasure of the kynges house, and sent it for a rewarde to the kynge of Assyria. And the king of Assyria herkened to hym, and went to Damasco, and toke it, and caried the people awaye to Kir, and slue Razin.

And kyng Ahaz wente agaynste Teglath Phalasar kyng of Assyria, to Damasco. And when he sawe a certen aulter that was at Damasco, he sente to Uriah the Preest the patern of the aulter and the fashyon of all the workmanshyp therof. And Uriah the Preest made an aulter in all poynctes lyke to the patern whiche kynge Ahaz had sent from Damasco, and had fynyshed it by the kynges comming from Damasco. And when the kynge was come from Damasco, & sawe the aulter, he went to it, & offered therein. The. xvii. Chapter.

Osea kynge of Israel is taken. And he and all his realme brought to the Assyrians.

In the. xii. yeare of Ahaz kynge of Juda, Osea sonne of Elah beganne to raigne in Samaria, vpon Israel, & cõtinued. ix. yeare & dyd that displeased the Lord, but not so euyll as dyd the kynges of Israel ỹ were before hym. And Salmanasar kynge of Assyria came vpon him, & Osea became hys seruaunte, and gaue hym presentes. And the kynge of Assyria founde treason in Osea, because he had sente messengers to Sua kynge of Egypte, and sente no presentes vnto the kynge of Assyria, as he was yerely wonte to do. Therfore the kynge of Assyria besieged hym, and put hym in prison. & And then the kyng of Assyria came throughoute all iiii. Reg. xvii. b the lande, & came to Samaria & besieged it thre yeare. And in the nynthe yeare of Osea, the kynge of Assyria toke Samaria & caryed Israel awaye vnto Assyria, & put them in Hala, in Habor on the riuer of Gozan, & in ỹ cytyes of the Medes. For the chyldren of Israel had synned agaynst the Lorde their God whiche brought brought them oute of the Lande of Egypt, frō vnder the hande of Pharao kyng of Egypt, and feared other Goddes. And they walked in the ordinaunce of the hethen which ꝑ Lorde caste oute before the children of Israel, and in the thynges which the kynges of Israell had made. And the children of Israel wrapt them selues in thynges that were not well toward the Lorde their God. And they buylte them hyllaulters in al their cytyes, bothe in ꝑ *townes where they kepte watche, and also in the strong townes. And they made them Images & groues on euerye hye hyll, & vnder euerye greene tree. And there they sacrifyced in the hyllaulters, as dyd the hethen which the Lorde caried awaye at their commynge, & wrought wicked dedes, to angre the Lord wyth al. And they serued Idoles, whereof the Lord had said to them: ye shall not do so.

*In the townes where.&c. ꝑ is, in al places, both great & small.

And the Lorde testifyed to Israel & to Juda, by all the Prophetes & by al the seers sayinge: Turne frō youre wicked wayes & kepe my cōmaundementes & myne ordinaunces according to all the lawes which I cōmaunded youre fathers, & as I sente to you by my seruaunte the prophetes. Notwithstanding they ℒ wolde not heare, but hardened their neckes, ☞ lyke to the neckes of their fathers ꝑ dyd not beleue the Lorde their God. And they refused his ordinaunce & his appoyntemente ꝑ he had made wyth their fathers, and the wytnesse which he had witnessed to them, and folowed vanitie and became vayne, lyke to the hethen that were rounde about them, of whiche the Lorde had charged them, that they shuld not do lyke them. But they lefte the commaundementes of the Lorde their God, and made thē Images of metall, euen two calues: & made groues, and bowed them selues vnto all the *hoste of heauen, & serued Baal. And they sacrificed their sonnes & their doughters in fyre, & vsed witchcraft & enchauntementes, & were solde to worke wickednes in the sight of the Lorde for to angre hym.

*That is, starres, planetes.

Wherfore the Lorde was exceadyng wrothe with Israel & put thē oute of his sight, that there was lefte but the tribe of Juda onelye, and therto Juda kept not the commaundemē- ☞ tes of the Lorde their God, but walked in the ☞ ordinaunces of Israel whyche they had made. Therfore the Lorde caste vp all the seed of Israell, and vexed thē and delyuered them into the handes of spoylers, vntyll he had cast thē oute of his sight. And Israel reuolted thē selues frō the house of David, and made Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat kynge. Which Jeroboam thrust Israel awaye from the Lorde, and made them synne a great synne. And so ꝑ children of Israel walked in al the synne of Jeroboam which he had set vp, and departed not therefrom, vntyll the Lorde had put Israel awaye oute of his sight, as he sayde by al his seruauntes the prophetes. And so he trāslated Israel oute of their lande to Assyria, euen vnto this daye.

And the kynge of Assyria brought frō Babylon & frō Cutha, & frō Ana & from Hemath and from Sephamaim, and put them in the cytyes of Samaria in steade of the children of Israel. And they possessed Samaria & dwelte in the cytyes therof. But at the begynnynge of their dwellynge, they feared not the Lord. Wherfore the Lorde sente lyons vpon them which slue them. Then the men tolde the kyng of Assyria, sayinge: The nacyons which thou hast translated, & put in the cytyes of Samaria, knowe not the maner of the God of the lande, and therfore he hath sente lyons vpon them, whiche slaye them, because they knowe not the maner of the God of the lande.

Then the kynge of Assyria commaunded sayinge: carye thyther one of the preestes which ye brought thence, & let him go, & dwell there, & teache thē the fashyon howe to feare ꝑ God of the countreye. And then one of the preestes which they had caried thence, went & dwelte in Bethel, & taught thē howe they shulde feare ꝑ Lorde. Howbeit, euerye nacyon made their owne Goddes, & put thē in the houses of ꝑ hyllaulters whiche the Samaritās had made, euerye nacyō in their cytyes where they dwelte. The men of Babylon made Soceth Benoth. The men of Cuth made Nergel. They of Hemath made Asima. The Auites made Nebahaz, and Tharthak. And the Sephrauites burnt their children in fyre vnto Adramelech and Anamelech, the Goddes of the Sepharauites. And though they feared the Lorde, yet they made them preestes of the lowest of the people, for the hyllaulters, whiche sacrifyced for them in the houses of the hyll aulters. And so they feared the Lorde, and yet serued their owne Goddes after the maner of the people from whence they were brought.

ff Soceth Benoth. Nergel. Asima. Nebahaz. Tharthak. Anamelech.

Vnto this daye they do after the olde maner: they neyther a feare the Lorde, neyther do after their owne ordynaunces and customes, and after the lawe & cōmaundemēt whyche the Lord commaunded the children of Jacob whom he called Israel, and made an appoyntemente with them and charged them sayinge: feare not any other Goddes, nor bowe your selues to them nor serue them, nor sacrifice to them: but to the Lorde whych brought you oute of the lande of Egypte with great power & a stretched out arme: him feare & to him bowe & to him do sacrifice. And the ordinaūces, customes, lawe & cōmaundemēt which I wrote for you, se ꝑ ye be diligente to do for euermore, & feare not any other Goddes. And the appoyntemēt ꝑ I haue made with you, se ye forget not, and that you feare none other Goddes: but the Lorde youre God ye shall feare, & he shall delyuer you out of ꝑ handes of all youre enemies. Howbeit they hearde not, but dyd after the olde maner. And euē so dyd these nacions feare ꝑ Lorde & serue their ymages therto: so dyd their children & their childrens children vn. Euen as dyd their fathers, so do they vnto this daye.

a Not to feare ꝑ Lorde is, to haue carefulnes & to serue their lustes & appetytes, & not to set by God & his lawe, as it is sayde. Psal. lxxix. d

The.xviii.Chapter.

¶ Hezekiah kynge of Iuda putteth downe the hyghe temples, & destroyeth the Idolles. Salmanasar leadeth Israel in to Assyria. The shepherdy of Sinacherib.

A THe thyrde yeare of Hosea sonne of Ela, kynge of Israell raigned Hezekiah sonne of Aha; kyng of Iuda. Twentye and fyue yeare olde was he, when he beganne to raygne, & raygned.xxix. yeare in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Abi the doughter of Zachariah, & he dyd that pleased the Lorde in all thynge, lyke to Dauid his father. He put awaye the hyllaultares & brake the Images, & cut downe the groues, & all to brake the brasen serpente that Moses made. For vnto those dayes the chyldren of Israell dyd burne sacryfyce to it, and called it * Nehustan. He trusted in the Lorde God of Israel, so that after hym came none lyke hym amonge al the kynges of Iuda, neyther amonge them that were before hym. He claue to the Lorde, & departed not from hym, but kept his commaundementes whiche the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the Lorde was with hym. And whatsoeuer he toke in hande, he dyd it wysely. And he rebelled agaynste the kynge of Assyria, & serued hym not. He bet the Philistines euen vnto Azah and the coastes therof, both in castels of garysons and stronge cytyes.

*That is, a thyg of braſſe

And the fourthe yeare of kynge Hezekiah, whiche was the seuenthe yeare of Hosea sonne of Ela kynge of Israel, came Salmanasar kynge of Assyria vpon Samaria, & besieged it. And they toke it at the ende of thre yeare, which was the sixte of Hezekiah: that is to say the nynthe yeare of Hosea kynge of Israell, was Samaria wonne. And the kynge of Assyria dyd carye awaye Israel vnto Assyria, & put them in Halah & in Habor on the ryuer of Gozan, & in the cytyes of Medes: because they wolde not herken vnto the voyce of the Lorde their God. But transgressed his appoyntemente, and all that Moses the seruaūt of the Lord commaunded, and wolde neyther heare nor do.

a The.xiiii. yeare of kynge Hezekiah came Sennacherib kynge of Assyria agaynste all the stronge cytyes of Iuda, and toke them. Wher vpon Hezekiah kyng of Juda sent to the kyng of Assyria to Lachis saying: I haue offended. But depart from me, and what thou puttest on me that will I beare. And the kynge of Assyria appoynted vnto Hezekiah kynge of Juda thre hundred talentes of syluer, and thyrtye talentes of golde. * And Hezekiah gaue hym all the syluer that was founde in the house of the Lorde, and also in the treasure of the kynges house. And the same season Hezekiah rente of the doores of the temple of the Lorde and the pyllers whiche the same Hezekiah kynge of Juda couered ouer, & gaue the to the kynge of Assyria.

And the kynge of Assyria sent Tarthan & Rabsaris & Rabsakeh from Lachis to kynge Hezekiah with a great hoste to Jerusalē. And they went vp & came to Jerusalem, & wente & stode by the conduyte of the vppermoste pole which is in the waye to the fullers felde, and called to the kynge. And there came out to the Eliakim the sonne of Helkiah stuard of housholde & Sobnah the scribe, & Joah the sonne of Asaph, the recorder. And then Rabsakeh sayde to them. Tell ye Hezekiah I praye you: thus sayth the greate kynge the kyng of Assyria. What confidence is this that thou hastest? thou wylt happye speake a lyghte worde, that thou hast councell & power to make warre. On whome then doest thou truste, that thou rebellest agaynst me? doeste thou truste to the staffe of this broken rede Egypte, on which yf a man leane, it wyll renne into his hāde & perce it. For euen so is Pharao kynge of Egypt vnto all that truste on hym. * If ye saye vnto me we trust in the Lorde oure God. Is not he whose hyllaulters and other aultres to, Hezekiah hath put doune, & hath sayde to Juda and Jerusalem, bow youre selues before this aulter here in Jerusalem.

And now ioyne thy self to my Lord the king of Assyria, & I wyll delyuer the two thousande horses, yf thou be able to set ryders vpon them (and yf thou be not) how then arte thou able to resist one of the leste Dukes of my maisters seruauntes? or trustest thou to Egypte for charrites and horsmen? Moreouer thinkest thou, that I am come without the byddynge of the Lorde to this place to destroye it? naye: the lord sayde to me, go vp to this lande & destroye it. Then sayd Eliakim the sonne of Helkiah and Sobnah & Joah, to Rabsakeh: speake we pray the to thy seruaunts in the Syrians language for we vnderstande it: & talke not with vs in the Jewes tonge, in the eares of the people that are on the walles. And Rabsakeh sayde vnto them: hath my master sente me onely to thy master and to the, to speake these wordes, or rather to the men that kepe the walles, that they shall eate their owne dyte and drynche their owne pysse with you.

And so Rabsakeh stode and cryed with a loude voyce in the Jewes language, and spake sayinge: heare the sayinge of the great kynge the kyng of Assyria. Thus sayth the king: let not Hezekiah begyle you, for he is not able to delyuer you out of myne hand: neyther let Hezekiah make you truste to the Lorde sayinge: the Lorde shall surely rydde vs, and this cytye shall not be deliuered into the handes of the kyng of Assyria. Herken not vnto Hezekiah, for thus sayth the kynge of Assyria.

Make kyndely with me, & come out to me. And then eate euery man of his owne vyne, & of his owne fygge tree, & drincke euery man of the water of his owne welle, tyll I come, and fet you to as good a lande as youres is: a lande of corne and wyne, a lande of breade & vynegardes, a lande of oliue trees, of oyle & of honye. And ye shal lyue and not dye. And herken not vnto Hezekiah for he wyll begyle you, sayinge the Lorde shall delyuer vs. For

haue

haue the Gods of the nacyons delyuered any God hys lande, out of the hande of the kyng of Assiria? where are the Gods of Hemath & of Arphad? where are the Gods of Sepharuaim, of Ana, and Aphah? hyd they delyuer Samaria out of myne handes? what God of any land hath deliuered his lande out of mine hand, that the lorde shoulde delyuer Jerusalē out of myne hande.

But the people helde their peace and answered not hym a worde: for the kynge had commaunded sayinge: answere him not. Then Eliakim the stuard of the household and Sobnah the scrybe, and Joah the sonne of Asaph the recorder, came to Hezekiah with their clothes rent, and tolde hym the wordes of Rabsaketh.

The.xix.Chapter.

The angell of the lorde kylleth an hundred foure score and fyue thousand men of the Assyrians. Sennacherib is kylled of hys owne sonnes.

WHen kynge Hezekiah hearde it, he rent his clothes, and put on sacke, and went to the house of the Lorde. Furthermore he sent Eliakim stuard of household and Sobnah the scribe, and the elders of the preestes clothed in sack, to Isaiah the Prophet the sonne of Amos. And they sayde to hym: thus sayth Hezekiah: this daye is a daye of tribulacyon, rebukinge and raylynge. Euen as when the chyldren are readye to be borne and the mothers haue no power to be delyuered. Oh that the Lorde thy God would heare all the wordes of Rabsaketh whom the kynge of Assiria hys master hathe sent to rayle on the lyuynge God, and to rebuke hym with wordes which the Lord thy God hath heard. Wherfore lyfte vp thy prayer for the remnaunt that are lefte. When the seruauntes of kynge Hezekiah were come to Isaiah, Isaiah sayde to them. So shall ye saye to youre master, Thus sayth the Lorde: be not afrayde of the wordes thou heardest, with whyche the yonge men of the kyng of Assiria haue railed on me. For I wil sende him a blast that he shal heare tydynges, and so returne to hys owne lande. And I will ouerthrow him with the swerde, euen in hys owne lande.

And Rabsaketh went backe againe and founde the kynge of Assiria fightyng against Lobnah: for he had hearde, how that he was departed from Lachis. And he hearde tydynges of Therhahah king of the blacke Moores, how that he was come out to fyght against him. And therupon he departed and sent messengers vnto Hezekiah sayinge: Thus saye to Hezekiah king of Juda: let not thy God cause the out of the waye, in whom thou so trustest sayinge: Jerusalem shal not be delyuered into the hand of the kinge of Assiria. Beholde, thou hast hearde, what the kynges of Assiria haue done to all landes, how they haue vtterly destroyed them. And how then shouldest thou escape? hathe the Goddes of the Heathen delyuered them whiche myne auncetrers haue destroyed: as Gosan, Haran, Rezeph, and the chyldren of Eden, whiche were in Telazar? where is the kinge of Hemath, the kynge of Arphath, the kynge of the cytye of Sepharuaim, and the kynge of Ana and the kynge of Anah.

When Hezekiah had receyued the letter of the hand of the messengers & had read it, he went into the house of the Lord and layd it abroade before the Lorde. And Hezekiah prayed before the Lorde and sayde: Lorde God of Israell, whych dwellest betwene the Cherubes, thou art God alone ouer all the kyngedomes of the earthe, and thou hast made bothe heauē and earthe. Lord bowe thyne eares and heare: Open Lorde thyne eyes and se: and heare the wordes of Sennacherib, which had sent to raile on the lyuynge God. But of a truthe Lorde, the kynges of Assiria haue destroyed nacyons and their landes, and haue set fyre on their Goddes. For they were no Goddes, but the worke of the handes of man, euen wood and stone. And therfore they destroyed the. Nowe therfore Lorde our God, saue thou vs out of his hande, that all the kingdomes of the earth may knowe, that thou Lorde art God alone. And Isaiah the sonne of Amos sent to Hezekiah sayinge: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: that thou hast prayed to me concernynge Sennacherib kinge of Assiria, I haue heard it. This is the kinge that the lorde sayth of him: he hath despysed the, O virgine doughter of Sion: he hath shaked his head at the, thou doughter of Jerusalem: whom hast thou rayled on? and whom hast thou reuyled? Agaynste whome hast thou exalted thy voyce? and hast lyfte vp thyne eyes so hye? Euen against the holy of Israel. By the hād of thy messengers thou hast rayled on the Lorde, & sayde: with the multitude of my charettes I am come vp to the heyght of the mountaynes euen along by the sides of Libanon, and haue hewen out the hye Cedar trees and the fayre fyr trees therof: euen to the wood of Carmel that belongeth thereto. I haue dygged and dronke strange waters, and haue dryed vp with the soles of my fete poles enclosed.

But hast thou not hearde howe I haue ordeyned suche a thynge a great whyle ago, & haue purposed it from the begynnynge? And now I bryng it to the and it shalbe to destroy and to brynge stronge cities into rude heapes of stones. And the enhabiters of them shalbe of lyttle power, and sore hurted and confounded. They shalbe lyke the grasse of the felde & grene erbes, and as the hey on the toppes of the houses whych withereth or it come to any heyght. I wote where thou dwellest, and thy comynge out and goynge in know I to, and howe thou fretest vp thy bustelers agaynste me. And because thou fretest vp thy bustelers against me, and that thy raginge is come vp to myne eares: therfore I wil put a. a ryng in thy nose and a byt in thy lyppes, and wyll bryng the backe agayne the same way thou

The remnaunt of the deades of Hezekiah

Neither wil I make the fete of Israel moue any more out of the lande whiche I gaue their fathers: so that they wilbe diligent to do al I haue commaunded them, and all the lawe that my seruaunt Moses commaunded them. But they herkened not: for Manasseh had led them out of the waye, to do more wyckedly then dyd the heathen people, whiche the Lord destroyed from before the chyldren of Israel.

And the Lorde spake by his seruauntes ỹ Prophetes saying: because Manasseh kynge of Juda hath done suche abhominacyons, and hath wrought wyckedly aboue all that the Amorites whyche were before him dyd, and hath made Juda synne also wyth his ydoles. Therfore thus sayth the Lord God of Israel.
Jerem. xix. a *Beholde, I wyl bringe suche ruyl vpon Jerusalem and Juda, that the eares of all that heare it, shall tyngle at it. And I wyll stretche ouer Jerusalem the squarepynge lyne of Samaria and the plometh of the house of Ahab. And I wyl wype out Jerusalem, as a man would wipe a dysshe, and when he hath wyped, it turneth it vpsedoune. And though I leue a remnaunt of myne enheritaunce, yet I wyl delyuer them into the handes of them that hate them, and they shalbe robbed and spoyles of all their enemies: euen because they haue done wyckedly and haue angred me, sence the time their fathers came out of Egypte vnto this daye.

C And therto Manasseh shed innocēt blood exceadynge aboundantly, in so muche that he replenyshed Jerusalem in all corners, beside his synne wherwyth he made Juda synne ỹ to do euyl in the syght of the Lorde.

The rest of the actes of Manasseh and all he dyd and hys sinne that he synned, are wrytten
D in the boke of the chronicles of the kinges of Juda. And Manasseh layd him to slepe vnto his fathers, and was buryed in the garden of his owne house, euen in the garden of Oza: Amon his sonne raygned in his steade.

Amon was. xxij. yeare olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned two yeare in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Mesalemeth the doughter of Haru of Jathbah. And he did that displeaseth the Lorde as hys father Manasseh dyd. And he walked in al the way that hys father walked in, and serued the ydoles that hys father serued, and bowed hym selfe to them. And he forsoke the Lorde God of his fathers and walked not in the waye of the Lorde.

And the seruauntes of Amon conspyred agaynst him, and slue him in hys owne house. But the people of the lande slue all that conspired agaynst kinge Amon, and made Josiah his sonne kynge in his rowme. The rest of ỹ actes of Amon, which he dyd are wrytē in the chronicle of the kinges of Juda. And they buryed him in his sepulchre in the garden of Oza, and Josiah hys sonne raygned in his steade.

The. xxij. Chapter.

¶ After Josiah hearde of the boke of the lawe that was founde in the temple, he sendeth to Olda the Prophetisse, for counsell.

A Josiah was. viij. yeare old whē he began to raygne, & he raygned. xxxi. yeare in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Ididah the doughter of Adaiah of Bozcath. And he dyd ỹ wel pleased tyghte in the syght of the lord, & walked in al the wayes of Dauid his father, & bowed neither to ỹ right hande or to the lefte.

B And the. xviij. yeare of hys raygne kynge Josiah sent Saphan the sonne of Azaliah the sonne of Mesullam the scribe to the house of the Lorde, saying: go to Helkiah the hye preest and let hym summe the syluer that is brought into the house of the Lorde, whych the keepers of the doores haue gathered of the people, and let them delyuer it into the handes of the workemen that haue the ouersyght of the house of the Lorde, whych shall geue it to them that worke vpon the house of the Lorde, to repayre the decayed places therof, euen vnto the carpenters and maisons, and vnto hye tymbre and hewe stone to repayre the house. Howbeit let no rekenyng be made vnto them of the money that is delyuered into their handes, but let them do it of their conscience.

C And Helkiah the hye preest sayde to Saphan the scribe: I haue founde the boke of the lawe in the temple of the Lorde, and Helkiah gaue the boke of Saphan, and he read it. And then Saphan the scribe went to the kyng and brought him worde agayne, and sayde: thy seruauntes poured out the syluer that was
D founde in the temple, and haue delyuered it vnto the workemen that haue the ouersyght of the house of the Lorde. Furthermore Saphan the scribe shewed the kynge sayenge: Helkiah the preest hathe delyuered me here a boke. And Saphan read it before the kynge.

And the kynge as sone as he had hearde, the wordes of the boke of the lawe, he rent hys clothes and commaunded Helkiah the preest, and

and Ahikam the soune of Saphan and Achobor the soune of Michaiah, and Saphan the scribe, and Asahiah a seruaunt of the kynges sayinge: go and seke of the Lorde for me & the people and for all Juda, concernynge the

And Helkiah the hye prieste and Ahikam Achobor Saphan, Asahiah went vnto Oldah the Prophetisse wife to Sellum the sonne of Tekuah the soune of Harahas keper of the robes, whyche Prophetisse dwelt in Jerusalem in the seconde warre, and communed with her. And she sayde to them: thus sayth
d the Lorde God of Israel. Tell the man, that sent you to me: thus sayth the Lorde: behold I will bringe euyll vpon this place, and on the dwellers therin: euen all the wordes of the boke, whyche the kynge of Juda hath read, because they haue forsaken me, and haue burnt offeringes vnto other Goddes, to angre me with all the * workes of their handes. But to the kynge of Juda whyche sent you to enquire of the Lorde, so shall ye saye: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel, as touchinge the wordes whiche thou hearedest. Because thyne hert dyd melt, and thou mekedest thy selfe before me the Lorde, when thou hardest what I spake against this place, and the inhabiters of the same, howe that it shoulde be destroyed and made accursed, and tarest thy clothes and wepest before me: of that also I haue herde sayth the Lorde. And therfore lo,

And the kynge went vp into the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Juda and all the inhabytours of Jerusalem with hym, and the prieste and the Prophetes and all the people both the small and greate. And he read in the eares of them all the wordes of the boke of the couenaunt, whyche was founde in the house of the Lord. And the kynge stode by a pyller, and made a couenaunt before the Lorde, that they shoulde walke after the Lorde, and kepe his commaundementes and his witnesses and his ordynaunces with all their hertes, and all their soules, and make good the wordes of the same appointmente, that were wrytten in the same boke. bearer wouldē not, but feared exceadyngly.
Wherupon Saul caught a swerde & fell vpō

sonnes and brought them to Jabes and buryed the bones of them vnder an ocke in Ja-

And so Saul dyed for hys trespace that he trespaced against the Lorde, in that he kept not the worde of the Lorde, and in that he al-

And with them Heman and Idithun were trompettes & sounding symbales, & instrumentes of ỹ melody of God. And the sonnes of Idithun were porters. And then all the people departed, euery man to his house: and David returned to salute his household.

The.xvii. Chapter.

Dauid is forbidden to builde an house vnto the Lord, because of the bloud he hath shed. Christ is promysed vnder the figure of Salomon.

And

A 2.Reg.vij.a. AND Dauid dwelt in his house he sayde to Nathā the prophete: Lo, I dwell in an house of Cedar tree, and the Arke of the Lordes covenaunt dwelleth vnder curtaynes. And Nathan sayde to Dauid: do all that is in thyne hert, for God is wt the.

But the same nyght the worde of God came to Nathan sayinge: go & tell Dauid my seruaunte, thus saith the Lorde: thou shalt not buylde me an house to dwell in. For I have dwelt in no house, sence I brought out the children of Israel vnto this daye: But have gone from tent to tent, & from one tabernacle to another. Neyther in anye place wherefoeuer I have walked thorowe out all Israel, spake I euer one worde to any of the iudges of Israel, whyche I commaunded to fede my people sayinge: why buylde ye me not an house of Cedar tree? Nowe therfore thus saye vnto my seruaunt Dauid, thus saith the Lorde of Hostes: I toke the out of the pasture from after the shepe, that thou shouldest be captain ouer my people Israel. And I have bene with the in al thou tokest in hande, and have wedred out al thyne enemies out of thy syghte, and have made the a name like the name of the greatest men of the earthe. And I wil ordeyne a place for my people Israell, and wyll make it fast, & they shall dwell vnder it, & shall moue no more. Neither shal the children of wickednesse hurte them any more as at the beginninge, & sence the tyme I commaunded Iudges to be ouer my people Israel, & wyll bringe vnder all thyne enemies. Also I tolde the that the lord wolde buylde the an house.)

But when thy dayes be expyred, & thou must go after thy fathers, I wyll set vp thy seade after the, whiche shalbe of thy sonnes & wyl stable hys kyngedom. He shall buylde my an house, and I wyll stablyshe hys seate for euer. I wyl be hys father and he shalbe me sonne, and I wyll not put my mercy away from him, as I did from him that was before the. But I wyl set him in myne house, and in my kyngdome for euer, and hys seate shalbe sure for euer.

When Nathā hath tolde Dauid according to all these wordes, & to al this vision, kynge Dauid went & sate him before the lord & sayd: what am I O Lorde God and what is mine housholde, that thou hast promoted me thus ferre. And yet this semed lyttell in thyne eyes O god. But that thou shouldest speake of thy seruauntes house for a great whyle to come: and hast loked vpon my as vpon a man of hye degre O Lorde God. What can Dauid desire more of the, when thou shouldest make thy seruaunt more glorious? Thou knowest thy seruaunt: O lorde for thy seruauntes sake, euen according to thyne owne hert thou hast done all this magnificence, to shewe al thy wonderfulle Laude, there is none lyke the, nor any God saue thou, according to all that we have hearde with our eares. Moreouer what nacyō on the earth is lyke thy people Israel, whych God went and redemed to be his own people, & to make the a name of excellencye & terriblenesse, with cast out nacyons frō before thy people, for euer, and thou Lord art become their God.

And now Lorde the thynge thou hast spoken concernynge thy seruaunt & his house be true for euer, and do as thou hast sayde. And thy name continue & ware great for euer, that it be sayde: the lorde of hostes, the God of Israel is God in Israel, and ✠ house of Dauid thy seruaūt be stable before the. For thou lord hast tolde thy seruaunte, that thou wilt build him an house. And therfore thy seruaunt hath founde in his hert to praye before the. And now Lorde thou arte the very God, and hast promised this goodnesse vnto thy seruaunte. Now therfore go to and blesse ✠ house of thy seruaunte, that it may continue before the for euer. For what thou blessest O Lorde that is blessed for euer.

The.xix. Chapter.

Hanon Kynge of the sonnes of Ammon doth great iniurye to the seruauntes of Dauid.

After thys it chaunced that Nahas kynge of the chyldren of Ammon dyed, & hys sonne made king in his steade. The sayd Dauid: I wil shewe kindneſſe vnto Hanou ỳ sonne of Nahas because hys father dealt kyndlye wyth me. And therupon Dauid sent messengers to cõsolate hym ouer the death of hys father. And when the seruauntes of Dauid were come into the land of the childē of Ammon to Hanoh to comfaye him, the Lordes of the chyldren of Ammō sayd to Hanon thynke ſt thou that Dauid dothe honoure thy father in thy syghte, that he hath sent comforters vnto the? Naye, but it is to searche & ouerthrowe, & to spye oute the lande, that hys seruauntes be come vnto the.

Wherupon Hanon toke Dauids seruaūtes & shaued them, & cut of their cotes harde by their buttockes, & sent them awaye. And there went ỳ tolde Dauid how the men were serued. And the kynge sent to mete them (for the men were exceadyngly ashamed) & sayd: tarye at Jericho, vntyll youre beardes be growen, and then returne.

And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that they stanke in the nose of Dauid, Hanon & the chyldren of Ammon sent a thousand talentes of syluer to hyre them charettes, & horsemen out of *Mesopotamia & out Syria Maacahy out of Zobah. And they hyred.xxxii thousand charettes, & the kyng of Maacah & his people, whyche came and pytched before Medba. And the children of Ammon gathered thē selues together from their cityes and went oute to battel. And as sone as Dauid hearde of it, he sent Joab with all the hoste of stronge men. And ỳ children of Ammon came oute, & put them in araye to battell before the gate of the cytye. And the kynges that were come hepte thē by them selues in the felde.

When Joab sawe that the fronte of the battel was before hym and after, he chose out of all the youth of Israel, and put thē in araye agaynst the Syrians. And the rest of ỳ people he deliuered vnto Abisai his brother, that they shoulde put them selues in araye agaynst the chyldē of Ammon, & sayde: yf the Syrians be to stronge for me, succoure me, and yf the chyldren of Ammon be to good for the, I wil helpe the. Plucke vp thyne herte, and let vs playe the men for oure peoples sake and for the cities of oute God, and the Lord do what semeth him beste. And Joab and the people ỳ were wyth hym drue nye to the Syrians, to fyght, & they fled before him. And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that ỳ Syrians were fled, they ranne awaye likewyse from Abisai his brother, and gat them into the cytye. And Joab came to Jerusalem.

And when the Syriens sawe, that they were put to ỳ worse of Israel, they sent messengers & set out the Syrians that are beyonde the ryuer with Sophach the captayne of hoste of Hadadezer before them. Whyche when it was tolde Dauid, he gathered all Israel, and went ouer Jordan, & went and set vpon them. And Dauid put him selfe in araye agaynst the Syrians, and they fought wyth him. But the Syrians fled before Israel, and Dauid destroyed of the Syriens vii. thousande charettes, and fyue xl. thousande foote men, and slewe Sophach the Captayne of the hoste. And when the seruauntes of Hadadezer sawe that they were put to the worse of Israel, they made peace with Dauid, and serued hym. Nether wolde the Syriens helpe the chyldē of Ammon any more.

The.xx. Chapter.

The true and worshypfull battelles of Dauid.

And the yeare folowynge about the tyme that kynges go oute a warre fare, Joab carped out the armye of the hoste, and destroyed the countrey of the chyldren of Ammon, and went and besieged Rabah, and destroyed it. But Dauid boade at Jerusalem whyle Joab smote Rabah, and destroyed it. * And Dauid tohe the crowne of their kynge of his heade, and fonde therin the wayght of a talent of goulde, & there were precioule stones in it, and it was set on Dauids head. And he brought out also the spoile of the cytye, whyche was exceadyng much: & he brought oute the people that were in it, and turned them wyth sawes and harowes of yrō & wyth axes, and so dealt Dauid wyth all the cytyes of the children of Ammon. And Dauid, and all the people came agayne to Jerusalem. * After that there arose warre at Gazer wyth the Philistines. And there was battell again wyth the Philistines, and Elhanan the sonne of Jare slue Lahemi the brother of Goliath the Gethite, whose speare was lyke the beame of a weuer. And there chaunged yet agayne warre at Geth, where was a man of a syze wyth xxiiii. fingers & toes, six on euery hād, & syx on euery foote, & was ỳ sonne of Haraphah & defyed Israel. And Jehonathā the sonne of Samaa Dauids brother slue him. These were borne of Harapha at Geth, and were ouerthrowen by the hande of Dauid and of hys seruaunte.

The.xxi. Chapter.

The people are punished for their presumptuous boldnesse, because Dauid caused them to be nombred: so that there dyed lxx. thousande men.

SAtan stode vp against Israel, and persuaded Dauid to nũber Israel. And Dauid sayde to Joab and ỹ rulers of the people: go ye and nombre Israel from Berſabe to Dan, and bringe it to me that I may knowe the nombre of them. And Joab answered: the Lord make thy people an hundred tymes so many mo as they be. But my lord king, are they not all my lordes seruauntes: why doth my lord require this thing? why shulde my Lorde be a cause of trespace to Israel?

Neuertheles the kynges wordes preuailed against Joab. And Joab toke his wape. And went thorow oute all Israel, and came to Jerusalem, and gaue the nombre of the counte of the people vnto Dauid. And al Israel were in nombre a thousand thousande, and an hundred thousande men that drewe swerde: and Juda was cccc.lxx. thousand men that drewe swerde. But the Leuites and Benamin he rounted not amonge them. For the kynges deade semed abominable to Joab. And the ỹ Lord displeased w̃ this thing, ỹ smote Israel. Then sayde Dauid to God: I haue synned exceadyngly in doynge thys thynge. Neuertheles pet do awaye the wickednesse of thy seruaunte, for I haue done aboue measure folyshly.

And the Lorde spake vnto God Dauids sear of vysions saying: go and tell Dauid saynge. Thus sayth the Lorde: I geue the the chose of thre thynges: chose the one of them, that I maye do vnto the. And Gad came to Dauid and sayde vnto him. Thus sayth the Lorde. Chose the ether thre yeares sampletement, or thre monethes to be cõsumed of thine aduersaries, the swerde of thyne enemyes ouertakynge the: or elle the swerde of the Lord thre dayes and pestilence in the lande, the Aungel of the Lorde destroynge thorowe oute all the coastes of Israel. And now aduise thy self what word I shal bringe againe to him that sent me. And Dauid sayde to Gad: I am in an exceadynge straite. But let me fal into the handes of the Lord, for passynge great is his mercye, and let me not falle into the handes of men.

And the Lorde sent pestilence vpon all Israel, so that there were ouerthrowen of Israel lxx. thousande men. And God sent the Aungel to Jerusalem to destroye it. And as he was about to destroye, the Lorde beheld and had compassion on the wretchednesse, and sayde to the Aungell that destroyed, it is ynough, nowe cease thyne hand. And the Aungel of ỹ Lorde stode by the threshyng floure of Ornan the Jebusite. And Dauid lyfte vp hys eyes ỹ sawe the Aungel of the Lorde stand betwene the earth and heauen with a drawe swerde in his hande stretched oute towarde Jerusalem. Then fell Dauid ỹ the elders of Israel clothed in sacke vpon their faces. And Dauid said vnto God: Is it not I that commaunded to nombre the people? And I am he that haue synned and done euyl in deade. But what haue these sheepe done? let thyne hande therfore O Lorde God, be on me and on my fathers house, and not on thy people to destroye them.

And the Aungell cõmaunded Gad to saye to Dauid, that Dauid should go ỹ rere vp an aulter vnto the Lorde, in the threshyng floure of Ornan the Jebusite. And Dauid went at the saying of Gad whyche spake in the name of the Lorde. And Ornan turned about and sawe the Aungel, ỹ hys foure sonnes with him ỹ hyd them selues: for Ornan was threshynge whete. And Dauid came to Ornan. And whẽ Ornan loked and sawe Dauid, he went oute of the threshyng floure, ỹ bowed himselfe to Dauid with his face to the grounde.

And Dauid sayde to Ornan: geue me the place of the threshyng floure, that I maye build an aulter therin vnto the Lorde. Let me haue it for as muche money as it is worthe, that the plage may ceasse from the people. And Ornã sayde to Dauid, take it to the, and let my lord kynge do that semeth good in his eyen. Se, I geue the oxen for a burntsacrifice, ỹ the threshynge sleades for wood, ỹ wheate for meteoffrynge. I geue it all. But kyng Dauid said to Ornan: not so, but I wil bye it for as much money as it is worthe. I wyll not take that, whyche is thine, for the Lord, and offer burntoffrynges wythoute coste.

And so Dauid gaue to Ornan for the place syxtes of goulde. vi. hundred by wayght. And Dauid buylt there an aulter vnto the Lorde ỹ offered burntoffrynges ỹ peaceoffrynges, ỹ called vnto the Lorde ỹ he heard him from heauen in fyre vpon the aulter of burntoffrynge. And the Lorde commaunded the aungel to put vp his swerde agayne into the sheathe of it. At that tyme whẽ Dauid sawe, that the Lorde had heard him in the threshyng floure of Ornan the Jebusite, he vsed the offer there. For the tabernacle of the Lorde, which Moyses made in the wyldernesse, ỹ the aulter of burntoffrynge were at the season in the hyll at Gabaon. And Dauid coulde not go before it to seke God, because he was afrayde of the swerde of ỹ Aungel of the Lorde. And Dauid sayde: this is the house of ỹ lord God, ỹ this is the burntoffrynge aulter for Israel.

The.xxii. Chapter.

Dauid willeth hys sonne Salomon to builde the temple of the Lorde. Wherfor thynges he him selfe had prepared.

ANd Dauid commaunded to gather the straungers that were in the land of Israel, ỹ set ỹ hewers to hew stone, to buylde the house of God. And Dauid prepared plenty

And the people reioyced that they were so wyllynge:

And Dauid blessed the Lorde before all the congregacyon and sayde: Blessed arte thou Lorde God of Israel oure father, frō euer and for euer. Thyne (O Lorde) is greatenesse, power glorye, victorye and prayse: for all that is in heauen and in earthe is thyne, and thyne is the kyngedome (O Lorde) and thou arte lyfte vp an head above all.

And ryches and honoure come of the, and thou rulyst ouer all, and in thyne hande is power and strength, and in thyne hande it is to make greate, and to geue strength vnto all.

And nowe oure God, we thanke the, and prayse thy glorious name. For what am I? and what is my people, that we shulde obtayne strength to be so wyllynge? But all is of the, and of that we receyued of thyne hand we haue geuen the. For we be but straungers before the and tenauntes, as were all oure fathers. Oure dayes on the earth is but a shadowe, and there is none abydynge. O Lorde oure God, all thys hepe that we haue prepared to buylde the an house for thy holy name, cometh of thyne hande, & is all thyne. I wote my God, that thou prouest the herte, and hast pleasure in playnesse. And in playnesse of myne herte I haue wyllyngly geuen all thys. And nowe I se thy people whyche are here in gladnesse, to offer wyllyngly to the. And geue vnto Salomon my sonne, a pure herte to kepe thy commaundementes, thy testimonyes & thyne ordinaunces, and to do all, and to buylde the house whyche I entended.

And Dauid sayde to all the congregacyon: blesse the Lorde youre God. And all the congregacyon blessed the Lorde God of their fathers, & stouped & bowed them selues vnto the Lorde, & to the kynge. And they offered offrynges vnto the Lorde. And on the morowe after the sayde daye, they offered in burntoffre synges vnto the Lord a thousand oxē, a thousand rammes & a thousand lambes with their drynckoffrynges. And they slue plentyously thorowout all Israel, & did eate & dronke before the Lorde the same daye with great gladnesse. And they made Salomon the sonne of Dauid kyng the seconde tyme, and anoynted hym vnto the Lorde, to be ruler, and Sadoch to be the preest. * And so Salomon sate on the seate of the Lorde, and was kynge for Dauid his father, & prospered, and all Israel obeyed hym. And all the Lordes and men of power, & eyther all the sonnes of kynge Dauid submytted them selues vnder kynge Salomon. A The offerynge of Salomon in the tabernacle at Gabaon, where he requyreth an answere of God what wysdome shulde be geuen hym, with the nombre of hys chariottes and horsemen.

And Salomon the sonne of Dauid waxed stronge in his kyngedome, and the Lorde his God was with hym, and magnyfyed him on hye. And Salomon commoned with all Israell, the captaynes ouer thousandes and hundredes, the iudges & all other Lordes and auncyent heades thorowoute all Israell. And so Salomon and all the congregacyon with hym, went to the hyghaulter of Gabaon: for there was the tabernacle of the wytnesse of God, * which Moses the seruaūt of the Lorde made in the wyldernesse. But the arcke of God had Dauid brought from Kariath Jarim, into the place he had prepared them fore: for he had pytched a tente for it at Jerusalem. Moreouer the brasen aulter that Bezeleel the sonne of Uri, the sonne of Hur had made, was at Gabaon also, before the tabernacle of the Lorde. And Salomon and the cōgregacyon went to vysyt it. And Salomon offered there before the Lorde vpon the brasen aulter that was by the tabernacle of wytnesse, a thousand burntsacrifyces. And the same nyght God appeared vnto Salomon and sayde to hym: aske, what I shall geue the. And Salomon sayde vnto God: thou hast shewed great mercye vnto Dauid my father, & haste made me kynge in hys stede. * And now Lorde god let thy promyse vnto Dauid my father be true. For thou hast made me kynge ouer a people lyke the dust of the earthe in multitude.

Wherfore

¶ Wherfore geue me wisdome and knowledge how to behaue my selfe vnto thys people: for who is able to iudge thys people that is so greate?

Then God said to Salomon, because thou haddest thys in thyne herte, and dyddest not aske treasure and rychelle, honoure & the lyues of thyne enemyes, neyther yet longe lyfe: But hast asked wysdome and knowledge, to iudge my people, ouer whiche I haue made the kyng: wisdome and knowledge shalbe geuen the, and I wyll geue the treasure, rychelle, & glorye also, that amonge the kynges before the or after the, none was or shalbe lyke the. And so Salomon came from the hyghaulter that was at Gabaon to Jerusalem from the tabernacle of witnesse, and raygned at Jerusalem. And Salomon gathered charettes and horsemen: he had a thousande & foure hundred charettes & xij. thousande horsemen, which he bestowed in the charet cyties, and about the kyng at Jerusalem. And the kynge made syluer & gould at Jerusalem as plentyous as stones & Cedar trees as plentye as the mulbery trees that grow in the valeys. And the horses whiche Salomon had, were brought hym oute of Egypt from Jewa. The kynges marchauntes set them out at Jewa at a price. They came and brought out of Egypte a charet for syxe hundred syluer peces, and an horse for an hundred & fyfty. And so brought they for all the kynges of the Hethites, and to the kynges of Syria thorow the handes of the sayde marchauntes.

And the house which I buyld, is great: for greater is oure God aboue all Goddes: So that who can be able to buylde hym an house: when that heauen, neyther heauen aboue all heauens is able to receyue hym, what am I then that I shulde buylde hym an house? nay, but to burne sacrifyce before hym: sende me now therfore a connynge man to worke in gould, syluer, braslle, yron, scarlet, purpell & Jacincte colloure, & that can skylle to graue, to be with the connynge men that are with me in Juda and Jerusalem, which David my father dyd prepare. And sende me also Cedar trees, syrre trees, & * Algume trees out of Lybanon. For I wote well thy seruauntes can skylle to hewe tymbre in Lybanon. And the one wynge of the other Cherub was syxe cubytes, and touched the wal of the house, and the other wynge was syxe cubytes also, and raught to the wyng of the other Cherub. And the heade that was aboue on the toppe of one of them was syxe cubytes. A Also he made an aulter of brasse
1.Reg.viij.d. xx. cubytes longe & xx. cubytes broade & ten cubytes hye. * And he caste a brasen sea of ten cubytes from brym to brym, & rounde in compasse & syxe cubytes hye: and a lyne of xxx. cubytes myght haue compased it rounde about. And the fashyon of oxē vnder compased it rounde about vnder it: that is to wete, two rowes of oxen cast when it was caste, vnder compase that sea which was ten cubytes vpon, rounde aboute. And it stode also vpon twelue oxen: of which three loked North the West, three South and three East, and the sea vpon them above and hye, and the hynder partes of them inwarde. And the thicknes of it was an handbreade, and the brym lyke the brym of a cuppe, with flowres of lylyes. And it receyued & helde the thousande bathes.

B And he made ten lauers & put fyue on the ryght hande & fyue on the left, to wasshe withall. And in them they thrust the flesshe of the burntoffer ynges. But the sea was for the preestes to washe in. And he made ten candelstickes of gould in the fashyon, and put them in the temple: fyue on the ryght hand & fyue on the lefte. And he made also ten tables, and put them in the temple: fyue on the ryght syde and fyue on the lefte. And he made an hundred basens of gould. And he made the courte of the preestes, and the great courte and doores to it, and ouerlaid the doores of them with brasse. And he set the sea on the ryght syde of ỹ East ende, towarde the South. And Hyram made pottes, shouelles and basens.

And Hyram fynyshed the worcke, he made C for kynge Salomon vnto the temple of God, the two pylleres with theyr sealpes of ỹ two heades that were on the toppes of the pilleres: and the two wrethes to couer the two sealpes of the heades that were on the toppes of the pilleres, and foure hundred pomegranates for the two wrethes, two rowes of pomegranates for euery wrethe, to couer the two sealpes of the heades that were on the pylleres. And he made bottomes, and lauers vpon the bottomes, & the sea with twelue oxen vnder it. And thereto pottes, shouelles, fleshhokes, and all theyr instrumēts dyd Hyram Abi make for kyng Salomon for the house of the Lorde, of bright brasse. In the playne of Jordan dyd the kyng caste thē, in the thicke earthe, betwene Succoth D & Zaredathā. And made of all these vessellres so myghty great aboundaunce, that ỹ weight of brasse coulde not be reherced.

And Salomon made all the vessellres that pertayned to the house of God: the goulden aulter and the tables with the shewe breade vpon them, ỹ candelstickes with theyr lampes to burne after the maner before the quere, & that of pure gould, and the flowres and the lampes, and the snoffers were gould, & that perfecte gould: and the dyssheynge knyues, basons, spoones and censers of pure gould. After the Arke broght and the vessels were put in the temple, the Glorye of the Lorde filled the temple.

I Then Salomon gathered the rusalem, to bringe the arche of the couenaunt of the Lorde oute of the cyte of Dauid which is Zion. And all the men of Israel resorted vnto the kynge in the feaste of the seuenthe moneth. And when all the elders of Israell were come, the Leuites tooke vp the arche. And the priestes of the Leuites brought awaye ỹ arche & the tabernacle of wytnesse, and all the holy vesselles that were in the tabernacle. And kyng Salomon and all the congregacion of Israel that were assembled vnto hym before ỹ arch, offered sheepe and oxen, so many that they coulde not be tolde or numbred for multitude.

And the priestes broughte the arche of the appointment of the Lorde vnto hys place in ỹ quere of the temple & place moste holye: euen vnder the wynges of the Cherubes, that the Cherubes stretched oute theyr wynges ouer the place of the arche, & couered the arche and her staues aboue on hye. And the staues of ỹ arche were so longe, that they were sene a lytle before the quere, but not farre wythoute. And there it remayneth vnto this daye. Wherein there was nothinge in the arche saue the two tables whiche Moses put therein at Horeb, when the Lorde made a couenaunte with the children of Israell, after they were come oute of Egypte. And when the priestes were come oute of the holye place (for all ỹ priestes that were founde, sanctyfyed the selues and dyd not wayte by course.) But the Leuites euery one of them that were vnder Asaph, Heman and Idithun, and among theym children and brethern, were arayed in lynnē and sang with cymbales, Psalteryes, and harpes standyng East from the aulter, and with them an hundred and xx. priestes blowynge trompettes. And the trompette blowers & the syngers so agreed, that it semed but one voice in prayeng & thankynge the Lorde. And as the voyce of ỹ trompettes, cymbales and instrumētes of melodye arose, * & as they prayed the Lord, how that he was good and that hys mercye lasteth euer, the house of the Lorde was fylled with a cloude, so that the priestes coulde not endure to mynyster by reason of the cloude. For the glorye of the Lorde had fylled the house of God.

The.vi. Chapter.

¶ The wordes of Salomon to the people, & the prayer he made to God.

THen Salomon sayde: the Lorde hath spoken it, how that he wyll dwell in darcknesse. And I haue buylt an habitacyon for the and a place to dwell in for euer. And the kynge turned hys face, & blessed the hole congregacyon of Israel, and all the congregacyon of Israel stode. And he sayde: blessed be the Lorde God of Israell which spake wyth hys mouthe to my father Dauid, & hath fulfylled it wyth handes, for God sayde: Sence ỹ tyme I brought my people oute of the lande of Egypte, I chose no cyte amonge all the tribes of Israell to buylde an house in, that my name myght be there, neither chose I any man to be a ruler ouer my people Israel. But nowe I haue chosen Jerusalem to haue my name there, & haue chosen Dauid to be ouer my people Israell.

* And it was in the herte of Dauid my father there to buylde an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel: But the Lorde sayde to Dauid my father: for as muche as it was in thyne herte, to buylde an house for my name, thou dyddest well that thou haddest it in thine herte. Notwithstandyng thou shalt not build the house, but thy sonne whiche shall I fynde oute of thy loynes, he shall buylde an house for my name. And the Lorde hath made good his sayeng that he hath spoken. For I arose in the roume of Dauid my father, & sate on ỹ seate of Israel, as ỹ Lorde promysed, & haue buylt an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel. And therein I haue put the arche wherin the couenaunte of the Lorde made with ỹ children of Israel, is. And he stepte vnthe before the aulter of the Lord in the presence of all the congregacion of Israel, and stretched out hys handes. now Salomon had made a brasen pulpyt of fyue cubytes longe, and fyue cubytes brode, and thre of heyght, and had set it in the middes of the greate courte, vpō that he stode & kneled downe vpon hys knees before all the congregacyon of Israel & stretched oute hys handes to heauen & sayde: Lorde God of Israel there is no God lyke the eyther in heauē or in earth, whiche kepest couenaunte & shewest mercy vnto thy seruauntes ỹ walck before the with all theyr hertes. Which hast kepte with Dauid my father that thou promysedest hym: thou sayedest it wyth thy mouthe, and hast fulfylled it with thyne hande, as it is to se this day. Now Lord God of Israel kepe vō thy seruaūt Dauid my father, that thou promysedest hym sayeng: * thou shalt not be wythout one or other in my sight that shalt sitte vpon ỹ seate of Israel. Of thy condicion yet, yf thy children will take hede to theyr wayes to walcke in my lawe, as thou hast walcked before me. Nowe Lorde God of Israel, let thy sayinge be true, whiche thou sayedest vnto thy seruaunte Dauid. How be it in very dede, can God dwell wth man on earth? Behold, neither heauē or heauē aboue all heauēs is able to cōtaine the: how shold the house then which I haue built for ỹ do it? But turne to the prayer of thy seruaunte & to his supplycacō (O Lord my God) to hearke vnto ỹ voyce & prayer which thy seruaunte maketh before the. That thyne eyes be open ouer thys house daye & nyght, & ouer the place of which thou hast sayd, that thou wouldest put thy name there: to hearke vnto ỹ prayer which thy seruaunte prayeth at thys place: hearken therfore vnto the prayers of thy seruaunte & of thy people Israel, whiche they praye in thys place. But heare thou it oute of thy dwellyng place heauen: & when thou hearest it be mercyfull. * If a man synne against his neyghbour, & if an adiuracyō be layd to hys charge, to adiure him with al, & ỹ adiuracion come before thine aulter in thys house: then heare thou (ō heauen) & worche & iudge thy seruauntes, that thou rewarde the cruell, and bring his waye vpon his heade, & iustify the righteous & geue him accordynge to his righteousnesse.

Lykewyse yf thy people Israel be put to ỹ worse before theyr enemies, because they haue synned agaynste the: yet yf they turne and cō fesse thy name, and make intercessyon & praye before the in thys house, then heare thou from heauen and be mercyfull vnto the synne of thy people Israel, and bringe them agayne vnto the lande which thou gauest to them and to theyr fathers.
